SIR: The disagreeable uncertainty I have been in (from the circumstance of their being able to fly in their ships from one spot to another) of the enemy's designs, has kept me at Williamsburgh. It is evident that their original intention was against North-Carolina; but the apparently total overthrow of their whole scheme by Colonel Caswell's victory, makes it more probable that they will bend their force to some other quarter; whether to this Province or South-Carolina, it is impossible to divine. I am myself more inclined to think that this will be their object, as the numerous intersecting navigable waters present them such superior advantages; though, at the same time, I confess myself in great pain for South-Carolina.

The force in that Province seems alarmingly small. I wish I could afford to detach from hence at least three battalions; but neither our number of men, the state and condition of our arms, nor the vast extent of this Province (open to attack) will admit of the thought. If Pennsylvania could spare three or four battalions for the defence of Virginia, Virginia or North-Carolina might detach the same number to South-Carolina; and as the Army which was employed in the blockade of Boston is now set at liberty, I should imagine this force might be afforded us.

We are so extremely deficient in arms that I have been under the necessity of sending an officer into the back parts of the country to purchase all the rifles he can procure, for the Continental service. The arrangement I have made of arming two companies of each battalion with spears, will render muskets and bayonets less necessary; and the ease I find in reconciling the men to this kind of arm, is a flattering symptom of their spirit. The price of these rifles, I am told, will be five pounds each; but as the article of cartouches, accoutrements, and bayonets, will be saved, upon the whole, they will not be more, if so expensive.

The defence and security of the capital rivers, with their creeks, are an object of so great importance that I have thought it necessary to direct as great a number of half galleys as possible to be constructed with the utmost expedition; but as the carpenters and other artificers in this country are so lazy a race of mortals that it is in vain to expect any fruits from their labours, unless there is a coercive power over them, I thought it the surest and safest method to establish, or try to establish, two companies of carpenters, on the same terms with those in the Jerseys. The measure is absolutely necessary, and I flatter myself it will prove economy.

The nature of the service here is such, (the force not being collected into one point, but scattered in fragments,) that a greater number of subordinate staff officers are requisite than in the Northern and Eastern Armies. I have, therefore, taken the liberty, until the pleasure of the Congress is further known, to appoint a few who could not be dispensed with. Enclosed is a list of them.

The Committee of Safety, I find, sir, had not apprized you of their having already raised a company of Artillery, and appointed officers. Captain Imis, who was placed at the head of it, though he professes himself utterly ignorant of this particular branch, is a man of great zeal, capacity, and merit; and as there is a vacant Majority in the Ninth, or Colonel Flemming's Regiment, I have ventured to appoint him to act in that station, in hopes that the Congress will confirm his commission. A body of horse is a sine qua non in a country circumstanced like this. I take the liberty of enclosing to you an address I published to the young gentlemen of this Colony on the subject, and wish it may meet with your approbation.

I shall make Monsieur Arundel accountable for the sixty dollars; but, at the same time, beg leave to submit to the consideration of the Congress, whether the expenses of his journey should not be allowed. They amount to thirty dollars. Indeed, the pay of the Artillery officers and Engineers is so wretched that I do not see any chance of procuring men fit for the service on the terms; and if they are procured, they cannot possibly subsist, unless the expenses of their frequent journeys are paid, for they are obliged, from the nature of their business, to make more journeys than other officers, and not in corps, but singly. I have been obliged to subsist Baron Hasenback; as likewise to furnish Captain Smith, who is now at York, with money for his expenses.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

P. S. Enclosed is an affidavit transmitted from North-Carolina, with a resolve of their Provincial Congress. I forgot to mention that I advanced at New-York to Monsieur Arundel fifteen dollars, to carry him to Philadelphia; but I shall send to the Secretary, as soon as possible, an account of the several sums I have advanced. To-morrow I set out to visit the posts at Suffolk, Kemp's Island, the Great Bridge, &c.

C. L.

TO THE YOUNG GENTLEMEN OF VIRGINIA.

As an Army without Cavalry is, in all countries, a very defective machine, but in this Province, circumstanced as it is, it is impossible to carry on the service with any tolerable degree of credit, without a certain proportion of this species of troops, General Lee begs leave to address himself to the young gentlemen of the different Counties, entreating that they will form themselves into companies of Light Dragoons, consisting of one Captain, one Lieutenant, one Cornet, two Sergeants, two Corporals, and a Trumpet or Horn-Sounder. As it is intended and hoped that the whole will be composed of gentlemen volunteers, it will not be expected that they should receive any pay; but, at the same time, as it is not reasonable that they should put themselves to the expense of maintaining their horses, they are to be allowed rations for them, as well as for themselves. Their arms should be a short rifle carbine, a light pike, of eight feet long, and a tomahawk. General Lee is confident, if the young gentlemen approve, and adopt this scheme, they will not only do very great honour to themselves, but very important service to their country.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

Annapolis, April 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received the Honourable Mr. Hancock's letter of the 16th instant yesterday afternoon, enclosing a recommendation of Congress that we should immediately cause the person and papers of Governour Eden to be seized and secured, and convey such of the papers as related to the American dispute safely to Congress; and, also, the person and papers of A. Ross, and to transmit the latter likewise to Congress.

Previous to our receipt of the above, we had fully investigated the charge that the intercepted letters imported, in which we conducted ourselves agreeable to what we wrote you by Mr. Green, and finally concluded the affair with our answer, a copy of which we now enclose you. The extraordinary manner of communicating the intelligence by the Council of Safety of Virginia to us, with the behaviour of the Committee of Observation for Baltimore, give us cause to complain of the indignity offered our Board; and we cannot suppress our suspicion that matters have been concerted so as to prevent all information which might otherwise have been laid before you from hence. The letter from the Council of Safety of Virginia is dated the 7th instant, and was conveyed through Baltimore to us on the 15th, about three o'clock, P. M., by four gentlemen deputed by that body to wait on us with it, (whose conduct was very disingenuous and exceptionable,) and the resolves passed on the 16th. We are at a loss otherwise to account for the length of time the letter was passing from Williamsburgh to us, and the expedition with which the despatch appears to have been transmitted from Baltimore to Philadelphia, the instructions given Captain Samuel Smith by the Committee of Baltimore, and those given by Captain Nicholson to his Lieutenant, copies of which we likewise send you. The originals came into our hands accidentally, and the whole of the proceedings of the Baltimore Committee were kept from us.

Whence this unmerited treatment has sprung, we cannot conceive, as we ever most cheerfully co-operated with and assisted the Colony of Virginia in such measures as we could justify, from our situation, and have always considered the interest and security of Baltimore as essential to this Province, and acted correspondently. With these ideas, and reflecting upon these circumstances, and being fully persuaded the Congress would have determined differently if they had been furnished with the same evidence upon which we proceeded, we cannot but hope they will rest satisfied with what we have done, more especially as a Convention is shortly to be held, and we are firmly persuaded the Governour will not stir from his station, or do anything to disturb the peace of the Province between this time and the meeting of that body. We consider the Congress as having the supreme authority over the Continent, and look up to them with reverence and esteem, but that they cannot interfere, with uncontrollable power, in the internal polity of this, or any other Province; and herein we are supported by the resolves of the late Convention. If unhappily, however, they do not approve our conduct, we are determined to call a Convention with all convenient speed, and lay our whole transactions before them, that they may judge of the propriety of what we have done.

We omitted informing you before that the Governour assured us, on his honour, that he had received no letters from the Ministry at home but those he delivered to us, and of which we have heretofore sent you copies. He has also given us leave to search all his papers, if we think proper. We are not convinced that he has carried on any correspondence with the Ministry unfriendly to America. If on suspicion only we seize the head of the civil Government, all commissions of Magistrates, Sheriffs, and other officers flowing from him must be at an end, and the Council of Safety have no power to fill up the vacancy. The Convention have this power inherent in them, as Representatives of the people; they have not communicated it to us that we can find. On seizing the Governour, therefore, the Convention ought to be immediately called, to take the state and condition of the Province into their consideration, and make provision for the civil department. If you recommend calling it earlier than the 27th, we shall pay due attention to the day you fix on. We have done everything in our power to promote the interest and peace of the Province, and are firmly persuaded that, if this storm blows over, we shall continue to enjoy quiet some time longer, if not the whole campaign, and, perhaps, before another, all will be settled happily. We write to the President by this opportunity, and we think ourselves fortunate in having William Paca with us, and approving of all we have done; and we doubt not you would have acted, in substance, as we have done, had you been here on the spot. Our Council, consisting of Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Charles Carroll, Barrister, Benjamin Rumsey, and James Tilghman; were unanimous in their opinion, and if we are suffered to go on our own way, all will end as it should do. If, on the other hand, the Governour is treated with ignominy and rigour, and laid under arrest, and guarded, &c., we cannot tell what will be the consequence. This we are certain of, our Government will be shaken to its very foundations, and in what form it would be setted again, we know not.

A. Ross was taken by our orders last Monday, and brought before us yesterday; but as we had not then time to inquire particularly into his offence, we deferred it until we had a little more leisure, and committed him to the custody of a guard. If, upon examination, he should discover anything which we may apprehend will be of service, we will immediately disclose it to you. We should have been glad to have had a line from you by the express. We have received the money-plates, &c.

And are yours, &c.,

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

N. B. A. Ross was represented in the letter to the Baltimore Committee as inimical to America, but not a word said of him in that addressed to us. We enclose you copies of a letter from J. Rogers and R. Alexander, and our passport in consequence thereof.

Philadelphia, February 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Alexander Ross, a gentleman of our acquaintance, has applied to us to procure for him from Congress a passport to Lord Dunmore, upon whom, he says, he has a very considerable claim, which he hopes he should be able to procure, could he have an opportunity of making a personal demand. From the multiplicity of business now before the Congress, an application of this kind would be attended with great delay, and as a license from your honourable Board will be at least as effectual, we take the liberty of recommending him to your indulgence, being well persuaded he will religiously observe any injunctions you may think proper to lay him under.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

J. ROGERS,

ROBERT ALEXANDER.

For Passport to Virginia, vide No. 32.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety for Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO RICHARD HARRISON.

[No. 124.]

Annapolis, April 19, 1776.

SIR: Captain Conway, of the Sloop Molly, will deliver you this. In the disposition of the cargo you will please observe our former instructions, and send us any returns by this vessel you may have to make, as she is a prime sailer.

We are, &c.

To Mr. Richard Harrison, Martinico.

DOCTOR BOYD TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read April 22, 1776.]

Philadelphia, April 19, 1776.

SIR: The Congress did me the honour to appoint me Surgeon to the First Battalion of the Pennsylvania forces, in December last, and I did the duty of Surgeon, till the is no distinguishing citizens from soldiers, nor any other possible method of keeping the latter to their quarters, and, of consequence, from rioting and disorderly behaviour) that it will be found less inconvenient to the inhabitants (to say nothing of the security which is to be derived from it) to give the countersign at that hour, than submit to the greater inconveniences which may arise out of the neglect of it. After this hour it is strictly enjoined upon the officers to see that their rolls are called, and that the men are in quarters.

General Thompson will hasten the embarkation of the Regiments for Albany as fast as possible, and is to fix with the Mustermaster-General, Mr. Moylan, upon a time and place for mustering of them. These Regiments may be embarked and sent off, one at a time, or otherwise, as it can be done quickest; the General to set out with the last. The Colonels to prepare their muster-rolls immediately.

All persons having business with the Adjutant-General are to repair to his own office, and not to Head-Quarters, to transact it.

The General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Starke was President, is dissolved.

A General Court-Martial to sit to-morrow morning, at Mr. France's Tavern, at ten o'clock. All evidences and persons concerned to attend the Court.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 17, 1776.

(Parole, Boston.)

(Countersign, Charleston.)

The General being informed that many of the houses taken up for barracks are much abused by the soldiers, which is a grievance which might be prevented by the officers paying a proper attention to their duty, and more carefully observing the conduct and behaviour of their men, the Barrackmaster is therefore ordered to place a proper proportion of officers in the same houses with the soldiers, who are to be answerable for any mischief done, to prevent any wood being cut upon the floors, or any water or filth thrown out of the windows, as all damages wantonly committed must be paid for out of the pay of the men quartered in the house where such damage is done. The offenders must also expect to suffer a severe corporal punishment for any breach of these orders.

The officers are moreover expressly ordered to see that the men's barracks are kept clean; and the General again urges the necessity of the same cleanliness being observed in the person of the soldiers.

The Colonels and commanding officers of Regiments are to exert their utmost endeavours to complete their companies to the establishment.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 18, 1776.

(Parole, Rhode-Island.)

(Countersign, Hopkins.)

The honourable the Continental Congress have been pleased to direct the Thanks of the United Colonies to be presented to the Officers and Soldiers of their Army, who, with unremitting courage and perseverance, surmounted every effort of the enemy, and every obstacle of that severe climate, in persisting for eleven months in the blockade and siege of Boston, and finally forcing their enemies to make a shameful and precipitate retreat from that once devoted town. This honourable mark of the approbation of the Congress would have been inserted sooner in the General Orders, had not their express gone to the eastward while the Army was upon the march, and arrived only last evening from Boston.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 19, 1776.

(Parole, Lexington.)

(Countersign, Gardner.)

The Colonels and commanding officers of Corps are, without delay, to make up their Pay Abstracts, agreeable to the order of the 14th instant, and present the same for an order for payment. Necessary clothing, &c., must be immediately provided for every Regiment and Company, and the whole to be in readiness for service here, or elsewhere, as occasion shall require, as no excuses will be admitted to retard or prevent a march or embarkation whenever necessary to be commanded. The Muster-Rolls must be immediately prepared, and the Mustermaster-General is to muster the whole as soon as possible.

The Colonels who have received money for the purchase of arms and blankets are to make out their account of disbursements, and lodge them, with the abstracts, that a final settlement may be made.

All persons serving in the Continental Army without commissions from Congress, are desired to give in their names and employments in writing, that the propriety of their appointments, and the nature of their duty, may be judged of.

Major Crane to take the command of the Continental Artillery at New-York. All reports and returns of that corps to be made to him.

One Subaltern, one Sergeant, two Corporals, one Drum, and eighteen Privates, from General Heath's Brigade, to be sent as soon as possible to Montresor's Island, as a guard for the Small-Pox Hospital; the officer, non-commissioned officers and soldiers, to be men that have had the small-pox. The Quartermaster-General to supply a boat, and the Commissary provisions, for the above guard.

James Britton, of Captain Draper's Company, in Colonel Bond's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Baldwin was President, for quitting his post when sentry, is found guilty by the Court, and adjudged to receive twenty lashes. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be executed at such time and place as Colonel Bond shall direct.

COLONEL TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, April 19, 1776.

Commissary TRUMBULL's best respects to General Washington, and informs that the rations of provision supplied by him to the troops at and near Cambridge, per general orders, were and are: 18 ounces salted pork, or 24 ounces salted or fresh beef, or 16 ounces salted fish, per man per diem; 1 pound of flour or bread per man per diem; 1 quart of beer per man per diem, or 9 gallons of molasses per one hundred men per week; 3 pints of peas or beans per man per week; 6 ounces of butter per man per week;  $\frac{1}{4}$  pint of rice, or 1 pound of Indian meal per man per week; 6 pounds of candles per one hundred men per week; 24 pounds of soft or 8 pounds of hard soap, per one hundred men per week.

That he paid the officers their rations at and after the rate of seven and a half pence, lawful money of New-England, per ration; in which computation, the fractions were given in favour of the officer. Pork was computed at seventy-seven shillings and six pence per barrel; flour at twenty-two shillings and six pence per hundred; beer was not to be had at Cambridge, and molasses was generally given at two shillings and two and four pence per gallon.

That he now supplies the same rations in New-York. Pork now costs sixty-six shillings per barrel; flour twelve shillings per hundred; and beer (which can be had, and molasses cannot) costs seven shillings and six pence per barrel; and all other articles as cheap, and the most of them a little cheaper here than at Cambridge. The difference arises from the difference between land and water transportation; so that there is nearly one and half pence difference in each ration of bread or flour, and nearly one and a half pence in the pork; so that he judges a ration here will not exceed six pence, or six and a half pence, lawful money of New-England—equal to eight pence, or eight and one-third pence, currency of New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 12th instant, from Fort George, was delivered me, with the enclosures, yesterday, by express. I agree with you that the intelligence is very alarming, and requires the strictest attention. The four regiments ordered from hence are now embarking, and I hope will soon be with you. I need not urge the necessity of forwarding them from Albany with all possible despatch. You will have with the troops five hundred barrels of provisions. The Commissary-General expects every moment a large quantity from Connecticut; and what can be spared of it shall be sent to you in the same bottoms without delay. What General Lee contracted for is not yet delivered. His sudden and unexpected departure to the southward left the contractors at a loss where to deliver the provisions, and apply for the pay. The Commissary-General has since renewed the contract, and ordered them to send the provisions here.

I have ordered a return to be made of the state of our magazine; and if the powder you request can possibly be spared, you shall have it. I have writtten to Congress to know whether they would incline to send you a further reinforcement of men; but we are yet in a very uncertain situation, not knowing where the enemy may bend their force, and constant applications from all quarters of the sea-coast, for a supply of men and ammunition. The recruits that have been lately raised here are totally unfurnished with arms, and, what is still worse, we do not know where to procure them.

You, who know the temper and disposition of the Savages, will, I doubt not, think with me, that it will be impossible to keep them in a state of neutrality. I have urged to Congress the necessity of engaging them on our side to prevent their taking an active part against us, which would be a most fatal stroke, under our present circumstances. The commotions among the Canadians is really alarming. I am afraid proper measures have not been taken to conciliate their affections, but rather that they have been insulted and injured, than which nothing could have a greater tendency to ruin our cause in that country; for human nature is such that it will adhere to the side from whence the best treatment is received. I therefore conjure you, sir, to recommend to the officers and soldiers, in the strongest terms, to treat all the inhabitants (Canadians, English, and Savages) with tenderness and respect, paying them punctually for what they receive, or giving them such certificates as will enable them to receive their pay.

As you are perfectly well acquainted with the country and its inhabitants in and about Albany, I think it would be best for you to remain there, at least until the troops and all their supplies are forwarded from thence to Canada. Besides the four regiments ordered for that service, I shall send a company of Riflemen, a company of Artificers, and two Engineers.

I beg you will continue to furnish me with intelligence of every interesting occurrence; and believe me, most affectionately, your obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To General Schuyler.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON TO ISAAC ROOSEVELT AND OTHERS.

New-York, April 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am under the necessity of applying to you for the performance, on your part, of the contract between us. I have, in consequence of that contract, furnished myself with considerable supplies for the troops; and as I do not furnish near enough to bear the expenses, I am now to inform you that I shall look to you for the damages I have and may sustain from the non-compliance of your agreement with me.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON.

To Messrs. Isaac Roosevelt, Nathaniel Woodhull, Abraham Yates, Jun., Morris Graham, William Paulding.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 19, 1776.

SIRS: The contract I made with the gentlemen, in behalf of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pursuant to a resolution of the Continental Congress, not having been complied with on their part, I beg leave to lay before the Committee of Safety the following state of facts:

1st. That the day after the contract between us was signed, Mr. Carpenter Wharton came to this town as Commissary to the Pennsylvania Battalions, then expected here, which so suddenly increased the price of provisions, that I was under the absolute necessity, pursuant to my agreement, to furnish myself with a very considerable quantity thereof, and at high prices; and further, to contract to a very considerable amount, which would not have been the case had I, as was universally expected, had the market in my own hands.

2dly. That I am at an immense expense for Commissaries at the Highlands, boat hire, the heavy expenses of domesticks, and the providing for live cattle now in and near this town; which expenses amount to near as much as it would to furnish the whole Army now in and about the suburbs of this city.

3dly. That since the Minute-men have been disbanded, I have not furnished, altogether, a single full regiment, although I was to have supplied five thousand men or more.

4thly. That I cannot expect any troops will be supplied by me, if they get greater allowance from the Commissary-General, whose arrival here has also thrown me into new difficulties.

5thly. That paying me the profit I expected to have when I contracted, will not by any means compensate, without the provisions I have on hand, and have contracted for, are taken from me at the first cost and charges.

6thly. That although the cost of victualling the troops does not exceed, but is under the sum that I received from the Congress, yet if I had, according to agreement, furnished five thousand men, a considerable sum would have been due to me, which would have relieved me from many difficulties with the people with whom I have contracted. But the want of money is a small part of the difficulties I labour under, by reason of the contract. They would be better explained by ocular demonstration than I possibly can do on paper. I shall only add, further, that above a month of the time I agreed to supply the troops has elapsed, and several and material matters, more than I have already mentioned, have been omitted by Congress, for fulfilling on their part the contract between us.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON.

To the General Committee of the Colony of New-York.

LIEUTENANT PAYNE TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As I embarked early in defending the rights of America, by every means in my power, I trust my conduct, in the late campaign against Canada, was becoming the character of a soldier. As I am still actuated by the same principle in preserving the freedom of my country, I take the liberty to express to you my inclination to continue in the service. I signified to General Schuyler I would rather serve in the Artillery, as I had made it my study while Conductor of Artillery in the Northern Department. The General gave me a line of recommendation to the honourable Provincial Congress. If the places are made up for that department, I should have no objection to serve, either to take the command of the Marines on board of one of the ships-of-war, or in a marching regiment. Should you think me worthy your confidence, I hope my future conduct will give satisfaction to my country. I flatter myself I could raise the men in a short time.

I am, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES WILLIAM PAYNE, Lieutenant.

To the New-York Committee of Safety.

ISAAC GEDNEY TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

White-Plains Jail, April 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am to acknowledge your kindness in removing me from the New-York Jail to this place, but am still unhappy in being detained from my family, who, at this season, want my assistance very much. It is not only the aid I might give, in keeping my interest together, (all of which has been earned by the sweat of my brow,) but adding happiness to my family, and saving a large family of children from running into many vices. You, gentlemen, who have families, know the difficulty of keeping youth within bounds, when with them; much less can it be done by a mother.

I have been in confinement near three months. There surely ought to be some period, some end to a man's suffering. If you, gentlemen, think that giving you good bail for my appearance, as well as for my peaceable behaviour, will answer the intention of the law, I can, and shall with pleasure, give it, in any sum which may be asked; but to lie here confined in a jail, and know my interest daily sinking, without one single advantage to the publick that I can conceive, renders me much more unhappy than the bare suffering of being confined.

If you, gentlemen, can with propriety give me enlargement, you will relieve a distressed family of a wife and seven children, and lay under obligations your unhappy and very humble servant,

ISAAC GEDNEY.

To the Chairman of the Honourable the Provincial Congress, New-York.

COLONEL NICOLL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Constitution, April 19, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed letter was intercepted about ten days ago; and as it contains something that may lead to a further discovery, have sent it down to you for your direction how to act in regard to the Major Colden mentioned in it. In the fourth and sixth line, the ciphered word is Governour; and in the seventeenth, Boston; the name of the signature, Robert Hamilton—a person known, but not now in this Province. The person it is directed to lives in Newburgh Precinct. Your returning the letter, with your orders, will be of service up here.

Your Excellency's humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL, Com. Officer.

To General Washington.

THADDEUS BURR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fairfield, April 19, 1776.

SIR: While General Lee was at New-York, Mr. Benjamin Gale, by his order, was taken up as a Tory, and sent to Colonel Waterbury, with orders to send him to Connecticut, there to be confined. In consequence of which orders, the Colonel sent him to me; since which he has been confined to my Jail till within a day or two, when I received the enclosed resolution of the New-York Congress. He is now out upon his parole of honour. You will observe that the resolve of Congress is directed to the Chairman of our Committee, who think they have nothing to do with it, and will not act upon it. I therefore send you, enclosed, the letter upon which he was taken up, (which, by the way, Mr. Gale says he never wrote;) also, Colonel Waterbury's orders and the resolves of Congress, that I may have your directions in the affair. Mr. Gale is an Englishman, a gentleman of good education, and possessed of high notions in favour of his native country; is frank and open in declaring his sentiments, but says he never has, nor will be active against the Colonies.

I confess it appears to me a little extraordinary that General Lee should take up a man upon so slight evidence, and send him out of the Colony, unheard. But of this your Excellency will judge; and I hope to have your directions as soon as may be.

I have the honour to be, with the highest esteem, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

THADDEUS BURR.

To His Excellency General Washington.

LETTER FROM JOHN MCKESSON.

SIR: The enclosed resolution of the Provincial Congress will show you their opinion in the case of Samuel Gale. I have it in charge from the Provincial Congress to request your order that he may be immediately discharged from confinement.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Fairfield County.

"In Provincial Congress, New-York, March 16, 1776.

"The Congress resumed the consideration of that part of the Report of their Committee on the 8th of March which contained Lord Stirling's answer as to the case of Samuel Gale; and taking the case of the said Samuel Gale into consideration,

"Resolved, That this Congress are of opinion that he ought to be forthwith discharged from his confinement, he having been taken, carried away, and imprisoned, without any hearing, trial, or adjudication whatever.

"And Ordered, That a Letter be written to the Chairman of the Committee of Fairfield County, in the Colony of Connecticut, requesting the immediate discharge of the said Samuel Gale.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary."

JOHN ELY TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-London, April 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I think myself in duty bound not only to execute your orders, but to inform your Honour of what progress we make. The Fort on the Neck I think goes on briskly, considering the extent of the works, and the small number of men employed on said works. Colonel Mott and Mr. Waters have been absent for some time. We expect the Colonel here on Monday. The work has not been retarded, as the Colonel gave me directions in his absence.

I must just mention that I find the drafting of men makes uneasiness among the people. If you should think it necessary to enlist more men, I have daily the refusal of them.

I shall still pursue your orders; and am, with the greatest respect, your very humble servant,

JOHN ELY.

To the Honourable Governour Trumbull.

ALEXANDER ROSS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Annapolis, April 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have, by your orders, been in close confinement ever since last Wednesday morning, during which time I have had feelings far beyond the power of expression. Although I am yet ignorant of the charge you have against me, I am persuaded nothing can appear that was not more the effect of necessity than inclination. My wish, therefore, is, to be heard by you as soon as possible, when I doubt not you will act, and determine for me, with that temper and moderation which has hitherto been the result of your deliberations. I doubt not of convincing you that my plan of life had been long settled before this unhappy affair, and that my views were very different to what I am charged with. Maryland has always been my favourite Province, and it has always had my warmest and best wishes; and, if I may be believed, I did it all the little service in my power while with Lord Dunmore.

You will be pleased to forgive me for troubling you at this time, as your own feelings will point out my necessity.

I am, with respect, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

ALEXANDER ROSS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL WEARE.

Annapolis, April 20, 1776.

SIR: We are in hopes that, by this time, your family are much better than they were when you left us. Your attendance is become necessary. We want you to take the command at Baltimore Town. Colonel Smallwood is so unwell, that Major Price cannot be spared from hence.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Francis Weare.

REASONS FOR A DECLARATION OF THE INDEPENDENCE OF THE AMERICAN COLONIES.

1. The Colonies will be delivered from two Governments directly opposed to each other.

2. The Colonies will be delivered from the disorders which arise from the unlimited, undescribed, and sometimes arbitrary powers of Conventions, Committees of Safety, and Committees of Inspection.

3. A criminal correspondence with the enemies of this country will be prevented, or punished under the article of high treason.

4. The Colonies will be delivered from the danger of Crown Officers, whose apparent interest it will always be to remain inactive, or to co-operate with the enemies of America.

5. The British Constitution may be immediately restored to each Colony, with the great and necessary improvements of a Governour and Council chosen by the people.

6. France will immediately attack Britain in the most defenceless parts of her Empire, and thus draw off her fleets and armies from our coasts.

7. All the Powers of Europe will conceive such ideas of our union, love of freedom, and military resources, that they will not be tempted to accept of a share in us upon the condition of conquering us.

Philadelphia, April 20, 1776.

ON THE POWERS OF THE COMMISSIONERS.

Philadelphia, April 20, 1776.

The people throughout the Continent, and particularly in this Province, have been lately entertained with a fond expectation, and many anxiously look for the arrival of sundry great personages; by some called Ambassadors of Peace, by others Ambassadors of Corruption, sent on purpose to divide and conquer; and by his most gracious Majesty they are called Commissioners, empowered to grant general or particular pardons and indemnities, in such manner and to such persons as they shall think fit. He also adds, in case that any Colony should be disposed to submit, (despairing of success in the present opposition,) in consequence of the great fleet and army which his Majesty has so greatly augmented by taking into his service a part of his electoral troops, and which is then to act against us, then these Commissioners shall have authority to receive the submission of such Province or Colony, which shall be so disposed to return to its allegiance, and to restore to it the free exercise of its trade and commerce. The act of Parliament which is said to authorize the Commissioners to treat with the people of America, provided it be the Prohibitory Act, (and as no person has been bold enough to say that there is another for that special purpose, I take it for granted that this is the act so much talked of,) which is now made publick, and, from the very title, as well as from the tenour and consequences of it, tends to alienate, divide, and entirely separate us from Great Britain; no longer viewing us as joint subjects. How absurd a falsehood, then, to declare that there are such persons as Commissioners coming to treat with America, to heal our differences, and to restore to us our liberty, or to secure to posterity the privileges of Englishmen. In the act of Parliament before alluded to, there is not one word to this effect; neither is it, in substance, any more than what the King has declared in his speech of the 27th of October last, in which he assures his Lords and Commons that he hath fully opened to them his views and intentions, and then adds: "I shall give authority to certain persons on the spot to grant general or particular pardons and indemnities;" but not a word of sending over Commissioners to treat with America, to effect a reconciliation upon constitutional principles. Nay, on the contrary, Governor Tryon has informed the people of New-York that "he has it in command from the King to encourage, by every means in his power, the expectations of his Majesty's well-disposed subjects in that Government of every assistance and protection the state of Great Britain will enable his Majesty to afford them." Governor Martin, also, in his commission of the 10th of January, 1776, to Allan McDonald and others, after setting forth that, by virtue of the powers and authorities in him vested by his Majesty, he thereby commissions, authorizes, and empowers those persons to raise, levy, muster, and array in arms, for the purpose of subduing the rebellion, &c.; and then adds, to the end that the people who have been deluded into rebellion may be made sensible it is his Majesty's most gracious and Royal intention and earnest desire to reclaim them to a proper sense of their duty and obedience to lawful Government, without involving the country in the horrors of a civil war, if by timely and dutiful submission they make such extremities avoidable.

But to return: If we examine the transactions of Parliament, in order to discover what powers are given the Commissioners now said to be coming out, we shall find that his Majesty, having declared his intentions of granting commissions for the purpose of pardoning such persons as might choose to submit to the Commissioners, the Parliament, by virtue of a clause in the Prohibitory Act, "makes it lawful for any person or persons authorized by his Majesty to grant a pardon or pardons to any number or description of persons, by proclamation in his Majesty's name, to declare any Colony or Province, Colonies or Provinces, or any County, Port, District, or place, in any Colony or Province, to be at the peace of his Majesty." Now, for the Commissioners to do anything more than this, is not lawful; nor would the Parliament be bound thereby. This clause (and it is the only clause relative to Commissioners) gives them not the least power to treat with America on any other terms than by our direct and absolute submission, without reserve; nor can his Majesty grant to such Commissioners any other powers than what the Parliament has given him authority to grant. Therefore, he that expects a reconciliation by virtue of Commissioners empowered to treat with America in consequence of this act, expects it on no other terms than on our absolute submission; and it would do credit to the espousers of that cause were they honest enough candidly to avow their sentiments on this head; but this answers not their purpose, for it would be plainly telling us that we should then be treated by our conquerors as subdued enemies, and deprived of the liberty of assenting or dissenting to the disposal of our property.

So that upon a review of the foregoing circumstances, I think we have very little reason to believe that Commissioners are coming; or, if they are, I am confident it must appear very evident to every impartial person, that they are not coming for the purpose of restoring peace to the Colonies, but at the expense of our liberty and property; nor for effecting a constitutional reconciliation with our cruel and unnatural stepmother on any other terms. If the Parliament of Great Britain were disposed to heal the differences now subsisting between her and the Colonies, why did they reject the motion made in the House of Commons by the Honourable Mr. Luttrell, to empower the Commissioners to treat with any Convention, Congress, or Assembly, of one or more Provinces? They well knew, and all the enemies of American liberty who have fled to the Ministry, and are now begging their protection and support from the impoverished revenue, could declare, that all the Assemblies throughout the Continent referred the motion which Lord North made in Parliament last year to the Congress: how absurd, then, to think of treating with the Colonies separately. Were the Parliament really desirous of peace, would they risk it on the present plan which is now talked of? No; the Commissioners would be directed to apply to the Congress without delay. But this is not their drift. The Prime Minister continues in the maxim he adopted last year, to divide and conquer. Every measure he adopts proves this to be his creed. And after subduing you he may, perhaps, think a particular share of the confiscated estates a proper and reasonable compensation for his indefatigable pains, assiduity, and care, in scheming and contriving your ruin. Beware, then, of every offer of clemency, favour, and protection, lest, like the poor victims in Boston, you smart for it in the end; they vainly thought themselves safe, whilst under the protection of a few mercenaries, but were deceived. Remember the treaty made between General Gage and the Selectmen of Boston, whereby he disarmed the inhabitants; and forget not how he observed it. This very General is now engaged in assisting the enemy to form their last plan. No publick censure passed upon him for his treachery; which shows they fully approved it. Can you confide in the treaties of such enemies? Look at Lord Mansfield's speeches, and be convinced of the folly of such expectations, particularly his last, published in the Evening Post of the 9th instant. Fail not, then, to unite in every measure the patrons of our liberty may think necessary for our preservation. Be cautious how, by show, or appearance of disunion, you add to the numbers already slain, and increase those torrents of blood which have already flowed in defence of our liberty. I am certain that there is not a more effectual method of augmenting the number of martyrs to their country, than a submission of any Colony, or a part of any Colony, to the tools of Administration. Suppose, for a while, (what I hope may never be accomplished,) that such a disunion takes place, and conquest on the part of the King's troops ensues, what a dreadful catastrophe appears! Who can answer for the numbers that shall be slain in battle, and in cold blood? For a just representation of the fatal consequences of such a conduct, suffer me to lay before you the proceedings and cruelty of a British Army after conquering Rebels, as handed to us by a noted English historian. Though they were Rebels against the State, and we are not, yet, as we are both involved in the same character, we must expect, if conquered, the same merciless treatment. "In the month of May, (says Smollet,) the Duke of Cumberland advanced with the armies into the highlands, as far as Fort Augustus, where he encamped, and sent off detachments on all hands to hunt down the fugitives, and lay waste the country with fire and sword. The Castles of Glengary and Lochiel were plundered and burned; every house, hut, or habitation, met with the same fate, without distinction; all the cattle and provision were carried off; the men were either shot upon the mountains like wild beasts, or put to death in cold blood, without form of trial; the women, after having seen their husbands and fathers murdered, were subjected to brutal violation, and then turned out naked, with their children, to starve on the barren heaths; one whole family was enclosed in a barn and consumed to ashes. Those ministers of vengeance were so alert in the execution of their office, that, in a few days, there was neither house, cottage, man, nor beast, to be seen in the compass of fifty miles." Nor did their cruelty stop here: "Fifty officers (says our historian) were dragged in captivity to a strange country, denied the privilege of trial in the country where the act of treason was said to have been committed, and there, (far from their friends and connexions, and destitute of means to produce evidence in their favour, even if they had been innocent of the charge,) being found guilty, suffered an ignominious death."

Having thus laid before you the proceedings of a cruel British Army, when conquering Rebels, let us apply it to ourselves. If conquered or subdued to submission, we have no better fate to expect, for, however just our cause may be, yet the herald of Majesty has proclaimed us Rebels;* and this Proclamation, however iniquitous it may appear in the sight of a just God, and the impartial publick, will be a sufficient salve for these ministers of vengeance, whose ears are shut against the cry of distress, in executing the orders of their tyrannical Sovereign; and whose hearts thirst for the blood of their fellow-creatures. They will not hesitate to destroy your defenceless towns: witness Charlestown, Falmouth, Stonington, Bristol, and Norfolk. They will exert their utmost endeavours to lay waste your villages and cottages without distinction, where their arms may give them the victory. Those who may chance to fall into their hands as prisoners, must suffer a long and dismal confinement in their dark dungeons, loaded with irons, and denied the comforts and necessities of life; transported in these caverns three thousand miles distance, and then further confined in their loathsome jails, to which death itself would be a happy alternative, but their cruelty and revenge forbids it. For a proof of this, turn your attention to the distress and sufferings of the brave, though unfortunate Allen. In a word, what is it their relentless fury would not accomplish? Neither the persons of your wives nor your daughters would be sacred, but would soon fall a prey to those ravagers, whose greatest glory is in the violation of virtue. Nor let those who submit foolishly hope to fare better. Lord Mansfield tells you, that the Rebels at Preston submitted on promise of pardon, and they pleaded it on their trials, but it availed them not; though he, in the same breath, assures the Parliament, that the commanding officer had full power to receive their submissions and grant pardons. Will submitters in America fare better?

From a retrospective view of these horrid cruelties, is there a man on the Continent who would wish to contribute to the success of so treacherous a scheme? I fear there are a few. Few indeed, I hope they are, and heartily pray they may never increase. Be cautious, then, ye political scribblers how ye make parties or divisions amongst us, for be assured, though we abhor to imitate those merciless mercenaries, yet, when provoked, the guilty shall feel the indignation of the people's wrath, to the terror of those who may be alike wicked and corrupt.

Let the world know, that although we have thus suffered, yet we have not learnt to partake of their cruelty. Those whom chance of war have put into our hands, and whose lives are entirely at our mercy, are not otherwise confined than by parole; and such who refuse to give their parole, instead of being confined in dark dungeons, loaded with irons like the unhappy prisoners of Boston, inhabit the chambers of the best Inn this city affords; to whom also their friends and acquaintances have free access. Go on, then, my brethren and fellow-countrymen, to conquer, and treat with mercy the unfortunate; such acts are recorded in Heaven, the Ruler of which has most singularly espoused your cause.

To conclude: If Commissioners should come, whatever may be the change or appearance of things, persevere in unanimity; upon no pretence whatever (as ye regard success in the present contest) be divided; and ere many days have elapsed, or the infant you now fondly doat upon be arrived to manhood, Great Britain may know, and all the world experience, that the inhabitants of North-America are inspired with a noble zeal for liberty and independence; that though once cruelly used by our stepmother, who will then be enslaved by domestick tyranny, yet these Colonies are preserved as an asylum of true British liberty; that their greatest glory will be to give freedom to the enslaved; and that they will ever rejoice to see the virtuous sons of Britain partake of the sweets of a free American Constitution, which, I trust, will effectually and for ever be guarded against the attacks of every kind of despotism.

* Nay, more, we are declared Rebels by Act of Parliament; which was not the case of the Scotch Rebels. This fully shows what we are to expect.

THE WATCHMAN.

JOHN HANCOCK TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, April 20, 1776.

SIR: The polite attention which your goodness has induced you to pay to me and my private affairs, particularly while you were at Boston, makes me take the liberty of requesting you to spare your Aid-de-Camp a few days. If Mr. Palfrey could, consistent with the service, be permitted to pass two or three days with me in this city, on business of importance to me, I shall esteem it a particular favour. I would not, however, solicit his presence here, or even think of such a thing, if it cannot be done without prejudice or detriment to the publick good, or any inconvenience to you.

I am, sir, with the truest esteem, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK.

To His Excellency General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, April 20, 1776.

SIR: Your several letters of the 24th and 27th of March, the 1st, 4th, and 15th instant, I had the honour of receiving in the order of their dates; by the last of which I learn with pleasure that you had safely arrived at New-York. The dispositions you made to expedite the embarkation of the troops were highly proper and judicious.

Too much despatch cannot be used in sending the battalion to Quebeck, as it frequently happens, in conducting such important affairs, that a week, a day, even an hour, proves decisive, and the greatest advantages are thereby either gained or lost forever.

The resolutions of Congress, as far as they relate to yourself, or those of your letters that have come under their consideration, I do myself the honour to transmit herewith, and am, sir, with every sentiment of esteem and regard, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington, at New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, April 20, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour of transmitting herewith the resolutions of Congress, under the hand of the Secretary, as far as they relate to your own conduct. You will perceive they have ordered four Battalions to Quebeck; and, by letter from General Washington, I understand they are preparing to march with the greatest expedition.

I expect, very soon, to do myself the pleasure of writing more fully. In the mean time I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of regard, yours, &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler, at Albany.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL LOWREY.

Philadelphia, April 20, 1776.

SIR: I have it in charge from Congress to direct your immediate attention to the enclosed resolve of Congress, for the purchase of two thousand barrels of pork, which, when purchased, or part thereof, you will forward in the most expeditious manner to General Schuyler, at Albany. As it is of great importance the Army in Canada should be well supplied, you will exert yourself to effect this purchase speedily. Whenever you send or draw for the money, your bill on me shall meet due honour for twenty thousand dollars.

My respects to Mrs. Lowrey. I hope I shall soon have time to write, and thank you and Mrs. Lowrey for your politeness.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Thomas Lowrey, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, April 20, 1776.

SIR: By the returns just delivered me of the state of our ammunition, I find we are greatly deficient in the article of ball; and as I understand a large quantity of lead has been manufactured at Middletown, in your Government, I must beg the favour of you to forward as much as you can spare to me, as soon as possible.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I thank you for the polite and ready attention you paid to my requisition of the 17th instant. When the civil and military powers co-operate, and afford mutual aid to each other, there can be little doubt of things going well. I have now to request the favour of your information, in what manner and in what time a body of two thousand, or two thousand five hundred Militia, might be collected from this Colony, for actual service, upon any sudden emergency.

Although we may not, and, I trust in God, shall not have occasion for their aid, common prudence does nevertheless dictate the expediency of a preconcerted plan for calling them in, that, in case of necessity, they may be drawn together in proper corps, without tumult or disorder, and at the same time with the utmost expedition. This will not be the case if men are not regularly imbodyed, and notified that they are to step forth at a moment's warning.

The idea that strikes me as the most proper to be pursued at present is, to establish out of the Continental forces good look-outs on the Heights and Highlands, at the entrance of the harbour, who, upon the appearance of a fleet, shall make such signals as (being answered from place to place) shall convey the earliest intelligence to Head-Quarters, of the strength and approach of the enemy. These signals, for greater certainty, to be followed by expresses; and then, in case anything formidable should appear, for the Committee of Safety, (if sitting, if not, those to whom the power shall be delegated,) upon application from the commanding officer of the Continental forces, to order in two or more battalions, as the exigency of the case may require; or, for greater despatch, such Militia, or such part of them as shall be allotted to this service by the Committee, might be assembled (if in the town or vicinity) by signals, to be agreed on.

A mode of proceeding of a similar kind concerted with Jersey, would bring in a reinforcement speedily, and without those irregularities and unnecessary expenses which but too frequently attend the movement of Militia.

Thus, gentlemen, I have expressed my sentiments to you upon the occasion. Your prudence will suggest to you the necessity of adopting these or other methods of a like nature, and your wisdom will point out the most effectual and expeditious manner of carrying them into execution. I therefore submit them to your consideration; and am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO COLONEL GRIDLEY.

New-York, April 20, 1776.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency General Washington, to transmit you the enclosed copy of a letter which he received from a Committee of Congress yesterday, and to request that you repair to Cape-Anne, and comply with the several matters in the said copy, respecting the harbour, fortifications, &c., and return him your report in a clear and full manner.

I am, &c.,

R. H. HARRISON, Aid-de-Camp.

To Colonel Richard Gridley.

[To Colonel Henry Knox the same as the preceding letter, to go to New-London.]

CAPTAIN WILLET TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 20, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is the warrant from the honourable Provincial Congress, directed to me, for the purpose of raising a company in the service of the United Colonies. As I am satisfied I have done my duty with faithfulness and integrity since I have had the honour of serving my country in a military capacity, I can by no means submit to the indignity of being superseded.

MARINUS WILLET.

To the Chairman of the Honourable Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the Colony of NEW-YORK.

The Memorial of JOHN DUNLAP, of the City of NEW-YORK, humbly sheweth:

That your Memorialist is desirous to demonstrate his attachment to the liberties and cause of his country in any manner in which he may be most serviceable to the publick weal; that he has spent upwards of three weeks at the publick works in and about this city, until the inhabitants were dismissed that service; that your Petitioner has been many years engaged in such business as habituated him to accounts, and flatters himself that he might be useful to the publick in any station that required his attention in that way; that the number of his family and circumstances are such as require that the fruits of his service might render a small allowance towards their support.

Your Memorialist humbly prays that the honourable Committee will be pleased to appoint him to any such station or employment as they may think fit, and judge him qualified to execute, for the benefit of his country, and consistent with the circumstances above-mentioned.

And your Memorialist shall ever pray.

JOHN DUNLAP.

New-York, April 21, 1776.

RYNIER VAN HOSEN TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York Jail, April 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Permit me to inform you that I have been confined almost three months; and in the course of that time have never been admitted to a hearing, in order to clear up the charge that is against me. I have a wife and six young infants, who now suffer through want; likewise my land lies waste, having no friend to cultivate it. So hope you will be kind enough to grant me a hearing, and oblige your humble servant,

RYNIER VAN HOSEN.

To the New-York Committee of Safety.

RICHARD NORWOOD TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to your order of the 23d February, I have received the muskets and other accoutrements from Colonel Waterbury, and have had them appraised by Messrs. Jacamah and William Allen. The number of muskets is twenty-three, valued at eighteen pounds seven shillings; one pistol and two pair of holsters; eight old swords are valued at one pound ten shillings; and two pistols are likewise valued at sixteen shillings.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

RICHARD NORWOOD.

To the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York.

P. S. Some of the above arms, with a little repair, will be fit for service. Mr. Norwood would have an order to repair the above guns, and some repairs to the magazine.

To the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York.

RICHARD NORWOOD, Commissary of Colony Stores.

GOVERNEUR MORRIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Morrisania, April 20, 1776.

I take the liberty of addressing your Excellency upon a subject so much out of my own line, that I must be entirely in your equity as to the charge of impertinence. I hope to be acquitted.

The Committee of Safety have ordered that the sick soldiery should be transported to an Island called Little-Barn Island; which was, and perhaps still is, the property of Captain John Montresor, an Engineer in the Ministerial Army. The choice of this particular spot for that purpose induces me to suspect that they were actuated in some measure by those illiberal prejudices, which have great weight in little souls; for certainly it must be rather inconvenient to place the sick upon an Island, at nine miles distance from the Army. It seems to be rather more rational to erect buildings for their reception on the high grounds near Hudson's River, to the westward of Harlaem, a situation at once healthy and easy of access. Or, if an insular position is indispensably necessary, then Behemma's, and especially Blackwell's Island, will be found much better adapted to the purpose, being nearer the city, and a convenient ferriage to either from the Fort at Horne's Hook. And the proprietors of those Islands would, I believe, gladly let any houses they can spare for that use.

My reason for troubling your Excellency on this occasion is, that when Mr. Montresor went to Boston, the Island was put in the possession of (I believe conveyed to) John Tudor, Esq., one of his Majesty's Council for the Bermuda Islands, who came hither in the pursuit of health. He has found it where he now is, and thinks it inhospitable to the stranger to turn him out, instead of taking him in. The lower orders of mankind, blessed in the bluntness of their perceptions, may receive a pecuniary compensation for any inconvenience; but your Excellency best knows how precious are the feelings of a gentleman: publick money can neither purchase or alleviate them. If we banish this pauvre malade, it is worth while to consider how much his tale will be repeated against us. The uncharitable will say it was a pique, because he holds a feather under the King. The mildest judges will discover some harsh features in the piece.

I trespass too much, sir, upon your patience. I have no other excuse, but that Mr. Tudor requested me to mention the matter to your Excellency; let me add, that I receive pleasure in furnishing the occasion for that happiness which you receive in doing good.

With the greatest respect, I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient and humble servant,

GOVERNEUR MORRIS.

To General Washington.

JOHN HATHORN TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Warwick, April 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have herein made a return of the officers chosen in Captain John Wisner's Company of Minute-men, of the Regiment of Florida and Warwick, in the Precinct of Goshen, and County of Orange, agreeable to a return made to me by two of the members of the Committee of this Precinct, declaring their attending at the election of the said company, on the 26th day of March last; and were chosen (agreeable to a certain resolve of the Provincial Congress of this Province, made respecting the regulation of the Militia and Minute Companies) Abraham Dolson, First Lieutenant; Nathan Sayre, Second Lieutenant, and Asa Wisner, Ensign; and hope your honourable body will issue commissions accordingly.

I am, in behalf of the Committee, your most obedient and humble servant,

JOHN HATHORN, Chairman.

To the New-York Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER AT FORT GEORGE,
DATED APRIL 20, 1776.

We came here two days ago, and found the lake still closed with ice; yesterday it all vanished, when Dr. Franklin and the other Delegates immediately embarked on board batteaus, and crossed the lake. Our regiment, with sundry other troops from New-England and the Jerseys, set out at daybreak to-morrow morning. The whole of the troops that are now on the lake and here, will amount to upwards of fifteen hundred men; so that I think we shall make a very respectable figure before Quebeck when we all arrive; and I hope we shall not lay long there, but endeavour immediately to see what the inside is made of.

LIEUTENANT HACKER TO ADMIRAL HOPKINS.

Franklin's Ferry, April 20, 1776. }
Two o'clock, P. M. }

SIR: These are to inform you that, according to your order, I proceeded to Neuport as fast as possible, and arrived there yesterday, at one o'clock, and went on shore, and found the Cabot at Mr. Holmes's wharf, getting out the guns. I advised Captain Hinman to go up the river as soon as he could, as there was a report that there were three ships in the offing. He told me that he intended it. I put out at three o'clock, with the wind at west-southwest, and flood tide, and beat out to the Light-House; but the wind being small, we bore away into Franklin's Ferry; came to and lay till four o'clock; then got under way, and beat as far as the Half-way House, between Point-Judith and Watch-Hill, where we saw a ship lying, a-hull. We still beat, in hopes of getting by her; but she made sail, and stood in to windward of us. We stood for her awhile, but soon bore away. She immediately bore away after us, but made no more sail than her topsails and courses. She stood after us till we got round Point-Judith, where we lowered all sail to wait for her. She hauled away under the lee of Block-Island. I should have taken her for one of our ships, but Captain Hinman was chased before from the same place, within a mile of the Light-House, and a small sloop yesterday, within a few rods of the shore; which makes me cautious how I go too near a ship. I thought proper to run into Franklin's Ferry, and send Captain Brown as fast as possible to acquaint you.

I am, with respect, yours to serve,

HOYSTED HACKER.

To Eseck Hopkins, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the American Fleet, (per favour of Captain Brown.) at New-London.

COLONEL WATERBURY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Hartford, April 20, 1776.

DEAR SIR: After my best wishes to your Excellency, praying God may preserve you through the many dangers and difficulties that attend the calling you are now engaged in; hoping your Excellency, and the Army under your command, may be the means, under God, to the saving of our land from ruin: I received your Excellency's favour of the 13th instant, and can answer the request: that is, I should take it as an honour done to me to be an officer under your command; but as I am well assured that your Excellency delights to see justice done to every officer and soldier in your Army, your Excellency must know that I have not had justice done me. I never had a Continental commission offered me, although it is said, since I returned home, that I refused one while in Canada. I never had the offer, although I took such an active part in the Northern expedition last fall. There were but four small companies that went down with the Generals, besides me and my regiment. When we first took the ground at St. John's, never man laboured through an expedition with more fatigue and hardship than I did; and now, to take rank under those that were but Lieutenant-Colonels at that time, and others that were Colonels, that ranked under me, I should think it would look as though I had done something that was not to my honour, in being set back. If your Excellency sees cause to lay the case before the honourable Congress, and they see cause to give me my proper rank, I shall cheerfully accept your Excellency's offer, and ever make it the height of my ambition to render my services acceptable to your Excellency and my bleeding country; and if not, and your Excellency is attacked, I shall come to your assistance as a volunteer, upon the shortest notice.

And am, with every sentiment of respect and regard, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

DAVID WATERBURY, JUN.

To General Washington.

P. S. My being at Hartford instead of being at Stamford, is the reason of my not answering your Excellency's favour sooner.

W. READ TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Reading, April 20, 1776.

SIR: I have your favour of the 11th of April, by order of the honourable Council of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, to which an immediate answer is requested.

Sir, I am very sensible of the great honour done me in this appointment, to be one of the Justices of the Superior Court of Judicature, &c., for that Colony, and of the duty which I owe my country, and should be glad to render it any service; but my present, and, for some time, low state of health, and the situation of my affairs, render it impossible for me to undertake such an arduous office, which I esteem beyond my abilities in my best condition. Please to present my duty to the honourable Board, and acquaint them herewith, and that I beg the favour to be held excused.

I am, with the highest respect to the honourable Board, their very humble servant,

W. READ.

To the Honourable the Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

WILLIAM MILLER TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Newburyport, April 20, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: About three months ago your Honours were pleased to order me to be confined to this town. I should now be glad to be released from that restraint; and as my employ in the Customs has been at an end for nigh a year, during which time I have been entirely idle, I should therefore be glad of liberty to return to Great Britain, as an opportunity now offers from this place.

I am, honourable gentlemen, your most humble servant,

WILLIAM MILLER *

To the Honourable the Council, at Watertown.

WILLIAM LUX TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, April 21, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have received an order, by Mr. Quin, to attend your honourable Board to-morrow, which I should very willingly obey; but as our Committee is to meet, for the purpose of laying taxes on Non-Associates, and we have appointed the attendance of all our members, I presume to hope it will plead my excuse for deferring it till Tuesday, when you shall be waited on by, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM LUX.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GALLOWAY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE TO DELEGATES OF MASSACHUSETTS IN CONGRESS.

New-Jersey, Gloucester County, Galloway Township, }
April 21, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: We, the Committee of Galloway Township, have received your favour of the 17th instant, and,

* IN COUNCIL, April 23, 1776.—Read; and Ordered, That the said Miller's request be referred to the Committee of Newburyport, who are hereby authorized and empowered to permit him to go to Great Britain, under such restrictions and conditions as their discretion shall point out to be necessary.

PEREZ MORTON, Deputy Secretary.

taking the same into our most serious consideration, do hereby promise that nothing shall be wanting in our duty to assist our unhappy and suffering brethren.

As soon as ever we heard of their misfortunes, we called our Committee together immediately, and ordered all necessary assistance that could be provided for their relief, with a Surgeon immediately to attend them, and nurses, with proper lodging and diet for them. We have the pleasure to inform you that they are in a fair way to recover. The Mate is able, by the help of his crutch, to go about his room. We shall use our utmost endeavour to comply with your request in this and all other matters that your Honours will be pleased to assign to us.

And we do hereby request you will please to accept of our most hearty and sincere thanks for the steady and unwearied part you are acting in the defence of our country's cause, and, in particular, for your humane and tender care for the sick and wounded. May your wise Councils and Assemblies be always crowned with success in all their undertakings, is the sincere wish of this Committee.

By order of the Committee :

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,
RICHARD PRICE, Clerk.

To the Honourable the Delegates of the Massachusetts-Bay, &c.

N. B. We herewith enclose you Captain Tripp and the Mate's deposition. Captain Tripp informs us that the Captain of the tender's name was Butler, and believes the Lieutenant's name was Han; and one Green, from Barnagat, they kept on board as pilot.

R. P.

GALLOWAY Township, in GLOUCESTER County :

Be it remembered, that, on the 20th of April, 1776, personally appeared before me, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Gloucester, Captain Job Tripp, late Master of the Sloop Endeavour, and James Cathill, his Mate, both of Dartmouth, in the County of Bristol and Province of Massachusetts-Bay; and, being sworn on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, do declare, that we left Dartmouth, in the said sloop, on the 31st day of March last, for Philadelphia. On the following day, about three o'clock in the afternoon, (the forepart of the day being very thick and foggy, cleared up in the afternoon,) we saw the vessels in at Little-Egg Harbour Inlet. About the same time we discovered a vessel to the southward of us. When we found we were so near the land, we altered our course more out to sea; we being bound to the southward, and that vessel to the northward. They presently came up with us. About the distance of three hundred yards on our lee-bow, they fired at us. Immediately we saw a number of men on board of her, who appeared to be in motion, and very busy. We hailed them twice with our trumpet, but received no answer, but another firing, and hove about, and made after us. We still kept our course, and they after us, continually firing, till about ten o'clock at night. At that time they were about a swivel-shot distance from us. The wind dying away, and perceiving them coming up very fast, we immediately hove to, and hauled down our foresail, and were busy in hauling down our mainsail, when they run up as near as they conveniently could without running foul of our vessel, and fired a broadside at us; which felled both the Captain and Mate. By their account, they fired two volleys of small-arms just as they fired their cannon and swivels; each volley ten guns. Their carriage-guns and swivels were two four-pounders and six swivels on each side. The Captain was wounded in the thigh, which we imagine to be a swivel-ball, which broke the bone, and shattered it very much. The Mate was also wounded in both thighs; the ball went through the fleshy part of the right, and lodged in the left.

We were unable to help ourselves, though we made shift to scramble down into the cabin. The Captain laid on the cabin-floor, and the Mate had got in his birth, before they boarded us. The Lieutenant came down, and presently presented a pistol at him, and ordered him to turn out immediately on deck, or he was a dead man; treated him with very scurrilous and abusive language, and hauled him out of his cabin. With that, he scrambled on deck as well as he could; kept him there till he was satisfied; then ordered him into his cabin again; and, returning to the Captain, who lay on the floor, ordered him likewise upon deck.

The Captain begged he would let him alone, as he was unable to stand or help himself; with that he left him.

They rummaged all our chests for papers and letters, which they took with them—all they could find, with forty-nine dollars of the Captain's in Continental bills; with the Mate's journal, pocket-book, chest, bed, &c., &c. They were particularly careful in collecting all the old iron and spikes they could find to take with them. After they had rummaged and taken what they thought proper, they cut up the cables, and hove them, with the anchors, overboard, and threatened to burn the vessel. They kept us till about five o'clock in the afternoon next day, when the Lieutenant came to the Captain (on board our own vessel) and told him that the Captain of the tender was going to indulge him with his boat and men to go ashore for a Doctor. There were three hands besides the Captain and Mate. Before we had left the vessel, they scuttled her, and the water came in very fast; and heard them call out, Come, let us begin the fire in the cable-tier. They let the Captain take his bed and chest, and a bed-sack to lie on. The Captain of the tender called to his Lieutenant not to let us take too many things with us. When we had got some distance from the vessel, we saw a great smoke arising from her, with all her sails standing, save the peak of the mainsail, which was dropped down, with her tiller lashed fast, so as she could steer herself. The vessel was about seventy or seventy-five tons burden.

We were about one hour and a half in the boat before we reached the shore, which was the flat beach; and were about thirty-six hours before we had any dressing to our wounds. And further these deponents say not.

JOB TRIPP,
JAMES CATHILL.

ROBERT MORSS.

Sworn before me,

N. B. The most of the latter part of the transaction was taken from the Mate; the Captain, being badly wounded, could not remember.

The above is a true copy from the original.

RICHARD PRICE, Clerk Township Committee.

COLONEL KNOX TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Norwich, April 21, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to your Excellency's instructions, I tarried at Cambridge till all the ordnance and stores in my department were on the way to this place; which, to my great mortification, was not till the 14th instant. The detention was owing to the zeal of the General Assembly, which promised more than their activity could perform.

In my passing through Providence, Governor Cooke, and a number of the principal people, were very pressing for me to take Newport in my way, in order to mark out some works of defence for that place. The spirited conduct of the Colony Troops posted there, in driving away the King's ships, alarmed the whole Colony for the safety of its capital. Knowing your Excellency's anxiety for the preservation of every part of the Continent, I conceived it to be my duty to act in conformity to your wishes, especially as I could get to Norwich as soon as the stores which set out for Norwich on the 14th. Accordingly, I went to Newport, and marked out five batteries, which, from the advantageous situation of the ground, must, when executed, render the harbour exceedingly secure. In this I humbly hope for your Excellency's approbation.

Mr. Cheever is expected in this day with the powder and some stores, being the last division; which I shall endeavour to get away as soon as possible. If the wind shall be fair, I propose going by water; if not, by land.

Lieutenant-Colonel Burbeck declined complying with your Excellency's orders, alleging that the Province had settled on him four shillings sterling per day during life, after the war was over; which, if he went out of the Province, he might, perhaps, lose.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mason, who came with the ordnance to this town, being in ill health, I have permitted to go by land.

I am going down to Admiral Hopkins, to receive his directions concerning the safety of sending out the stores, as some of the King's ships yesterday chased in a vessel to New-London; and also to endeavour to get the brass mortars which he brought from Providence, if not particularly appropriated.

I sincerely wish your Excellency every earthly blessing; and am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

HENRY KNOX.

To His Excellency General Washington.

WILLIAM RICHMOND TO ADMIRAL HOPKINS.

Head-Quarters, Newport, April 21, 1776.

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your very acceptable favour of ordnance and warlike stores from the Cabot. We are mounting them with all despatch possible, under the inspection of Mr. John Collins, who assures us that within four days he will have them all mounted. We have almost completed the fortification on the Point, where we can mount thirteen guns. To-morrow we go on Fort-Island, in order to put the old fort in a posture of defence; which, together with another on Brenton's Point, we think will well secure the harbour: all which works we shall pursue with the utmost vigour till completed. We are informed you have sixteen more heavy guns for us. As they are without carriages, it may be necessary to send them along soon.

Before this can come to hand, you must have heard of the confusion we have lately been in, occasioned by the wild conduct and insanity of our late commander, (Colonel Babcock;) who is now under an arrest at Providence, and, we judge, must be discharged from the service: in consequence of which, the command, at present, devolves upon me—a heavy task.

I have the honour, sir, to be, with the greatest sincerity, your most obedient and most humble servant,

WILLIAM RICHMOND.

To Admiral Hopkins, Esquire.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO STEPHEN HOPKINS.

April 21, 1776. }

DEAR BROTHER: Since I wrote, nothing material has happened. We landed our sick, (which were one hundred and forty men in the fleet,) and got some new men out of the Army, and were ready to sail, when I received General Washington's letter by express, a copy of which I have enclosed.

I sent out the Cabot in order to strengthen the town of Newport, where she is arrived, as you will see by Lieutenant Hinman's letter, a copy of which you have enclosed. Two days past we were under sail to go out, but got ashore on the rocks near Fisher's Island; but got off again without much damage, after about eight hours, and came in again, and ordered all the vessels in which I had under convoy—five of whom were at the risk of the Congress. The Fly is now out in order to learn the strength of the fleet. If they are not much stronger than we, shall go out the first fair wind.

We are much better manned now than we ever have been. My son (John B. Hopkins) is ashore, at Mr. Shaw's, and getting better of his wounds; but do not expect he will be able to go on board his brig, to take the command, in less than three or four weeks.

I am your loving brother, ESECK HOPKINS.

To the Honourable Stephen Hopkins, Esquire, at Philadelphia.

P. S. I have obliged most of the sailors that I have taken out of the armed vessels to do duty on board. Should be glad to know if that is agreeable with the sentiments of the Congress, that I may still follow the same rule.

THOMAS BURKE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 2, 1776.]

Halifax, North-Carolina, April 22, 1776.

SIR: Expecting in our Province a scene of much business, which may require all our attention, we have thought it expedient to send the prisoners taken during the late commotion, some to Maryland, some to Virginia, and some to Philadelphia, for the more immediate disposition of the Continental Congress. These last are such as appear to us, from their rank and influence over an ignorant and restless part of our inhabitants, to be capable of doing us the most mischief.

We are sorry to be compelled to an act of such severity as this of sending these men at such a distance from their unfortunate families; but the security of our country makes it indispensably necessary, for should they have an opportunity of exerting their pernicious influence, at a time when we may be invaded by a powerful Army, the consequences might and probably would prove fatal. The hopes these men have given our enemies, we are assured, have induced the British Ministry to direct against us the first efforts of their arms; to them, therefore, are due the evils, expenses, and difficulties, which we encountered in suppressing them, and the calamities which they and their wretched families must now undergo. We shall not fail to extend to the latter the most humane attention, for we are always mindful that humanity distinguishes the brave.

We should not have sent off the prisoners, but that we could not secure them without engaging too many of our officers and soldiers from more important business; for while in the neighbourhood of their connexions, when the attention of every one would be drawn to the more important operations of the impending campaign, without strong guards a rescue would be inevitable.

We rely on the wisdom of Congress for disposing of them in such a secure manner that we shall have nothing to apprehend from their future machinations. We enclose you the list of their names, and we shall by the first opportunity transmit you a particular account of circumstances relative to each, extracted from the report of the Committee appointed by the Provincial Congress to inquire concerning them.

We are, with very great esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servants.

By order of the Committee of Secrecy, of War, and Intelligence, for the Congress of North-Carolina:

THOMAS BURKE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

ORDERS BY GENERAL LEE TO THE COMMANDERS OF THE SEVERAL BATTALIONS.

Virginia, April 22, 1776.

SIR: You will please to give orders to the several recruiting officers of your regiment not to take any natives of Great Britain, or Ireland, as recruits, unless they have been some time residents in the country, and have wives and children, or unless they can bring a strong and sufficient recommendation. As this, sir, is a matter of no small importance, a Colonel will be appointed to examine and pass all the fresh recruits; and whoever does not come under this predicament, will be thrown on the officer's hands.

By the General's orders:

THOMAS BULLITT, Dep'y Adjutant-General.

VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

April 22, 1776. }

Ralph Wormeley, Jun., Esq., appearing before this Committee in custody, and being examined touching his Letter to Mr. John Grymes, of the 4th of April, 1776, lately intercepted from the said John Grymes, on his way to Lord Dunmore; the Committee hearing what he alleged in his defence, also examining Charles Neilson on oath, are of opinion that nothing appears to us in his conduct, or in the said Letter, to be within the offences defined by the late Ordinance for establishing a mode of punishment for the enemies to America in this Colony; but the said Letter being, in the opinion of this Committee, a full proof of the inimical disposition of the said Ralph Wormeley, Jun., Esq., against the rights of America, and showing a readiness to join the enemies of this Colony, provided he should be called and enabled so to do, this Committee do resolve, that the said Ralph Wormeley, Jun., Esq., be discharged out of custody, upon entering into bond, with approved security, in the penalty of ten thousand Pounds, conditioned that he do not correspond with the enemies of America, join, or in any manner aid or assist them; that he do not depart this Colony without leave of the Convention or Committee of Safety; and further, that he appear before the said Convention at any time during their next meeting, if he shall be required so to do.

April 24, 1776. }

Ordered, That the Letter from Ralph Wormeley, Jun., Esq., to John Grymes, Esq., lately intercepted, together with the Resolution of this Board thereupon, be published in the Virginia Gazette.

JOHN BECKLEY, Assistant Clerk.

Rosegill, April 4, 1776.

DEAR SIR: When you and Mr. Neilson returned from Norfolk, you informed me that Lord Dunmore either wished or expected, or thought it my duty, that I should immediately, in person, repair to his Lordship; that some such ostensible marks of my attachment to Government and loyalty to my King were looked for from me; and that, notwithstanding my unequivocal, steady, and invariable conduct, if I still continue at home, I may be exposed to the indiscriminating ravages of war, without any chance of reparation. Whether this opinion is founded on the last Proclamation of the King, on the late advices from the Minister, or from his Lordship's conjectures, I do not know. As to the Proclamation and the late advices from the Minister, I have an easy answer. First. I have never seen the Proclamation, never heard it either read or repeated; it cannot, then, be expected of me to pay respect to any instrument of that sort, whose contents I can have no cognizance of before they are submitted to my senses. Second. As to the advices of the Minister which may lead his Lordship to conclude it to be the duty of every man now, when the friends of Government are in such a state of impotency, or rather are under such complete dominion, to repair to his Lordship, without the probability of advancing any practical scheme of utility, of concerting any effectual plan of operations, and without regard to circumstances; I say, sir, such advices are repugnant to the words and meaning of the King. In the true knowledge of our present situation, his Majesty thus expresses himself: "And although many of these unhappy people may still retain their loyalty, and may be too wise not to see the fatal consequences of this usurpation, and wish to resist it, yet the torrent of violence has been strong enough to compel their acquiescence, until a sufficient force shall appear to support them."

A few observations on the above quoted passage will prove the repugnancy. "Unhappy people." In what? In being overpowered by these usurpers; so overpowered that they cannot even hope, they can only wish to resist it. This being the case, what are these unhappy people to do? What does his Majesty expect? Not their fruitless, vain endeavours, which prejudice every cause; he knows that the torrent of violence is strong enough to retain them in their compulsive acquiescence, "till a sufficient force shall appear to support them." He expects, then, they will wait the event. They will have, they have a right to protection. Every effort and endeavour now, on their part, would only issue in ruin to themselves, and in ruin to their cause. No man bears the accursed tyranny that is erected with more impatient mortification than I do; and if there were a corner on the face of the earth that I could support myself in, and enjoy that freedom which I am now violently deprived of, I would, for the gratification of my own happiness, fly to it. I have too much feeling not to be exquisitely sensible of my slavish condition.

I have made no reply as to his Lordship's conjectures. As he must be furnished with intelligence that I am ignorant of, it must be supposed that he can form a better judgment than I can. In a matter of such weight I wish he had extracted the paragraph, if he drew his opinion from his late advices, or had given the reasons on which he formed it. To convey myself, together with the absolute necessities of life, without my intention being discovered, is almost impossible. Besides, I am only an inferior member of the family, have not the command of furniture, bedding, &c., nor provisions; and exportation being prohibited, if I could afford, I could not command money for my support. Add to this the probability of all resources being cut off, whereby wheat, flour, or corn, are now furnished, as the army of the Provincials increases, unless one of equal or superior force should soon arrive from Britain. Numbers, in such a case, will add to the difficulties that the fleet, army, and people at Norfolk, labour under. Hundreds will only multiply these inconveniences; thousands alone can remove them. These reasons weigh with me at present, and restrain me from taking the step Mr. Neilson advises with so much urgency.

But, after all, what beneficial consequence could my personal attendance operate in favour of that cause whose success I have at heart? My example is not efficacious enough to influence others to follow it. What exertions of mine could now avail? And are not ineffectual exertions capitally erroneous in policy? Would not, or might not, the departure of a person of my insignificance quicken the jealousy of the present rulers, give fresh vigour to the persecution, and make them lash our few party friends, not with that rod of iron which we have experienced severe enough for the most criminal atrocity, but with a red-hot one, fresh from the infernal forge of tyranny. If, though, the Governour should think my presence necessary, and that I can, in any degree, be assistant to his Lordship, Government, or my country, he will give me an official summons, and afford me proper facilities to reach him, I will, at the hazard of that precarious, negative quiet that is now indulged to me—I will, to the prejudice of my health, which is, as you know, at present interrupted by a most inveterate disorder, and which disorder would certainly be aggravated by a diet exclusive of vegetables, at the risk of my life, of every thing, obey it.

Will you be so obliging as to communicate this where you think it necessary? And, under all vicissitudes of fortune, believe me to be, with the most unalterable sincerity, your most affectionate friend,

RALPH WORMELEY, JUN.

To John Grymes, Esq.

CAPTAIN NICHOLSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, April 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have now to inform you of the armed Schooner Resolution being equipped, agreeable to your directions. She wants principally the commissions for her officers, who refuse acting out of the harbour until their commissions are confirmed. After which, should be glad of your permission to go down the bay as far as you think proper, in order to exercise our men, and consult with Captain Boucher. The schooner has about forty hands now shipped, but is capable of carrying seventy with great convenience.

If you think proper to have that number complete, you will please let me know. The officers that have been acting aboard are William Ward, Captain; Henry Auchinlick, Lieutenant; Bennet Johnson, Master; and, as far as I can discover, are proper persons. Mr. Dorsey, one of the ship's Midshipmen, I understand, has made application for a Lieutenancy of Marines; I think him very capable.

I am, gentlemen, with much sincerity, your obliged humble servant, to command,

JAMES NICHOLSON.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

HUGH YOUNG TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, April 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have the pleasure of advising you of the safe arrival of the Brigantine Beith, in the West-Indies, the 3d ultimo, without any interruption. I sent you, by Mr. Lux, a letter for you from him, but have learned that he forgot it; I suppose he has sent it since his return.

I am sorry to advise you of the loss of the Brigantine Nancy, Captain Wise, somewhere in the bay, a few days ago. I have not received any letter from him, but have it from a gentleman from the Eastern-Shore of undoubted authority, and believe it to be a fact. It appears, from the care Captain Wise had taken, that it is morally impossible for any vessel to pass our ravenous enemies. However, if you think the Schooner Ninety has any chance, you will please give the Committee orders to allow me to load her, as her cargo is all ready. If you think otherwise, I shall be glad to know what I am to do with the cargo. I shall be much obliged for a few lines on the subject by the first opportunity.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,
HUGH YOUNG.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

SOLOMON WRIGHT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Queen Anne's County, April 22, 1776.

Captain George Noble Sweat having, under an especial order of this Committee, returned a list of a Company of Militia in Wye, whereby it appears that the said George Noble Sweat is chosen Captain, Nehemiah Noble First Lieutenant, James Bartlett Second Lieutenant, and Thomas Duffe Ensign of the said Company; and that there are in the said Company four Sergeants, four Corporals, and fifty-two Privates. The above officers are recommended to the Council of Safety for commissions.

Signed per order of the Committee of Observation:
SOLOMON WRIGHT, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE DELEGATES IN CONVENTION.

Annapolis, April 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Very urgent affairs of the Province require your attendance in Convention. We, therefore, earnestly request you would meet punctually at Annapolis, on Friday, the 7th of May next, at which time we have determined a Convention ought to be held.

We are, &c.

To the Delegates in Convention.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

Annapolis, April 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You have our thanks for the anxiety you express on our accounts, if the thanks of such blackened, insulted (but we think injured) characters are worth your acceptance. We must say, that if the same justice were done us that we would do unto others, in similar circumstances, a copy of the anonymous letter you mention, traducing our reputations, would not have been refused us by the Congress; for we sincerely declare to you and the world, that were we in possession of any paper reflecting in so gross a manner on that, or any other respectable body on the Continent, we should think it unjust and ungentlemanly to withhold it from them, and, by thus secreting, prevent the discovery of the author of so foul a calumny, and shelter him from the censure, not to say punishment, he deserves.

We wrote you fully in our last two letters, and sent copies of all such papers as we thought material. The Governour voluntarily gave us his parole in the fullest manner, and has since confirmed it by letter, assuring us that he will not leave the Province till the Convention sits. We are firmly persuaded he will not stir, or do anything against the peace thereof. He also assured us, in the most explicit terms, that he had received no other letters from the Ministry but what he gave up, and which we sent you copies of. We examined his bureau and closet, and found several letters in them to Administration, and his friends in England, wherein he represents this Province in a favourable point of view.

We were not without our suspicions that a plan had been concerted by the two persons you mention, and have determined, if possible, to get to the bottom of it; and for that purpose, on Saturday last, before the receipt of your express, issued our order to Mr. Samuel Purviance, Chairman, Mr. William Lux, Deputy Chairman, and Mr. George Lux, Clerk, of the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County, to appear before us this day, and to bring with them all the proceedings, papers, letters, orders, entries, instructions, &c., relative to the intercepted letters. We are resolved to have a full and open examination of the affair, and shall then cheerfully submit our conduct to the publick.

We consider the authority of the whole Province trampled upon and insulted, (if not conspired against;) and, having your letters holding forth the same sentiment, we have thought it advisable (as we know not to what lengths this matter may be carried) to call a Convention, to be held at the City of Annapolis, on Tuesday, the 7th of May next, at which time we shall be glad to see all the gentlemen Deputies that can be spared from Congress. We shall endeavour to have all our proceedings ready to lay before them on the first day of their meeting, and shall submit to them whether our conduct has been either timid, inactive, or in any other particulars unjustifiable.

Our proceedings with the Governour are such as are, in our opinions, in every respect defensible. We are convinced, from his declarations and answers, and from his manner of behaving to us, that he will not leave the Province. Little minds might have been gratified with actual imprisonment, and further severities, but we do not imagine the Congress meant any such outrage on humanity. We have had all the advantages we could have had if we had committed him to the publick jail, and, we are persuaded, many more. Nobody can believe that we are courting the Governour at present: it is the peace and happiness of the Province we wish to preserve; and we are persuaded that it will be best done by keeping up the ostensible form of our chartered Constitution. We feel for you. The insult offered by Mr. Hancock, in not admitting you to his presence, must have been grating. Our Province is the object of attention, and we are to be plunged into all the horrors of anarchy only to gratify a few individuals out of Congress. However, we shall still persevere in doing our duty with unremitting zeal, and not fail to assist our neighbours, if necessary. And, upon the whole, after again repeating our thanks, permit us to assure you, that we are persuaded when our transactions come to be fully canvassed, and the true interest of this Province considered, that you will have no occasion to blush for our conduct.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies of Maryland, in Congress.

N. B. We have received the Surgeon's instruments, and delivered them safe to Doctor Weisenthal.

COLONEL MORGAN TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Carlisle, April 22, 1776.

SIR: I have just now had the honour to receive the instructions of Congress, dated the 19th instant, relating to the Indian Department; which they may be assured I will strictly observe; and that my attention, as I have now no other business to the westward, shall be devoted to the publick service.

Isaac Stell, the Interpreter, being taken ill with the small-pox at a Mr. White's, twenty-two miles on this side of Lan- caster, I have left some money, and necessary directions, for the care of him and his family, until further orders from the Commissioners.

I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE MORGAN.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

ON THE PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS, ETC., RELATING TO INDEPENDENCE.

When I meet in my walks with angry disputants, and behold the bursts of rage which some men unhappily give way to, I often repeat to myself that beautiful exclamation of the inimitable Sterne, "What is there in this world's goods that can so sharpen our minds against each other, and make so many kind-hearted brethren amongst us fall out so cruelly by the way."

What, indeed, is there in the narrow limits of time that should induce us to risk our future peace to a momentary gratification of passion and resentment, and embitter the few fleeting hours of our present existence? Whenever I view contending parties treating each other with envenomed asperity, my very soul throbs with pain for their feelings; and fain would I exert every nerve within me to reconcile their jarring interests, and restore that happy harmony, for the perfect enjoyment of which we are by our nature so amply fitted. When I meet with that wild ambition which would deluge the world with human gore, for the extension of empire, or establishing some favourite views, I lament, with truly heart-felt woe, the miserable bosom that contains it, and breathe out a supplicating wish that the great Author of Nature may confine within narrow bounds their fatal effects.

That mankind should differ in sentiment is of infinite importance to society; but that they should support that difference with the virulence of anger, is a misfortune of the deepest dye. When passion once possesses the mind, it becomes blind to reason, and throws the whole system of things into confusion. The subject becomes lost in the dispute, and, instead of sober argument, they substitute intolerable abuse.

I have been led into these reflections by a review of the several publications which have lately appeared on the grand political question of Independence; a doctrine of so important a nature, that it ought to be sifted to the bottom. I can readily allow the utmost indulgence to those gentlemen who have started the thought, and most heartily admit an unlimited freedom to support their arguments; but, on the other hand, I should expect a grant of equal indulgence from their side. The subject is a grand subject. The thought was great, and has proceeded from no little mind. But then, gentlemen, it is new; and you ought to grant a free and uninterrupted discussion of a question in which so many millions are concerned.

That the opposers of the novelty may not be thought unfriendly to the American cause, and to show the necessity there is of sober and cool argument to convince a great number of well-meaning men, I will take the liberty of showing the thoughts of several publick bodies on the occasion, lest some should ignorantly run away with the opinion, which has been too hastily adopted by a few of the independent writers, that those who hesitate to embrace an immediate Independency have sinister views, and would sacrifice their country for the sake of a reunion with Great Britain. That this is not the case, and that it is not the malevolent party view of a trifling, contemptible junto, seeking to serve themselves at the expense of their brethren, I think may be fairly and honestly inferred from the several following quotations.

I shall give the first place to the sentiments which I find published in the proceedings of the honourable Continental Congress, excluding everything which was transacted before the fatal 19th of April, when hostilities first commenced on the part of Great Britain; from whence we shall discover that an idea of total separation by no means took place on that unhappy event, but that a restoration of the beneficial connection that had before existed was the principle object in view; therefore, if the writers in opposition to this new doctrine should not be convinced of the propriety of abjuring England so speedily as the Independents desire, they ought not to be surprised, much less ought they to get angry on the occasion. Christianity itself has been upwards of seventeen hundred years in the world, and yet millions of its inhabitants are still to be convinced of the excellence of the Christian religion; and even amongst the professors of Christianity themselves, how slowly has the Reformation advanced. Men must be convinced before they become converted. Why, then, this impatient earnestness for a whole Continent to assent to a doctrine the tidings of which have scarcely reached beyond the limits of the Middle Provinces? If any single man or set of men should doubt the propriety of the measure, they have an undoubted right to speak their minds, and ought to be heard, without being charged with sentiments inimical to America. But I shall proceed to produce my authorities.

Whilst bleeding with the wounds received at the battle of Lexington, when every passion of rage and resentment must be supposed to have been at its greatest height, we find the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts-Bay thus expressing themselves in their Address to the Inhabitants of Great Britain. After reciting the ravages committed by the soldiery, they add: * "These, brethren, are marks of Ministerial vengeance against this Colony, for refusing, with her sister Colonies, a submission to slavery. But they have not yet detached us from our Royal Sovereign. We profess to be his loyal and dutiful subjects; and so hardly dealt with as we have been, are still ready, with our lives and fortunes, to defend his person, family, crown, and dignity."

A little further they add: † "We sincerely hope that the Great Sovereign of the Universe, who hath so often appeared for the English Nation, will support you in every rational, manly exertion, with these Colonies, for saving it from ruin; and that in a constitutional connection with the Mother Country, we shall soon be a free and happy People."

On intelligence being brought to Congress of the taking Ticonderoga, they resolved, amongst other things, ‡ "That an exact inventory be taken of all such cannon and stores, in order that they may be safely returned when the restoration of the former harmony between Great Britain and these Colonies, so ardently wished for by the latter, shall render it prudent and consistent with the overruling law of self-preservation."

The Congress being resolved into a Committee of the Whole, to take into consideration the state of America, agreed to an unanimous resolve, in which we find the following words: "That these Colonies be immediately put into a state of defence. But as we most ardently wish for a restoration of that harmony formerly subsisting between our Mother Country and these Colonies, (the interruption of which must, at all events, be exceedingly injurious to both countries,) that, with a sincere design of contributing, by all the means in our power not incompatible with a just regard for the undoubted rights and true interests of these Colonies, to the promotion of this most desirable reconciliation, an humble and dutiful petition be presented to his Majesty."

In the resolution for a Fast, to be kept the 20th of July last, it is recommended, amongst other things, to offer up supplications to the Almighty, § "That all America may soon behold a gracious interposition of Heaven for the redress of the many grievances, the restoration of her invaded rights, and a reconciliation with the Parent State, on terms constitutional and honourable to both."

In their Declaration, published after the battle of Bunker's Hill, amongst other things, they say: "Lest this Declaration should disquiet the minds of our friends and fellow-subjects in any part of the Empire, we assure them that we mean not to dissolve that union which has so long and so happily subsisted between us, which we sincerely wish to see restored. We have not raised armies with ambitious designs of separating from Great Britain, and establishing independent States."

They finish their Declaration with an admirable solemnity, in these words: "With an humble confidence in the mercies of the supreme and impartial Judge and Ruler of the Universe, we most devoutly implore His divine goodness to protect us happily through this great conflict, to dispose our adversaries to reconciliation on reasonable terms, and thereby to relieve the Empire from the calamities of civil war."

pressing themselves, page 55: "Attached to your Majesty's person, family, and Government, with all devotion that principle and affection can inspire, connected with Great Britain by the strongest ties that can unite societies, and deploring every event that tends in any degree to weaken them, we solemnly assure your Majesty that we not only most ardently desire the former harmony between her and these Colonies may be restored, but that a concord may be established between them, upon so firm a basis as to perpetuate its blessings, uninterrupted by any future dissensions, to succeeding generations, in both countries.

"We beg leave further to assure your Majesty, that, notwithstanding the sufferings of your loyal Colonists during the course of this present controversy, our breasts retain too tender a regard for the kingdom from which we derive our origin, to request such a reconciliation as might, in any manner, be inconsistent with her dignity or her welfare. These, (related as we are to her,) honour and duty, as well as inclination, induce us to support and advance; and the apprehensions that now oppress our hearts with unspeakable grief, being once removed, your Majesty will find your faithful subjects on this Continent ready and willing, at all times, (as they have ever been,) with their lives and fortunes, to assert and maintain the rights and interests of your Majesty, and of our Mother Country."

In their Address to the People of England, (page 163.) they say: "We are accused of aiming at Independence; but how is this accusation supported? By the allegations of your Ministers; not by our actions."

A little further, they add: "Even under these circumstances, what measures have we taken that betray a desire of Independence?"

After speaking of the taking possession of Ticonderoga and Crown Point, they say, page 165: "Yet give us leave most solemnly to assure you, that we have not yet lost sight of the object we have ever had in view—a reconciliation with you on constitutional principles, and a restoration of that friendly intercourse which, to the advantage of both, we till lately maintained."

Page 166, they add: "It has been said that we refuse to submit to the restrictions on our commerce. From whence is this inference drawn? Not from our words. We have repeatedly declared the contrary; and we again profess our submission to the several acts of trade and navigation passed before the year 1763; trusting, nevertheless, in the equity and justice of Parliament, that such of them as, upon cool and impartial consideration, shall appear to have imposed unnecessary or grievous restrictions, will, at some happier period, be restricted or altered."

In their Letter to the Lord Mayor and Corporation of London, sent home by Governour Penn, (page 172,) they say: "North-America, my Lord, wishes most ardently for a lasting connection with Great Britain, on terms of just and equal liberty; less than which generous minds will not offer, nor brave and free ones be willing to receive. A cruel war has at length been opened against us; and whilst we prepare to defend ourselves like the descendants of Britons, we still hope that the mediation of wise and good citizens will at length prevail over despotism, and restore harmony and peace, on permanent principles, to an oppressed and divided Empire."

In the Talk drawn up to be held with the Indians, after reciting to them the happy connection that had subsisted for above one hundred years with Britain, and informing them of the present cause of our quarrel, they say, (page 182:) "Brothers and friends of the Six Nations, attend: We, upon this Island, (meaning America,) have often spoke and entreated the King, and his servants the Counsellors, that peace and harmony might still continue between us; that we cannot part with or lose our hold of the old covenant-chain which united our fathers and theirs; that we want to brighten this chain, and keep the way open, as our fathers did; that we want to live with them as brothers; labour, trade, travel abroad, eat and drink in peace. We have often asked them to love us, and live in friendship with us, as their fathers did with ours."

Page 186, they tell them: "We do not take up the hatchet, and struggle for honour or conquest, but to maintain our civil Constitution and religious principles, the very same for which our forefathers left their native land and came to this country."

In addressing the People of Ireland, (page 221,) after most pathetically describing the ravages of the Ministerial Army, the burning of Charlestown, and the deplorable situation of the town of Boston, they declare: "Though vilified as wanting spirit, we are determined to behave like men; though insulted and abused, we wish for reconciliation; though defamed as seditious, we are ready to obey the laws; and though charged with rebellion, will cheerfully bleed in defence of our Sovereign, in a righteous cause. What more can we say? What more can we offer?"

Thus, we find the Congress, through the whole of their proceedings, till the time of their adjournment, uniformly holding up the idea of reconciliation. If we look for the sentiments of whole Provinces of a much later date, we shall find them still acting upon the same principles. The Instructions from the Representatives of the People of Pennsylvania, (who form one-eighth of the whole Continent,) expressly direct their Delegates in Congress to keep up a steady opposition to every proposal of separation from Great Britain.

The Province of Maryland, in Convention met the 7th day of last December, unanimously resolved, that being deeply affected with the suspicion entertained by his Majesty, of these Colonies designing to establish an independent Empire, declare that they are "desirous to remove from the mind of the King an opinion which we feel to be highly injurious to the People of this Province; and in order to manifest to his Majesty, to the Parliament, the people of Great Britain, and to the whole world, the rectitude and purity of our intentions in the present opposition to the measures of the British Ministry and Parliament, do declare, that the people of this Province, strongly attached to the English Constitution, and truly sensible of the blessing they have derived from it, warmly impressed with sentiments of affection for and loyalty to the House of Hanover, connected with the British Nation by the ties of blood and interest, and being thoroughly convinced that, to be free subjects of the King of Great Britain, with all its consequences, is to be the freest members of any civil society in the known world, never did, nor do entertain any views or desires of Independency. That as they consider their union with the Mother Country, upon terms that may insure to them a permanent freedom as their highest felicity, so would they view the fatal necessity of separating from her, as a misfortune next to the greatest that can befall them."

In the votes and proceedings of the Assembly of New-Jersey, held last November, we find that sundry Petitions against Independency were presented to the House; that several of the signers were summoned to attend, who, it seems, had signed the Petition on the report that "some men affected Independency." On reading the Petitions a second time, the House came to the following resolves: "That reports of Independency, in the apprehension of this House, are groundless; that it be recommended to the Delegates of the Colony to use their utmost endeavours for the obtaining a redress of American grievances, and for restoring the union between the Colonies and Great Britain upon constitutional principles; that the said Delegates be directed not to give their assent to, but utterly reject any propositions, if such should be made, that may separate this Colony from the Mother Country, or change the form of Government thereof."

On examining the votes a little further, it should seem that one of the petitioners, who had been summoned before the House, had charged one of the members with supporting the doctrine of Independency; in consequence of which we find the following paragraph, page 20:

"Mr. . . . attending pursuant to the order of the forenoon, and, being examined as to the words spoken by him of the member, informed the House that he neither intended any offence or insult to the House, or any member of it, and that he is sorry any member of the House should take it as an insult upon him; with which this House being satisfied, and being of opinion that it appears Mr. . . . really misapprehended the words of the member, and that the same member is not justly chargeable with such opinions, do discharge Mr. . . . from any further attendance on the House."

Here we see that the Assembly express themselves as if it were criminal to hold such opinions, by using the words

"not justly chargeable." As to the "holding of opinions," I conceive that every man has a right to hold whatever sort he pleases, so long as he does not insist on obliging other people to hold the same.

At a Town Meeting held at Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, the 25th of December last, to appoint Delegates to represent them in Provincial Congress, we find their sentiments fully expressed by an unanimous vote of Instructions to their Delegates, as follows: "The precept sent to this town for the choice of Delegates, mentions our taking up a form of Government in this Colony. This we conceive to be a measure to be entered upon with the greatest caution, calmness, and deliberation. We are of opinion that the present times are too unsettled to admit of perfecting a form stable and permanent, and that to attempt it now would injure us, by furnishing our enemies in Great Britain with arguments to persuade the good people there that we are aiming at Independence, which we totally disavow. We should therefore prefer the Government of the Congress till God, in his providence, shall afford us quieter times." But leaving the matter of taking up a form of Government to their Convention, and recommending an earnest attention to putting the Province into a posture of defence, they add, "At the same time, however, that we give you this instruction, we recommend it to you that, should a plan of accommodation be proposed, the completion of which will terminate in an honourable settlement of the present dispute, you give your assent thereto."

January 5, 1776, a Convention for the Province of New-Hampshire met at Exeter, and after reciting the necessity of assuming a form of Government, and the power given them by the Continental Congress for that purpose, as well as the abdication of the Governour and Council, they declare that, "for the preservation of peace and good order, and for the security of the lives and properties of the inhabitants of this Colony, we conceive ourselves reduced to the necessity of establishing a form of Government, to continue during the present unhappy and unnatural contest with Great Britain, protesting and declaring that we never sought to throw off our dependance upon Great Britain, but felt ourselves happy under her protection, whilst we could enjoy our constitutional rights and privileges, and that we shall rejoice if such a reconciliation between us and our Parent State can be effected, as shall be approved by the Continental Congress, in whose prudence and wisdom we confide.

Thus, we find that a reunion with Great Britain, upon constitutional principles, has been the favourite object of the Continental Congress, whose conduct has been steadily marked with defensive movements, and nowhere giving way to revenge or resentment—passions inconsistent with the dignity of publick bodies. Though deeply afflicted with the distresses of their country on every hand, they have made a redress of grievances, and the protection of America, their only care. Nor can I trace a single step which induces me to believe they now wish for Independence. Till they do, or publish their desires of taking the sentiments of the people at large, on this important question, in such manner as their own wisdom shall direct, every man will hold himself guiltless in both speaking and writing on the subject. It is not the subject of a day, that in the morning blossoms, and at night fades to unfold no more; but it is an event in which millions in future ages are to be deeply interested. Why, then, would the writers in favour of a total separation wish to suppress an opposition? If liberty and happiness has inlisted on the one side, and misery and slavery on the other, surely it is a truth that may be easily displayed, and will be shown more clearly by opposition. On the side of reconciliation, I find, exclusive of the Continental Congress:

Pennsylvania , in Assembly met, representing	-	372,208
New-Jersey , in Assembly met, representing	-	161,290
New-Hampshire , in Convention met, representing	-	124,069

Which is near one-third of the inhabitants of America. How many of the other Provinces have expressed their sentiments on the subject of Independence, I cannot pretend to say; but surely these are enough to justify any writer or writers on the Continent, in joining their voices, and to screen them from the ungenerous charges of being the corrupt tools of Government, and having no other view than "pensions and titles" for themselves and families. Away with all such unhandsome reflections on party schemes and party views. Convince me but once that more happiness is to be expected from Independence than from reconciliation, and instantly I renounce Great Britain forever.

Some late writers justify personality in publick disputes; for my part I cannot conceive what persons have to do with the matter. If a highwayman was to stop my coach on the road, and, after taking my purse, was to tell me I had lost the linchpin from my wheel, I should certainly deserve to be overturned if I neglected to examine into the truth of his information. So with respect to Independence; I care not who it is that informs me of the miseries of a separation, or what may be his views. I shall listen to his tale, and judge for myself. On the other hand, when the peace, plenty, and liberty of Independence are pointed out with all the colours of description, it is no matter to me whether my director has views of power and dignity for himself or not; I shall examine the principles and leave the man; but if, apart from argument, I should have any preference from prejudice, it would be to that side which appeared most inclined to grant an unlimited indulgence to a freedom of speech and the freedom of the press; for if grievances should hereafter arise in the Government I had chosen, such freedom would sooner enable me to obtain redress.

SEEK TRUTH.

LETTER III.—TO CATO.

Cato's partisans may call me furious, I regard it not. There are men, too, who have not virtue enough to be angry; and that crime perhaps is Cato's. He who dares not offend cannot be honest. Having thus balanced the charge, I proceed to Cato's fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh letters, all of which, as they contain but little matter, I shall dismiss with as little trouble and less formality. Cato's fourth, and the greatest part of his fifth letter, are constructed on a false meaning, uncivilly imposed on a passage quoted from Common Sense; and for which the author of that pamphlet hath a right to expect from Cato the usual concessions. I shall quote the passage entire, with Cato's additional meaning, and the inferences which he draws therefrom.

He introduces it with saying, "In my remarks on the pamphlet before me, I shall first consider those arguments on which he (the author) appears to lay his chief stress; and these are collected under four heads in his conclusion;" one of which is, "It is the custom of nations when any two are at war, for some other Powers not engaged in the quarrel, to step in by way of mediators, and bring about the preliminaries of a peace; but while America calls herself the subject of Great Britain, no Power, however well-disposed she may be, can offer her mediation." The meaning contained in this passage is so exceedingly plain, and expressed in such easy and familiar terms, that it scarcely admits of being made plainer. No one, I think, could have understood it any otherwise than that, while we continue to call ourselves British subjects, the quarrel between us can only be called a family quarrel, in which it would be just as indelicate for any other nation to advise, or any way to meddle or make, even with their offers of mediation, as it would be for a third person to interfere in a quarrel between a man and his wife. Whereas, were we to make use of that natural right which all other nations have done before us, and erect a Government of our own, independent of all the world, the quarrel could then be no longer called a family quarrel, but a regular war between the two Powers of Britain and America, in the same manner as one carried on between England and France; and in this state of political separation, the neutral powers might kindly tender their mediation, (as hath always been the practice,) and bring about the preliminaries of a peace. Not a union, Cato; that is quite another thing. But instead of Cato's taking it in this easy and natural sense, he flies away on a wrong scent; charges the author with proposing to call in foreign assistance; and, under this wilful falsehood, raises up a mighty cry after nothing at all. He begins his wild and unintelligible comment in the following manner: "Is this," says he, (meaning the passage already quoted,) "Common sense, or common nonsense? Surely peace * with Great Britain cannot be the object of this writer, after the horrible character he has given of the people of that country, and telling us that reconciliation with them would be our ruin. The latter part of the paragraph seems to cast some light upon the former, although it contradicts it; for these mediators are not to interfere for making up the quarrel, but to widen it, by supporting us in a declaration, that we are not the subjects of Great Britain; a new sort of business truly for mediators! But this, (continues Cato), leads us directly to the main inquiry, what foreign Power is able to give us this support? What support, Cato? The passage you have quoted neither says a syllable, nor insinuates a hint about support. It speaks only of neutral Powers in the neighbourly character of mediators between those who are at war; and says it is the custom of European Courts to do so. Cato hath already raised Commissioners into Ambassadors; but how he could transform mediators into men in arms, and mediation into military alliance, is surpassingly strange. Read the part over again, Cato; if you find I have charged you wrongfully, and will point it out, I will engage that the author of Common Sense shall ask you pardon in the publick papers with his name to it; but if the error be yours, the concession on your part follows as a duty.

Though I am fully persuaded that Cato does not believe one half of what himself has written, he, nevertheless, takes amazing pains to frighten his readers into a belief of the whole; tells them of foreign troops (which he supposes we are going to send for) ravaging up and down the country; of their "bloody massacres, and unrelenting persecutions, which would harrow up (says he) the very souls of Protestants and freemen." Were they coming, Cato, (which no one ever dreamed of but yourself; for, thank God, we want them not,) it would be impossible for them to exceed, or even to equal the cruelties practised by the British Army in the East-Indies; the tying men to the mouths of cannon and "blowing them away," was never acted by any but an English General, or approved by any but a British Court.† Read the proceedings of the Select Committee on Indian affairs.

From temporal fears Cato proceeds to spiritual ones; and in a hypocritical panick, asks, "To whose share will Pennsylvania fall—that of his most Catholick, or his most Christian King? I confess, (continues he,) that these questions stagger me." I don't wonder at it, Cato—I am glad to hear that some kind of remorse hath overtaken you—that you begin to feel that you are "heavy laden"—you have had a long run; and the stoutest heart must fail at last.

Cato, perceiving that the falsehoods in his fourth letter passed unreprieved, ventured boldly on a fifth; in which he continues enlarging on the same convenient bugbear. "In my last, (says he,) some notice was taken of the dangerous proposition held up by the author of Common Sense for having recourse to foreign assistance." When will Cato learn to speak the truth! The assistance which we hope for from France, is not armies, (we want them not,) but arms and ammunition. We have already received into this Province only, near two hundred tons of saltpetre and gunpowder, besides muskets. Surely we may continue to cultivate a useful acquaintance, without such malevolent beings as Cato raising his barbarous slander thereon. At this time, it is not only illiberal, but inpolitick, and perhaps dangerous, to be pouring forth such torrents of abuse as his fourth and fifth letters contain against the only Power that, in articles of defence, hath supplied our hasty wants. Cato, after expending near two letters in beating down an idol which himself only had set up, proudly congratulates himself on the defeat, and marches off to new exploits, leaving behind him the following Proclamation: "Having thus (says Cato) despatched his (the author of Common Sense's) main argument for Independence, which he founds on the necessity of calling in foreign assistance, I proceed to examine some other parts of his work." Not a syllable, Cato, doth any part of the pamphlet in question say of calling in foreign assistance, or even forming military alliances. The dream is wholly your own; and is directly repugnant both to the letter and spirit of every page in the piece. The idea which * It is a strange thing that Cato cannot be taught to distinguish between peace and union.

Common Sense constantly holds up is, to have nothing to do with the political affairs of Europe. "As Europe, (says the pamphlet,) is our market for trade, we ought to form no political connections with any part of it. It is the true interest of America to steer clear of all European contentions." And where it proposes sending a manifesto to foreign Courts, (which it is high time to do,) it recommends it only for the purpose of announcing to them the impossibility of our living any longer under the British Government, and of "assuring such Courts of our peaceable disposition towards them, and of our desire of entering into trade with them." Learn to be an honest man, Cato, and then thou wilt not be thus exposed. I have been the more particular in detecting Cato here, because it is on this bubble that his air-built battery against Independence is raised. A poor foundation indeed! which even the point of a pin, or a pen if you please, can demolish with a touch, and bury the formidable Cato beneath the ruins of a vapour!

From this part of his fifth letter to the end of his seventh, he entirely deserts the subject of Independence, and sets up the proud standard of Kings, in preference to a Republican form of Government. My remarks on this part of the subject will be general and concise.

In this part of the debate, Cato shelters himself chiefly in quotations from other authors, without reasoning much on the matter himself.* In answer to which, I present him with a string of maxims and reflections, drawn from the nature of things, without borrowing from any one. Cato may observe that I scarcely ever quote; the reason is I always think. But to return.

Government should always be considered as a matter of convenience, not of right. The Scripture institutes no particular form of Government, but it enters a protest against the Monarchal form; and a negation on one thing, where two only are offered, and one must be chosen, amounts to an affirmative on the other. Monarchal Government was first set up by the Heathens, and the Almighty permitted it to the Jews as a punishment. "I gave them a King in mine anger."—Hosea xiii, 11. A Republican form of Government is pointed out by nature—Kingly Governments by an inequality of power. In Republican Governments, the leaders of the people, if improper, are removable by vote—Kings only by arms. An unsuccessful vote in the first case leaves the voter safe; but an unsuccessful attempt in the latter, is death. Strange that that which is our right in the one should be our ruin in the other—from which reflection follows this maxim: That that mode of Government in which our right becomes our ruin, cannot be the right one. If all human nature be corrupt, it is needless to strengthen the corruption, by establishing a succession of Kings, who, be they ever so base, are still to be obeyed; for the manners of a Court will always have an influence over the morals of a People.

A Republican Government hath more true grandeur in it than a Kingly one. On the part of the publick, it is more consistent with freemen to appoint their rulers than to have them born; and on the part of those who preside, it is far nobler to be a ruler by the choice of a People, than a King by the chance of birth. Every honest Delegate is more than a Monarch. Disorders will unavoidably happen in all States; but Monarchal Governments are the most subject thereto, because the balance hangs uneven. "Nineteen rebellions and eight civil wars in England since the conquest." Whatever commotions are produced in Republican States are not produced by a Republican spirit, but by those who seek to extinguish it. A Republican State cannot produce its own destruction; it can only suffer it. No nation of people, in their true senses, when seriously reflecting on the rank which God hath given them, and the reasoning faculties he hath blessed them with, would ever, of their own consent, give any one man a negative power over the whole. No man since the fall hath ever been equal to the trust; wherefore it is insanity in us to entrust them with it; and in this sense, all those who have had it have done us right by abusing us into reason. Nature seems sometimes to laugh at mankind, by giving them so many fools for Kings; at other times she punishes their folly by giving them tyrants; but England must have offended highly to be cursed with both in one. Rosseau proposed a plan for establishing a perpetual European peace; which was for every State in Europe to send Ambassadors to form a General Council, and when any difference happened between any two nations, to refer the matter to arbitration instead of going to arms. This would be forming a kind of European Republick; but the proud and plundering spirit of Kings hath not peace for its object. They look not at the good of mankind—they set not out on that plan; and if the history of the creation, and the history of Kings be compared together, the result will be this, that God hath made a world, and Kings have robbed him of it.

But that which sufficiently establishes the Republican mode of Government, in preference to a Kingly one, even when all other arguments are left out, is this simple truth, that all men are Republicans by nature, and Royalists only by fashion. And this is fully proved by that passionate adoration which all men show to that great and almost only remaining bulwark of natural rights, Trial by Juries, which is founded on a pure Republican basis. Here the power of Kings is shut out. No Royal negative can enter this Court. The Jury, which is here supreme, is a Republick, a body of judges chosen from among the People. The charter which secures this freedom in England was formed, not in the Senate, but in the field; and insisted on by the People, not granted by the Crown. The Crown in that instance granted nothing, but only renounced its former tyrannies, and bound itself over to its future good behaviour. It was the compromise by which the wearer of it made his peace with the People, and the condition on which he was suffered to reign.

Here ends my reply to all the letters which have at present appeared under the signature of Cato, being at this time seven in number. I have made no particular remarks on his two last, which treats only of the mode of Government, but answered to them generally. In one place I observe he accuses the writer of Common Sense with inconsistency, in having declared, "that no man was a warmer wisher for reconciliation than himself before the fatal 19th of April, 1775;" "that is, (says Cato,) reconciliation to Monarchal Government." To which I reply, that war ought to be no man's wish, neither ought any man to perplex a State already formed, with his private opinions, "the mode of Government being a proper consideration for those countries" only, "which have their Governments yet to form."—Common Sense.

On a review of the ground which I have gone over in Cato's letters, (exclusive of what I have omitted,) I find the following material charges against him:

First. He hath accused the Committee with crimes generally; stated none, nor proved, nor attempted to prove any. N. B. The pretence of charging the acts of a body of men on individuals is too slender to be admitted.*

Secondly. He hath falsely complained to the publick of the restraint of the Press.

Thirdly. He hath wickedly asserted that "gleams of reconciliation had lately broken in upon us;" thereby grossly deceiving the People.

Fourthly. He hath insinuated, as if he wished the publick to believe, that we had received "the utmost assurance of having all our grievances redressed, and an ample security against any future violation of our just rights."

Fifthly. He hath spread false alarms of calling in foreign Troops.

Sixthly. He hath turned the Scripture into a jest.—Ez. xxxv.

These falsehoods, if uncontradicted, might have passed for truths, and the minds of persons remote from better * Cato and I differ materially in our opinion of Committees. I consider them as the only constitutional bodies at present in this Province, and that for the following reason: they were duly elected by the people, and cheerfully and faithfully do the service for which they were elected. The House of Assembly were likewise elected by the people, but do the business for which they were not elected. Their authority is truly unconstitutional, being self-created. My charge is as a body, and not as individuals.

intelligence, might have been greatly embarrassed thereby. Let our opinions be what they will, truth, as to facts, should be strictly adhered to. It was this affecting consideration that drew out the Forester (a perfect volunteer) to the painful task of writing three long letters, and occasioned to the publick the trouble of reading them.

Having, for the present, closed my correspondence with Cato, I shall conclude this letter with a well-meant, affectionate address

TO THE PEOPLE.

It is not a time to trifle. Men who know they deserve nothing from their country, and whose hope is on the arm that hath sought to enslave ye, may hold out to you, as Cato hath done, the false light of Reconciliation. There is no such thing. 'Tis gone! 'tis past! The grave hath parted us, and death, in the persons of the slain, hath cut the thread of life between Britain and America.

Conquest, and not reconciliation, is the plan of Britain. But admitting even the last hope of the Tories to happen, which is, that our enemies, after a long succession of losses, wearied and disabled, should despairingly throw down their arms and propose a reunion, in that case, what is to be done? Are defeated and disappointed tyrants to be considered like mistaken and converted friends? Or would it be right to receive those for governours, who, had they been conquerors, would have hung us up for traitors? Certainly not. Reject the offer, then, and propose another; which is, We will make peace with you as with enemies; but we will never reunite with you as friends. This effected, and ye secure to yourselves the pleasing prospect of an eternal peace. America, remote from all the wrangling world, may live at ease. Bounded by the ocean, and backed by the wilderness, what hath she to fear but her God?

Be not deceived. It is not a little that is at stake. Reconciliation will not now go down, even if it were offered. 'Tis a dangerous question; for the eyes of all men begin to open. There is now no secret in the matter; there ought to be none. It is a case that concerns every man, and every man ought to lay it to heart. He that is here, and he that was born here, are alike concerned. It is needless, too, to split the business into a thousand parts, and perplex it with endless and fruitless investigations, in the manner that the writer signed a Common Man hath done. This unparalleled contention of nations is not to be settled like a school-boy's task of pounds, shillings, pence, and fractions. That writer, though he may mean well, is strangely below the mark. For the first and great question, and that which involves every other in it, and from which every other will flow, is happiness. Can this Continent be happy under the Government of Great Britain or not? Secondly. Can she be happy under a Government of our own? To live beneath the authority of those whom we cannot love, is misery, slavery, or what name you please. In that case, there will never be peace. Security will be a thing unknown, because a treacherous friend in power is the most dangerous of enemies. The answer to the second question, Can America be happy under a Government of her own? is short and simple, viz: as happy as she please. She hath a blank sheet to write upon. Put it not off too long.*

Painful as the task of speaking the truth must sometimes be, yet I cannot avoid giving the following hint, because much, nay, almost everything depends upon it; and that is, a thorough knowledge of the persons whom we trust. It is the duty of the publick, at this time, to scrutinize closely into the conduct of their Committee members, Members of Assembly, and Delegates in Congress; to know what they do, and their motives for so doing. Without knowing this, we shall never know who to confide in; but shall constantly mistake friends for enemies, and enemies for friends, till, in the confusion of persons, we sacrifice the cause. I am led to this reflection by the following circumstance: that the gentleman to whom the unwise and arbitrary instructions to the Delegates of this Province owe their being, and who hath bestowed all his power to support them, is said to be the same person who, when the ships now on the stocks were wanting timber, refused to sell it, and thus, by preventing our strength, to cry out of our insufficiency. But his hour of fame is past—he is hastening to his political exit.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read April 25, 1776, and referred to Mr. R. H. Lee, Mr. J. Adams, and Mr. Hewes.]

New-York, April 22, 1776.

SIR: I was this day honoured with the receipt of your favour of the 20th instant. I have now the pleasure to acquaint you that the four regiments designed for Canada, embarked yesterday, with a fair wind, for Albany, under the command of Colonels Greaton, Patterson, Bond, and Poor; besides which there was a company of Riflemen, a company of Artificers, and two Engineers; the whole commanded by Brigadier-General Thompson.

I have repeatedly mentioned to the honourable Congress the distressful situation we are in for want of arms. With much pains and difficulty I got most of the regiments from the eastward tolerably well furnished; but find the York regiments very badly provided; Colonel Ritzema's has scarcely any; and yet these men, being inlisted during the war, and at five dollars per month, ought not, in my judgment, to be discharged, as we find it almost as difficult to get men as arms. This is a matter of some importance, which I should be glad to receive the particular opinion of Congress upon.

Mr. Baldwin is one of the Assistant Engineers ordered to Canada. He is, indeed, a very useful man in his department, but declined the service on account of his pay, which he says is inadequate to his support. In order to induce him to continue, I promised to represent his case to Congress, and would recommend an increase of his pay, and that he should have the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, of which he is very deserving. I beg leave, therefore, to recommend him to the Congress, and that they would make provision for him accordingly.

A few days ago, application was made to me by the Committee of Safety for this Colony, for an exchange of prisoners; for the particulars, I beg leave to refer you to their letter, a copy of which you have enclosed. As there is a standing order of Congress, that no sailors or soldiers shall be exchanged for citizens, I did not incline to comply with their request without the particular direction of Congress. But I have been since informed that the prisoners (mentioned in the Committee's letter as citizens) are really seamen, taken from private vessels, but not in arms. How far this may alter the case, or how far the reasons which induced the Congress to pass the resolve above-mentioned may still exist, must be left to their determination.

The Militia which, on my application, were ordered to this place, to keep possession until I should arrive with the Continental forces, were obliged to return home without their pay, as there was not then money sufficient in the Treasury for that purpose, and to answer the exigencies of the Army. This occasioned great uneasiness among them, and may be attended with very bad consequences, in case we should have occasion for their service on any future emergency. I therefore beg the Congress would make provision for their pay, and point out particularly whether it is to be done by the commander of the Continental forces, or by the Provincial Assemblies or Conventions from whence they are sent.

As the time for which the Riflemen inlisted will expire on the 1st of July next, and as the loss of such a valuable and brave body of men will be of great injury to the service, I would submit it to the consideration of Congress, whether it would not be best to adopt some method to induce them to continue. They are, indeed, a very useful corps; but I need not mention this, as their importance is already well known to the Congress. It is necessary they should pay an early attention to this matter, as we know, from past experience, that men are very slow in re-inlisting.

When I had the honour of seeing Admiral Hopkins at New-London, he represented to me the weak state of his fleet, occasioned by sickness and the damage he received in his engagement with the enemy, and requested I would spare him two hundred men, to assist him in a design he had formed of attacking Wallace. This I readily consented to, and the men are to be returned as soon as the service is performed.

I wish it was in my power, at present, to furnish General Lee with the companies of Artillery he desires. I have already sent two companies to Quebeck, and I have not yet been able to procure a return of those that are here. I expect Colonel Knox every moment, and shall then be able to determine whether any can be spared from hence. Blankets we are in great want of ourselves, and it was with great difficulty a few could be procured for the Riflemen that were ordered for Canada.

I enclose you Mr. Winthrop's receipt for two hundred thousand dollars, brought some time ago from Philadelphia by Major Sherburne, which you will please to deliver to the Continental Treasurers.

On my arrival here I found that Mr. Livingston had been appointed by the Provincial Congress a Commissary, to furnish the Continental troops stationed in this city with provisions. I suppose this was done because there was no Continental Commissary then on the spot. Mr. Livingston still claims a right of furnishing all the troops but those lately arrived from Cambridge. Mr. Trumbull is now here; and as I consider him as the principal in that office, I should be glad to know whether any part of the Continental troops is to be furnished by any other than their Commissary-General. I must needs say, that to me it appears very inconsistent, and must create great confusion in the accounts, as well as in the contracts. I intended to have laid before Congress the amount of the rations as supplied by Colonel Trumbull and Mr. Livingston, and called upon those gentlemen to furnish me with a separate estimate for that purpose. Colonel Trumbull has given me his, by which it appears he supplies the troops at eight and one-third pence per ration. I have not yet received any from Mr. Livingston, but am informed his contract is at ten and a half pence. The difference is immense, as it will amount to no less than two hundred pounds per day, for twenty thousand men. It is, indeed, to be considered, that Mr. Livingston's contract is including every other charge; and that to Mr. Trumbull's must be added store-hire, clerks, and every other contingent expense; but even then it will not amount to so much as Mr. Livingston's by a penny per ration, which in the gross will be something very considerable. I thought it my duty, without prejudice or partiality, to state the matter fairly to Congress, that they might take such order upon it as to them shall seem necessary. I cannot, however, in justice to Mr. Trumbull, help adding, that he has been indefatigable in supplying the Army, and I believe, from his connections in New-England, is able to do it on as good terms as any person in America.

The several matters contained in the foregoing, I must beg the early attention of Congress to, and that I may be favoured with an answer as soon as possible.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

New-York, April 17, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Safety of this Colony have been requested to apply to your Excellency to obtain a release of seven citizens, now detained on board the ships Phoenix and Asia as prisoners. They are well informed an exchange may be effected, if your Excellency would be pleased to give them the benefit of a number of your prisoners of equal rank. Should either of the ships depart with the prisoners on board, their respective families must labour under additional misfortunes. Some of them have been detained a long time. The Committee enclose a list of their names, and beg leave to assure you that they are, with the greatest esteem, your Excellency's most humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

WILLIAM PAULDING, Chairman.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 20, 1776.

(Parole, Hartley)

(Countersign, Newtonham.)

The General is much surprised that, notwithstanding the order of the 14th instant, he is without those returns he then called for. He again repeats the order, and once for all requests that he may not, in future, have occasion to issue two orders to the same purpose. Returns from every corps are to be made regularly, at Orderly time, every Saturday.

James Henry, Sergeant, Samuel Smith, Sergeant, John McKenney, Corporal, and Richard Taylor, Matross, belonging to the Company of Artillery commanded by Captain Hamilton, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Stark was President, for "mutiny." The Court find the prisoners, James Henry and John McKenney, guilty of the charge, and therefore sentence James Henry to be reduced to the ranks, and mulcted one month's pay; and John McKenney to be reduced to a Matross, and to be imprisoned a fortnight. The Court finding Samuel Smith and Richard Taylor guilty of disobedience of orders, sentence them to be reprimanded by the Captain, at the head of the company.

The General approves the proceedings of the above Court-Martial, and orders that Sergeant James Henry and Corporal John McKenney, as they have not paid for their clothing, be stripped, and discharged the company; and the sentence of the Court-Martial upon Sergeant Smith and Richard Taylor, to be executed to-morrow morning, at Guard-mounting.

Lawrence Ferguson, tried by the above Court-Martial for "striking Lieutenant Johnson," is found guilty by the Court, and sentenced to receive twenty lashes on his bare back. The General approves the sentence, and orders the execution of it to-morrow morning, at Guard-mounting.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 21, 1776.

(Parole, Rockingham.) (Countersign, Grafton.)

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 22, 1776.

(Parole, Richmond.) (Countersign, Conway.)

For the future, all prisoners confined for crimes, for which they are to be tried by a General Court-Martial, are to be sent to the Provost-Marshal, (Captain Moroney.) who has a Guard appointed to secure them; and all prisoners, confined in any Guard for offences that come under the cognizance of a Regimental Court-Martial, are to be sent to the Barrack Guard of the Regiment they belong to.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL WARD.

New-York, April 22, 1776.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 12th instant, and to inform you that it is not in his power, at this time, to forward the supply of cash you ask for, having found and received here a much smaller sum, in proportion to your demands, than what he left for your department, which he hoped would have been equal to every present claim. But if not, his Excellency apprehends that no great inconvenience can arise to the regiments stationed in and about Boston, to wait a little time for pay for March, until money can be sent for that purpose. If they should be in great want, and very importunate, he doubts not but the honourable General Court will, on your application, lend a sufficient sum to pay them, on promise of repayment when money comes to hand.

In a letter his Excellency received from Congress, of the 6th of March, they mention five and a half tons of powder to have been sent him the day before, and that it would be followed in a day or two after by ten tons more. Five tons having only arrived before his departure from Cambridge, he desires you will inform him whether any more has come since he left it, and what quantity, having heard nothing more of the ten tons, save that a small part of it was stopped on the road.

His Excellency requests your most careful attention to the works necessary for the defence of Boston; and is hopeful that, ere now, they are so strong and far advanced as to render the town entirely secure. He wishes you to favour him with every interesting occurrence from time to time, and by the earliest opportunities.

The enclosed warrant is for Daniel Rogers, Esq., which you will please to deliver him.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

ROBERT H. HARRISON, Aid-de-Camp.

To Major-General Ward, Boston.

GILBERT LIVINGSTON TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Fort Montgomery, April 22, 1776.

SIR: The bearer hereof, Mr. Marshall, (one of the gentlemen recommended by the Dutchess County Committee for one of Captain Billings's Lieutenants,) wants to take a copy of the muster-roll of that part of Captain Billings's Company that I mustered. I have been obliged to muster part of Captain Swartwout's Company. The roll goes down by this conveyance. I wish that Colonel Palmer, or the commanding officer here, or some particular person, was appointed to muster the men as they arrive, as I conceive it irregular for me to do it. But there seems to be a necessity, at present, for some one to undertake the business, even without an order. Should be glad you would give him a copy, or let him take it himself.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

GILBERT LIVINGSTON.

To John McKesson, Esq.

CAPTAIN BILLINGS TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Fort Montgomery, April 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your order of the 13th ultimo came to hand. In compliance to the same, sent one of my Sergeants immediately to the County, and to two of the Precinct Committees in Dutchess, with a copy of what I received from Congress, requesting their assistance, with as much despatch as possible, and acquainting them that I had but seven guns, and about forty blankets, which I had (with difficulty) purchased in the country. I have written to Colonel Ritzema, desiring to know whether I am to move before I get supplied. We have one battery finished, excepting the floor, and are now employed in cutting and making fascines. Garrison sickly. I send enclosed the return I received from the County Committee, respecting my subalterns, and shall be obliged by an answer to the same, as well as that respecting the two guns found in the barn on my passage from New-York. Mean time, I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

ANDREW BILLINGS.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO JOHN JENCKES.

New-London, April 22, 1776.

SIR: Captain Allen Brown is here yet with your sloop, and without the coast is clear, I advise him to stay until he can be certain of getting round; but if you want to sell the molasses, I hear it will fetch three-eighths at New-York, where she may go safe, and perhaps be more for your advantage than her coming home. Your son is hearty, and behaves extremely well since he came on board our ship.

I am your friend at command,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To John Jenckes, Esq., at Providence.

DOCTOR MORGAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Cambridge, April 22, 1776.

SIR: I take this opportunity to inform your Excellency that I am constantly employed in collecting and forwarding the Hospital stores to New-York, and in executing your orders relative to the drugs and medicines, &c., left in the Ministerial Hospital, and Messrs. Perkins and Gardner's shops, at Boston; of which I have given a more minute detail in my letters to General Gates, that I might not be troublesome in taking up more of your Excellency's time than necessary.

I have, and am collecting a noble store of medicines for the ensuing campaign; and I hope to leave no room for complaint of any scarcity or want of either medicines, beds, blankets, or other hospital stores for the Army; having got a sufficient supply (except of a few capital articles, which I hope to procure from Philadelphia) of medicines, for a year to come, or more, with fifteen hundred additional blankets and rugs, as many beds and pillows, &c., by the care and attention of my Steward and Quartermaster of the Hospital, Mr. Carnes, who has spared no pains in executing my orders, in collecting them from Boston, and in washing and fitting them for use.

The sick in the several Hospitals are reduced to about eighty. I hope in ten or twelve days, or at least within a fortnight, to have managed in such a manner as to discharge them all, and to break up the Hospitals entirely. I have sent off about twenty-six wagons already for New-York, with hospital stores, always accompanied with some of the Mates of the Hospital to take charge of them. I flatter myself, with the number already gone Doctor Foster will be capable of managing the concerns of the Hospital at New-York so well that the sick will not suffer. The rest of the gentlemen in this department will shortly follow, with the remainder of the stores, and I expect in a few days after to join them. To-morrow I purpose to set out for Portsmouth, to learn whether there are any tidings of the ten packages of medicines formerly mentioned to be in the prize carried in there, that nothing of so great value may be lost for want of looking after. If, on my way to New-York, your Excellency has any orders for me, I shall, agreeable to my instructions, expect to meet them at Norwich.

From a sense of my duty, I have troubled your Excellency with an account of my proceedings; and remain, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN MORGAN.

To His Excellency General Washington.

JUDGE DRAYTON'S CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY OF CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA.

At an adjournment of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, Oyer and Terminer, Assize and General Jail Delivery, held at CHARLESTOWN, for the District of CHARLESTOWN, on TUESDAY, the 23d day of APRIL, 1776, before the Honourable WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON, Esq., Chief Justice, and his Associates, Justices of the Colony of SOUTH-CAROLINA.

THE CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY: When, by evil machinations tending to nothing less than absolute tyranny, trials by jury have been discontinued, and juries, in discharge of their duty, have assembled, and, as soon as met, as silently and arbitrarily dismissed without being empanelled, whereby, in contempt of Magna Charta, justice has been delayed and denied; it cannot but afford to every good citizen the most sincere satisfaction once more to see juries, as they now are, legally empanelled, to the end that the laws may be duly administered. I do most heartily congratulate you upon so important an event.

In this Court, where silence has but too long presided, with a direct purpose to loosen the bands of Government, that this country might be involved in anarchy and confusion, you are now met to regulate your verdicts, under a new Constitution of Government, independent of Royal authority—a Constitution which arose according to the great law of nature and of nations, and which was established in the late Congress, on the 26th of March last—a day that will be ever memorable in this country—a month remarkable in our history, for having given birth to the original Constitution of our Government, in the year 1669; for being the era of the American calamities, by the Stamp Act, in the year 1765; for being the date of the repeal of that act, in the following year; and for the conclusion of the famous siege of Boston, when the American arms compelled General Howe—a General of the first reputation in the British service, with the largest, best disciplined, and best provided Army in that service, supported by a formidable fleet—so precipitately to abandon the most impregnable fortifications in America, as that he left behind him a great part of the bedding, military stores, and cannon of the Army. And for so many important events is the month of March remarkable in our annals. But I proceed to lay before you the principal causes leading to the late revolution of our Government, the law upon the point, and the benefits resulting from that happy and necessary establishment. The importance of the transaction deserves such a state, the occasion demands, and our future welfare requires it. To do this may take up some little time; but the subject is of the highest moment, and worthy of your particular attention. I will, therefore, confine my discourse to that great point; and, after charging you to attend to the due observance of the Jury law, and the Patrol and Negro acts, forbearing to mention the other common duties of a Grand Jury, I will expound to you the Constitution of your country.

The House of Brunswick was yet scarcely settled in the British throne, to which it had been called by a free People, when, in the year 1719, our ancestors in this country, finding that the Government of the Lords Proprietors operated to their ruin, exercised the rights transmitted to them by their forefathers of England, and, casting off the Proprietary authority, called upon the House of Brunswick to rule over them—a House elevated to Royal dominion for no other purpose than to preserve to a People their unalienable rights. The King accepted the invitation, and thereby indisputably admitted the legality of that Revolution. And in so doing, by his own act, he vested in those our forefathers, and us their posterity, a clear right to effect another revolution, if ever the government of the House of Brunswick should operate to the ruin of the People. So the excellent Roman Emperor, Trajan, delivered a sword to Saburanus, his Captain of the Prætorian Guard, with this admired sentence: "Receive this sword, and use it to defend me if I govern well, but against me if I behave ill."

With joyful acclamations our ancestors, by act of Assembly, passed on the 18th day of August, 1721, recognised the British Monarch. The virtues of the second George are still revered among us; he was the father of his People; and it was with ecstasy we saw his grandson, George the Third, mount the throne, possessed of the hearts of his subjects.

But alas! almost with the commencement of his reign, his subjects felt causes to complain of Government. The reign advanced—the grievances became more numerous and intolerable—the complaints more general and loud—the whole Empire resounded with the cries of injured subjects! At length, grievances being unredressed and ever increasing; all patience being borne down; all hope destroyed; all confidence in Royal Government blasted; behold! the Empire is rent from pole to pole! perhaps to continue asunder forever.

The catalogue of our oppressions, Continental and local, is enormous. Of such oppressions I will mention only some of the most weighty.

Under color of law, the King and Parliament of Great Britain have made the most arbitrary attempts to enslave America:

By claiming a right to bind the Colonies "in all cases whatsoever;"

By laying duties at their mere will and pleasure upon all the Colonies;

By suspending the Legislature of New-York;

By rendering the American Charters of no validity, having annulled the most material parts of the Charter of the Massachusetts-Bay;

By divesting multitudes of the Colonists of their property, without legal accusation or trial;

By depriving whole Colonies of the bounty of Providence, on their own proper coasts, in order to coerce them by famine;

By restricting the trade and commerce of America;

By sending to, and continuing in America, in time of peace, an armed force, without and against the consent of the People;

By granting impunity to a Soldiery instigated to murder the Americans;

By declaring that the People of Massachusetts-Bay are liable, for offences, or pretended offences, done in that Colony, to be sent to, and tried for the same in England, or in any Colony where they cannot have the benefit of a jury of the vicinage;

By establishing in Quebeck the Roman Catholic Religion, and an arbitrary Government; instead of the Protestant Religion and a free Government.

And thus America saw it demonstrated that no faith ought to be put in a Royal Proclamation; for I must observe to you that, in the year 1763, by such a proclamation, people were invited to settle in Canada, and were assured of a legislative representation, the benefit of the common law of England, and a free Government. It is a misfortune to the publick, that this is not the only instance of the inefficacy of a Royal Proclamation. However, having given you one instance of a failure of Royal faith in the Northern extremity of this abused Continent, let it suffice that I direct your attention to the Southern extremity; respecting which, the same particulars were, in the same manner promised, but the deceived inhabitants of St. Augustine are left, by their Grand Jury, in vain to complain and lament to the world, and yet scarcely permitted to exercise even that privilege distinguishing the miserable, that Royal faith is not kept with them.

The proceedings which I have enumerated, either immediately or in their evident consequences, deeply affected all the Colonies; ruin stared them in the face. They united their counsels, and laid their just complaints before the Throne, praying a redress of grievances. But, to their astonishment, their dutiful petition for peace and safety was answered only by an actual commencement of war and military destruction!

In the mean time the British troops, that had been peaceably received by the devoted inhabitants of Boston as the troops of their Sovereign bound to protect them, fortified that town, to imprison the inhabitants, and to hold that capital against the people to whom it belonged. And the British rulers, having determined to appeal from reason and justice to violence and arms, a select body of those troops, being in the night suddenly and privately marched from Boston, at Lexington, on the 19th day of April, 1775, they by surprise drew the sword of civil war, and plunged it into the breasts of the Americans! Against this horrid injustice the Almighty gave instant judgment—a handful of country Militia, badly armed, suddenly collected, and unconnectedly and irregularly brought up to repel the attack, discomfited the regular bands of tyranny; they retreated, and night saved them from total slaughter.

Thus forced to take up arms in our own defence, America yet again most dutifully petitioned the King, that he would “be pleased to direct some mode by which the united applications of his faithful Colonists to the Throne, in presence of their common councils, might be improved into a happy and permanent reconciliation; and that, in the mean time, measures might be taken for preventing the further destruction of the lives of his Majesty’s subjects;” but it was in vain! The petition on the part of millions, praying that the effusion of blood might be stayed, was not thought worthy of an answer! The nefarious war continued. The ruins of Charlestown, Falmouth, and Norfolk, (towns not constructed for offence or defence,) mark the humane progress of the Royal arms. So the ruins of Carthage, Corinth, and Numantium, proclaimed to the world that justice was expelled the Roman Senate! On the other hand, the fortitude with which America has endured these civil and military outrages; the union of her people, as astonishing as unprecedented, when we consider their various manners and religious tenets, their distance from each other, their various and clashing local interests, their self-denial, and their miraculous success in the prosecution of the war—I say, these things all demonstrate that the Lord of Hosts is on our side. So it is apparent, that the Almighty constructor of the universe, having formed this Continent of materials to compose a State pre-eminent in the world, is now making use of the tyranny of the British rulers as an instrument to fashion and arrange those materials for the end for which, in his wisdom, he had formed them.

In this enlightened age humanity must be particularly shocked at a recital of such violences. And it is scarce to be believed, that the British tyranny could entertain an idea of proceeding against America by a train of more dishonourable machinations. But nothing less than absolute proof has convinced us that, in carrying on the conspiracy against the rights of humanity, the tyranny is capable of attempting to perpetrate whatever is infamous.

For the little purpose of disarming the imprisoned inhabitants of Boston, the King’s General, Gage, in the face of day, violated the publick faith, by himself plighted; and in concert with other Governours, and with John Stuart, he made every attempt to instigate the Savage nations to war upon the Southern Colonies, indiscriminately to massacre man, woman, and child. The Governours in general have demonstrated that truth is not in them; they have inveigled Negroes from, and have armed them against their masters; they have armed brother against brother, son against father. Oh! Almighty Director of the universe! what confidence can be put in a Government ruling by such engines, and upon such principles of unnatural destruction. A Government that, upon the 21st day of December last, made a law, ex post facto, to justify what had been done, not only without law, but in its nature unjust—a law to make prize of all vessels trading in, to, or from the United Colonies—a law to make slaves of the crews of such vessels, and to compel them to bear arms against their conscience, their fathers, their bleeding country. The world, so old as it is, heretofore had never heard of so atrocious a procedure. It has no parallel in the registers of tyranny. But to proceed.

The King’s judges in this country refused to administer justice; and the late Governour, Lord William Campbell, acting as the King’s representative for him, and on his behalf, having endeavoured to subvert the Constitution of this country, by breaking the original contract between King and People, attacking the People by force of arms; having violated the fundamental laws; having carried off the great seal, and having withdrawn himself out of this Colony, he abdicated the Government.

Oppressed by such a variety of enormous injuries, Continental and local, civil and military, and by divers other arbitrary and illegal courses—all done and perpetrated by the assent, command, or sufferance, of the King of Great Britain, the Representatives of South-Carolina, in Congress assembled, found themselves under an unavoidable necessity of establishing a form of Government, with powers legislative, executive, and judicial, for the good of the People—the origin and great end of all just Government. For this only end, the House of Brunswick was called to rule over us. Oh! agonizing reflection! that House ruled us with swords, fire, and bayonets. The British Government operated only to our destruction. Nature cried aloud, self-preservation is the great law; we have but obeyed.

If I turn my thoughts to recollect in history a change of Government upon more cogent reasons, I say I know of no change upon principles so provoking—compelling—justifiable. And in these respects, even the famous Revolution in England, in the year 1688, is much inferior. However, we need no better authority than that illustrious precedent; and I will therefore compare the causes of, and the law upon the two events.

On the 7th of February, 1688, the Lords and Commons of England, in Convention, completed the following Resolution:

“Resolved, That King James the Second, having endeavoured to subvert the Constitution of the Kingdom, by breaking the original contract between King and People; and, by the advice of Jesuits and other wicked persons, having violated the fundamental laws, and having withdrawn himself out of this Kingdom, has abdicated the Government, and that the Throne is thereby vacant.”

That famous Resolution deprived James of his Crown, and became the foundation on which the Throne of the present King of Great Britain is built; it also supports the edifice of Government which we have erected.

In that resolve there are but three facts stated to have been done by James. I will point them out, and examine whether those facts will apply to the present King of Great Britain, with regard to the operations of Government, by him or his Representative, immediately, or by consequence affecting this Colony.

The first fact is, the having endeavoured to subvert the Constitution of the Kingdom, by breaking the original contract.

The violation of the fundamental laws is the second fact; and in support of these two charges, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, assembled at Westminster, on the 12th day of February, 1688, declared that James was guilty:

“By assuming and exercising a power of dispensing with, and suspending of Laws, and the execution of Laws, without consent of Parliament;

“By committing and prosecuting divers worthy Prelates, for humbly petitioning to be excused from concurring to the said assumed power;

“By issuing and causing to be executed a Commission, under the great seal, for erecting a Court, called the Court of Commissioners for Ecclesiastical Causes;

“By levying Money for, and to the use of the Crown, by pretence of prerogative, for other time, and in other manner than the same was granted by Parliament;

“By raising and keeping a Standing Army within this Kingdom in time of peace, without consent of Parliament, and quartering Soldiers contrary to law;

“By causing several good subjects, being Protestants, to be disarmed, at the same time when Papists were both armed and employed contrary to law;

“By violating the freedom of election of Members to serve in Parliament;

"By prosecutions in the Court of King's Bench, for matters and causes cognizable only in Parliament; and by divers other arbitrary and illegal courses."

This declaration, thus containing two points of criminality—breach of the original contract, and violation of fundamental laws—I am to distinguish one from the other.

In the first place, then, it is laid down in the best law authorities, that protection and subjection are reciprocal; and that these reciprocal duties form the original contract between King and People. It therefore follows, that the original contract was broken by James's conduct, as above stated, which amounted to a not affording due protection to his People. And it is as clear that he violated the fundamental laws, by the suspending of laws, and the execution of laws; by levying money; by violating the freedom of election of members to serve in Parliament; by keeping a Standing Army in time of peace; and by quartering soldiers contrary to law, and without consent of Parliament; which is as much as to say, that he did those things without consent of the Legislative Assembly chosen by the personal election of that People over whom such doings were exercised.

These points, reasonings, and conclusions, being settled in, deduced from, and established upon Parliamentary proceedings, and the best law authorities, must ever remain unshaken. I am now to undertake the disagreeable task of examining whether they will apply to the violences which have lighted up, and now feed the flames of civil war in America.

James the Second suspended the operations of laws: George the Third caused the Charter of the Massachusetts-Bay to be in effect annihilated; he suspended the operation of the law which formed a Legislature in New-York, vesting it with adequate powers; and thereby he caused the very ability of making laws in that Colony to be suspended.

King James levied money without the consent of the Representatives of the People called upon to pay it: King George has levied money upon America, not only without, but expressly against the consent of the Representatives of the People in America.

King James violated the freedom of election of Members to serve in Parliament: King George, by his Representative, Lord William Campbell, acting for him and on his behalf, broke through a fundamental law of this country, for the certain holding of General Assemblies; and thereby, as far as in him lay, not only violated, but annihilated the very ability of holding a General Assembly.

King James in time of peace kept a Standing Army in England, without consent of the Representatives of the People among whom that army was kept: King George hath in time of peace invaded this Continent with a large Standing Army, without the consent, and he hath kept it within this Continent expressly against the consent of the Representatives of the People among whom that army is posted.

All which doings by King George the Third, respecting America, are as much contrary to our interests and welfare; as much against law, and tend as much, at least, to subvert and extirpate the liberties of this Colony, and of America, as the similar proceedings by James the Second operated respecting the People of England. For the same principle of law, touching the premises, equally applies to the People of England in the one case, and to the People of America in the other; and this is the great principle: Certain acts done over and affecting a People, against and without their consent expressed by themselves, or by Representatives of their own election. Upon this only principle was grounded the complaints of the People of England; upon the same is grounded the complaints of the People of America. And hence it clearly follows, that if James the Second violated the fundamental laws of England, George the Third hath also violated the fundamental laws of America.

Again: King James broke the original contract by not affording due protection to his subjects, although he was not charged with having seized their towns, and with having held them against the people; or with having laid them in ruins by his arms; or with having seized their vessels; or with having pursued the people with fire and sword; or with having declared them Rebels, for resisting his arms levelled to destroy their lives, liberties, and properties. But George the Third hath done all these things against America; and it is therefore undeniable that he hath not afforded due protection to the People. Wherefore, if James the Second broke the original contract, it is undeniable that George the Third has also broken the original contract between King and People; and that he made use of the most violent measures by which it could be done—violences of which James was guiltless—measures carrying conflagration, massacre, and open war, amidst a people whose subjection to the King of Great Britain the law holds to be due only as a return for protection. And so tenacious and clear is the law upon this very principle, that it is laid down, subjection is not due even to a King de jure, or of right, unless he be also King de facto, or in possession of the Executive powers dispensing protection.

Again: The third fact charged against James is, that he withdrew himself out of the Kingdom. And we know that the people of this country have declared that Lord William Campbell, the King of Great Britain's Representative, "having used his utmost efforts to destroy the lives, liberties, and properties of the good people here, whom, by the duty of his station, he was bound to protect, withdrew himself out of the Colony." Hence it will appear that George the Third hath withdrawn himself out of this Colony, provided it be established that exactly the same natural consequence resulted from the withdrawing in each case respectively—King James personally out of England, and King George out of Carolina, by the agency of his substitute and representative, Lord William Campbell. By King James's withdrawing, the Executive Magistrate was gone; thereby, in the eye of the law, the Executive Magistrate was dead, and, of consequence, Royal Government actually ceased in England; so by King George's Representative's withdrawing, the Executive Magistrate was gone, the death in law became apparent, and, of consequence, Royal Government actually ceased in this Colony. Lord William withdrew as the King's Representative, carrying off the great seal and Royal Instructions to Governours; and acting for and on the part of his principal, by every construction of law that conduct became the conduct of his principal; and thus, James the Second withdrew out of England, and George the Third withdrew out of South-Carolina; and by such a conduct, respectively, the People in each country were exactly in the same degree injured.

The three facts against King James being thus stated and compared with similar proceedings by King George, we are now to ascertain the result of the injuries done by the first, and the law upon that point; which, being ascertained, must naturally constitute the judgment in law, upon the result of the similar injuries done by the last. And I am happy that I can give you the best authority upon this important point.

Treating upon this great precedent in constitutional law, the learned Judge Blackstone declares, that the result of the facts "amounted to an abdication of the Government; which abdication did not only affect the person of the King himself, but, also, all his heirs, and rendered the throne absolutely and completely vacant."

Thus it clearly appears that the Government was not abdicated, and the throne vacated, by the resolution of the Lords and Commons; but that the resolution was only declaratory of the law of nature and reason, upon the result of the injuries proceeding from the three combined facts of mal-administration. And thus, as I have, on the foot of the best of authorities, made it evident that George the Third, King of Great Britain, has endeavoured to subvert the Constitution of this country, by breaking the original contract between King and People; by the advice of wicked persons has violated the fundamental laws, and has withdrawn himself, by withdrawing the constitutional benefits of the Kingly office and his protection out of this country,—from such a result of injuries, from such a conjuncture of circumstances, the law of the land authorizes me to declare, and it is my duty boldly to declare the law, that George the Third, King of Great Britain, has abdicated the Government, and that the throne is thereby vacant; that is, he has no authority over us, and we owe no obedience to him. The British Ministers already have presented a charge of mine to the notice of the Lords and Commons in Parliament; and I am nothing loth that they take equal resentment against this charge; for, supported by the fundamental laws of the Constitution, and engaged as I am in the cause of virtue, I fear no consequences from their machinations.

Thus having stated the principal causes of our last Revolution, it is as clear as the sun in meridian that George the Third has injured the Americans at least as grievously as James the Second injured the People of England; but that James did not oppress these in so criminal a manner as George has oppressed the Americans. Having also stated the law on the case, I am naturally led to point out to you some of the great benefits resulting from that Revolution.

In one word, then, you have a form of Government in every respect preferable to the mode under the British authority. And this will most clearly appear by contrasting the two forms of Government.

Under the British authority, Governours were sent over to us who were utterly unacquainted with our local interests, the genius of the people, and our laws. Generally, they were but too much disposed to obey the mandates of an arbitrary Ministry; and if the Governour behaved ill, we could not by any peaceable means procure redress. But, under our present happy Constitution, our Executive Magistrate arises according to the spirit and letter of Holy Writ: "Their Governours shall proceed from the midst of them." Thus, the people have an opportunity of choosing a man intimately acquainted with their true interests, their genius, and their laws; a man perfectly disposed to defend them against arbitrary Ministers, and to promote the happiness of that people from among whom he was elevated, and by whom, without the least difficulty, he may be removed and blended in the common mass.

Again, under the British authority it was in effect declared, that we had no property; nay, that we could not possess any; and that we had not any of the rights of humanity. For men who knew us not; men who gained in proportion as we lost, arrogated to themselves a right to bind us in all cases whatsoever. But our Constitution is calculated to free us from foreign bondage; to secure to us our property; to maintain to us the rights of humanity; and to defend us and our posterity against British authority, aiming to reduce us to the most abject slavery.

Again, the British authority declared that we should not erect slitting-mills; and to this unjust law we implicitly and respectfully submitted, so long as with safety to our lives we could yield obedience to such authority. But a resolution of Congress now grants a premium to encourage the construction of such mills. The British authority discouraged our attempting to manufacture for our own consumption; but the new Constitution, by authorizing the disbursement of large sums of money, by way of loan or premium, encourages the making of iron, bar-steel, nail-rods, gun-locks, gun-barrels, sulphur, nitre, gunpowder, lead, woollens, cottons, linens, paper, and salt.

Upon the whole, it has been the policy of the British authority to oblige us to supply our wants at their market, (which is the dearest in the known world,) and to cramp and confine our trade so as to be subservient to their commerce, our real interest being ever out of the question. On the other hand, the new Constitution is wisely adapted to enable us to trade with foreign nations, and thereby to supply our wants at the cheapest markets in the universe; to extend our trade infinitely beyond what it has ever been known; to encourage manufacturers amongst us; and it is peculiarly formed to promote the happiness of the People, from among whom, by virtue and merit, the poorest man may arrive at the highest dignity. Oh, Carolínians! happy would you be under this new Constitution, if you knew your happy state.

Possessed of a constitution of Government, founded upon so generous, equal, and natural a principle—a Government expressly calculated to make the People rich, powerful, virtuous, and happy—who can wish to change it, to return under a Royal Government, the vital principles of which are the reverse in every particular? It was my duty to lay this happy Constitution before you in its genuine light. It is your duty to understand, to instruct others, and to defend it.

I might here, with propriety, quit this truly important subject; but my anxiety for the publick weal compels me yet to detain your attention, while I make an observation or two upon one particular part of the Constitution.

When all the various attempts to enslave America by fraud, under guise of law, by military threats, by famine, massacre, breach of publick faith, and open war—I say, when these things are considered on the one hand, and, on the other, the Constitution expressing that some mode of Government should be established "until an accommodation of the unhappy differences between Great Britain and America can be obtained; an event which, though traduced and treated as Rebels, we still ardently desire"—I say, when these two points are contrasted, can we avoid revering the magnanimity of that great council of the State, who, after such injuries, could entertain such a principle? But the virtuous are ever generous. We do not wish revenge. We earnestly wish an accommodation of our unhappy disputes with Great Britain; for we prefer peace to war. Nay, there may be even such an accommodation as (excluding every idea of revenue by taxation or duty, or of legislation by act of Parliament) may vest the King of Great Britain with such a limited dominion over us as may tend, bona fide, to promote our true commercial interests, and to secure our freedom and safety—the only just ends of any dominion.

But while I declare thus much on the one side, on the other it is my duty also to declare that, in my opinion, our true commercial interests cannot be provided for but by such a material alteration of the British acts of Navigation as, according to the resolve of the honourable the Continental Congress, will "secure the commercial advantages of the whole Empire to the Mother Country, and the commercial benefits of its respective members;" and that our liberties and safety cannot be depended upon if the King of Great Britain should be allowed to hold our forts and cannon, or to have authority over a single regiment in America, or a single ship-of-war in our ports. For if he hold our forts, he may turn them against us, as he did Boston against her proprietors. If he acquire our cannon, he will effectually disarm the Colony. If he has a command of troops among us, even if we raise and pay them, shackles are fixed upon us; witness Ireland and her National Army. The most express act of Parliament cannot give us security; for acts of Parliament are as easily repealed as made. Royal Proclamations are not to be depended upon; witness the disappointments of the inhabitants of Quebeck and St. Augustine. Even a change of Ministry will not avail us, because, notwithstanding the rapid succession of Ministers, for which the British Court has been famous during the present reign, yet the same ruinous policy ever continued to prevail against America. In short, I think it my duty to declare, in the awful seat of justice, and before Almighty God, that, in my opinion, the Americans can have no safety but by the Divine favour, their own virtue, and their being so prudent as not to leave it in the power of the British rulers to injure them.

Indeed, the ruinous and deadly injuries received on our side, and the jealousies entertained (and which, in the nature of things, must daily increase against us) on the other, demonstrate to a mind in the least given to reflection upon the rise and fall of empires, that true reconciliation never can exist between Great Britain and America, the latter being in subjection to the former. The Almighty created America to be independent of Britain. Let us beware of the impiety of being backward to act as instruments in the Almighty hand, now extended to accomplish his purpose, and by the completion of which, alone, America, in the nature of human affairs, can be secure against the craft and insidious designs of her enemies, who think her prosperity and power already by far too great. In a word, our piety and political safety are so blended, that to refuse our labours in this Divine work, is to refuse to be a great, a free, a pious, and a happy People.

And now, having left the important alternative, (political happiness or wretchedness,) under God, in a great degree in your own hands, I pray the Supreme Arbiter of the affairs of men so to direct your judgment as that you may act agreeable to what seems to be His will, revealed in His miraculous works in behalf of America, bleeding at the altar of Liberty!

THE PRESENTMENTS OF THE JURY.

At a Court of General Sessions of the Peace, Oyer and Terminer, Assize and General Jail Delivery, begun to be holden in and for the District of CHARLESTOWN, at CHARLESTOWN, in the Colony aforesaid, on TUESDAY, the 23d day of APRIL, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six;

The Presentments of the Grand Jury for the said District :

I. Fully sensible and thoroughly convinced that to live in a society without laws, or a proper execution of them, to restrain the licentious nature of mankind, is the greatest misery that can befall a People, and must render any body of men, in such a situation, but little superior to a herd of brutes; and being no less sensible that it was the scheme of a corrupt, nefarious Administration in Great Britain, to reduce the good people of this Colony to that wretched situation, from a want of officers to execute the laws, (those whom they had appointed having refused to act in their respective stations,) that, through the evil effects of anarchy and confusion, the people might become an easy prey to the cruel designs of their insidious enemies: While we lament the necessity which has obliged the people to resume into their hands those powers of Government which were originally derived from themselves for the protection of those rights which God alone has given them, as essential to their happiness, we cannot but express our most unfeigned joy in the happy constitution of Government now established in this Colony, which promises every blessing to its inhabitants, which a people, endued with virtue and a just regard to the rights of mankind, could desire. With gratitude to the Divine Ruler of human events, and with the most pleasing expectations of happiness from a Constitution so wise in its nature, and virtuous in its ends, (being founded on the strictest principles of justice and humanity, and consistent with every privilege incident to the dignity of a rational being,) we cannot but declare we think every opposition to its operations, or disregard to its authority, the foulest criminality a mortal can be guilty of; highly offensive in the eyes of God, and of all just men, and deserving the most exemplary punishment.

We cannot but deplore the unhappy situation of any few amongst the people of this Colony, who, through an ignorance of their true interests and just rights, and from a want of proper information of the real truth, may be misled, by the artifice and cunning of their false and designing enemies, from a real sense of those benefits which our present Constitution has so amply provided for; benefits which are not confined or limited to any ranks or degrees of men in particular, but generally, equally, and indiscriminately, extending to all, from the richest to the poorest, and which time and a little patient experience must soon evince.

Every good citizen must be happy in the consideration of the choice of those officers, appointed in the administration of our present Government, as well in the impartial mode of an appointment arising from the people themselves, and the limited duration of their power, as in their personal characters as men, justly beloved and revered by their country, and whose merits and virtues entitle them to every pre-eminence.

Filled with these sentiments, arising from mature deliberation and the most impartial inquiry, we must further declare that blessings such as these we have before enumerated, are too inestimable to be lost, and that nothing in nature can repay the least violation of them; and although an accommodation with the power which attempts to destroy them may be highly worthy of attention, and, upon principles truly honourable, of obtaining, yet we think it a sacred duty, incumbent upon every citizen, to maintain and defend, with his life and fortune, what is given and intrusted to him by the hand of Providence, not for his own good only, but for the lasting happiness of posterity; a trust which no law can ever annul, which is the grand principle of existence, and the source of every social virtue.

II. We present, as a grievance intolerable to the spirit of a people born and nurtured in the arms of freedom, and (though ever submissive to the just mandates of legal authority) holding every oppression as detestable,—the unjust, cruel, and diabolical acts of the British Parliament, not only declaring the good people of the United Colonies of North-America Rebels, for defending those invaluable rights which no human power can lawfully divest them of, but making all murders, rapines, thefts, robberies, and other inhuman oppressions, done before the passing of those acts without authority, and which were, after the passing the said acts, to be done by the British forces in these Colonies, legal and warrantable, to the eternal disgrace and indelible infamy of a kingdom once renowned for her justice, honour, and humanity, but now meanly descending to that wanton profligacy which even Savages abhor.

III. We present, as a very great grievance, the indulgence allowed to all those who are inimical to the liberties of America, and the operations of the United Colonies, amongst us, in suffering them to reside here, and be admitted to intercourses dangerous to the peace and welfare of this Colony.

IV. We present, that the publick oaths, directed by an act of the General Assembly (passed since the forming of our present Constitution) to be administered to those exercising publick offices, trusts, and professions, are not administered to such of the Clergy as are included in the same.

V. We present, that the times at which the several Parochial Committees meet, or are appointed for their meeting, are not made publick; and we do recommend that they do publish the same in the publick papers, that all persons who are desirous of obtaining leave to sue for debts, may know when to apply.

VI. We present, as a great grievance, more particularly at this time, the want of due attention to the roads and ferries in this Colony; many of the roads not being sufficiently wide and worked upon, agreeable to law, and the ferries, in general, not having boats sufficient to forward passengers upon any emergent occasion.

VII. We present, as a grievance, the too frequent forestalling out of the wagons, coming from the back parts of the country, the many necessities of life, by which the good inhabitants of this town are obliged to pay most exorbitant prices for the same; and, with submission, would recommend a place to be appointed for the sale of bacon, flour, butter, and other such necessities, brought to town in carriages, to be regulated by the market act.

VIII. We present the want of a proper person, by law, to oblige the sellers of blades and hay to weigh the same at a publick scale.

INSTRUCTIONS TO DELEGATES FOR CHARLOTTE COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

At a meeting of the Committee of Charlotte County, April 23, 1776, present the Chairman and fifteen Members:

Resolved, That in this truly alarming and important crisis of our publick affairs, it is expedient that the Delegates lately chosen for this County should know the sentiments of their constituents, and be instructed what part it is desired and expected they will act in the ensuing Convention.

“To PAUL CARRINGTON, and THOMAS READ, Esq's :

“GENTLEMEN: When we consider the despotick plan adopted by the King, Ministry, and Parliament of Great Britain, insidiously pursued for these twelve years past, to enslave America; when we consider that they have turned a deaf ear to the repeated petitions and remonstrances of this and our sister Colonies, and that they have been equally inattentive to the rights of freemen and the British Constitution; and when we consider that they have for some time been endeavouring to enforce their arbitrary mandates by fire and sword, and likewise encouraging, by every means in their power, our savage neighbours, and our more savage domesticks, to spill the blood of our wives and children; and to crown the whole, they have added insult to their injustice and cruelty, by repeatedly pretending to hold out the olive-branch of peace in such a way as teacheth us that they are determined to persist in their hellish designs, and that nothing is intended for us but the most abject slavery; of this we can no longer doubt, since we have been made acquainted with a late letter from the Secretary of State to Governour Eden, and the late act of Parliament for seizing and confiscating all our ships and property that may fall into their hands:

“Therefore, despairing of any redress of our grievances from the King and Parliament of Great Britain, and all hopes of a reconciliation between her and the United Colonies being now at an end, and being conscious that their treatment has been such as loyal subjects did not deserve, and to which, as freemen, we are determined not to submit; by the unanimous approbation and direction of the whole freeholders, and all the other inhabitants of this County, we advise and instruct you cheerfully to concur and give your best assistance in our Convention, to push to the utmost a war offensive and defensive, until you are certified that such proposals of peace are made to our General Congress as shall by them be judged just and friendly. And because the advantages of a trade will better enable us to pay the taxes, and procure the necessaries for carrying on a war, and in our present circumstances this cannot be had without a Declaration of Independence; therefore, if no such proposals of peace shall be made, we judge it to be a dictate of the first law of nature, to continue to oppose every attempt on our lives and properties; and we give it you in charge, to use your best endeavours that the Delegates which are sent to the General Congress be instructed immediately to cast off the British yoke, and to enter into a commercial alliance with any nation or nations friendly to our cause. And as King George the Third, of Great Britain, &c., has manifested deliberate enmity towards us, and, under the character of a parent, persists in behaving as a tyrant, that they, in our behalf, renounce allegiance to him forever; and that, taking the God of Heaven to be our King, and depending upon His protection and assistance, they plan out that form of Government which may the most effectually secure to us the enjoyment of our civil and religious rights and privileges, to the latest posterity.

"In all other things, gentlemen, that may come before you in Convention, we rely upon your known fidelity and zeal; resolving and giving you our faith, that we will, at the risk of our lives and fortunes, to the utmost of our abilities, support and defend you, our country, and our sister Colonies, in the glorious cause in which we are now engaged."

By order: WILLIAM JAMESON, Clerk.

GEORGE LUX TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, April 23, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I have been unwell for ten days past, nay, have been most of the time confined to my bed with a fever, of which I am not yet well enough recruited to venture upon a ride to Annapolis. I hope the honourable Council of Safety will excuse my non-attendance for the above reasons. I was confined to my bed at the time our Committee received the letters referred to in my citation, and heard nothing of it until Sunday morning. I have, agreeable to the order of your honourable Board, copied the papers referred to in your summons; your honourable Board will excuse the incorrectness with which they are copied, as it is caused solely by my sickness, for I am at this moment hardly able to hold my pen.

I am, with respect, honourable sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE LUX.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.,
President of the Council of Safety, at Annapolis.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, Baltimore County, }
April 23, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: This Committee, on the late alarm, appointed Mr. Robert Purviance, Mr. David Stewart, and Captain George Woolsey, to superintend the fitting out of the Schooner Resolution as a tender, or armed vessel, for Captain Nicholson. As they have nearly completed her, and are in advance a considerable sum, you will please to furnish them with six or eight hundred pounds, as is convenient.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

WILLIAM LUX, V. Chairman. JOHN SMITH,
ANDREW BUCHANAN, JAMES CALHOUN,
JOHN BOYD, WALTER TOLLEY, JR.,
DARBY LUX, THOMAS HARRISON,
JAMES GITTINGS, WILLIAM BUCHANAN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, April 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Wallace and Mr. Green set off to-morrow morning. By one of them we intend to write you fully; but as the post may possibly be in before these gentlemen, we think it necessary to advise you that all your Deputies here from Maryland approve the conduct of the Council of Safety and resolve to support it. The letter to the President gave high offence to some of the very hot gentlemen. No resolution is yet formed on it—but probably will to-day. R. Alexander and Thomas Stone join in respects to you and your brethren.

I am, dear sir, your very affectionate servant,

THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, April 23, 1776.

SIR: I am to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 19th of April, enclosing several papers, all which were immediately laid before Congress.

The important intelligence they contain makes it necessary that the most vigorous measures should be adopted, as well to defend our troops against the Canadians themselves, as to insure success to the expedition. The Congress being determined on the reduction of Quebeck, and the security of that country, for reasons too obvious to be mentioned, have left nothing undone which can in any way contribute to that end. Whatever may be the causes of the late insurrection, good policy requires that, while we endeavour to prevent everything of the kind for the future, we should also make provision in case it should happen. Accordingly, Congress has come into sundry resolves, calculated to quiet the minds of the Canadians, and to remove the sources of their uneasiness and discontent. They have likewise ordered that six more battalions be sent into Canada from the Army at New-York, as you will see by the enclosed resolve. Whether any further additional troops will be wanted in that country, is a matter of some uncertainty with Congress. Should you, from your knowledge of facts, state of Canada, the possibility that General Howe will attempt to relieve General Carleton, and, comparing all circumstances together, be of opinion that an additional force is necessary, you will please to signify it to Congress; and at the same time inform them whether, in that case, such additional force can be spared from the Army now in New-York.

I transmit herewith sundry resolves of Congress for your direction; and have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington, at New-York.

P. S. The enclosed letter for Commodore Hopkins, I leave unsealed for your perusal only; after which I beg the favour of you to seal and forward it by Fessenden, or a fresh express.

I have paid Mr. Fessenden twelve dollars, which you will please to note on settlement with him. J. H.

ON THE PRESENT STATE OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

Having attentively perused the various political publications which have been lately printed, I confess I have been astonished at the strange and extraordinary doctrines which some of them contain; and it naturally led me to consider whether I am to swallow in the gross, and pay an implicit obedience to their novel sentiments, or whether it is not my duty as a man, and as a friend to my native country, to judge for myself how they will affect me and my countrymen in general. I shall, therefore, in a brief manner, (if it is possible to be brief on so interesting a subject,) give some of my sentiments on the present unhappy situation of public affairs.

Much pains have been taken by some writers to make us believe that nothing but the vilest intentions that ever entered into the hearts of the worst of men are to be expected from the people of Great Britain; that if Commissioners are coming, they are coming to bribe, to deceive, and betray us; that the very thought of reconciliation ought to be driven from us; and, in fact, that little else but war, destruction, and bloodshed, are now before us. What man in America who professes Christianity, or has any feelings of humanity, but must shudder at such a prospect, which, if there was no other, would be a prospect of evils that language cannot describe—"a hideous group of ills which singly shock."

But thanks be to Heaven, there are great numbers who have different views; who think they have reason still to hope for better things from that people, with whom in former times to be connected was their honour and their joy. Shall an American dare to express a sentiment of this sort at this time? I feel it to be a truth, and I cannot but see (through the whole of the present dreadful conflict) some traces of that nobility of sentiment and action which were formerly characteristic of the British Nation. Where are these to be found? may some say. Have they not invaded our territories with an armed force? Have they not destroyed our property in many instances, and shown a cruel disposition to an attack upon our essential rights? Granted. But have they not also shown a desire for reconciliation? And is there not a probability of overtures from them for this noble purpose, on terms constitutional and honourable to both countries? I answer in the affirmative, and shall endeavour to prove the assertion from authentick records.

The Address of the House of Lords, presented the 27th of October last, is concluded with this positive assurance of their desires, viz: "We feel no other wish than to re-establish order and tranquillity through the several parts of your dominions, upon the basis of a close connection with, and constitutional dependance upon Great Britain."

The King's answer to the House of Commons concludes with an earnest wish "to attain the most desirable end of restoring his subjects in America to the free and happy condition, and to the peace and prosperity which they enjoyed in their constitutional dependance, before the breaking out of these unhappy disorders."

In a pamphlet published in England a considerable time since, (and which was said to be written under the eyes of the Ministry,) I find some lively sentiments, expressive of a perfect anxiety for a restoration of that harmony which formerly subsisted between the two countries; and this to be established on the principles of mutual dependance, the natural effect of common interest and happiness. They even pray for some great and liberal commercial arrangement, which may remain a monument to future ages, that though there was once, there was but once, a quarrel between Great Britain and her Colonies.

As to the sentiments of great numbers of the people of England at large, they may be seen by the numerous addresses that have been presented to the Throne, which clearly and fully show that "one of the first objects of their wishes is, a return of peace and cordial union with their American fellow-subjects."

The late remarkable event of the British troops evacuating Boston, with the circumstances attending it, might be adduced to corroborate the opinion I have given. I felicitate the rightful inhabitants on this joyful occasion. I sympathized with them in their distress; I cheerfully contributed to the relief of the needy among them; and heartily wish their future welfare in a state of peaceful possession of all their just rights.

If, my countrymen, the general happiness of America is the object we aim at, the thought of a reasonable reconciliation cannot be driven from us. Independence will not produce happiness. As soon could I believe that those were my friends who would advise me to renounce my family, as I could believe them to be such who would separate me from my near connexions in the land that gave birth to my ancestors.

As to the cry raised against those who advise to a reconciliation on constitutional principles, that they are seeking for places and pensions—what would such say who are so groundlessly suspicious, if the accusation were retorted upon themselves? For my part, I can seriously declare, that I have such an aversion to titles and pensions that I would not be one of the three hundred and ninety Commissioners, on the plan of the writer of a piece called Common Sense, for all the money that has been made in America since the commencement of the unhappy differences.

To conclude: I have put together a few remarks, which, however uncouth, are my honest sentiments. Who I am is not material; but this I may say, I should rejoice to see the happiness of my countrymen, of all denominations; and assure them that, for myself, I wish to remain, as I ever have been,

A SETTLED CITIZEN.

NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

April 23, 1776. }

The President laid before this Council a Letter he received from the Committee of the Township of Morris, with several Counterfeit Bills of Continental Currency enclosed, together with sundry Affidavits proving the said bills to have been counterfeited by the wife of Henry Vandyne, of Morris County, who appears to have been privy thereto, and passed by himself and wife; which said Vandyne and wife had been apprehended by the said Committee, and were now confined in the Jail of the County of Morris.

The said Letter, with the Affidavits accompanying the same, being read and duly considered, Ordered, That the said Henry Vandyne and his wife be continued under confinement, in the Jail of the County of Morris, until further orders be taken thereon; and that the consideration of the measures proper to be taken thereon be referred to the Congress of this Province, at their next meeting; and that Mr. President write to the honourable Continental Congress, requesting their advice and direction, to enable the said Provincial Congress to take such measures with said offenders, and form Regulations for preventing such offences in future, as may then appear proper and necessary.

By order of the Committee:

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

Messrs. Livingston and De Hart are requested to get the direction of Congress, agreeable to the above Resolution.

Morristown, April 6, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Observation of the Township of Morris, on the 5th and 6th of April instant, had before us Henry Vandyne and Elizabeth, his wife, charged with counterfeiting and passing bills of the Continental currency, wherein they confessed themselves guilty; also, such other persons whom we suspected could give us any information therein, were brought before us, and examined; and, on the strictest inquiry, have discovered seven counterfeit bills, which we believe to be the whole number they have made or passed. For these crimes we are sensible the delinquents may be punished by the common law for forgery, in subscribing the names of the signers to the bills, and as cheats, in passing counterfeit money for good. Yet it is a matter of publick concern, and of the greatest importance to the Colonies in general, to punish counterfeiters of the Continental currency. We did not choose, in this first instance, to take any determinate step, unless with the approbation, and by direction of the honourable Committee of Safety of the Province of New-Jersey. We have, therefore, under guard of a detachment of Light-Horse, sent you the prisoners, the affidavits, and confessions, taken and laid before us, together with six of the said bills, and one true bill, with some of the implements made use of in counterfeiting; to the end that you may be fully possessed of the facts, and take such further measures for punishing the offenders as you may in your wisdom think just and right.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

BENJAMIN HALLPEY, Chairman.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-Jersey.

MORRIS County, ss.

Mary, the wife of Philip Tucker, being duly sworn, deposed and saith: That she received the annexed three dollar bill, of Continental currency, of one Vandyne, (she thinks his Christian name was Hank,) for a true and good bill, on the 19th day of March instant, part in payment for sundry articles bought, and the remainder, (being two dollars and something more,) she gave him, in changing, good money, not knowing the said bill was counterfeit.

No. of said bill 24,951, date 10th May, 1775, endorsed :
Printed by Hall & Sellers.

MARY <sup>her</sup> ~~mark~~ TUCKER.

Sworn 21st of March, 1776, before me,
SAMUEL TUTHILL.

Henry Vandyne, under examination, saith : That he (Vandyne) passed a one dollar bill in imitation of the Continental currency, at the house of Isaac Lewis, in Mendham, which bill, he (Vandyne) saith, he received of Elizabeth his wife ; and further saith, that she (Elizabeth) had made and passed one of three dollars to John Panton, and likewise one of three dollars to Isaac Vandyne ; and, also, one of three dollars to Mott Vandyne ; and further saith, that he (Vandyne) saw the aforesaid Isaac Vandyne pass the aforesaid bill of three dollars to Cornelius Davenport ; and further saith, that he (Vandyne) saw the aforesaid Elizabeth pass one bill of three dollars to Elizabeth, the wife of Samuel Fordice ; and further saith, that he (Henry) passed one bill of one dollar to Mark Walton ; and further saith, that he (Vandyne) was knowing to his wife Elizabeth's making the above bills, and believes that not any person had any hand in making the above bills except the aforesaid Elizabeth ; and further saith, that Mott Vandyne was knowing to the making of the aforesaid counterfeit bills ; and further saith, the aforesaid Elizabeth got the paper of said Mott Vandyne. And further saith not.

HENRY VANDYNE.

The above examination was taken before the Committee of Observation for the Township of Mendham.

Signed by order of the Committee :

DAVID THOMPSON, Chairman.

April 4, A. D. 1776.

The Examination of ISAAC VANDYNE, Jun., taken this 6th day of APRIL, before the Committee of Observation for the Town of MORRIS.

This examinant being duly sworn, saith, that being at Jonas Smith's, on Tuesday night, 26th of March last, and intending to come to Morristown next day, he asked his brother, Henry Vandyne, to lend him a shilling or two to bear his expenses ; who replied, he would let him (Isaac) have a three dollar bill, and that he might take it out of that ; but coming to Morristown, and not having occasion to change it, he showed it to no one except to Noah Vail and Mark Walton, until he returned again into the neighbourhood of Robert Gaston's, at Rockaway, where he offered to pass it to William Gordon's wife, to take out the price of a mug of beer ; she replied, she should not refuse the bill if she could change it ; but would rather choose to charge the beer ; after which he showed it to no one else, but returned it to Henry Vandyne. Isaac Vandyne told Mrs. Gordon the bill looked too blotted, he did not know whether it was good or not ; she then replied the bill was good ; which is all he (Isaac) knows about the bill. And further saith not.

ISAAC VANDYNE, JUN.

Taken and sworn to, this 6th day of April, 1776, in presence of the Committee of Morristown, before me,

SAMUEL TUTHILL.

This examinant saith : That his wife, some time last winter, told him, in a jocose way, that she could make the Continental money ; and that he frequently saw her attempting to make such money ; and at length she did make six bills in imitation of the true bills of the Continental currency, viz : two bills of one dollar each, and four bills of three dollars each ; and that she gave one of those three dollar Continental bills in payment to Elizabeth, the wife of Samuel Fordice ; and that she gave one of the said counterfeit bills to Isaac Vandyne, Jun., to get changed for her, which the said Isaac returned to this examinant ; and one of said counterfeit bills this examinant's wife told him she gave to Matthew Vandyne ; and the other three dollar counterfeit bill he (Henry) took to the Great Pond, and there lent the last-mentioned bill to Matthew Vandyne ; and that he (Henry) gave one of the said counterfeit one dollar bills in part payment to Mark Walton, last Tuesday ; and the other one dollar counterfeit bill he (Henry) gave to Richard Vanderhoof, who tried to pass the said bill away at Isaac Lewis's Tavern, in Mendham, but could not, it being suspected to be counterfeit ; and that he (this examinant) saw his said wife Elizabeth complete two of said counterfeit bills ; and doth verily believe that she made each and every of the said six counterfeit bills, within two months last past ; and this examinant knows of no person or persons aiding or assisting his said wife in counterfeiting said bills ; but that he brought some writing-paper from Matthew Vandyne's, for his wife ; but believed the said Matthew did not know the paper was wanted for any bad purpose ; and further this examinant saith, that he let Isaac Vandyne have one other of the said three dollar counterfeit bills, which the said Isaac paid to Cornelius Davenport, in discharge of their expenses at said Davenport's ; and hath no reason to believe the said Isaac knew the said bill was counterfeit.

HENRY VANDYNE.

Taken and acknowledged as above,
BENJAMIN HALLPEY, Chairman.

Examination and confession of ELIZABETH VANDYNE, taken before me, MOSES TUTTLE, this 5th day of APRIL, 1776.

She saith : That about the last of February or beginning of March last, she (this deponent) undertook to counterfeit the three dollar bills, (the emission of the Congress,) and completed three of the three dollar bills, and three of the one dollar bills, which she made with her pen and a pair of compasses, and by taking a true bill and laying it on clean paper, and pricking it through with a pin ; by which means she got the pattern of every part of the bill, and then took two pieces of clean paper and cut them to the shape of the bills, and put some starch between, with a point of a knife, and then put the two pieces of paper together, and while they were damp, sprinkled on isinglass, and then pressed with a warm smoothing-iron, and with her pen, by the help of her patterns, completed all the prints and the flowers, and then signed the signers' names to the said six bills, (the read ink was of horse blood,) and when so done, passed one to Elizabeth Fordice, of three dollars, to pay a debt that her husband owed to Samuel Fordice. The other two three dollar bills, she thinks her husband had them, but afterwards concludes that Matthew Vandyne had them. One bill of one dollar she passed to Samuel Moon ; and after her hearing there was a disturbance about the bills, she went to Samuel Moon, and took the said bill back from him, which said bill was lost with her pocket and one good bill of one dollar in it, directly after she was apprehended. One bill, of one dollar, of her own make, Hank Vandyne, her husband, paid to Mark Walton ; and one bill, of one dollar, her husband took with him. Two of three dollar bills, she let Matthew Vandyne have one ; she told him to get her a two dollar bill, and the remaining one dollar he was to have ; and the other three dollars she let Matthew Vandyne have also, without saying anything about what conditions Matthew had it upon, whether for debt or to pass for her. The first bill she made she told her husband to give it to some other body to pass, for fear he would be mistrusted ; and her husband told her that he gave the bill to Isaac Vandyne, Jun., to put off for him ; and Isaac told him that he had changed the bill with Cornelius Davenport. One bill, of three dollars, she gave to John Panton, to buy some calico with for her ; and her husband being very uneasy for fear said Panton would be found out, (for the said Panton could not keep anything in,) so she went the next day but one after letting Panton have it, and brought the said bill back again, which was the one that Matthew Vandyne afterwards had. And further saith not.

ELIZABETH VANDYNE.

Taken before me, this 5th day of April, 1776.

MOSES TUTTLE.

The Examination of ELIZABETH VANDYNE, taken this 6th day of APRIL, 1776, before the Committee of Observation for the Town of MORRIS.

This examinant saith : That the above examination, taken before Moses Tuttle, Esq., is true in every respect, except the number of three dollar bills, which ought to have been called four; and this examinant further says, that Moses Tuttle, Esq., sent his boy and found her pocket, (mentioned in the above examination,) containing one good dollar bill, one counterfeit dollar bill, together with sundry implements which she made use of in counterfeiting the bills. The examinant further saith, that she had no assistance from any person in performing the before-mentioned counterfeits. The examinant further saith, that her husband (Henry Vandyne) at first discouraged her from attempting the counterfeiting of the bills; but after he saw in what manner they were done, and found they would pass, he encouraged her to proceed, by telling her he thought it would do as well as any.

ELIZABETH VANDYNE.

Taken and acknowledged the day and year last above-mentioned.

BENJAMIN HALLPEY, Chairman.

The Examination and Confession of MATTHEW VANDYNE, taken before me, MOSES TUTTLE, this 5th day of APRIL, 1776.

He saith, That on or about the 1st of March last, he was at Hank Vandyne's, and heard Hank's wife ask her husband whether she should show to him, (meaning the counterfeit bills;) and, after some conversation, she showed him a three dollar bill, and asked him how that would do; he said he told them that he did not know, but believed it would not do very well. And this deponent saith Hank Vandyne was in debt to him, and he pressed him hard for some money, and seeing a three dollar bill that was good, asked for that, but Hank nor his wife was willing to let him have the good bill then, but made answer that she (Hank's wife) would try her hand a little longer, then she would let him have it afterwards. She let him have one three dollar bill, which he says he accepted for a good one, and passed the same as such to Mr. Tucker; and on the 1st day of April instant, she let him have another three dollar bill, which he believes to be of her make; but that he has the said bill yet in his custody, and intended to return it to her again, for fear of coming to trouble about it. Matthew saith, that he took both the three dollar bills in part pay for a horse which he sold to Hank Vandyne, and that he did not return any part of the money back again. And further saith not.

MATTHEW VANDYNE.

Elizabeth Fordice, of full age, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith: That some time in March last past, Elizabeth, the wife of Henry Vandyne, paid her a three dollar bill, of Continental money, which she (this deponent) received for good money, not knowing or suspecting it to be counterfeit, until she was told it was counterfeit by Frederick King, this morning; and that her husband (Samuel Fordice) had paid the said bill away, supposing it to be a good bill.

The deponent further saith, that he offered said bill to Caleb Howel, who replied he would not give a copper for it, it was counterfeit; since which he has shown it to others, who all said it was not good; but that he has not offered it to pass to any body since.

Elizabeth Vandyne brought a three dollar bill, of the Continental currency to him, to buy for her something out of some merchant's store; but the weather proving stormy, hindered him from going abroad; and further, that the said Elizabeth, on the Sunday following, came to this deponent and demanded the bill again, saying she suspected it was not good, and wanted it to return to the person from whom she got it; upon which this deponent returned the bill to said Elizabeth Vandyne.

MORRIS COUNTY, ss.

Cornelius Davenport, of full age, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith: That some time in March last, Henry and Isaac Vandyne came to his house; and that Henry took from Isaac a three dollar bill, of the Continental currency, which the said Henry gave to this deponent to pay for cider and food which the two Vandynes at that time had; and that this deponent returned the change to Henry; and that Henry returned said change to Isaac. This deponent further saith, he does not know to whom the bill belonged; but believes that Isaac carried the money because Henry had no good pocket; and further, that this deponent has since parted with said bill, not knowing it to be counterfeit.

NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

April 23, 1776. }

Whereas many dangerous consequences will attend the suffering an unrestrained commerce between the inhabitants of this Colony and the Continental Troops stationed in or passing through this Province; therefore,

Resolved, That no inhabitant of this Colony shall be permitted to purchase or receive from any Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier in the Continental service, unless such Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier shall first produce a certificate signed by the Commanding Officer of the Regiment or Company to which such Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier belongs, specifying the particular goods permitted to be sold, with the name of the vender; and every person presuming to purchase any goods, clothing, or effects, contrary to this Resolution, after being notified thereof, shall be deemed unfriendly to the liberties of America, and treated accordingly; and the Committees of the several Counties and Townships in this Colony are enjoined to enforce a compliance with this Resolution.

By order of the Committee:

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read April 25, 1776, and referred to Mr. R. H. Lee, Mr. J. Adams, and Mr. Hewes.]

New-York, April 23, 1776.

SIR: In a letter which I had the honour to receive from Congress some considerable time ago, they were pleased to ask what rank Aids-de-Camp bore in the Army; from whence I concluded that they had adverted to the extraordinary trouble and confinement of these gentlemen, with a view to make them an adequate allowance; but nothing being since done, or said of the matter, I take the liberty, unsolicited by, and unknown to my Aids-de-Camp, to inform your honourable body that their pay is not, by any means, equal to their trouble and confinement. No person wishes more to save money to the publick than I do, and no person has aimed more at it; but there are some cases in which parsimony may be ill-placed, and this I take to be one. Aids-de-Camp are persons in whom entire confidence must be placed. It requires men of abilities to execute the duties with propriety and despatch where there is such a multiplicity of business as must attend the Commander-in-Chief of such an army as ours; and persuaded I am that nothing but the zeal of those gentlemen, who live with me and act in this capacity, for the great American cause and personal attachment to me, has induced them to undergo the trouble and confinement they have experienced since they have become members of my family.

I give in to no kind of amusements myself; consequently those about me can have none, but are confined from morn to eve, hearing and answering the applications and letters of one and another, which will now, I expect, receive a pretty considerable addition, as the business of the Northern and Eastern Departments (if I continue here) must, I suppose, pass through my hands. If these gentlemen had the same relaxation from duty as other officers have in their common routine, there would not be so much in it, but to have the mind always upon the stretch, scarce ever unbent, and no hours for recreation, make a material odds. Knowing this, and at the same time how inadequate the pay is, I can scarce find inclination to impose the necessary duties of their office upon them. To what I have here said, this further remark may be made, and it is a matter of no small concernment to me, and, in its consequences, to the publick, and that is, that while the duty is hard and the pay small, it is not to be wondered at if there should be found a promptness in them to seek preferment, or in me to do justice to them by facilitating their views; by which means I must lose their aid when they have it most in their power to assist me. Influenced by these motives, I have taken the liberty of laying the matter fully, and with all due deference, before your honourable body, not doubting its meeting with a patient hearing.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, President of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 4, 1776.]

New-York, April 23, 1776.

SIR: That I might be in readiness to take the field in the spring, and prepared for any service Congress should think proper to send me upon this campaign, I desired Colonel Reed, when he left Cambridge in the fall, to get me a set of camp equipage, tents, and a baggage wagon made at Philadelphia, under his own inspection, and send to me; this he informs me is now done and ready to come on. I have therefore to beg the favour of Congress, through you, to order payment of them from the Treasury, as it will save the expense and hazard of a remittance from hence, where we stand much in need of every farthing we have.

I have the honour to be, with great respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO LORD DRUMMOND.

New-York, April 23, 1776.

MY LORD: Understanding that the Committee of Safety of this Colony have given your Lordship permission to visit Bermuda, for the benefit of your health, I take the liberty of wishing you a pleasant voyage, and a speedy and perfect restoration of it.

With respect, I have the honour to be, your Lordship's most obedient and most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Lord Drummond.

COLONEL RITZEMA TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, April 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: General Washington and my Lord Stirling are extremely anxious for the speedy completion of the New-York Regiments, and I am daily called on to know the reason why my regiment is not completed; in answer to which I inform the Generals of your orders for the companies to come down, and that they have been issued for some time, and of the arrangement that has been made in it. This does not seem to be satisfactory. I am therefore ordered to request of you that you will be pleased to exert yourselves in fully completing the Third Regiment.

Captain Riker's Company not exceeding nineteen men, and not ten of them, in my opinion, fit for actual service, I submit it to your better judgment whether some company that is full had not better be substituted in its room, and also that the eighth company be added.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your very humble servant,
RUDOLPHUS RITZEMA.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety.

SETH MARVIN TO TEUNIS COOPER.

Oxford, April 23, 1776.

SIR: After proper respects, I must desire you not to mention that I did not incline to have warrants sent up to us without they were returned in a week; but if any should be returned at all, I should be glad to have them sent as soon as possible.

I am, with much esteem, your friend and humble servant,
SETH MARVIN.

To Mr. Teunis Cooper, Esq., in the Committee of Safety, at New-York.

LEVI PAWLING TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Marbletown, April 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a return from the four gentlemen who were appointed a sub-Committee by the General Committee for the town of Rochester. Your Honours will be kind enough to send up the commissions as soon as possible. There can be no reasonable objection made why the three gentlemen returned should not be commissioned. The reason of the vacancy in Captain Schoonmaker's Company is, that one of his subalterns is an officer in the Continental service, the other two in Colonel De Witt's Regiment of Minute-men.

Your compliance will oblige your most humble servant,
LEVI PAWLING.

To the New-York Committee of Safety.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, April 23, 1776.

SIR: I did myself the honour, in my letter of January 21, to enclose to your Excellency a copy of a Memorial from the General Assembly to the honourable Continental Congress, to which I beg leave to refer you; and when I had the pleasure of seeing you here I laid before you very fully the distressed situation of the Colony, and the enormous expenses we were necessarily put to in defending such an extensive line of sea-coast, which I thought you very well convinced it was impossible for the Colony to support.

I prevailed upon Colonel Knox, who passed through this town on his way to Norwich, to take a view of Newport, and to direct such works to be thrown up as he should think necessary for the defence of the place. He is clearly of opinion that the town of Newport may be secured, and hath left some directions, which I have ordered to be carried into execution. They have begun the works, and I believe will this day complete a battery which commands the north entrance of the harbour. To-morrow they begin the fortifications upon Fort-Island. And if it be in our power to complete the works, I have no doubt it will put a total end to toryism in this Colony. As Colonel Knox's stay was very short, his plans are not particular nor exact. If it were possible for your Excellency to spare from your Army some person acquainted with fortification, to assist, were it only for a few days, you would do us a particular favour, and a most essential service to the common cause.

Colonel Babcock hath given such incontestable proofs of insanity, that his officers were obliged to put him under an arrest, and send him under a guard to Providence. The General Committee have continued the arrest, and referred the matter until next week, when the Assembly meets, who will most certainly dismiss him.

I beg the favour of your Excellency to represent the state of the Colony to Congress, and to recommend to them the taking our Brigade (which is enlisted to serve in any of the United Colonies) into Continental pay; and to establish a force here for the defence of the Colony.

I am, with great truth and esteem, sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

DR. MORGAN TO COMMITTEE OF MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Cambridge, April 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have been thrice over to Boston on purpose to have the honour of a conference with you; but not knowing of your engagements out of Boston, had not the pleasure of suiting my time to your convenience. It was not till last night that I received the list of articles found in the stores of Dr. Sylvester Gardner, which you have given orders to the Sheriff to take possession of, and secure till he should receive the order of the General Court to the contrary. As this instruction of yours does, in my opinion, interfere with General Washington's orders to me, and the resolve of the General Court on that head, I should have been happy to have had a conference with you, as it would give me the greatest concern to give you offence, by exceeding the intent of my commission, which I am confident I have not done, nor did I mean to do. Not having the satisfaction to meet you, and having business at Portsmouth that will detain me from Boston for a week to come, I think it my duty to state my claims to such articles contained in your list as I think will be of use to the General Hospital, which I shall submit with all deference to your consideration. If you approve thereof, I shall direct Mr. Cutting to proceed in getting them packed up and sent forward; and I flatter myself the good of the Army, the welfare and service of which I am sure you have at heart, will gain your acquiescence, when you maturely consider every circumstance with attention. I shall say nothing in respect to such articles as are enumerated in your list, that are already sent forward, further than that some of them are as essentially necessary to the General Hospital, and as much intended by General Washington to be appropriated to the use of the General Hospital, and fitting out all regiments in the Army with complete medicine chests, as any drugs or medicine found in the shop; and if some few others were sent, that might as well have been left behind for your use, I am sorry not to have had notice of those particulars in time to have given orders for their being left: but the attention that was necessary to take care of the extensive concerns of the sick, and of the Hospital stores at Cambridge and Roxbury, prevented my being as much at Boston as I could have wished, and of course I am obliged to leave the general management of the concerns of the Hospital in Boston to gentlemen under my direction, who, I believe, acted to the best of their judgment.

Passing these matters over, I proceed to point out the articles in your list which I have ordered to be left behind, and to mark the particulars included in it which I hope you will consent to my ordering to be sent along with the medicines and other parts of the shop furniture not included in your list. In the first place, then, I have ordered, and shall repeat the same, that all the following articles, if not sent away already, be wholly left behind, viz: the verdigris, three hogsheads of allum, four hogsheads of copperas, two hogsheads of brimstone, cork bungs, one hogshead of red wood, one hogshead of madder, read lead, white lead, logwood, a large bell-metal mortar, iron mortar, pestles, shut-corks, skillets, wire sieves, iron ring-pans, frevets for ring-pans.

The other articles coming within the General's intention as being necessary for the use of the General Hospital, and for fitting out complete Regimental chests, might all with great propriety be claimed for the use of the General Hospital, being such articles as I must purchase if I cannot get them here; but as you may wish for them for the good of the town, (which I sincerely join with you in regarding,) as well as I wish for them for the Continental Army, (which you must regard,) I propose to divide as follows, viz: to take one bag of allspice, equally necessary with any medicine for the use of the sick, and to leave the remaining ten bags; to share the bottle-corks, retorts and receivers, vials and galley-pots, bolt-heads, bottles in wicker-baskets, and to take such bottles as were designed for medicines only, leaving all others. The small mortars fit for Regimental chests, twine, and ointment, already sent, were wanted, as well as the flat-irons, and a few large mortars for the General Hospital.

In proposing this division, I endeavour to consult the interest of the town of Boston and country, as much as of the Army. If you can propose anything more equitable, or more reasonable, I shall cheerfully acquiesce; for I would on no occasion wish to execute my orders in any manner detrimental to the good of this country, the interest of which I would willingly promote to the extent of my power. On the other hand, my immediate duty and the General's orders, (which I am bound to obey,) will not permit me to deprive the Army or General Hospital of whatever is essential to the service of the former, or the good of the latter. I will take upon me to answer for it, although the orders of the General mention no more than drugs and medicines, that his intention was to include all those particulars belonging to a General Hospital, not less necessary than medicine itself, as vials, galley-pots, corks, and other shop furniture equally wanted, and that he never once allowed himself to think that the Committee of Boston would have thought of putting any narrow constructions on his orders. If we cannot agree on these constructions, and the resolves of the General Court founded on the same, I shall either wait here for the General's further orders, or submit to such constructions as the General Assembly are pleased to put upon them. In the mean time, I remain, with fervent wishes for the prosperity of the town of Boston, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN MORGAN.

To the Committee of the General Court.

SAMUEL TUFTS TO BENJAMIN GREENLEAF.

Newburyport, April 23, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I hope, sir, you will pardon the freedom of my troubling you with this letter; but being appointed, with Captain Edward Sawyer, by the honourable General Court, to the important trust of inspecting and receiving saltpetre, the reason of my now addressing you is, to request the favour of you to inform the honourable Court that we have purchased, on account of the Colony, two thousand eight hundred and forty-seven and a half pounds, and paid for the same. And as many people have called upon us to receive large quantities, and more expected, to the amount of four thousand pounds weight, we are not able to receive for want of money. We request the favour of the honourable Court to grant a sum to enable us to fulfil the trust reposed in us.

Your communicating this will much oblige (by order and in absence of Colonel Sawyer) your humble servant,

SAMUEL TUFTS.

To the Honourable Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., at present at Watertown.

P. S. If the money should be granted, request the favour of your forwarding it.

INSTRUCTIONS TO DELEGATES FOR JAMES CITY COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

The Freeholders of James City being desirous of expressing their sentiments on the important subject of Independence, a majority residing in the County assembled at Allen's Ordinary, the 24th of April, 1776, for that purpose, and agreed to the following Instructions:

"To ROBERT C. NICHOLAS and WILLIAM NORVELL, Esq's:

"GENTLEMEN: In vain do we congratulate ourselves upon the impotency of the Minister to divide us, if our union amounts to nothing more than an union in one common lethargy. War hath been brought into our houses, heightened by terrors and cruelties, which the justest cause wants even palliatives for; but faint advances towards peace, insidiously urged, have caught the ear of the credulous, and groundless hopes of accommodation deluded the timid, so that the true military system remains untouched in the most essential points. As if our inexperience, poverty in warlike stores, and the infancy of our Navy, were of trifling moment, we have ventured to neglect resources, in such difficulties, which Heaven hath placed within our attainment.

"Alliances may be formed at an easy price, capable of supplying these disadvantages, but an independent State disdains to humble herself to an equality in treaty with another who cannot call her politicks her own; or, to be explicit, she cannot enter into a negotiation with those who denominate themselves Rebels, by resistance, and confession of a dependancy.

"Reason, drawn from justice, policy, and necessity, are everywhere at hand for a radical separation from Great Britain. From justice; for the blood of those who have fallen in our cause cries aloud, "It is time to part." From necessity; because she hath, of herself, repudiated us, by a rapid succession of insult, injury, robbery, murder, and a formal declaration of war. These are but few, and some of the weakest arguments which the great volume of our oppression opens to every spirited American.

"It cannot be a violation of our faith now, to reject the terms of 1763. They are a qualified slavery at best, and were acceptable to us, not as the extent of our right, but the probable cause of peace; but since the day in which they were most humbly offered as the end of animosities, an interval hath passed marked with tyranny intolerable.

"We, therefore, whose names are hereunto subscribed, do request and instruct you, our Delegates, (provided no just and honourable terms are offered by the King,) to exert your utmost abilities, in the next Convention, towards dissolving the connection between America and Great Britain, totally, finally, and irrevocably."

GENERAL LEE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Suffolk, April 24, 1776.

SIR: As it is now beyond all doubt that it is the intention of the enemy to attack these Provinces with a very considerable force, and as the extent of the assailable parts is so very great, it must appear that the troops under my command are inadequate to the service; I must therefore entreat the Congress to detach as many battalions as possible from Pennsylvania, with a large addition of powder. I wish a good horse officer could be found and sent to me; he is much wanted. You will excuse the shortness of my letter, as I am in great haste.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. We want medicines (bark in particular) most cruelly.

THOMAS STONE TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

Philadelphia, April 24, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: Mr. Johnson wrote to you, yesterday, by post, and I wrote to Mr. Hall. Nothing is known since, in consequence of your letter and resolution to the President. We have been very much engaged, for some days, in attending to the affairs of Canada, having received late intelligence from that quarter. I presume the Canada Department, with its Conventions and despatches, will engross our attention for a few days, and then some answer will probably be given to your letter. What it will be, I cannot guess with any degree of certainty; but I am inclined to think everything will be left to the Convention. We shall attend the meeting of that Assembly.

Governour Eden's letter is published in one of the papers here, and various are the comments on it. Independent of everything else, it is very suspicious; but taking Mr. Eden's conduct, and the letters from his brother, (who must know his sentiments,) into consideration, I think greatly lessens the charge which the intercepted letter would, of itself, import.

If the Commissioners do not arrive shortly, and conduct themselves with great candour and uprightness, to effect a reconciliation, a separation will most undoubtedly take place; and then all Governours and officers must quit their posts, and new men must be placed in the saddle of power. I wish to conduct affairs so that a just and honourable reconciliation should take place, or that we should be pretty unanimous in a resolution to fight it out for Independence. The proper way to effect this is, not to move too quick.

But then we must take care to do everything which is necessary for our security and defence; not suffer ourselves to be bullied or wheedled by any deceptions, declarations, or givings out. You know my heart wishes for peace, upon terms of security and justice to America. But war, anything, is preferable to a surrender of our rights. You may rely on my friendship on all occasions.

My brothers are all steady friends to your Council; and we have not the least doubt but when your conduct comes to be tried by your country, you will receive its thanks for your great attention to the publick good. You have been steady, firm, and determined, in the present opposition to Ministerial tyranny, and I hope will persevere to the end, bearing all blasts with unshaken constancy and resolution.

Nothing new here. I shall set out on Saturday or Sunday next, to meet my wife. Be pleased to show this to your brothers in Council, to whom I present my most respectful regards.

I am, sir, your most obliged and affectionate friend,

T. STONE.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WARD.

Philadelphia, April 24, 1776.

SIR: I am commanded by Congress to acquaint you that your letter of resignation, of the 12th instant, was this day laid before them, and that they have been pleased to accept of the same. The motives which first induced the Congress to appoint you a Major-General in the Continental service, would naturally make them regret your retiring from the Army; but when it is considered that, in the course of your duty in that high rank, you have acquitted yourself with honour and reputation, I am persuaded the reluctance they feel at your retiring is much increased.

The Congress, in a letter to General Washington of the 2d instant, have declared the thanks of these United Colonies to be due to the brave officers under his command, and have requested him to communicate to them this distinguishing mark of the approbation of their country. I mention this, as the letter did not reach the General until he arrived at New-York.

With the sincerest wishes for a restoration of your health, and for your future happiness, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Ward.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL FRYE.

Philadelphia, April 24, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having received your letter of resignation, I am commanded to acquaint you that they have been pleased to accept of the same. While they lament the cause that obliges you to retire, they cannot but acknowledge it to be a sufficient one. The reputation and honour with which you have conducted yourself, on all occasions, in the Continental service, must always afford you the most pleasing satisfaction.

The Congress, in a letter to General Washington, of the 2d instant, have declared the thanks of these United Colonies to be due to the brave officers under his command, and have requested him to communicate to them this distinguishing mark of the approbation of their country. I mention this, as the letter did not reach the General until he arrived at New-York.

With the most sincere wishes for the restoration of your health, and for your future happiness, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Brigadier-General Frye.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COLONEL HAZEN.

Philadelphia, April 24, 1776.

SIR: It affords me great pleasure to have it in charge from Congress to convey to you their approbation of your letter to General Schuyler, as well as your attention to the publick good. Though it appears that some of the Continental troops have behaved in an imprudent manner towards the Canadians, yet I trust the evil is not incurable. It is only by cultivating a friendly intercourse with them, and restraining, by exemplary punishment, the irregularities of the soldiery, that their affections can ever be regained. To accomplish this most important purpose, the Congress have enjoined the commanding officer in Canada to be very attentive to military discipline, and to punish, severely, every violation thereof. To this must be added all the arts of insinuation and address, which, I make no doubt, you in particular, and the rest of the officers, will exert to the utmost of your abilities.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Colonel Hazen, Montreal.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—LETTER VIII.

The all-wise Creator having enabled every man to judge, in some degree, what is good for himself, the study of Government is a duty of the highest concern to all the members of a free State. But men, in general, may be said to feel better than they can see; and therefore seldom take the trouble to employ their thoughts on publick affairs while they are tolerably administered; nor is it till oppression becomes flagrant, and even palpable to the sight, that a People are universally roused into a serious attention to abuses in Government.

Numerous are the evils which spring from distractions and convulsions in a State; but they are often productive of one advantage, which outweighs them all. The civil Constitutions of countries, although long neglected through the indolence of the people, and tottering on the verge of dissolution, have nevertheless been thus purged of their corruptions, brought back to their first principles, and made to flourish, with renewed vigour, through many succeeding ages. But as this can only be the work of heroism, conducted by wisdom, virtue, and prudence, every writer who, upon such great and trying occasions, seeks to exaggerate or conceal facts, to state but one side of a question, to warp the judgment by partial representations, to give railing for reason, invectives for arguments, and to urge a people into hasty resolutions, by addressing the inflamed passions rather than the sober reason—every such writer, I say, insults his country in distress, and is a fellow-worker with its enemies, to hasten its ruin.

Had the author of Common Sense considered this, or were he possessed of the least reverence for the judgment or feelings of a great and enlightened people, whom he has thought himself fit to address, his performance would have been of a different nature. It would at least have worn the semblance of argument, and contained something which had a chance to meet the reason of wise men, and to stand the test of their candid examination. He would have listened patiently to their remarks upon his production, and would have coolly replied to their objections. He would not have dared to offer such an indignity to the publick, as to throw out impotent threats, instead of answers, against the meanest of his fellow-citizens, (if fellow-citizens he has in this place,) merely for endeavouring, in a country yet free, to detect his misrepresentations, to supply his defect of materials, and thereby enable a people to judge fairly of their own weighty concerns.

The contest in which America is engaged, was not lightly undertaken. The sword was drawn in defence of our laws and liberties. Till these are rendered safe, let it not be returned to the scabbard; but, still, let not the scabbard be thrown away. If our just rights can be best secured by reconciliation with our own flesh and blood—with a yet powerful nation, whose religion, laws, and manners, in our former happy days, we gloried to call our own—God forbid that we should shut the door against it, by any hasty measure among ourselves. This happy period of our miseries is still hoped for and devoutly wished, not only by multitudes of the zealous friends of America, through all the Colonies, but by whole Colonies, in their publick capacity, regardless of anything that has yet been offered to the contrary. While this continues to be the case, he who seeks to disturb the union which we nobly supported on our former ground, is the worst foe to this country. If the British Administration has a tool here, labouring to forward their ruinous purposes by divisions and distractions, “thou art the man;” even thou, the author of Common Sense, who hast started thine ignis-fatuus, to draw the unwary into untried regions, full of tremendous precipices and quagmires, treacherous to the foot, whither the wise and considerate think it not safe to follow. Couldst thou succeed in this, thou dost effectually confirm all the slanders of our Ministerial foes against us; and instead of America, strong in domestick union, and supported by a respectable part of Britain, thou wilt give us Britain united, and America rent by divisions, amidst the mighty contest. Thou sayest that now is the exact time for adopting thy plan, and holdest up ruin as the sure consequence of the least delay. Thou saidst the same and didst threaten the same, near three months ago, if we hesitated a moment to follow thy advice. Possibly, any time may be thy now, especially if thou shouldst have nothing to lose, and, peradventure, mayest hope to gain something by the change. But when the Almighty shall be pleased to say now, thy interpretations will be unnecessary. He will send conviction along with it, in circumstances so clear and unambiguous, that they who run may read them.

The publick will excuse the occasional notice I am forced to take of the answers hitherto given to my letters. Were I disposed to deviate from my plan, or, by immediate retaliation, to draw the attention of the reader to the “political characters, connexions, and dependencies” of my antagonists, (which the author of Common Sense, in his new character of the Forester, allows to be very essential in such a controversy,) I believe it would add little to the credit of their works; especially if, upon inquiry, it should be found that they have neither “character nor connexions” in this place, and that they are the avowed instruments and dependants of some, who, having no concern in our domestick affairs, are nevertheless constantly intermeddling with them, to the great disturbance of the Province, and injury of the publick cause.

The popular leaders who overturned the Monarchy in the last age, were not themselves friends to Republicks. They only made use of the name to procure the favour of the people; and whenever, by such means, they had mounted to the proper height, each of them, in his turn, began to kick the people from him as a ladder then useless.

Cromwell exercised the power of a King, and of the most absolute King, under the specious name of a Protector. The instrument of Republican Government, which he had at first extolled as the most perfect work of human invention, he began (as soon as he thought his authority sufficiently established) to represent as “a rotten plank, upon which no man could trust himself without sinking.” He had his eyes fixed upon the Crown; but when he procured an offer of it, from a packed Parliament, his courage failed him. He had outwitted himself by his own hypocrisy, and, in his way to power, had thrown such an odium upon the name of the King, that his own family, apprehensive he would be murdered the moment the diadem should touch his brow, persuaded him to decline that honour.

The great Sydney never meant more, by his celebrated work, than to reform the abuses of mixed Government, and to restrain the rapid progress which the nation was making, in his time, towards absolute Monarchy. And he was as much a foe to Cromwell as to Charles the First, considering both as governing above the laws. But he did not write against Kings generally, more than other rulers who might abuse their power.

“Nothing,” says he, “is further from my intention than to speak irreverently of Kings;” and he explains what Kings he means, viz: those limited by law in mixed Governments. He has written a whole section to show that the best Governments in the world have been composed, as the English is, of Monarchy, Aristocracy, and Democracy. He says God ordained a mixed Government, answering to this in all its parts, and consisting of a single Judge, or chief Captain, (we contend not for names,) a Council of seventy chosen men, or Sanhedrim, and the General Assemblies of the People. Is not this our own form complete?

When he speaks of popular Governments, he uses the utmost precision. “To avoid unnecessary disputes,” says he, “I give the name of popular Governments to those of Rome, Athens, Sparta, and the like; but improperly, unless the same may also be given to many that are usually called Monarchies, since there is nothing of violence in either. As to popular Governments, in the strict sense, (that is, pure Democracy,) where the People in themselves, and by themselves, perform all that belongs to Government, I know of no such thing; and if it be in the world, I have nothing to say for it."

And more explicitly still, he says: "Being no way concerned in the defence of Democracy, I may leave our Knight, (Filmer), like Don Quixotte, fighting against the phantasm of his own brain, and to say what he pleases against such Governments as never were, unless in such a place as San Marino, near Senegaglia, in Italy, where a hundred men govern a barbarous rock, that no man invades. As for Democracy, he may say what he pleases of it; and I believe it can suit only with the convenience of a small town, accompanied with such circumstances as are seldom to be found."

If Sydney understood anything of the matter, we see that every Colony in America is already too unwieldy for such a Government, and therefore it cannot be a model for an immense Continent. In a word, although this great man lived before the Revolution, he laid its foundation, died a martyr to its principles, and, by one of the first acts of Parliament made under it, his attainder was repealed, and a solemn national sanction given to his writings.

The testimony of another professed Whig, nay, an Independent Whig, (the famous Gordon, in his Discourses upon Tacitus), shall come next: "Monarchy, according to Plato, is the best Government, or the worst; to which opinion (says he) I subscribe, as I do to that of Philip de Commines, that England is the place in the world where the publick is most equally administered, and where the people suffer the least violence. We are blessed with a form of Government which Tacitus mentions as the most perfect, and thinks the hardest to be framed—that happy balance and mixture of interests that secures every interest."

Polybius, as he is quoted by Montague, on the Rise and Fall of Republicks, agrees with Plato: "The best form of Government (says he) is that which is composed of a due admixture of Monarchy, Aristocracy, and Democracy."

Of all legislators, he prefers Lycurgus, whom he looks upon rather as divinely inspired than as a man. To perpetuate the Spartan Government, he united the peculiar excellencies of the best forms into one, that neither of the three parts, by swelling beyond its just bounds, might ever be able to deviate into its original inborn defects.

Montague adds: "I cannot help observing, on this occasion, that our own Constitution, as settled at the Revolution, so nearly coincides with Lycurgus's general plan, that it seems, at first sight, to be formed by that very model."

And, indeed, in the Constitution of mixed Governments, there is something more substantial than an attachment to the mystical number, three, in this triple union of powers. All power lodged, uncontrolled, in one or many, has been shown to be full of danger. Lodged in two distinct bodies, they may chance to disagree long; but the addition of a third turns the scale; and further additions would only be clogs.

I have not lost sight of Montesquieu, whose sentiments, as applicable to the English Constitution, in practice as well as theory, shall be briefly introduced in my next, to close this part of my work; and then let the author of Common Sense combat the arguments of these great men as well as he can; for he has yet said nothing that is in any way applicable to them, and must look for better arguments than those drawn from the nature of the English Constitution, if he expects to serve his cause. For my part, I still stand upon my first ground, and have no sentiment which I wish to hide on this occasion. When it shall clearly appear that we can be no longer free, nor secure in our rights and property, in connection with Britain, or that we can be more secure in any other connection, (and the time which will enable us to judge of this cannot be very remote,) the author of these letters shall not then lisp a word against whatever measures the sense of the majority of this country, fairly taken, shall adopt for the common good; and will be ready to give his best assistance for carrying them into execution. But he must ever bear his testimony against being surprised into publick decisions by misrepresentations, ungrounded suggestions, and delusive arguments, too evidently proceeding from prejudice or predetermination of a question, in which the happiness of a great Continent is involved.

CATO.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-JERSEY COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 24, 1776.

SIR: The readiness shown by the Committee of Safety for the Province of New-Jersey to succour this place with their Militia, on a late occasion, when they were at my request called upon by Brigadier-General the Earl of Stirling, and the alacrity with which I am informed the Militia then stepped forward in defence of their country, are sufficient proofs of the important service the Province of New-Jersey is capable of rendering in support of the great cause of American liberty, especially if the Militia of that Province be put under such regulations as will enable them to give their aid at the very time it may be wanted, and without the least delay possible. What renders such a regulation the more necessary is, that in the present situation of affairs, it is more than probable that the approach of the enemy will be sudden, and without our having long notice of their being on the coast.

Late experience has taught us that, under the present regulation, it will take at least a fortnight (after the necessity of the requisition is seen) to assemble and embody any considerable detachment of the Militia; wherefore it seems absolutely necessary that there be a resolution of your Congress, or Committee of Safety, for allotting a particular number of your Militia to march on the first notice of the approach of the enemy. The detachment from each regiment should be fixed upon, who should march to certain places of rendezvous on the first alarm, by regulated signals. A regulation of such signals was lately made by Lord Stirling for the Highlands, Neversink, and Staten-Island, a copy of which, with some alteration, I now send you, and which I think are very proper for the purpose; the two last of which should be repeated at a number of eminences in your Province. And if, on the signal of the appearance of a large fleet, the detachments of your Militia were ordered to rendezvous at Brunswick, Amboy, Woodbridge, Rahway, Elizabethtown, Newark, and Bergen, they might be ready in a day or two to march to such place, either in your Province or in this, as would be found to stand most in need of their assistance. And in order to avoid the inconvenience which may arise from the absence of your Provincial Generals from that part of the country where the troops may assemble, it will be necessary that the Colonels and commanding officers of every corps or detachment be directed strictly to obey the orders they may receive from the Continental General to whom that department may be allotted.

With respect, I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Samuel Tucker, Esq., President of the Congress of New-Jersey, or the Chairman of the Committee of Safety of that Province.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: It being necessary that I should know the number of troops to compose the Army here, I must request the favour of your honourable body to inform me how many regiments are raising in this Province for the Continental service, by order of Congress, and what their state is as to men and arms. From the accounts I have had, I have reason to fear there is a great deficiency in the latter, which, at a crisis when nothing else seems left to decide the contest we are engaged in, is truly alarming, and calls aloud for their utmost exertions to procure them. The pleasing and ready assurances I have received from you to co-operate with me in every measure advancive of the common cause, leave me no room to doubt but proper steps will be pursued for obtaining them, and lead me to ask what expectations and source you have for getting a supply.

If there have been any officers commissioned by you, I shall be obliged by having a list of their appointments.

I have been informed that there is a number of arms at Kingston, that were taken from the forces in Dutchess County; if so, are they not at your disposal, and can they be had? I am, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To William Paulding, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety of New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, April 24, 1776.

SIR: I have this day granted a warrant unto Captain Jacobus Wynkoop for two hundred and seventy-six and two-thirds dollars, being for a month's advance to him, his officers and men, who are to serve on the lakes at the rates following:

Captain, at - - - -	32 dollars, - -	$32
Three Mates, at - - - -	15 dollars, - -	45
One Boatswain, at - - - -	15 dollars, - -	15
Two Boatswain's Mates, at	9½ dollars, - -	18½
Twenty Seamen, at - - - -	8 dollars, - -	160
One Seaman, at - - - -	6 dollars, - -	6

$276½

Which you will please to take notice of in adjusting the accounts of this Captain and his crew.

Brigadier-General Thompson, with four battalions and one company, sailed from hence last Sunday. I hope they will have reached Albany long before this, and I doubt not your forwarding them on with all possible expedition.

We have accounts of the British troops, under General Howe, being arrived at Halifax. A part of them, if not the whole, will probably attempt the relief of Quebeck, as soon as the navigation up the St. Lawrence is practicable.

I am, with great esteem, dear sir, your most assured, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

HENRY WISNER, JUN., TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Wallkill, April 24, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of a resolve of Congress for a number of powder-mills to be built in this Province, Major Moses Phillips and myself applied to the County Committee for a recommendation, which we obtained, and herewith send you, hoping, as we have made great improvements in the more expeditiously manufacturing gunpowder, you will indulge us with the benefit of said resolve. I should have been down to make a contract, but my father being sick, I could not leave the powder-mill without great inconvenience, and hope this application will answer till the first Tuesday in May, at which time I expect to attend Congress, and then will make such contract as the Congress, or Committee, shall reasonably require. If it is necessary for me to come down before the first of May, should take it as a favour to be informed by the bearer. We have got timber and framed a powder-mill, which will be constructed in such a manner as will make much faster than the one belonging to my father and self, in which we make one thousand pounds per week. The weather being very changeable, we are much troubled to get it dry; but have above three tons made, which we shall send to Fort Constitution as soon as dry.

Your answer relative to the powder-mill will oblige, sir, your humble servant,

HENRY WISNER, JUN.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety of the Colony of New-York.

N. B. Have sent a small horn of our powder, which I hope will meet with approbation.

CORNELIUS D. WYNKOOP TO DIRK WYNKOOP.

Kingston, April 24, 1776.

SIR: As a Surgeon and Mate is allowed to every regiment in the United service, I have been applied to by Mr. George Graham, from the Wallkill, to act in the capacity of Surgeon's Mate of my Regiment. He is a young man, who, I am told, is capable for that purpose, and as appears by the within certificate of two reputable persons, he is also accounted very skilful. If anything should be wanting from my recommendation, please to apply to Mr. Jones, who, I believe, at present is in New-York, who can give you a satisfactory account thereof; and if your honourable Board will commission him as a Surgeon's Mate, I could wish it was done by the first opportunity, as he would make the necessary preparations.

Should you commission him, please to send it to him, directed to the Wallkill, as soon as possible. If it is in your power to let me know where my destination should be, I should take it as a favour to acquaint me thereof, and what time.

I am your friend to serve, CORNELIUS D. WYNKOOP.

To Dirk Wynkoop, Esquire, Member of the Provincial Congress.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE-ISLAND) TOWN-MEETING.

At a Town-Meeting, of the Town of Providence, held on the third Wednesday of April, Anno Domini 1776:

The Honourable Nicholas Cooke, Esq., Moderator.

Instructions to the Deputies of the Town of PROVIDENCE:

GENTLEMEN: At a time when the very being of American liberty is at stake, through the machinations of our most unnatural and implacable enemies, by whom every effort is made to distress us, and to force to compliance with the most arbitrary, oppressive, and tyrannical measures, the virtuous inhabitants of the Thirteen United Colonies; and who have, by their most cruel edicts, absolutely prohibited that mutual and friendly intercourse with Britain and other foreign countries, which heretofore had amply supplied, to their great advantage and emolument, such necessary articles as this happy country, in its infant state, could not so readily afford; it becomes the wisdom, and is the highest policy of the said Colonies, to promote, by every measure, arts and manufactures, as well as arms, being equally and alike necessary to our comfort, support, and defence.

In consideration whereof, (as we suppose,) the honourable Continental Congress have afforded to several of the Southern Colonies such protection as the necessity of the case required, by passing the following resolution, January 30, 1776: "That no apprentice whatsoever be inlisted within the Colonies of New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the Lower Counties on Delaware, and Maryland, as a soldier in the Army and Navy of the United Colonies, without the consent of his master or mistress first obtained in writing; and that all apprentices now inlisted as soldiers in said Army and Navy, without such consent, be immediately discharged from the service, on the application of his master or mistress, upon payment of all just and reasonable charges of their inlistment;" and having the fullest confidence in their justice and equal regards to each of the United Colonies, and knowing, from the most obvious reasons, (arising from the peculiar situation of this small frontier Colony,) that the present mode of raising recruits for the Army gives the most fatal discouragements to arts and manufactures therein:

We, the Freemen of the Town of Providence, in Town-meeting assembled, do recommend to you to use your endeavours that the General Assembly of this Colony, as soon as may be, apply to the honourable Continental Congress, that this Colony, and the inhabitants thereof, may have the afore-recited resolution extended to them in the same manner as to the Colonies therein particularly mentioned.

And we further recommend, that you endeavour to procure an act of the General Assembly of this Colony, in substance nearly the same with the said recited resolve, and which shall operate as to any standing troops to be hereafter raised within and for the immediate defence of this Colony.

Gentlemen, it is not from the least doubt of your cheerful readiness to urge and support every measure calculated to promote, in subservience to the publick good, the prosperity of this Colony; nor that we have the most distant wish to preclude the right of private judgment, that we thus publicly and unitedly recommend the foregoing to your care; but from the purest motives of regard to the welfare of our country.

Voted, That the foregoing be Instructions for the Deputies of this Town.

Witness: THEODORE FOSTER, Town-Clerk.

COLONEL KNOX TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-London, April 24, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of your Excellency's directions, I am employed in looking at and getting the necessary information respecting this harbour, in which I shall spare no pains. I mentioned to your Excellency Newport harbour, which, in conjunction with this, will, when fortified, afford a safe retreat to the American Navy, or their prizes, in any wind that blows. They are equally convenient for ships coming from sea; and if the wind is not fair to go into one harbour, they may go into the other.

The artillery and stores are all embarked, together with the remaining company of my regiment, and have been waiting for a fair wind two days.

Admiral Hopkins is still in this harbour, and, I believe, will be obliged to continue here some time. He has this day received intelligence that four ships and two brigs are off Montauk Point and Block-Island, stationed in such a manner that but one appears at a time, and each able to come up to the assistance of the others. The Captain of the Cerberus was on Block-Island yesterday, and told a man there that he was waiting for Admiral Hopkins, and expected, in four days, to be joined by Captain Wallace and his squadron.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

HENRY KNOX,

Colonel Regiment of Artillery.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I am in hopes to be able to set out for New-York on the 28th instant.

COSMOPOLITAN, NO. IX.

To the Inhabitants of the AMERICAN Colonies:

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: Had I not been interrupted by the misfortune of the press, I should have given the hero of my paper no rest until I had completed his character as delineated in his letters. As I left him somewhat abruptly in my last, I must intrude so far on the reader's patience, as once more to bring him upon the stage, promising to keep him there only until my next, with which I shall conclude.

Resolved as he was, to plague his country with every species of oppression, he was exceedingly fertile in projecting the means. Incessant and wily, but baffled and embarrassed were his attempts in their execution. No measures, however base, however cruel, however horrid and unheard of, startled him in his headlong career. Despairing of Grand Juries indicting whole towns, and in effect the whole Province, as an unlawful, tumultuous, and riotous assembly, for refusing to transgress the first command of Heaven, the great law of self-preservation, Caligula like, he was determined to sever its head from all its members with one stroke. Union, a mutual intercourse and interest being inimical to tyranny, and divisions, ignorance, and disconnected exertions, the very companions of her bosom; hence, both the policy, and his plan of separating Boston, that first devoted capital, the head and heart of the community, from the rest of the Province; and to treat her meetings as properly a mob, and an outrage upon Government—a mob liable to have the leaden messengers of death hurled among them, or the bayonet lifted to their throats by a licentious soldiery, when innocently assembled for the discharge of some social duty.

What shall I say of his humanity, his immaculate tenderness, when he demanded of . . . . . and . . . . . whether they would order the troops to fire upon mobs, if he should call upon them? What of his principles of friendship when he upbraids his inmates, who were disposed to go the greatest lengths, the one, with want of firmness, for excusing himself from the monstrous carnage, for fear of consequences; and the other, with stupidity, for qualifying his rancorous malice, by an immaterial distinction?

What shall I say of his tender-hearted pity, at a time when affliction and grief mantled on every face; when the sorrows of our country were seen in blood, flowing from the veins of our slaughtered citizens; when the pavements in the street blushed with a crimson hue, and upbraided the more unfeeling, the flinty heart, of a cruel, inactive magistrate; when, to his own townsmen pleading in the language of distress, clad in the robes of affliction from wounds of his own procuring, he refused to remove the cause of their wo, and to dry up the fountain of their tears, by suppressing the terror of arms! When the temples of God seemed to mourn, and the very dwellings of the city appeared to languish, with what seeming delight does he review the tragick scene, and transmit, in delusive colours, his own merits in that bloody transaction, that most execrable proceeding, to his approving master? A scene sufficient to have caused the lawless sword to drop from every humane hand, swells up his lungs to a higher tone, for more troops, more havock, more bloodshed.

The leaders and the led, are likewise the objects of his malignity, but especially the former; rightly imagining that he could never entirely compass his ruinous designs so long as they continued clasped to the neck of their country, so long as they remained on their post, as watchmen, vigilantly opposing his parricidial attempts. From their blood he expected success. On them he poured forth all that rancour and splenetick fury that a bold and manly opposition had enkindled in his ambitious breast. Hence his increasing clamours for laws that would enable him to seize, expose, and extinguish those guides of publick councils, those lamps of intelligence, which, amidst the threatening convulsions, have continued to burn unimpaired on the altar of liberty. Hence his importunate demands for British laws to make it treason for any person to deny, by word or writing, the all-binding authority of Parliament; and if the Juries refused to convict on such statutes, to extend the Act of Henry VIII. for their trial in Great Britain; that is, to have them pinioned, dragged from their friends, transported like convicts, tried without evidence, condemned undefended, without law, and executed without mercy. And also to have persons taken, carried to England, and punished at the Execution-Block, possibly without even the sham formality of a mock-trial. Did the head of man ever project a scheme more black, his heart assent to measures more horrid against America, than the above, conceived and hatched by one of her sons?

It is difficult to conceive of a greater political curse, than a magistrate armed with full authority to obstruct, unchecked, the whole proceedings of the people. This has been our state ever since the independency of the Governour. From that fatal period, under his guidance, the community has been, post haste, on the high-road to destruction. The most audaciously abandoned, before him, never dared so far to shake the pillars of the State, and totally to demolish the power of the people. But in the bosom of his domination, as in a grave, was buried every principle of freedom, and in his letters, we may literally read the dismal ruins of a free country. By what appellation, by what name, shall I call, shall I describe the man who, for a mercenary consideration, sold the authority of a whole Province, attacked the rights of a whole Continent, bartered away the Constitution of a free Government, and desperately aimed at enslaving his own countrymen, in whose souls the love of liberty is so deep rooted as not to be extinguishable but with life itself.

Like the horse-leech, ever craving, not satisfied with the reception of a bribe himself, he labours to contaminate all with whom he is concerned with the same pollution. Lest the streams of impartial justice should continue to flow, even according to new-fangled laws, he was determined to defile the fountain by the same royal influence, and to create a dependance that would entail the corruption. Five hundred sterling a year, says he, for the Chief Justice, and three hundred for the Puny Judges, are the least sums proper for them to receive from the Crown to induce them to continue in their offices, and subserve Governmental purposes. This being established, it would be of no avail to impeach for high crimes and misdemeanours, not even by the grand inquest for the Province.

The extension of the boundaries of Canada, the arming Roman Catholics, and calling the tawny Savage from the wilderness, to scalp, murder, and desolate the English Colonies, have been justly complained of as unconstitutional, barbarous, and disgraceful. But even this is, at least in part, of an American origin; the cession of Canada to the English, says our letter-writer, has had worse effects than if it had remained in the hands of the French and Indians; plainly intimating that it ought to be held as a menacing rod over our backs, to scourge for disobedience, or awe to submissions.

Traversing land and sea, ruin and destruction mark his route on both elements. He was largely concerned in restraining, hampering, and finally banishing commerce, navigation, and trade, from the coast of America. He is express, for the restraining trade in all the Colonies who will not acknowledge themselves under the uncontrollable dominion of a third State, of confining it to Great Britain, and of excluding them from the bounty of Heaven, common to all mortals—catching the fishes of the sea for their support and sustenance.

In short, the demolition of the Charter, the abolishing of Juries, which were attempted by a late importation of infamous laws, were planned, recommended, and procured by this fatal monster to his country. It is evident from his own words: "Something (says he) immediately must be done; no time is to be lost; something, I repeat it, must be done this session, to show the sense Parliament has of our past conduct." To Secretary Pownall, by whom he was informed that something very decisive might be done in Parliament, unless a favourable issue in the case of Preston and the soldiers should cause an alteration of proposed measures, he writes, "I am now anxious lest Parliament should pass over all our affronts, contempts, and insults, without notice. This would be extremely dangerous. In some way or other, the power of Parliament must be evinced. You know I have been begging, begging for measures to support the supremacy of Parliament. It will be best that I should not be suspected by the people of having suggested any alterations in our Constitution." These, and similar expressions, are not unfrequent in his letters. His incessant prayers to a Minister of State for measures against the virtuous, patriotick Americans, reminds me of a stale story that I once heard, with which I shall conclude, respecting a very troublesome woman, who made application to an unjust judge that neither feared God nor regarded man, to avenge her of her adversaries, who, by the force of importunity and pressing solicitations, wearied him into compliance.

You are hereby authorized and appointed to proceed to Boston, and there make application to the Honourable General Ward for liberty to bring back the cannon, viz: two thirty-two-pounders, and two six-pounders, double fortified, lent the Continental Army in July last, as we conceive they are not wanted there now, and as our lines at Portsmouth have not guns any ways sufficient for the defence thereof; and to see if any balls can be procured for the cannon there. Also, to inquire of General Ward, or the Commissary-General, whether there is any flour in store belonging to the Continent, to be sold, and at what price.

And also, to endeavour to procure some skilful Engineer, to come to Portsmouth, as soon as may be, to lay out the lines of some fortifications there as soon as possible; and on your return to notify Colonel Weare of the time the Engineer will be at Portsmouth; and make return of your doings to the Committee.

By order of the Committee.

In Committee of Safety, Portsmouth, }
April 11, 1776. }

SIR: The bearer, Captain Salter, is instructed to apply to you for the release of cannon lent by this Colony to the Continental Army. And as our situation is such as makes it necessary to have a considerable number of cannon mounted at several places, to make any considerable opposition against an enemy attempting to destroy our capital, and near a hundred heavy pieces of cannon were carried by the King's ships from our Castle to Boston, many of which it is probable are left there; and if it is consistent with your instructions from the Continental Congress to lend as many as you can conveniently spare, to be accounted for by the Colony, it will at this time be esteemed a great favour done us.

By order of the Committee:

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

MESHECH WEARE, Chairman.

To the Honourable Artemas Ward, Esq.

LORD GEORGE GERMAINE TO GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, April 25, 1776.

SIR: Captain Emmerick, who will have the honour to deliver this letter to you, served several years in the corps of Hanoverian Rangers, and was employed last war in many situations in which confidence and ability were requisite, and acquitted himself with great credit and honour.

He is now under the protection of Government here, and being desirous of employment in North-America I am commanded to recommend him to your attention; and as he certainly may be very useful in many situations, I am persuaded you will soon discover his merit, and employ him to his own and the publick advantage.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE GERMAINE.

WILLIAM HARRISON TO THOMAS SMYTH.

Head-Quarters, Blunt's Warehouse, }
April 25, 1776. }

SIR: Mr. Wright and myself, with fifty-two men, including drummer and fifer, reached this place yesterday. We came down by water from Newtown, as far as the upper part of the Island, to avoid the expense of a march.

We have found here good store of provisions, but no person to give out fit proportions of it, and we are at a loss how to do it ourselves, as it is not possible to get either wet or dry measures. There are certain necessary articles for the soldiers wanting, which are not to be had here, a list of which Mr. Wright has. Captain Veazey desired me to write you that he is distressed for money. He was so much wanting it when I left town that he could not supply me with what was absolutely necessary to defray the expenses of the corps. He desired me to let you know likewise that he had five hundred pounds, Province money, in hand, sent him by his father, which he would be glad to apply by order of the Council.

I shall be much obliged to you to furnish Mr. Wright with the resolves of the last Convention. We could not obtain a copy of them in Newtown, and it is very fit we should have them.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM HARRISON.

To the Honourable Thomas Smyth, Esq.

P. S. We find many of the gun-locks, which we have, defective, but hope we shall be able to get them put in good order in the neighbourhood, as we learn there is a person who understands such business.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[No. 129.]

In Council of Safety, Annapolis, }
April 25, 1776. }

SIR: We send you under guard the person and papers of Alexander Ross. We have examined him, and send also a copy of his examination. Among his papers we find several that relate to a scheme of carrying on the lumber trade from West-Florida to the Islands in the West-Indies, and two letters of recommendation, from Governour Eden and Lord Dunmore, to the Governour of that Department. These papers we consider as the most material of any we could find, and have put them up in a separate bundle.

The persons he is supposed to be a confederate with, you have already in your custody, we mean Smith and Connolly, and we presume also their papers.

We are, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

CHARLES CARROLL.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress, Philadelphia.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

Annapolis, April 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We send the person of Alexander Ross, together with his papers, and a copy of his examination, under guard, to the honourable Congress. Have written to the President to that purpose. We find several papers that relate to a scheme of trade in West-Florida, and two letters of recommendation, one from Governour Eden and the other from Lord Dunmore. These, we think, are material; his other papers, which we likewise send, we have searched, and find nothing of consequence.

Since our last, nothing new has occurred, except the examination of Mr. Purviance before our Board. He at first denied the anonymous letter; afterwards, on recollection, acknowledged it contained some of his sentiments, but could not remember when he wrote them. He prevaricated most abominably.

We hope the time of calling the Convention will meet with your approbation. We apprehended bad consequences from delay. No messenger as yet returned from Philadelphia. You may judge that we wish to hear some favourable news from you. Be it as it may, we have the satisfaction of thinking that we have done our duty by endeavouring to keep peace in the Province. We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland, in Congress.

P. S. We send you a copy of General Lee's letter to Samuel Purviance.

In Council of Safety, Annapolis, April 24, 1776.

Examination of Mr. SAMUEL PURVIANCE, Jun., Chairman of the Committee of Observation for BALTIMORE County.

1. Question. You have a letter from General Lee, addressed to you as Chairman of the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County. Will you produce it?

Answer. It is a doubt with me whether I can produce it in publick with honour. I will show it to you in private.

2. Question. Do you refuse to produce that letter to us in Council?

Answer. If I do, I expect a copy will not be taken.

3. Question. Will you produce it to the Council; yea or nay?

Answer. Delivers it. The letter was read.

4. Question. Who made up the packet to the Congress from your Committee?

Answer. Mr. Lux, I believe; I was not present when it was done.

5. Question. What letters were in it?

Answer. I do not know—there were very few.

6. Question. Was there any other packet sent to Congress?

Answer. Not that I know of.

7. Question. Do you know anything of an anonymous letter enclosed to Mr. Hancock in the packet?

Answer. No.

8. Question. Do you know of no anonymous letter or paper sent to Philadelphia?

Answer. I know of none.

9. Question. You know of no anonymous letter to the following purport? (reading a recital of it.)

Answer. No.

10. Question. Nothing in your hand-writing to that purport?

Answer. I wrote a private letter, in my own name, and signed therewith, to Mr. Hancock, as a private person, and which I desired he might not show to Congress. It was principally relative to the letter I received from General Lee. I mentioned likewise to him, that three gentlemen of our Committee were to wait on the Council the next day with the despatches received from Virginia; that I would gladly go as one, but that I had reason to believe I did not stand in a favourable light with the Council, who, I understood, had taken great offence at a letter or order I had written to Captain Nicholson, at the time the Otter was in our river. I likewise told him my opinion, that I did not expect, or had doubts whether the Council would take so spirited a step as to seize the Governour; and the event proves that I was not mistaken. I believe I likewise mentioned to him the design of sending the tender to Annapolis, to prevent the Governour's escape, should he attempt it; a measure which appeared to me strictly proper, both from the tenour of the Secretary of State's letters, and General Lee's letter to me.

11. Question. You know of nothing sent from you respecting yourself as an object against whom the Council of Safety had levelled their power?

Answer. I had good reason to know I was disliked by the Council, but never had any apprehensions of their power against me.

12. Question. Have you ever represented yourself as thought by the Council of Safety a warm, hot-headed man; and that your power must be pulled down, or you would throw things into confusion?

Answer. I was well-informed I was considered in that light by your Council; and I have mentioned it in conversation to many of my friends.

13. Same question.

Makes no answer.

14. Question. The question was asked again, and Mr. Purviance desired to recollect.

Answer. It is very possible I may have made such representations in letters written to some of my friends, as well as in private conversation.

15. Question. Were they enclosed in the packet to Congress?

Answer. I never wrote to the Congress upon any such subject.

16. Question. How long has it been since you wrote such letters?

Answer. I cannot say. I never wrote anything with a view to prejudice the Council of Safety.

17. Question. Were they written within a week past?

Answer. I believe not.

18. Question. Do you remember that you impressed General Lee with an idea that the Council of Safety were timid and inactive?

Answer. General Lee seemed as well acquainted with the publick affairs in Maryland as I was; and it cannot be doubted that we conversed on many publick subjects. That I ever took pains to impress him with an ill opinion of the Council, I deny.

19. Question. Do you know of a single instance of inactivity in the Council of Safety, with respect to Baltimore town?

Answer. I do not know that I was called here to give any opinion of the Council of Safety, to their faces; but I know that I have heard many complaints, some of them perhaps I thought ill-founded. If I think otherwise of any other part of them, I have a right to exercise my judgement.

20. Question. Did we not give you the earliest intelligence on the late alarm?

Answer. You did everything in your power. I have passed many encomiums on you for it, in private letters to my friends.

21. Question. Did you not give instructions to Captain Samuel Smith?

Answer. Yes.

22. Question. Were they under an oath of secrecy?

Answer. They were not.

23. Question. Why was not Captain Smith to consult the Council of Safety when he came to Annapolis?

Answer. It was my intention he should.

24. Question. Were his instructions to be shown to the Council?

Answer. I did not tell him to show them, but presumed when he got to Annapolis he would be under their directions.

25. Question. Was Captain Smith to consult the commanding officer, and lay him under an oath of secrecy?

Answer. I gave him no such orders; I expected he was to take directions from the Council.

26. Question. Did you expect the Governour was going down the Bay when you sent the tender?

Answer. My expectation was that the Governour would attempt to escape, upon being informed that his letters were intercepted; otherwise I should not have sent the tender. A letter I wrote to the deputation of the Committee will explain my conduct on that head.

27. Question. Have you a copy of that letter?

Answer. I have the letter itself.

28. Question. Your instructions were that the Governour should be carried to Baltimore town. Why not delivered to the Council of Safety?

Answer. I will give you my ideas of the matter. I conceived that at the seat of Government he would have numerous friends and partisans; a clamour might be raised, and a rescue attempted. I proposed carrying him to Baltimore, and putting him on board the ship-of-war, where he would be treated like a gentleman, and there to await the directions of the Council of Safety, or Congress, whose prisoner I deemed him.

29. Question. Why were troops ordered from Baltimore, and Captain Smith not to consult the commanding officer here?

Answer. The Committee were well informed that Alexander Ross was come to Annapolis, and were afraid he would alarm the Governour, who would very probably attempt to escape; therefore troops, or armed men, were thought necessary, should Captain Smith find the Governour attempting to escape before he got to Annapolis.

30. Question. Were there any marines on board?

Answer. I believe there were either sailors or marines.

31. Question. You say the troops were sent to intercept the Governour, should he have attempted to escape?

Answer. That was my intention; and my letter to the deputation from the Baltimore Committee will explain the reason of sending the tender.

32. Question. You say you have the letter—produce it.

Answer. Delivered it. Explains the reason of his sending the boat, by referring to General Lee's letter; directed Captain Smith to apply to the gentlemen of Baltimore, who, I thought, would carry him to the Council of Safety, to consult upon the measure.

33. Question. Why was the Governour to be carried to Baltimore, if taken at Colonel Fitzhugh's? Would not the Committee of Calvert have taken care of him?

Answer. I gave no directions whatever on that subject, on condition that Captain Smith found the Governour attempting to escape before he got from Baltimore to Annapolis; and I had not the least design of anything save to prevent the Governour's escape.

34. Question. Did you not know the Council of Safety were sitting?

Answer. I expected they were.

35. Question. Was any other letter, than the above, written by you to the Baltimore deputation?

Answer. Not a scrap.

36. Question. Some gentlemen were sent to Annapolis to engage the commanding officer by oath to secrecy. Do you know anything of this?

Answer. No. I never entertained the most distant idea of that sort. The gentlemen of the Committee and myself thought the intimation in General Lee's letter improper, and were doubtful whether it was a publick or private letter.

37. Question. Do you know of any such intimation contained in an anonymous letter?

Answer. I do not. I neither wrote any such, nor ever heard of any such.

38. Question. Do you know of any letter to the commanding officer here on the subject?

Answer. No. I did not suppose the commanding officer here could execute such an order while the Council of Safety were sitting.

39. Question. Was this the reason that the picked men were sent?

Answer. No. The intention of sending them is already explained.

40. Question. What time did you receive the despatches from Virginia?

Answer. Sunday evening.

41. Question. What time did you send them to Congress?

Answer. Four o'clock Monday morning.

42. Question. Why was not the same despatch used with respect to us?

Answer. We thought it most respectful to appoint a deputation to wait on the Council, and the gentlemen could not go till the morning.

43. Question. Did you know what was contained in the packet to the Congress?

Answer. There was no packet for the Congress. There were two or three private letters; and the letter to Mr. Hancock was in General Lee's handwriting.

44. Question. In your letter to the gentlemen from Baltimore, why was Captain Smith directed to go to Colonel Fitzhugh's?

Answer. I did not order him to go there. I expected he would have orders from the Council to go there, in case the Governour had escaped before Captain Smith got to Annapolis.

45. Question. Did you give any directions to Captain Nicholson verbally, or in writing?

Answer. I had conversed with Captain Nicholson on the propriety of sending the tender; he concurred with me, and at my desire ordered the tender to be got ready.

46. Question. Did you see Captain Nicholson's instructions to his Lieutenant?

Answer. Not till after the return of the officers and tender to Baltimore.

47. Question. Do you know of any intention to seize the Governour at Colonel Fitzhugh's?

Answer. I gave no such instructions, and know nothing of any such, save what is hinted in Captain Nicholson's orders to his Lieutenant.

48. Question. If seized at Colonel Fitzhugh's, why not sent to the Committee of Calvert?

Answer. I have already informed you I gave no such orders to Captain Smith.

49. Question. The instructions are dated on the 14th, and the letter also. How account for it?

Answer. It was a mistake; they ought to have been dated on Monday, the 15th.

50. Question. By your letter to the gentlemen of Baltimore, the tender was to be under their direction; did you expect they were to mix with the Council?

Answer. My letter to the gentlemen of Baltimore will show that was not my intention. I imagined that on so important an affair they would confer with them on the subject.

51. Question. Why was Captain Smith to consult with the gentlemen of Baltimore?

Answer. I referred him to those gentlemen, expecting they would carry him to the Council, under whose direction I expected he would be after his arrival at Annapolis.

52. Question. You say you wrote to your friends that the Council behaved with spirit on the late alarm?

Answer. I am certain I did to several, and observed the happy effects of it in rousing the whole Province.

53. Question—Mr. Carroll. The instructions were got by chance to my certain knowledge.

Answer. I neither gave Captain Smith directions to show his orders, nor forbade him to do it.

54. Question. Did you enclose the packet to Philadelphia in a letter of yours?

Answer. No.

55. Question. Why was so much respect shown to the Council of Safety of Virginia, and not to the President of the Congress?

Answer. A single gentleman was very sufficient to carry a packet to the Congress, and bring back their despatches. It was thought probable the Council of Safety would choose to confer with the Members of the Baltimore Committee on so interesting a subject as that contained in the papers which they carried; and it was to them, not the Council of Virginia, the respect was intended.

56. Question. Did you not cover the letter from the Congress?

Answer. I did; and my reason was, that the packet from Congress being endorsed with Mr. Hancock's name, and the publick curiosity being at that time great to know what was in agitation, I feared the express, or some other person who might see the packet, would be tempted by curiosity to open it; therefore put it under a new cover, directed to the Council, expecting it would pass as an ordinary packet from the Committee. To obviate all suspicions of my having opened it, which I presume is implied in your question, I could have no temptation to do so base an action. The despatch from Congress to our Committee informed us they had sent orders to the Council to seize the person and papers of Governour Eden and Mr. Alexander Ross.

56. The question asked again.

Answer. Recollected he did.

Mr. Purviance acknowledges the instructions were given by himself, and not by the Committee.

In Council of Safety, Annapolis, April 24, 1776.

The Examination of Mr. WILLIAM LUX, Deputy Chairman of the Committee of Observation for BALTIMORE County.

Question. Who made up and sealed the packet that was sent to Congress?

Answer. I did.

Question. Do you know what letters were contained in that packet?

Answer. The letter of Lord George Germaine; letter, in General Lee's hand-writing, to John Hancock; and a private letter to a gentleman in Philadelphia, but does not recollect who. The letter from the Council of Safety of Virginia was enclosed in the packet to the Baltimore Committee.

Question. Was the packet to John Hancock very large?

Answer. No; small.

Question. Did you deliver it to the Messenger?

Answer. I delivered it to Mr. Purviance. The letter directed to the Council of Safety was enclosed to us; it had the seal nearly torn off in opening our letter; we desired the gentlemen appointed to wait on you, to explain the cause; we went to Mr. Purviance at one o'clock; the gentleman who was to go messenger to Philadelphia, was in bed, at Mr. Purviance's, where we left the letter, when I received the packet. I did not open General Lee's letter to Mr. Purviance.

Question. Did you know of any verbal or written instructions given to Captain Nicholson?

Answer. No. The first I heard of it was at Annapolis.

Question. Have not the powers of seizing the Governour been assumed by persons other than the Council of Safety?

Answer. Not by the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

Question. Have they not been assumed generally?

Answer. They have.

Question. Have the Committee of Baltimore any right to accuse the Council of Safety of timidity, inactivity, or neglect of duty?

Answer. No. The Committee think your conduct meritorious.

Question. Had the gentlemen of the Baltimore Committee, who were delegated to wait on us, any other commands or instructions than the delivery of the letter to the Council of Safety?

Answer. None. They thought the delegation the most respectful mode of proceeding.

Question. Why send a letter from the Committee of Safety of Virginia to us by a delegation, and not Mr. Hancock's letter?

Answer. The letter appeared to be defaced, and we sent persons on that account.

Question. How can you account for the gentlemen not showing all your instructions?

Answer. They had no instructions; none were thought of.

Examination of Major GIST.

Question. Some instructions handed to us with your endorsement. Be pleased to inform what conversation you had, and with whom.

Answer. Captain Nicholson first informed me, and he told me of Samuel Purviance's instructions, (as if from the Committee.)

Question. Did you consider the purport of the instructions?

Answer. Yes; but I did it rather precipitately; had I considered it, perhaps I should not have done so.

Question. Did you understand Captain Smith was to be under the directions of the Council of Safety?

Answer. I understood a delegation of the Committee was sent to Annapolis. The instructions of Samuel Purviance were written when I first saw him, immediately upon my signing them.

Question. What conversation passed on Sunday night?

Answer. I was shown the letters from the Secretary of State. They were very busy in making copies to send to Congress. They enjoined me to secrecy.

Question. Who were there?

Answer. Mr. Buchanan, Mr. Nicholson, &c.

Question. What time was it when you first saw Samuel Purviance's instructions drawn up?

Answer. On Monday, about dinner. I did not wish to throw any reflections upon the Council by my acquiescence. I imagined the gentlemen of the Committee would have applied to the Council of Safety for instructions. Upon reflection, I am convinced the Committee had no power to issue such orders.

Examination of Captain SMITH.

Question. Had you any particular instructions how to execute the orders from Mr. Purviance?

Answer. He had some conversation with Mr. Purviance about the orders, some time before he delivered the instructions.

Question. Did you apprehend the instructions were to be shown to the Council of Safety?

Answer. I did; but as I was not admitted in the Council, had not an opportunity of showing them. Mr. Reynolds informed me that I was to act according to the orders I had received. I was enjoined to secrecy, or would have shown my orders to the Council.

Question. Had you any verbal orders from Mr. Purviance, or from any one else?

Answer. I had not.

Question. Did you consult the deputation from Baltimore before you came to the Council?

Answer. He waited on the deputation very early in the morning; they informed him what the Council had determined; advised him not to show his instructions to the Council. Produced a representation of his conduct, and promised a copy to the Council.

Captain SMITH's Narrative.

On Monday, the 15th of April, I was on the field exercising the three companies stationed in Baltimore, when Mr. Samuel Purviance, Chairman of the Committee, came out to me, and begged I would immediately attend the Committee, that an affair of the greatest consequence demanded my attention; that there would be occasion for eight or ten of my men, under my own command, to go in Captain Nicholson's tender. He then found it necessary to inform me of the business, and enjoined the strictest secrecy. I kept the troops about a quarter of an hour longer on duty, and discharged them all, except my own company, out of which I chose ten good men and a Sergeant, and ordered them to be in readiness at half past one. I waited at Mr. Purviance's, (on the Committee, as I thought,) but found only the Chairman there. He showed me the different letters respecting the business I was to go on; and I agreed with him that too much despatch could not be made. I then went in quest of Major Gist, but could not find him.

About one o'clock, Mr. Samuel Purviance passed by the barracks; I spoke to, and told him that I was ready, and waited but for orders; he said I should have them immediately. I again went in search of the Major, and found him at dinner. I told him my men were ready. As soon as he had finished dining, he went to Mr. Purviance's, where I followed him in about ten minutes, and found him reading my instructions.

(Mr. Purviance mentioned that if the Governour was still at Annapolis, I should have nothing to do, as he supposed the Council of Safety would put him under guard before I could get down.)

I received my instructions from the Major, and with my men went immediately to the Point, where I went on board the Defence's tender, commanded by Lieutenant Nicholson. After taking proper stores from the Defence, we proceeded down, arrived, and came to anchor off the harbour of Annapolis, at about three o'clock, on Tuesday morning. At daybreak I went ashore, and delivered a letter to Messrs. John Smith, Benjamin Nicholson, and John Sterrit. They told me what had passed between them and the honourable Council. I asked them whether I might not inform the Council of my business. They said the Council had enjoined the strictest secrecy, and advised me not to mention it till I had their (the Council's) leave.

(I showed them my orders. They advised me not to show them to any person, as it was their opinion they were in some degree improper. They said they were to wait on Major Jenifer after breakfast, and would let me know when they returned how I was to act. On their return to the Coffee-House, they told me he highly approved of the tender's being sent down; and that they were to meet the Council at one o'clock, who would give me orders.)

About eleven o'clock, I observed the Governour's boat hove out, and cleaning. I thought it my duty to make it immediately known to the honourable Council, and accordingly waited on them, and was refused admittance. I with difficulty persuaded the doorkeeper to ask Mr. B. Nicholson (who was with them) to come out. After half an hour's attendance, he came. I told him what I had seen, and begged he would tell the Council that I waited their orders whether to remain with the tender, or return home. They answered by Mr. Nicholson, that they desired me to remain with the boat, and act according to the orders I had received, or words to that amount. A short time after sunset I went on board. The Midshipman who came on shore for me pointed at a schooner lying off the Governour's wharf, which he said had come out, and on seeing the tender's boat rowing towards her, put back immediately, and came to where she then lay. On my return to Annapolis next morning, (Wednesday), we knew her to be Mr. Sprigg's. About eleven she hove up, and attempted going out, but was brought to by the tender. About twelve, the Governour's boat also got under way, and the tender brought her to. I saw what was done, and thought it my duty to go on board. I searched the last-mentioned boat narrowly, and found porter and claret, which made me suspect his Excellency intended making his escape. I put a guard on board, with some of the Defence's people, and am sorry to say that two bottles of porter and some of claret were drunk by them. Mr. Sprigg came off to us, and seemed much surprised that we should dare to stop his boat; and asked what orders we had. I thought his question impertinent, and answered it as it deserved—with silence. I went ashore with him, he grumbling all the time. Secretary Smith was on the wharf. He asked Mr. Sprigg what was the matter, that by order from the Council of Safety his schooner was stopped. Mr. Smith immediately replied, that he could assure him that the Council of Safety had given no such orders. I said it was sufficient I had my orders for what was done. I then went to dinner, and there understood, by verbal orders from Mr. Duwall, that the affair was settled, and I might return home. Mr. Sprigg came in, and I promised to send his boat up to Annapolis according to his desire. I went down to the wharf with intention to go on board, where I met Lieutenant Nicholson, with a pass from the Governour for his mulatto to pass unmolested in Chesapeake-Bay. We thought proper to deliver it to some member of the honourable Council; and seeing Mr. Carroll talking with Mr. Sprigg, we went up to him, and Lieutenant Nicholson delivered it. Mr. Sprigg complained of ill treatment. Lieutenant Nicholson told him he only did what he had a right to do. He replied, he supposed that he (Lieutenant Nicholson) might think he was right. I answered, that he not only thought so, but was so. Mr. Carroll said that the Council had given no such orders. Both Lieutenant Nicholson and myself assured him that we had orders; and on being asked to show them, we did so, and promised to leave copies of them; which we did, with Mr. Duwall. About two o'clock we went on board, and returned to Baltimore town.

N. B. The paragraphs marked ( ) I recollected since I, Samuel Smith, wrote the narrative delivered to the honourable Council. I wrote it in a great hurry, or I might then have remembered many other circumstances relative to this affair.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN HANSON.

Annapolis, April 25, 1776.

SIR: We received, yesterday, your favour of the 15th instant, and have sent you, by Robert Owings, eighty-six pounds four shillings and six pence, currency, agreeable to your request. The Committee has our permission to use any part of the publick powder in their possession, whenever they think it necessary for the defence of the Province.

We are, &c.

To John Hanson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Frederick County, Middle District.

MARYLAND DELEGATES TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, April 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We this day, about twelve o'clock, received your letter of the 22d, by the return of our express. No further proceeding in Congress on Mr. Eden's affair. King came in on Sunday, about three o'clock, and is but just now discharged: we think proper to mention it, that you may not think him blameable. If Mr. Rogers is able, we wish his attendance here, that as many of us as might be, should be at the Convention. We do not think that the Province ought to be left unrepresented here.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

MATTHEW TILGHMAN,
THOMAS JOHNSON, JUN.,
T. STONE.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, April 25, 1776.

SIR: I have delivered in charge to Mr. Hanson and Mr. Cox three hundred thousand dollars, for the service of the Army in Canada, and have directed them, by order of Congress, to deliver the same to you; and am to request you will please to order it to be sent to General Schuyler, at Albany, under the care of an officer and some of the troops destined for Canada, to be delivered to General Schuyler.

Your favours of the 22d and 23d instant, I last night received by Major Palfrey, and are now under the consideration of a Committee.

I beg leave to recommend Mr. Hanson and Mr. Cox to your notice; and am, with esteem, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

The three hundred thousand dollars are packed in three boxes.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, April 25, 1776.

SIR: I have now time only to inform you that, by order of Congress, I transmit, by this opportunity, three hundred thousand dollars for the supply and pay of the Continental Army in Canada; which I hope will get safe to you.

I shall write you fully in a few days; and am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Schuyler, Albany.

The three hundred thousand dollars are packed in three boxes.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read April 29, 1776, and referred to Mr. Harrison, Mr. Rutledge, Mr. Goldsborough, Mr. Paine, Mr. Rodney.]

New-York, April 25, 1776.

SIR: I received, by last evening's post, a letter from Joshua Wentworth, Esq., of Portsmouth, who I had appointed agent for our little fleet in that Province. It is dated the 15th instant, an extract from which I have the honour of transcribing for your perusal:

"The 3d instant, Commodore Manly brought in the Brigantine Elizabeth, one of the third division which sailed from Nantasket, with a valuable cargo of English goods, and a few hogsheads of rum and sugar, owned by a Mr. Jackson, who was passenger, part freighter, and a very Tory: suppose the cargo worth twenty thousand pounds sterling.

"Those goods are the greater part owned by the late inhabitants of Boston, and by some that were inhabitants when the troops left it; the residue by this Mr. Jackson, and others of the same cast.

"The complicate state of this prize required my immediate setting off for Boston, (expecting I might find some directions for my government there;) when I waited on General Ward, who was obliging enough to give me his opinion, (but not able to direct, having received no instructions to the point,) that the vessel and cargo must be libelled, and a dividend to the captors would follow, of all such goods as might be legally claimed by the friends to America; and those that were the property of persons inimical, might be decreed forfeited.

"Upon further inquiry I was informed a resolve passed in Congress that all vessels and goods retaken previous to a condemnation by a British Court of Admiralty, were liable to a partial decree (by every Colony Judge) to the captors not more than one-third nor less than one-fourth. The present prize falls under this resolve; and any other that may be property of our internal enemies, liable to a full confiscation, may be necessary for my government; therefore I shall be much obliged by your full direction of this capture, and a copy of the Continental resolves thereon.

"This brigantine is owned by a Mr. Richard Hart, of this town, taken on her return from the West-Indies last October, and carried into Boston, not condemned. The rum on board are seventeen hogsheads, and four of sugar, not removed out of her from the time of capture; the other cargo was in general stolen, by virtue of General Howe's Proclamation, (which undoubtedly you have seen,) appointing one Crean Brush Superintendent, who, by the way, was taken in the prize, and is now confined in the Massachusetts Colony, with Mr. Jackson and sundry others, by order of the General Court, to whom General Ward delivered them. There were a sergeant and twelve privates, of the Fourth or King's own Regiment, taken prisoners on board, with the others, making sixty-three souls, among whom are four negroes, (two men and two women,) which I have confined in Jail here, concluding they may be esteemed a part of the prize.

"There appeared, from the pillage of this cargo by many of the passengers, the property was in him who could secrete the most; for when examining the chests and bedding of the prisoners, I found great quantities of goods that they had collected while on board, which were taken out of warehouses without packing, and hove promiscuously on board the vessel; even the sailors had provided for their disposal at pleasure. In fact, the destruction of property under cover of General Howe's Proclamation, is unparalleled. I thought it my duty to be critical in examining for cash, which rendered it necessary to insist on a close scrutiny, and found about one hundred pounds sterling, viz: thirty-six pounds eighteen shillings and seven pence on Mr. Jackson, and sixty-two pounds sixteen shillings on a Mr. Keighley; likewise one hundred and fifty-nine pounds one shilling and nine pence, of Mr. Jackson's, in five sets of exchange, which I now have in possession, considering that a man so inimical to his country ought to be dispossessed of any interest whereby he could be benefited: added to which, they are Navy-bills, except sixty pounds, the draft of Governour Wentworth. On this point should be obliged by your opinion and direction.

"I am now discharging the cargo, as it is in a perishing situation; and when selected, and the regular course pursued through the Admiralty, I shall advertise, agreeable to his Excellency's instructions to General Ward, who was obliging enough to give me an abstract.

"The General Court of this Province, finding a difficulty in making a code of laws for the Admiralty Court, did not complete that institution their last session, when they adjourned to June; which lapse of time will not admit my facilitating the disposal of the prizes under my care so early as I could wish for the safety of part of the interest of the Susanna's cargo, viz: the porter, which I fear may be spoiled by laying so long, (it not having equal body to that commonly imported for sale;) which induces me to desire your direction for a disposal of that article, either at private or publick sale."

That, sir, is an exact copy of part of Mr. Wentworth's letter to Mr. Moylan. I now request you will please to direct me in what manner I shall instruct the Agent respecting this complicated cargo, and whether he may be empowered to dispose of the porter, or any other articles, on board the prizes in his care, which the delay of establishing the Court of Admiralty may make liable to perish.

I have not yet heard that there has been any trial of the prizes carried into Massachusetts-Bay. This procrastination is attended with very bad consequences. Some of the vessels I had fitted out are now laid up, the crews being dissatisfied that they cannot get their prize-money. I have tired the Congress upon this subject, but the importance of it makes me again mention, that if a summary way of proceeding is not resolved on, it will be impossible to get our vessels manned.

I must also mention to you, sir, that Captain Manly and his crew are desirous to know when they may expect their part of the value of the ordnance stores taken last fall: they are anxious to know what the amount may be. As the inventory of that cargo is in the hands of Congress, I would humbly submit it to them whether a valuation thereof should not be made, and the captors' dividend be remitted them as soon as possible: it will give them spirit, and encourage them to be alert in looking out for other prizes.

Several officers belonging to the regiments raised in these middle Colonies inform me that their men (notwithstanding their agreement) begin to murmur at the distinction of pay made between them and the regiments from the eastward. I would be glad that the Congress would attend to this in time, lest it may get to such a pitch as will make it difficult to suppress. They argue, that they perform the same duty, undergo the same fatigue, and receive five dollars, when the Eastern regiments receive six and two-thirds dollars, per month. For my own part, I wish they were all upon the same footing; for if the British Army will not face this way, it will be necessary to detach a great part of our troops. In that case, I would, for many reasons, be sorry there should be any distinctions of regiments that are all in the pay of the United Colonies.

The deficiency of arms (in the New-York Regiments especially) is very great. If I am rightly informed, there are scarce as many in Colonel Ritzema's Regiment as will arm one company. Can the Congress remedy this evil? If they can, there should not a moment be lost in effecting it, as our strength at present is, in reality, on paper only. Should we think of discharging those men who are without arms, the remedy would be worse than the disease; for by vigorous exertions, I hope arms may be procured, and I well know that the raising men is exceeding difficult, especially to be engaged during the continuance of the war, which is the footing on which Colonel Ritzema's Regiment is engaged.

April 26th.—I had written thus far before I was honoured with your favour of the 23d instant. In obedience to the order therein contained, I have directed six regiments more for Canada, which will embark as soon as vessels and other necessaries, can be provided. These regiments will be commanded by General Sullivan. I shall give him instructions to join the forces in that country under General Thomas, as soon as possible.

With respect to sending more troops to that country, I am really at a loss what to advise, as it is impossible, at present, to know the designs of the enemy. Should they send the whole force under General Howe up the River St. Lawrence to relieve Quebeck and recover Canada, the troops gone, and now going, will be insufficient to stop their progress; and should they think proper to send that, or an equal force, this way, from Great Britain, for the purpose of possessing this city, and securing the navigation of Hudson's River, the troops left here will not be sufficient to oppose them; and yet, for anything we know, I think it not improbable they may attempt both, both being of the greatest importance to them, if they have men. I could wish, indeed, that the Army in Canada should be more powerfully reinforced, at the same time I am conscious that the trusting this important post (which is now become the grand magazine of America) to the handful of men remaining here, is running too great a risk. The securing this post, and Hudson's River, is to us also of so great importance, that I cannot, at present, advise the sending any more troops from hence; on the contrary, the General Officers now here, whom I thought it my duty to consult, think it absolutely necessary to increase the Army at this place with at least ten thousand men, especially when it is considered that from this place only the Army in Canada must draw its supplies of ammunition, provisions, and most probably of men; that all reinforcements can be sent from hence much easier than from any other place.

By the enclosed return, you will see the state of the Army here, and that the number of effective men is far short of what the Congress must have expected.

I have found it necessary to order Colonel Dayton's Regiment, from New-Jersey, to march, as one of the six, to Canada; wherefore I must recommend it to Congress to order two companies of one of the regiments still in Pennsylvania to march to Cape-May, which can be done much sooner; for had this destination of that regiment not taken place, it would have been very inconvenient to have detached two companies from it to that place, as the march would (according to Lord Stirling's and other accounts) have been at least two hundred miles from Amboy, and they must have passed within twenty miles of Philadelphia, there being no practicable road along the sea-coast of New-Jersey for their baggage to have passed.

Doctor Potts, who is the bearer hereof, was, I understand, appointed Director of the Hospital for these Middle Colonies; but the Army being removed, with the General Hospital, from the eastward, does, in course, supersede him. He is inclined to go to Canada, where he may be very useful, if a person is not already appointed for that department. I would humbly beg leave to ask the Congress, whether, in all these appointments, it would not be best to have but one chief, to whom all the others should be subordinate.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

(Parole, Burke) (Countersign, Barre)
Hitchcock's and Varnum's Regiments to be ready to be mustered on Friday morning next. They will be under arms at eleven in the forenoon, upon the Common, near the Park of Artillery, where the Commissary-General of Masters will attend.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 24, 1776.

(Parole, Savile.)

(Countersign Thonet.)

The Regiments are ordered to be brigaded as follows:

First Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Heath: Learned's, Prescott's, Read's, Bailey's, and Baldwin's.

Second Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Spencer: Parsons's, Arnold's, Huntington's, Ward's, and Wyllis's.

Third Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Sullivan: Hand's, Nixon's, Read's, Stark's, and Webb's.

Fourth Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Greene: Varnum's, Little's, Hitchcock's, Wayne's, and Irvine's.

Fifth Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General the Earl of Stirling: Ritzema's, Dayton's, McDougall's, and Winds's.

A clean, well-dressed Orderly Sergeant, from each Brigade, to attend in the General's Guard-room, near Head-Quarters, from six in the morning until they are dismissed in the evening. They are to bring their provisions with them, and to be relieved every morning.

The commanding officer of the Artillery is immediately to examine and report the quantity of case and grape-shot in store, and see that a sufficiency of each is immediately provided.

The Riflemen, in Colonel Irvine's Regiment, have liberty to fire their rifles to-morrow, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at such place as Lieutenant-Colonel Hartley shall appoint. This is mentioned, as no person is to presume to fire without leave.

Felix Micklehenny, Corporal, James Milliken, Corporal, John McGee, John McBride, George Conner, Privates, belonging to the Sixth Battalion of Pennsylvania Troops, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Baldwin was President, for "mutiny and disobedience of orders:" The Court are of opinion that the prisoners, Corporal Miliken and John McBride, are not guilty; but that the prisoners Corporal Micklehenny, John McGee, and George Conner, are guilty of the charge against them; and do therefore sentence Corporal Micklehenny to be reduced to a Private; and that John McGee be confined four days, and George Conner seven days, both on bread and water.

The General approves the sentence of the above Court-Martial, upon Corporal Micklehenny, John McGee, and George Conner, and orders it to take place immediately.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 25, 1776.

(Parole, Johnstone.)

(Countersign, Luttrell.)

Complaints having been made to the General, of injuries done to the farmers, in their crops and fields, by the soldiers passing over and trampling upon the young growth, in a wanton and disorderly manner, he expressly orders the officers commanding, either upon duty or in quarters, in the country, to take especial care to put a stop to such practices, and endeavour to convince their men that we come to protect, not to injure the property of any man.

The Quartermaster-General, assisted by Colonel Putnam, Chief Engineer, the Quartermaster, Quartermaster-Sergeant, and two men from each Regiment, of the First, Second, Fourth, and Fifth Brigades, to assemble at sun-rise, to-morrow morning, at the Redoubt upon Bayard's Hill, to mark out the encampment for the four Brigades above-mentioned. The Quartermaster-General will report to the Commander-in-Chief when he has fulfilled this order.

The encampment of the Third Brigade to be marked out in like manner, upon Long-Island, on Saturday morning. The Chief Engineers, with the Quartermasters, &c., from each Regiment, to assist the Quartermaster-General in that service.

As soon as the General has approved of the encampments marked out, the troops will be ordered to encamp. Until then, they are all to remain in their present quarters.

James Gray, of Captain Mighill's Company, in Colonel Baldwin's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Baldwin was President, for "desertion:" The Court, finding the prisoner guilty of the charge, do sentence him to be whipped, thirty-nine lashes, upon his bare back.

Joseph Leveritt, of Captain Wheeler's Company, in Colonel Nixon's Regiment, tried at the above General Court-Martial for "absenting himself from his Guard without permission, and being intoxicated with liquor," is found guilty by the Court, and sentenced to receive twenty-five lashes upon his bare back.

Joseph Smith, of Captain Winship's Company, in Colonel Nixon's Regiment, tried at the above General Court-Martial, for "quitting his post when on sentry," is acquitted by the Court.

The General approves of the foregoing sentences, and orders them to be put in execution to-morrow morning, at Guard-mounting.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 26, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSIAH QUINCY.

New-York, April 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 7th instant, coming duly to hand, I thank you for the intelligence therein contained. It gives me pain to find, from your account, that matters are taking a wrong bias in the politicks of your Government. I left five regiments (upon an average as strong as any in the service) to erect such works, and in such places as should be deemed most conducive to the defence of the harbour. I did (as it was a Government concern) leave the works which should be constructed for the defence of the harbour, to the adoption of the General Court, under the auspices of Colonel Gridley, whom I have been taught to view as one of the greatest Engineers of the age. If things have gone wrong, I can only express my concern, and lament that time, at so important a juncture, should be wasted, and the best mode for the defence of the harbour neglected.

My extreme hurry will only allow me, in addition to what I have said, to thank you most cordially for your friendly wishes, and to assure you that I am, with great truth and sincerity, dear sir, your most obedient and obliged, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Josiah Quincy, Braintree.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO ADMIRAL HOPKINS.

New-York, April 25, 1776.

SIR: I wrote you the 14th instant, giving information of the sailing, from this harbour, of the Phenix, Savage, and Nautilus, men-of-war, which I apprehended were designed to join Wallace, in order to block up the fleet under your command. The latter part I since find to be groundless, as they have returned; and I find that they make a practice of stretching off from and soon returning to this port. This convinces me that they are in expectation of a fleet, and I am preparing for their reception.

I expected to have met here a force much superior to what I have found it. I was obliged to lessen it, by detaching four of our strongest battalions to Canada, which lays me under the necessity of requesting you to despatch to this place, as soon as possible, the two hundred men lent you from this Army, that they may join their respective corps, which are much weakened by their absence.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Admiral Hopkins.

P. S. Enclosed is a copy of two resolves of Congress, respecting the cannon, stores, &c.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO MAJOR FRAZER.

New-York, April 25, 1776.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 14th instant, and to inform you that an allowance of salvage is a matter altogether in the power of Congress.

In respect to your coming here, to settle the accounts of your late department, his Excellency not only permits, but desires it, as highly necessary.

As to the appointment of Mr. Gray, or any other person, to succeed you, it is a matter entirely with General Ward. His Excellency desires and empowers him to make appointments of such as he thought would answer the publick good.

I am, sir, &c., &c.

ROBERT H. HARRISON.

To Major John G. Frazer, Assistant Deputy Quartermaster-General.

TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL SULLIVAN.

We, the subscribers, Colonels of the Regiments in your Honour's Brigade, beg liberty to show, that the love of freedom, founded upon rational principles, and an abhorrence of the measures of Administration in Great Britain tending to involve these Colonies in the worst of slavery, were our principal motives for engaging in the present service. We wish to answer the end for which we were appointed.

We are fully persuaded that nothing can be more pleasing to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, or more conducive to a successful campaign, than due subordination, and an exact discipline in the Army; but these cannot exist where rank is unequally supported. We humbly conceive that the provision made for the support of Field-Officers is very inadequate to that of any other. The rations are nominally generous; and was the allowance in money equal to the real prices we are obliged to pay for the articles of living, we could not complain on that head; but, in truth, the whole amount of ration-money will not defray the expenses of horse-keeping. The wages added to the rations, will not support us with decency; yet we have families at home, whom humanity and the sacred mandates of Heaven excite us to regard, and whom we cannot involve in ruin and misery. It is true we can march with packs, in common with private soldiers; we can lodge upon the ground in our blankets, and furnish a table, spread under the open canopy, with meat, bread, and water; in short, we must divest ourselves of the character of gentlemen, and dishonour the rank we sustain. Frugality, founded upon a prudent economy, is eligible in all Governments; but frugality, the basis whereof is parsimony, will ever defeat the very designs of Government.

We are willing, in common with our countrymen, to share the burdens of war; but we cannot investigate the reason why we should be greater sufferers than others, unless it is because we are continually exposed to hardships, fatigue, and danger.

We labour under several disadvantages; which are, our being obliged to the Quartermaster-General for articles of clothing, when the risk of deaths, desertions, &c., may involve us in debts, (without receiving any consideration but the trouble of business that does not belong to our Department,) which will render us bankrupts to the Continent, unless we can receive some kind of indemnity. Upon the whole, we are not desirous of reaping any particular advantages from the distressed situation of our injured country; we expect to feel a part in all its calamities; but are anxious to be considered as officers, supporting the character of gentlemen.

Should our complaints appear real, we doubt not but your Honour's wisdom, prudence, and justice, will excite you to make such representations to the Commander-in-Chief as will obtain redress.

We are, sir, in due respect, your most obedient, humble servants,

JOHN STARK, Colonel.
JOHN NIXON, Colonel.
CHARLES WEBB, Colonel.
JAMES REED, Colonel.

New-York, April 25, 1776.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Safety, New-York, }
April 25, 1776. }

SIR: The polite sensibility with which you have been pleased to treat our attention to your requisition of the 17th instant, affords us singular pleasure.

Convinced with you that there can be little doubt that things will go well under a harmonious co-operation of the civil and military powers, permit us once more, sir, to assure you of our most vigorous exertions in seconding your efforts in the common cause.

We wish it were in our power immediately to inform you in what time a body of two thousand or two thousand five hundred Militia might be collected from this Colony, for actual service on a sudden emergency. Although we do not at present foresee that emergency, it may, nevertheless, happen. It is, therefore, our indispensable duty to be provided with a plan for calling them in with the utmost despatch, well equipped, and without disorder; and this we are fully convinced cannot be effected without a preconcerted plan. To this end, we would request an explanation, whether you would wish the proposed aid should exclude or include the Militia of this city? As soon, sir, as we are favoured with an explanation on this head, we shall lose no time in forming an arrangement for so important a service. We flatter ourselves, however, that in either case the required number will, upon such steps as we shall take, be ready at a very short warning; and lest necessity should require the aid in any small interval of adjournment of this Committee, we shall take care to have our place supplied by a sub-Committee to comply with the applications of the Commander-in-Chief, whenever the exigency of affairs shall require it.

Give us leave, sir, to express our approbation of the plan you propose for establishing good look-outs. And as you very properly judge it best that they be made out of the Continental forces, we can only assure you that, upon notice of the approach of danger, or on any other necessity for the assistance of the Militia, all the succours in our power to command shall be most cheerfully and speedily contributed.

We shall consider of a necessary signal on such occasions; which may, perhaps, be best settled when we know that which, besides expresses, is to convey intelligence to the Commander-in-Chief from the look-outs you propose to establish. The whole plan would, perhaps, be best formed in concert with New-Jersey, the vicinity of which will afford this city as speedy succour as the nearest Counties in this Colony. On this head we are ready, sir, if you should think it necessary, to appoint a Committee to meet you for settling the arrangement; especially as we cannot sufficiently thank you for the confidence you are pleased to place in us; we cannot think of taking so momentous a matter entirely upon ourselves.

We heartily wish it were in our power to inform you of the present state of the New-York Continental troops. The number of troops to be raised by us, and destined by Congress for the protection and defence of this Colony, is four battalions. Besides these, there is one battalion for the Canada service, directed to be commanded by Colonel Van Schaick, an inhabitant of the northern part of this Colony. This regiment was naturally to be recruited in that quarter. For this reason the moneys sent to us for that purpose, by Congress, we immediately sent to General Schuyler, who has the forming of that battalion solely under his direction.

With respect to the four battalions, Congress has thought proper to put them under our immediate direction, saving in the appointment of Field-Officers, the right of appointing out of our recommendation. The Field-Officers are all appointed, and a list of them is subjoined. We have issued warrants to all the officers under that degree. We have taken the necessary steps for filling up the battalions, and for enforcing a return of their present state, with which we will furnish you as soon as we are possessed of them. The list of those under the degree of Field-Officers is so mutable in its nature that it would answer no purpose to trouble you with it now. Their warrants are all conditional in their nature. If any of them are negligent, or unfortunate, in recruiting, they must give way to new appointments; for we are determined to fill the four battalions with the utmost expedition, and for this purpose we have ordered returns. When the arrangement is settled it shall be laid before you.

You cannot, sir, feel more sensibly than we do, at the prospect of a deficiency of arms, at a crisis when we are compelled by Great Britain to the last appeal, in which we must, without arms, necessarily prove unequal combatants. We should, therefore, esteem ourselves deaf to the most alarming call, should we not exert our every power to procure them.

When the affair of Lexington proclaimed the war, this Colony was extremely destitute of arms. Our brethren of New-England, who were first called on for the defence of American liberty, had purchased many arms from our inhabitants. Our Colony troops were supplied last year with arms at our Provincial expense; most of these still remain in the Canada service. These considerations, together with our ineffectual attempts to obtain foreign supplies, increase the difficulty of arming our battalions. We are not, however, without hopes of succeeding. We have made several contracts already with the manufacturers. We have published encouragement for people in that branch; we shall continue to make as many contracts for the purpose as we shall from time to time have in our power. We have also directed the Committees in the several Counties to purchase arms. The number already furnished by our Commissary is three hundred and eleven; he has still on hand a few. We have reason to believe many of our troops will come provided; and, upon the whole, we hope we shall not be very deficient in so material an article. Colonel Ritzema is authorized to send an officer into the different Counties wherein his officers have recruited, for the purpose of collecting from the Committees the arms that have been taken from the disaffected inhabitants. And as we have given repeated and pressing orders to the Committees to execute the Continental resolve for disarming Tories, we hope for some supply from that source.

Your information concerning the arms at Kingston is well founded; and we shall immediately order them either to this city, or to be applied for arming the troops raising in that quarter. We assure you, sir, we shall not fail to furnish you with the returns of men and arms as often as we shall be able to procure them.

We would beg leave, sir, to inform you that, since the commencement of hostilities, our situation and the publick exigencies have obliged us to submit to the burden of a great variety of departments, not properly within the sphere of a Provincial Congress—such as Paymaster, Commissary, &c., for the Continental service; in the course of which we have received and issued large sums of Continental money; and though our accounts are nearly ready to lay before Congress, they are so excessively voluminous that it will require some weeks to complete them. However, though the balance is not struck, we are sure it must be considerably in our favour. In the mean time, sir, we should think ourselves inexcusable were we not to inform you that we have not one farthing of Continental money in our hands; and that the publick service under our care is now suffering for the want of an immediate supply. We shall, without delay, apply to Congress; but we cannot have the necessary relief from that quarter so soon as the despatch of business requires it. We are, therefore, constrained to request of you the advancement of six thousand pounds, of which, if you please, you may estimate the subjoined advancements to the different commanding officers as a part, and for which we are ready to give you a receipt; or if you think it best to advance the whole sum to us, we will debit the Congress with the moneys advanced to those gentlemen.

We are, sir, with the greatest respect and esteem, your most obedient servants,

By order: PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT, Chairman.
To His Excellency General Washington.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety, now sitting in the City of New-York.

I, John McDonald, Miner, who was appointed by your Honours, with the most punctual instructions relative to lead-mines, obeyed, in compliance with the request contained in said instructions, and proceeded, with all convenient despatch, to the Little Nine Partners, where I carefully applied myself in working and examining for lead and copper, in order to bring the just account of the state and quality of the same, which is as specified in the following manner: Jonathan Landon, Esq., conducted me to a limestone hill, where, at random, I took the dimensions from the northeast and southwest fallings of the ground, being one mile in length, in breadth half a mile, and in height about forty rods. There I found said mines, the veins of ore in which appear running the breadth of the mountain, (lying west and east,) in ledges of limestone mixed with white flint, where, some years ago, a company of adventurers had sunk several shafts or pits in pursuit of lead and copper, as I am acquainted of; and that amongst their trials are two principal pits, one of which is thirty feet deep, and the other fifty feet deep, where they found the best discoveries, of about seven inches diameter lead ore, of a continued vein; but the aforesaid company was under the necessity of dropping their proceedings of working the pits deeper on account of the water rising, anent which I am fully informed by Mr. Harris. The disappointments of the water might easily be prevented, by driving levels from its proper advantageous situation to these discoveries; which would undermine and carry off the water by a level. Both pits are now full of stones, water, rubbish, and timber; which timber, being the support from the beginning, got damaged by the overload, which occasioned it to fall over. Mr. Harris engaged to make discovery of lead ore: therefore the said Mr. Landon and I made applications to one Mr. Fish, (in whose property Mr. Harris had made a promising discovery of lead,) for leave to break and search the ground, which he would not grant, for reasons best known to himself. So that Mr. Harris's chief discovery was not explored by me. My sincere advice, from the skill and knowledge found in mining concerning what is necessary to be done first, is, to clear and repair the two shafts or pits, on purpose to find out the certainty or truth of Mr. Harris's information, in conjunction with the rest of the proprietors; and if the discoveries be found agreeable to information, the undertaking company must advise their miners to prosecute the same in all its proper branches of working it regularly, according to the directions of the sufficient inspector appointed to see each trial properly and well executed conformable to the mining regulations, so as not to be affronted in his undertaking. I am certain that the bounds wherein the veins do frequently lie of continuation are well situated, and likely to yield lead ore; therefore the schemes to work it properly may be put in execution without the least mistakes by any person who was qualified or bred in mining. I made discovery of both lead and copper in several places, but found small veins, which were very good of its quantity. I inspected other mines in Marbletown, of Ulster County, but found nothing worthy of reporting; but received intelligence of good mines which were wrought about forty years ago, being of large bodies of ore, as I am informed by gentlemen of distinction. They are to write to your Honours of all the particulars concerning several mines. Mr. Smith Lawer had not proper informations to conduct me any where, but was to write to his Committee. It would be proper to open and repair several shafts or pits formerly sunk at the Little Nine Partners.

All which is concluded, after this is most humbly submitted by your Honours' most obedient humble servant,

JOHN McDONALD, Miner.

GARRET ABEEL TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

About two years ago I went up the Lakes, at the head of the Susquehanna, where my father has land. At the house of one Smith, who lives on one of the lots, I was informed by him that on one of the other lots near the Lake were two hills of native sulphur; that a creek ran through the hills, whose bottom was sulphur; that he had brought some of it to his house and run it in a cake in a shovel; that by the flame and smell, he knew it to be sulphur. When I got to Albany I asked John R. Bleecker about it, as he had surveyed and laid out the lots. He confirmed it, and said that the creek was distinguished in the map by the Sulphur Creek. It is about fourteen miles from the Mohawk River, and it may with little trouble be also carried down the Susquehanna by water as far as Harris's Ferry, and, after a little land carriage, to Philadelphia.

GARRET ABEEL.

Serious Questions, addressed to the Congress, and all other Legislative bodies in AMERICA.

1. Do not the tyrants of Europe think they have a right to dispose of their subjects in the same manner that a farmer in this country disposes of his live-stock?
2. Have not the inhabitants of Poland been divided between Austria, Prussia, and Russia, without their consent?
3. Did not the Court of Spain lately exchange St. Domingo for Louisiana; and were not many of the French subjects in the latter country imprisoned and put to death for refusing to submit to the Spanish Government?
4. Did not the Genoese sell Corsica to the Court of France; and has not France (after many unsuccessful attempts to conquer that Island) since disposed of it to the King of Sardinia?
5. Do not all parties agree that the Court of Britain will soon find that it is impossible to subdue or govern America by force?
6. Will not mistaken notions of dignity, revenge, and a despotism rendered furious by disappointment, lead the said Court to adopt the partition spirit of the times, and to divide the American Colonies with the other Powers of Europe?
7. Is it not probable that Russia, in refusing the twenty thousand men she had promised the King of Britain, is waiting only for an offer of a share of the dominion of the Colonies after they are subdued?
8. Has not Mr. Rigby (one of the abandoned junto of St. James's) declared in the House of Commons that Canada was a dead weight upon the Empire?
9. Have not the Ministry (despairing of the reduction of the Colonies) employed Dean Tucker to prove that the independence of the Colonies would be an immense advantage to Great Britain?
10. Suppose France should grow weary in listening to our whining cries after our mother country, and, instead of striking a blow to draw off the British Armies and Fleets from our coasts, should accept of Canada as a condition of neutrality, and upon condition of her conquering it?
11. Suppose the Southern Colonies should be offered to Spain, on condition of her neutrality, or assistance in the reduction of them?
12. Suppose the campaign of 1777 should open with Russian, French, British, and Spanish Armies, on our coasts, what would be our situation?
13. Is there any time in which a nation or people can form alliances, or declare themselves free, to greater advantage than when their affairs are in a prosperous condition?
14. Should the American Colonies neglect the present critical moment of asserting and securing their freedom, is it not probable that a few months will put it out of their power of doing it forever?
15. What must we think of those men who use their influence in Assemblies, and in the Congress, to obtain Colony instructions to prevent the Delegates from assenting to the only possible measure that can save the Colonies from ruin?
16. Will not all the blood that shall be shed in America, after the next six months, lie at their door?
17. Are not all instructions to oppose measures leading to Independence big with as much folly as mischief?
18. Does not every measure of the Congress, except submission, lead directly or indirectly to Independence?
19. Considering that we are now totally independent of Great Britain in every act of Government, will not the instructions of our Assemblies convey to the Court of Britain and the other European Courts, ideas of the basest hypocrisy in the Colonies?

20. If it should be discovered next fall that a Declaration of Independence this spring would have terminated the war, or removed it from our borders, what will be the feelings of those men who oppose it by Provincial Instructions?

21. Will their factious zeal then be called patriotism, or will their avarice, ambition, and servility, then be characterized by the Courtly phrases of timidity, or weak nerves?

22. Does not the fate of the fugitive or deserted Tories in Boston and New-York furnish a useful lesson to all rulers not to oppose the tide of popular prejudices, and to rely no more upon the protection of British Arms?

23. Considering the perfidy and obstinacy of the King, is not a Declaration of Independence of the Crown as just a measure now, as a Declaration of an Independence upon the Parliament was some years ago?

24. Is it not now equally necessary to our security and happiness?

25. Will it not be just, therefore, hereafter to confound the folly and fate of those who oppose the former, with those who have opposed the latter?

New-York, April 25, 1776.

TO THE FRIENDS OF OUR AMERICAN NAVY.

An exact list of the number of men employed in the Provincial Ships and Privateers during the last war, in America:

Nova-Scotia ,	- - - - -	300
Massachusetts-Bay ,	- - - - -	2,300
New-Hampshire ,	- - - - -	500
Rhode-Island ,	- - - - -	1,500
Connecticut ,	- - - - -	900
New-York ,	- - - - -	1,200
Pennsylvania ,	- - - - -	1,060
Maryland, Virginia, and the other Southern Colonies ,	- - - - -	1,000
		<hr/> 8,760

Besides these, many of the Merchantmen who were letters of marque, carried from fifteen to forty sailors.

When we add to these the number of American sailors who were pressed in the beginning of the war, to man the English fleet, the proportion of sailors belonging to the Continent would not amount to less than twelve or fourteen thousand. The trade of America at the commencement of the present war with Great Britain being one-third at least greater than it was at the conclusion of the last war with France, the number of sailors in America must have increased in the same proportion. It is true, many of the men who manned our privateers were landmen; but as the same objects, (namely, prizes,) are held out at present as were in the last war, and as there is now added to these the glory of establishing the freedom of the Colonies, there is reason to presume a greater proportion of landmen will embark in the present war by sea, than in any former one. Twenty thousand men, employed in ships of suitable force would be sufficient to guard our coasts and trade against all the Navy that Britain could spare from her harbours and foreign dominions to molest us. And America can spare that number of men for the purpose, without impoverishing her land forces, or without putting a check to her agriculture or manufactures.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO CAPTAIN BIDDLE.

Ship Alfred, at New-London, April 25, 1776.

SIR: You are to make what despatch you can to clean your brig, and you may take the ballast out of the bomb-brig; and what more you want you must make up with stores. You must apply to Mr. Shaw for whatever you may find necessary. When you get ready I desire you may take care of the merchant vessels, and convoy them clear of the land, if the coast is so clear that you can do it with safety to them; and make whatever despatch you can to Providence for further directions, as I intend to be there as soon as possible.

Yours, &c.,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To Nicholas Biddle, Esq., Commander of the Andrew Doria.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-London, April 25, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Governour Browne, requests me to use my influence with your Honour, that he may have leave sometimes, on parole, to go as far as where he can go to church. And as he is a gentleman of character, I make no doubt you will give him as much liberty as is consistent with the publick safety; and further he cannot expect.

I am, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut, at Lebanon.

SAMUEL TUFTS TO BENJAMIN GREENLEAF.

Newburyport, April 25, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: We took the freedom of addressing you by letter the 23d instant by Mr. Noble. For fear of that letter not coming to your hands in season, we would request the favour of you to communicate to the honourable General Court, that we have, agreeable to their order, received and paid for twenty-eight hundred and forty-seven pounds weight of saltpetre, and twenty-one pounds since the 23d. We should esteem it a favour if they would give order for the same. Many persons are now waiting to deliver, and, from good information, four or five thousand pounds weight will be presented in a few days, from the towns around and to the eastward. We should esteem it a favour of the honourable Court to order such sums of money as will enable us to fulfill the trust reposed in us.

We are, with respect, (by order, and in the absence of Captain Edward Sawyer, I subscribe,) SAMUEL TUFTS.

To the Honourable Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq.

PELHAM (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE.

Whereas, Hugh Tallant, of Pelham, in the Colony of New-Hampshire, did, on or about the first of May last, act the part of an enemy to his country in many respects: Said acts being proved before the Committee of Inspection for Pelham, in the Colony aforesaid, the Committee laid him under a restriction, viz: that he should not be found off from his own farm, on the peril of his life; which he deliberately and willingly signed; yet soon broke over that obligation and insulted the Committee to the utmost that words could express, which he still continues to do; and applied by a petition to the honourable Provincial Congress for a new hearing, which was granted, to be before the Committee of three towns, in conjunction, finally to determine the case. Being assembled, and the case tried, they found said Tallant guilty; and set up the judgment of the former Committee, and resolved that said Tallant should be confined to his farm by two sufficient bondsmen, and pay the cost that had been, from time to time, or be committed to close jail.

And whereas, one Samuel Little, Esq., of Hampstead, did pass his word to bring said Tallant to the Committee, at twelve o'clock the next day, he was allowed to have the care of him that night by the influence of one of the Committee, who passed his word for said Little's fidelity. But it plainly appeared that the said Little had agreed with the said Tallant to let him get away and make his escape, and pretended (though falsely) that he could not help it; then the said Little gave to the Committee a forfeiture bond to bring the said Tallant within twenty days from that time, but hath not brought him, though requested; by which it appears, that the said Little is an abetter and upholder of the said Tallant's villany and inimicalness, and a rescuer and deliverer of a Tory in his villany, &c. Therefore, this is to caution all persons not to have any dealings with either of the aforesaid enemies to truth and liberty, (which are inseparably connected,) as they would in so doing incur the displeasure of all that are true friends to the American cause, &c.

Per order:

BARNABAS GIBSON, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GENERAL HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAINE, DATED HALIFAX, APRIL 25, 1776.

By the arrival of the Milford, in Nantasket-Road, on the 26th March, I was honoured with your Lordship's despatches of the 5th of January, with a copy of his Majesty's instructions for Major-General Clinton's conduct to the southward, as well as other letters, duplicates, and enclosures of a distant date, which I defer answering by the present conveyance, of a small, unarmed sloop, returning to England, in the service of the Navy, as I intend to write fully by the Harriet packet lately arrived, and to sail in a few days with Governour Legge; wherefore I shall confine myself, in this, to a few particulars more immediately necessary to be communicated to your Lordship for his Majesty's information, accompanied by duplicates of my despatch from Nantasket, to be delivered by Judge Brown.

The Forty-Seventh Regiment of foot sailed from hence the 20th instant, for Quebeck, under convoy of the Niger frigate, which may be a seasonable relief, should it arrive before the force sent from England early in the spring, as mentioned in your Lordship's letter of the 5th of January. Captain Stanton, of the Fourteenth Infantry, who arrived here on the 21st in the Harriet packet, informs, that this reinforcement was the regiment of foot; and as I trust that two regiments will be sufficient to preserve the town until the arrival of the troops from Europe intended for that quarter, I do not propose sending any more from hence. The officer who set out for Quebeck in the winter, as taken notice of in my letter to Lord Dartmouth of the 16th of January, not being yet returned, I have no account of any kind from thence.

The fleet and transports sailed in two divisions from Nantasket-Road, the last with the Admiral, on the 27th of March, and got in here the 2d instant. But I am sorry to inform your Lordship that a brig, loaded with valuable goods, chiefly belonging to persons deemed to be highly disaffected to Government, not being ready to sail with the fleet, has since been taken by three armed vessels, after parting company with the Niger frigate left to convoy her, and some other vessels in the same situation. A Midshipman was on board, with a sergeant and twelve soldiers, for her protection, who, after defending themselves with great obstinacy, were at length compelled to surrender. We feel this loss the more at present, as there were a quantity of shoes on board, which are much wanted for the soldiery, as well as woollen articles that would have been very useful to them.

By some masters of vessels who had been prisoners at Salem, and obtained liberty to return to England, we learn that the Rebel General is gone to New-York, with a part of his Army, having before detached a large reinforcement to Canada, and those left behind were erecting works upon Fort-Hill, in the town of Boston. By the arrival here of Captain Wallace, commanding the Rose frigate, I am also informed, that the Rebels are fortifying Rhode-Island; but I do not apprehend they can prevent his Majesty's troops from taking possession of it, when the strength of the Army will admit of a division for that important service, as it can be approached by shipping in every part.

New-York being the greater object of the two, and the possession of it more extensive in its consequences, as well as more conducive to the credit of his Majesty's arms, will be my principal aim, when enabled to proceed thither by a sufficient supply of provisions, since both services cannot be undertaken with the present force; and it is become highly necessary that the first exertion of the Army should be directed to the most important purposes, to check the spirit which the evacuation of Boston will naturally raise among the Rebels. In this disposition, it is probable that their leaders, urged by the people, and flushed with an idea of superiority, may be the readier brought to a decisive action, than which nothing is more to be desired, or sought for, by us, as the most effectual means to terminate this expensive war; and I have the greatest reason to be sanguine in my hopes of success, from the present health and high order of the Army. If this cannot be effected before the reinforcements arrive from Europe, it is most likely that they will act upon the defensive, by having recourse to strong intrenched situations, in order to spin out the campaign, if possible, without exposing themselves to any decisive stroke.

In consequence of his Majesty's approbation for the appointment of an Adjutant-General to this Army, I have appointed Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson, of the Sixty-Third Regiment, to that office, having a thorough confidence in his abilities and military knowledge. Major Kemble, having long done the duty of Deputy Adjutant-General, and being nearly connected with General Gage, I should hope your Lordship will be pleased to recommend him to his Majesty's favour, upon this appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson. It is with pleasure I affirm, that Major Shirreff, Deputy Quartermaster-General, has been lately honoured with a mark of his Majesty's favour.

Many of the principal inhabitants of Boston, under the protection of the Army, having no means of subsistence here, apply to me to find them a passage to Europe, which they cannot otherwise get than at a most exorbitant rate: they have my assurance, that the first transport which can be spared shall be given up for this purpose. I am sorry to inform your Lordship that there is an absolute necessity for issuing provisions to the whole of them (about eleven hundred) from the King's stores, without any prospect of stopping it. It must be confessed, that many, having quitted the whole of their property and estates, some of them very considerable in value, are real objects of his Majesty's most gracious attention.

Lieutenant-Colonel Grant, of the Fortieth, and Captain Payne, of the Eighteenth Regiments, sent to Georgia and the West-Indies to purchase some supply of provisions, have arrived with a small quantity, of which I have given the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury a report. A further supply was engaged, and may be daily expected from the latter place; and I have accounts, that a victualling ship for the Army, blown off the coast in the winter, had got into the Island of St. Christopher, much damaged, but was nearly repaired, and would sail directly for Halifax about the 24th of March, so that I may hope for a speedy relief in this essential article.

Advices received from Major-General Clinton this day, dated in Cape-Fear River, the 26th of March, mention that the armament destined to the southward was not arrived; and I enclose, for your Lordship's information, a narrative of what has lately passed in North-Carolina, with the copy of a letter from Governour Martin to Major-General Clinton.

ADVICES FROM ADMIRAL SHULDHAM.

Admiralty Office, London, June 8, 1776.

By letters received from Vice-Admiral Shulldham, dated at Halifax, the 25th of April last, it appears that, on the 15th of that month, Captain Furneaux, of the Syren, one of the frigates under his command, took a brigantine belonging to the Rebels, which was carrying from Philadelphia to Charlestown, in South-Carolina, a company of Artillery, consisting of a Captain, commissioned by the Continental Congress, and seventy-nine men, most of whom have since entered into his Majesty's service with General Clinton. It also appears that the other cruisers of his squadron had intercepted and taken forty-four merchant ships and vessels belonging to his Majesty's rebellious subjects in North-America; and that Captain Barclay, of the Scarborough, who had been sent to Savannah, in the Province of Georgia, for provisions, had liberated thirteen vessels richly laden, which had been seized and detained there by the Rebels.

And the Admiral transmits, with the above-mentioned letters, the following account which he had received from Captain Tyringham Howe, of his engagement in the Glasgow, with five armed ships and vessels of the Rebels, viz:

"On Saturday, the 6th of April, 1776, at two A. M., Block-Island then bearing northwest about eight leagues, we discovered a fleet on the weather-beam, consisting of seven or eight sail; tacked and stood towards them, and soon perceived them to be two or three large ships, and other square-rigged vessels; turned all hands to quarters, hauled up the mainsail, and kept standing on to the northwest with a light breeze and smooth water, the fleet then coming down before it. At half-past two, a large brig came within hail, and seemed to hesitate about giving any answer, but still kept standing towards us; and, on being asked what other ships were in company with her, answered, the Columbus and Alfred, a twenty-two-gun frigate; and almost immediately a hand-grenade was thrown out of her top. We exchanged our broadsides. She then shot ahead, and lay on our bow, to make room for a large ship, with a top-light, to come on our broadside, and another ship ran under our stern, raked as she passed, and then luffed up on our lee-beam, whilst a brig took her station on our larboard-quarter, and a sloop kept altering her station occasionally.

At four, the station of every vessel was altered, as the two ships had dropped on each quarter, and a brig kept astern, giving a continual fire; bore away, and made sail for Rhode-Island, with the whole fleet within musket-shot on our quarters and stern. Got two stern-chase guns out of the cabin, and kept giving and receiving a very warm fire. At day-light, perceived the Rebel ships to consist of two ships, two brigs, and a sloop, and a large ship and a snow, which kept to windward as soon as the action began. At half-past six, the fleet hauled their wind, and, at seven, tacked and stood to the south-south-west. We had one man killed and three wounded by the musketry from the enemy."

Alfred.—Commanded by Hopkins; twenty nine-pounders on the lower, six ten-pounders on the upper, deck; two hundred and twenty men, including sixty marines.

Columbus.—Commanded by Whipple; eighteen nine-pounders on the lower, ten six-pounders on the upper, deck; two hundred and twenty men, including sixty marines.

Andrew Doria, Brig.—Commanded by Biddle; sixteen six-pounders on the upper deck; one hundred and thirty men, including thirty marines.

Cabot, Brig.—Commanded by Hopkins, Jun.; fourteen six-pounders on the upper deck; one hundred and twenty men, including thirty marines.

Providence, Sloop.—Commanded by Hazard; twelve six-pounders on the upper deck; ninety men, including twenty-eight marines.

The Glasgow had twenty guns—nine-pounders; and one hundred and fifty men.

By letters lately received from Vice-Admiral Young, dated at Antigua, the 3d of March, and from Vice-Admiral Gayton, dated at Jamaica, the 28th of that month, it likewise appears that the cruisers under the command of the former had seized twenty-six, and those under the command of the latter, nine, ships and vessels, either belonging to, or employed in carrying on a trade with, his Majesty's rebellious subjects in North-America.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED BERMUDA, APRIL 26, AND CONTINUED TO MAY 1, 1776.

The people in this Island are zealous in the American cause, and appear willing to do everything in their power to promote it. The Governour, who has become very obnoxious, has been threatening the inhabitants with cruisers, stationed at each end of the Island, and troops; but no man of sense can believe so useless and expensive a measure will ever be adopted. The vessels in here from the Islands, give an account of the disposition of the people there, which is very far from meriting the indulgence shown their property in the late resolution for reprisals. In Antigua and Barbadoes, an American is not safe, either in his person or property, if he is known to be friendly to the Continental interest. And they exult in the prospect, or rather hopes, of a total reduction of the Colonies by Administration; one consequence of which, they are promised, will be, the confining the American commerce, in the West-Indies, absolutely to the English Islands. This may be relied on to be the present temper of the Islands in general.

This Island suffers much. One hundred and twenty vessels are now on hand, unemployed, and the people happy if they can keep from an absolute famine; for the produce of this Island is next to nothing at all. Vessels proper for privateers might be taken up here to good advantage, and guns for them purchased, as there are a great number of good ones, of those used in the late war, now on hand. A number were lately purchased and shipped, as I heard, and more may be had, of four to nine-pounders. Mr. Jennings has a fine ship on the stocks, of eighty feet keel, which may be launched soon, and would make a fine privateer. He would be glad to sell her, and I believe could procure the guns for her.

A sloop this instant arrived from Antigua, and brings accounts that twenty-one sail of transports, under convoy of two men-of-war, sailed the beginning of this month for the Continent, from Antigua; and, by the Captain, the report of the disposition of the people of that Island and Barba- does, towards the Colonies, is confirmed, with many aggravating circumstances. The situation and present state of this Island demands the attention of the Continental Congress; and I have had several conferences with Mr. . . . on the subject. It is unnecessary to attempt a particular description of an Island as well known as this; but you well know that, by the accounts given in to Congress, the number of its inhabitants were set about fourteen thousand, (one half blacks,) and the quantity of provision annually imported into the Island was then stated, which, moderate as it appears, is much more than the inhabitants will hereafter be able to pay for, unless they can be put on a different footing from their present one. Their negro men are all of them seamen and mechanicks—such as coopers, ship-carpenters, and blacksmiths; and the produce of their labour makes nine-tenths of the support both of their masters and fellow-slaves, there being no employ worth mentioning for either the female slaves or children, as the land is absolutely fit for nothing but the growth of cedar. It is well known that almost the whole of that trade and ship-building, which employed them and their slaves, depended on their intercourse between the American Colonies on the Continent, and foreign parts. This ceasing, throws them instantly into distress, without stock of provision, and without the means of paying for it, could it be procured; and on a soil incapable of supplying them, were they to cultivate every inch of it. This is simply their present situation, which greatly alarms them. The Governour has threatened them with sending for vessels of force. In such case, instant famine is inevitable, unless they can subsist on fish alone; and if they cannot, by some means, procure speedy supplies from the Continent, they will be in the same unhappy situation. Sensible of this, the inhabitants have had meetings, and have chosen a large Committee, of which . . . is Chairman; and the inhabitants are contributing all in their power to ward off the impending danger; but any relief they may obtain can be only temporary, (momentary, I may say,) unless the Continent takes them immediately under their protection. This is, I conceive, neither impracticable, nor would be attended with any very heavy expense, and the consequences might be very beneficial to the Colonies.

It is hardly possible for a person never on these Islands, (for they amount to hundreds of little ones,) to form an idea of them and their harbours. It is sufficient to say that they are the most difficult of access in the world, and some of the safest when entered. On the south side there is no water for anything more than a whale-boat, over a reef running the whole extent, at about half a league from the shore. At the west end, where we landed, there is a channel through the rocks and shoals, which extend near two leagues off shore, but so winding that it requires a skilful pilot to bring you through; and, in the best weather, it is alarming to a stranger to see the rocks on every side, and under him, (their clear white shining through the water,) as he passes, and finally enters, where the high land, on each side, is not a musket-shot from the centre of the channels. On the north side, the breakers run almost out of sight of land, through which there is one passage, but so difficult that the Islanders themselves make little use of it. At the east end the harbour is more capacious than this at the west, but equally difficult and easily defended; but when you have once entered either of the harbours, you may have your choice of a number of lesser ones, formed by the little broken Islands, between which is generally good depth of water and safe anchorage.

This, from my own observation and inquiry, is the natural situation of the Island, which, running between the northeast and southwest, every vessel passing between Great Britain and the West-Indies, unless driven out of their course, sails within about one hundred leagues of one of its extremities. This considered, it is evident they being fortified, so as to make a safe harbour for our cruisers, the whole West-India trade must be intercepted, and that by a small fleet of swift-sailing frigates and sloops. I am no judge of the expense of such fortifications; but gentlemen of some acquaintance with such affairs estimate it low; and as to a land force, the most trifling (even the Militia of the Island, properly supplied with stores) would be sufficient to guard a country as impenetrable, after landing, as it is inaccessible.

There are a sufficient number of cannon on the Island for that purpose, and to arm a number of cruisers besides; and the inhabitants, I am confident, would receive you as their best friends; and my confidence of this is founded on their situation. As the Continent is driven into a naval war, it must be a principal question in what manner the trade of Great Britain can be most advantageously attacked; and as the Parliament have, in effect, closed with the Congress, in the stopping all commerce between the Continent and Great Britain, or other British dominions, it must be the policy of America to intercept, as far as possible, their intercourse between each other, as well to supply ourselves as to distress them. To effect which, some harbour or harbours must be pitched upon, convenient for the purpose, and secured; and the question will be, are those of this Island the best? I think they are, for the reasons hinted at above, and for the probability that the enemy, unsuspecting of such a manœuvre, and intent on blocking up the ports on the Continent, may receive a heavy blow in their West-India commerce, before they are aware of or guarded against it; and if they attempt to defeat such a design, it must be by drawing off their forces from our coast, for a while at least.

These hints I submit to maturer consideration, and to the present turn of political measures; but a minute inquiry into the practicability and expense of such a scheme will cost neither time nor money worth mentioning; and I wish it may be made by some person of better judgment than I conceive myself, or, perhaps, my informers here, to be.

MAJOR GIST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Annapolis, April 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your instructions, I am now to make application to you to appoint a General Court-Martial, for the trial of Christian Castler, a soldier in Captain Ramsay's Company, who is charged with attempting to shoot a non-commissioned officer, who commanded a party on duty, of which Castler was one; the particular circumstances being regularly inquired into by a Court appointed for that purpose, who found him guilty of the charge, and are of opinion that a General Court-Martial, appointed by the commanding officer, is not competent to pass sentence on the prisoner for so capital a crime, and beg leave to refer him to a superior court, to be tried for his life.

I am, with much respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

M. GIST.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON.
[No. 132.]

Annapolis, April 26, 1776.

SIR: We consider the Schooner Resolution to be fitted out only as a tender for the Ship Defence; and therefore have given you directions to put officers, &c., on board, out of your own ship, as you may think best for the publick service. We are, &c.

To Captain James Nicholson.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO COMMISSIONERS IN CANADA.

Philadelphia, April 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The late disturbances in Canada, owing to an insurrection of a number of the inhabitants, have, for some time, occupied the most serious attention of Congress; in pursuance of which, they have come into sundry resolves, calculated both to increase our military force in that country, and to allay the fears and apprehensions of the people. Of this latter kind is the resolve I herewith transmit, by order of Congress, to you.

In addition to the four battalions now on their march to Canada, the Congress have, since the receipt of General Schuyler's last letter, ordered six more to be sent there as soon as possible.

With sincere wishes for your health, and success in your important engagements, I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem and regard, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Benjamin Franklin, Samuel Chase, and Charles Carroll, Esquires, Commissioners in Canada.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, April 26, 1776.

SIR: The intelligence contained in your last letter, and the papers transmitted therewith, being of the utmost importance, the Congress have paid them the attention which they deserved. It is, indeed, to be lamented, that the misconduct of our troops should have given occasion to the Canadians to proceed such lengths as to commence hostilities. New-raised recruits (such as those of the United Colonies) cannot immediately be brought to submit to exact discipline and subordination, without having recourse to that love of liberty, and aversion to military restraint, which are natural to freemen. To account for this, it is sufficient to observe, that to make men soldiers is the work of time and labour, even in countries where the genius of the Government has prepared men for that kind of despotism which is indispensably necessary in an Army.

Though it is much to be wished that the subaltern officers in Canada had exerted themselves more in keeping the troops in order, yet I am apt to think the utmost vigilance could not have totally prevented all irregularities. But we were compelled, unprepared, hastily to take up the weapons of self-preservation, and have, consequently, had numberless difficulties to struggle with; of which the expedition into Canada has been a continued scene. This is the true source of all our misfortunes, with which you are too well acquainted to make it necessary for me to repeat them.

I cannot help suspecting that the defection of the Canadians is more the result of policy than inclination; not that I believe they have any more inclination for one side than the other; but finding the force of the United Colonies in Canada fell much short of expectation, they naturally throw themselves into the scale which they believe begins to preponderate. It is not, however, material at present, what are the causes of the late insurrection, any further than to provide a remedy against the evil. Congress have accordingly passed sundry resolves, adapted both to conciliate the affections of the Canadians, and to operate on their apprehensions as to the strength of the Colonies, having ordered ten battalions into that country, and given directions to Mr. Trumbull and Mr. Lowrey to forward to you four thousand barrels of pork; they have also directed ten thousand pair of shoes, and ten thousand pair of stockings, to be sent to you for the use of the Continental Army in Canada.

I have it in charge from Congress to desire you to pursue the best means for furnishing such other necessary articles as may be wanted for the Army in Canada, having regard to such of them as the Commissary in that Province can supply; and, also, that you inform them what quantity of gunpowder you have received for Canada since the 1st of January last; and that you go on to give the earliest notice to Congress, of the occasion for the supplies of such necessities as it may not be in your power to procure.

I transmit, herewith, sundry resolves of Congress, under the hand of the Secretary, for your future directions and conduct; and have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Schuyler, at Albany.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO JAMES WARREN.

Philadelphia, April 26, 1776.

SIR: I have it in charge from Congress to acquaint you that they have been pleased to accept your resignation as Paymaster-General of the Army, and that there are Superintendents of the Treasury appointed, to whom you are to render your accounts and vouchers, which I will do myself the pleasure of putting into their hands, if you think proper to forward them to me for that purpose.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To James Warren, Esq.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Philadelphia, April 26, 1776.

SIR: I have it in charge from Congress to direct your immediate attention to the enclosed resolve, for the purchase of two thousand barrels of pork, which, when purchased, you will forward, in the most expeditious manner, to General Schuyler.

As it is of great importance the Army in Canada should be well supplied, you will exert yourself to effect this purchase as speedily as possible. Whenever you send or draw for the money, your bill on me for twenty thousand dollars shall meet with due honour.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Mr. Trumbull, Commissary-General, at New-York.

COLONEL WAYNE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, April 26, 1776.

SIR: By order of his Excellency General Washington, I have sent Major Haussegger (the bearer hereof) to Philadelphia to bring up the remainder of my battalion, which, with five others, are to march to Canada immediately. I must therefore request that you will use your influence to supply my regiment with arms. The Major will render a list of the number wanted.

The three companies that are here were obliged to march without a single waistcoat, and but one shirt per man, and most of them too small, although made of the worst of linen. I therefore beg you to give orders to the Commissaries to supply the remainder as soon as possible. I am not unacquainted with your important situation and the multiplicity of business on your hands, but necessity obliges me in this instance to apply to you. I must therefore beg pardon for this freedom, and hope you will not be troubled in future by any applications of this nature by, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ANTHONY WAYNE.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL IRVINE.

New-York, April 26, 1776.

SIR: Immediately upon receipt of this letter, you are desired to march the remainder of your battalion directly to this city, in order to embark for Albany on your route to Canada.

The Congress have been pleased to order that, upon your march or embarkation from hence for Canada, the pay of your men shall be the same as those of other regiments, employed in the same service, to-wit: six and two-thirds dollars per month. Of this you will please to inform them.

I shall depend upon your making despatch; and am, sir, yours, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel William Irvine, of the Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, April 26, 1776.

SIR: When you did me the honour of a visit at Norwich on my way to this place, I recommended to you the recommendation I had received from Congress for sending four battalions from hence to reinforce our troops in Canada. I now beg leave to inform you that, in compliance therewith, on Saturday and Sunday last I detached four regiments thence under the command of Brigadier-General Thompson; and by an express received last night, am ordered by Congress, in addition to those already gone, to send six more immediately. Our regiments being incomplete and much wanting in numbers, I need not add that the Army here feel a sensible diminution from this detachment, and when the second is gone, will be weak indeed, considering the importance of this place, the many extensive posts which must be guarded for its defence; and, added to this, almost the whole of our valuable ordnance, stores, and magazines, will be deposited here. For these reasons it appears to me expedient that some mode should be adopted without loss of time, by this, your, and the Jersey Governments, for throwing in immediate succours upon the appearance of the enemy, or any case of emergency.

I have written to the Congress of New-Jersey upon the subject, praying them to form such regulations respecting their Militia (they being the only resource we have) that assistance may be had on the earliest notice of an approach of the enemy, for preventing the fatal and alarming consequences which might result from the common, tedious, and slow method generally used for obtaining their aid; and would take the liberty of mentioning, that if the same should be done by you and your honourable Council respecting your Militia, or such part of them as are most contiguous to this place, that the most salutary ends might be derived therefrom. The benefits flowing from a timely succour being too obvious for repetition, I shall propose, with all possible deference, for your consideration, whether it will not be advisable to have some select corps of men appointed, under proper officers, in the western part of your Government, to repair to this place on the earliest notice from the General, or officer commanding here, of the appearance of an enemy.

If it should be thought necessary upon an emergency, in the first instance to resort to you for all the ordinary forms to be gone through before any succours can be ordered in, it is to be feared that the relief would be too late to answer any good purposes. This, however, I shall submit to you, in full confidence of your most ready assistance on every occasion, and that such measures as appear to you most likely to advance the publick good on this and every other instance, will be most cheerfully adopted.

I am, sir, with great esteem, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO REPAIR TO PITTSFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS.

In Council, April 26, 1776.

To WALTER SPOONER, GEORGE PARTRIDGE, and JONATHAN GROUT, Esquires:

You being appointed by this Court to repair to Pittsfield, on the 14th day of May next, and to make proper inquiry into the cause of the matters of complaint subsisting there, and report the same to the General Court, at their next May Sessions: You are to give notice to all the towns in the County of Berkshire, of your meeting them at Pittsfield aforesaid, by directing the Sheriff of the said County to notify their clerks may attend, as the said towns shall appoint. When you are so met, you are to inquire into the cause of the disquiet subsisting there, and let them know that it is the expectation of this Court that all the inhabitants of this Colony will do their utmost endeavour to support the Government, as recommended by the Continental Congress; that at a time when Great Britain is exerting her utmost strength to destroy these Colonies, or subject them to the lowest degree of vassalage, it is the indispensable duty of every individual to unite in every measure which will give force and energy to an opposition thereto; that it is with great concern that this Court find so many of the inhabitants of that County endeavouring to break the union of this Colony, by suggestions that this Court are disposed to deprive the inhabitants of this Colony of any of the rights they are entitled to as freemen, but that they look more favourably upon their conduct from consideration of their local circumstances; and to assure them that this Court is disposed to remove every real grievance which, by any of the laws of this Colony, it may hereafter be made to appear that the inhabitants labour under; and, in general, that you will take such measures to restore quiet and harmony in that County as shall appear to you most proper after you have heard their complaints. In all which you will regard the honour of Government, and the rights and privileges of the people. Finally, you are to make report of your proceeding herein to the Great and General Court, as your opportunity directs.

ELDAD TAYLOR, per order.

APPOINTMENT OF PIERCE LONG, NAVAL OFFICER OF PORTSMOUTH.

Colony of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, }
April 26, 1776. }

To PIERCE LONG, Esquire:

Pursuant to a recommendation from the honourable Continental Congress for regulating trade, and permitting the inhabitants of these Colonies to trade with some of the European nations, under certain limitations:

You are hereby appointed an officer for the Port of Piscataqua, and fully authorized and empowered to procure registers, signed by the President of the Council, for all vessels outward-bound belonging to this Colony; enter and clear all vessels coming in and going out of said port; having a strict regard and obedience to the regulations and directions of the Continental Congress, but by no means to counteract the same; taking such reasonable fees as may be an adequate reward for your service, and no more; and to continue in said office until the determination of the Council and Assembly thereon.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LORD GEORGE GERMAINE TO GENERAL HOWE, DATED WHITEHALL, APRIL 27, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed I have the honour to send you the embarkation returns of the first division of the Hessian troops, which division, or the greatest part of it, being arrived at Spithhead, and the detachment of guards being embarked, the whole have orders to proceed to sea immediately, under the instructions contained in the enclosed copies of my letters to Lieutenant-General Heister, and to the Lords of the Admiralty.

It was hoped and expected that Lord Howe would have proceeded with this embarkation; but the necessary arrangements respecting the very important commission of offer of pardon and negotiation, in which he and you are joined, make that very doubtful; and therefore the transports will probably proceed under convoy of the Preston, on board which Commodore Hotham hoists his broad pendant.

Lord Howe will, it is hoped, not be detained many days here, and, therefore, there is the greatest probability that, if the embarkation should proceed without him, his Lordship, being in a single ship, will arrive before the troops, and in time to settle all the arrangements that may be necessary to be made in consequence of their destination.

I have already acquainted you (in my letter of the 28th March, of which I now enclose a duplicate) that the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments would probably embark about the 20th instant. They are certainly by this time all on board, and, I hope, ready to sail from the Clyde; and, enclosed, I send you a copy of my letter of orders to Sir William Erskine, the commanding officer of those corps. His Majesty has been pleased to give the rank of Colonel in America to him, that he may be employed by you as commanding the Brigade of Highlanders. You can be no stranger to his character as an officer, though you may not have served in the Army with him. You may depend upon his answering your expectations, in whatever service you may employ him.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN ROGERS.

Annapolis, April 27, 1776.

SIR: We this moment received the original, of which the enclosed is a copy; and as matters of a very interesting nature have lately been discussed in Congress relative to our Province, which will be laid before the next Convention, it will be very proper that as many of our Deputies should be here as can be spared from Congress, to represent what passed there. We request you will comply with the within requisition, if possible.

We are, &c.

To John Rogers, Esq., Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO BENJAMIN HARRISON, JUN.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having ordered two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to be sent to you for the use of the Continental troops, I do myself the pleasure of forwarding the same herewith.

By the enclosed receipt you will perceive I have paid Messrs. Willing & Morris, of this city, forty thousand dollars, which you will consider as part of the two hundred and fifty thousand. The money is packed up in three boxes and committed to the charge of Captain West.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Benjamin Harrison, Jun., Esq., of Berkeley, Charles City County, Virginia.

P. S. I have also forwarded, by this opportunity, to the Committee of Safety of your Colony, fifty thousand dollars, to be exchanged for specie. Should they be so successful as to get more than that sum in specie, I have requested them, by order of Congress, to draw on you for all they can procure above it; in which case, you will take care that their drafts are duly honoured.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You will receive herewith the sum of fifty thousand dollars, which I am commanded by Congress to request you will use your utmost endeavours to exchange into specie, in order to remit it to the Continental Treasurers.

I beg, however, you will not confine yourselves to that sum, but exert yourselves to procure all the specie in your power. Should you be so successful as to get more than fifty thousand dollars in specie, you will please to draw for all such sums on the Paymaster in Virginia, who has orders to pay such drafts. Your zealous and uniform attachment to the cause of America makes it unnecessary to use any arguments to call your particular attention to this request of Congress.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Committee of Safety of Virginia.

P. S. Please to deliver the enclosed commissions to the Commissary and Mustermaster.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolve of Congress, respecting the Rifle Battalions and Independent Rifle Companies, would have been transmitted sooner, had it not been omitted through a mistake.

I do myself the pleasure of forwarding at this time several resolves of Congress, relative to such parts of your letters as have hitherto come under consideration. I propose writing more fully by Mr. Palfrey, who will set out for New-York on Monday. In the mean time, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington, at New-York.

JOHN ADAMS TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 23d, I received yesterday, and it put me in a good humour, the benefit of which I feel to this moment, and shall continue to experience a long time.

Were you idle enough to read the tales in the London papers and magazines a few years ago, concerning the Cock-Lane Ghost, and the others concerning a man of six feet high who leaped into a quart bottle and corked himself up? Do you remember that a great part of the nation, perhaps a majority, believed these marvellous lies to be true? If you recollect these things, you will not wonder that the tales of Commissioners to treat with Congress should have gained credit with many in America, nor will you wonder that many pretend to believe them who do not.

I think with you, that it requires a faith which can remove mountains to believe that liberty and safety can ever be hereafter enjoyed by America, in any subjection to the government of Great Britain. Dependence and subordination to Great Britain, always indeterminate and nonsensical expressions, if they mean anything, must now mean perpetual animosity, discord, civil war; encroachment and usurpation on one side, and discontent, mutiny, sedition, riot, and resistance, on the other; unless it terminates in downright submission, and that no doubt would be followed with persecution and imprisonment, scorn and insults, blocks, halts and gibbets.

Your opinion of Indians, and the best policy in our management of them, may be right for anything that I know; but as I know little of them, I always leave the measures relating to them to gentlemen who know a great deal. It is said they are very expensive and troublesome confederates in war, besides the incivility and inhumanity of employing such savages, with their cruel, bloody dispositions, against any enemy whatever. Nevertheless such have been the extravagancies of British barbarity, in prosecuting the war against us, that I think we need not be so delicate as to refuse the assistance of Indians, provided we cannot keep them neutral. I should not hesitate a moment in this case.

That we have been a little tardy in providing for Canada is true, owing to innumerable difficulties. However, we have been roused at last, and I hope have done pretty well. If you think we have not, let me know it, and whatever you may think further necessary, if it is not done, it shall not be my fault.

I am grieved to find the least intimation of langor among my countrymen in fortifying Boston and its harbour. I have not written a letter since we received news of your success in driving the enemy from that town, without stuffing it with exhortations as well as plans for the fortification of that harbour. Warren writes me that they have sent a Committee to fortify the harbour, so that I hope it will be done. I hope General Washington will send one.

Your opinion of the difficulties General Howe will meet with in attempting to get up the St. Lawrence early, gives me great comfort. God send him wind and sea enough.

Am sorry to learn there are so many Tories where you are. They must be watched. But there is one measure which I think should lessen the number of them. If the Provincial Congress and Committee of Safety could be convinced of the propriety, utility, and necessity of following the virtuous and glorious example of South-Carolina, in instituting a complete Government in that Colony, I think there would be a great revolution of sentiment in the city, and through the whole Province, and most of their divisions and distractions removed. The Tories will have a pernicious influence, and will be indefatigable in their intrigues, insinuations, and cabals, in every Colony, while every one of them holds an office under a King. When "thrones, dominations, principedoms, powers," in the language of Milton, are excluded from their ideas of Government, Toryism will be disarmed of its sting.

You ask me what you are to think of Robert Morris? I will tell you what I think of him. I think he has a masterly understanding, an open temper, and an honest heart; and if he does not always vote for what you and I should think proper, it is because he thinks that a large body of people remains, who are not yet of his mind. He has vast designs in the mercantile way; and no doubt pursues mercantile ends, which are always gain; but he is an excellent member of our body.

Pray continue to write me, for a letter from you cures me of all anxiety and ill-humour for two or three days at least, and besides that, leaves me better informed in many things, and confirmed in my good resolutions for my whole life.

Yours without disguise, &amp;c.

JOHN ADAMS.

To General Gates.

P. S. There is a Major Wrixon here, a fine sensible fellow, a Field Officer in Germany last war, a man of letters, sense, and spirit, the best principles. I wish you were a Major-General and he Adjutant-General. What say you to it?

JOHN JAY TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress having been informed of a very extraordinary oath ordered by Governour Tryon to be administered to passengers in the late packet, whereby they bound themselves not to disclose anything relative to American affairs except to the Ministry, have appointed a Committee (of which I am one) to ascertain this fact.

I must therefore request of you, gentlemen, to appoint proper persons to examine into this matter, and, if possible, ascertain the truth of the report, by affidavits taken before the Mayor, or one of the Judges of the Superior Court.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN JAY.

To the honourable the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York.

JOHN JAY TO COLONEL MCDUGALL.

Philadelphia, April 27, 1776.

DEAR COLONEL: Accept my thanks for your friendly letter of the 16th instant, and its enclosures, which contain useful as well as agreeable information. I am glad to see New-York doing something in the Naval way, and think the encouragement given by your Convention to the manufacture of arms, powder, saltpetre, and sea-salt, does them honour.

Many of the reasons you allege for delaying taxation are weighty, and I confess did not occur to me. It is certainly unreasonable to impose on the city, in its present circumstances, so great a share of the publick expenses.

The late election, so far as it respects yourself, has taken a turn I did not expect, and am at a loss to account for, except on the principle of your holding a military office, or that mutability which, from various causes, often strongly marks popular opinions of men and measures in times like these. But whatever may have been the reason, I am persuaded that the zeal you have shown and the sacrifices you have made in this great cause will always afford you the most pleasing reflections, and will one day not only merit, but receive the gratitude of your fellow-citizens. Posterity, you know, always does justice. Let no circumstance of this kind diminish your ardour; but by persevering in a firm, uniform course of conduct, silence detraction and compel approbation.

I am much obliged to you for your kind attention to my house; and be assured that I shall omit no opportunity of evincing the esteem and sincerity with which I am your friend and humble servant,

JOHN JAY.

To Colonel J. McDougall.

CASSANDRA TO CATO.

I have engaged in the present political controversy with a design to be of service to my country. On an impartial inquiry into the present state of the British Constitution, it appears to me that it is out of the power of the British Legislature to give us security for the future enjoyment of our rights and liberties; and on this ground I have opposed a reunion. I have examined everything advanced by you on the subject, and find them wide of the mark. The point with me has ever been, what will secure our liberties? The question of interest is ever determined thereby. National prosperity and national happiness are incompatible with national slavery. It is of small consequence to America, whether God has granted a King to the People of Britain or not, or whether the Constitution of their Government answers excellently to the inhabitants of that Island, if dependance on that excellent form of Government is big with slavery and ruin to America.

If you mean not to hold your countrymen in suspense until the day of salvation is past, I call upon you to prove that Great Britain can offer any plan of constitutional dependance which will not leave the future enjoyment of our liberties to hope, hazard, and uncertainty, as the Forester has finely expressed it; and that if she can, there is a probability she will. If the one is impossible, or the other altogether improbable, yourself must acknowledge it is time to part.

By the Constitution of Great Britain, the present Parliament can make no law which shall bind any future one. For as the author of Lex Parliamentaria, or Law of Parliament, observes, page 77, when treating of the power and authority of Parliaments, "Though it be apparent what transcendent power and authority the Parliament hath, and though divers Parliaments have attempted to bar, restrain, suspend, qualify, or make void, the power of subsequent Parliaments, yet could they never effect it. For the latter Parliament hath ever power to abrogate, suspend, qualify, explain, or make void, the former, in the whole, or in any part thereof, notwithstanding any words of restraint, prohibition, or penalty in the former. For it is a maxim in the law of Parliament, quod leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant." Therefore should any Parliament give up, renounce, and forever quit claim to the right of making laws to bind us in any case whatever, yet it can constitutionally stipulate for no longer than that one sitting. They have as full power and authority to revive and enforce the claim at their next sitting as if such renunciation had never taken place. Is it wisdom, then, or is there safety in entering upon terms of accommodation with a power which cannot stipulate for the performance of its engagements? If we are foolish enough to do this, must not our future security depend entirely on the will of a British Parliament, i. e. of a British Ministry? This, in my opinion, must form an insuperable obstacle to reconciliation in the mind of every honest man and sincere lover of liberty on the Continent.

A second reason against reconciliation is, that the British Constitution is so effectually undermined by the influence of the Crown, that the People of Britain have no security for the enjoyment of their own liberties, and therefore America can never be safe in being dependant on such a State.

The author of "An Historical Essay on the English Constitution," printed Anno 1771, says: "I shall not hesitate to date the decline of our Constitution from the Revolution. William the Third and his Parliament began the practice of restraining the elective power of the People, by the Legislative authority—a power that might become ten thousand times more dangerous to the elective rights of the People than the Crown could ever possibly be. For whenever the active parts of a Government, founded upon the common rights of mankind, shall usurp a power to restrain or destroy those rights from whence they derive their authority, that State is not far from destruction.

"Thus the primary law of our Constitution, the first principle upon which it was founded, which had stood the test of twelve hundred years, and been the admiration of ages, was now reduced to the common level of a nuisance, to be corrected by Acts of Parliament. Our Legislative authority is, by its own nature, confined to act within the line of the Constitution, because it is only vested with a trust by the People, to the end they may protect and defend them in their rights and privileges. And therefore it is a contradiction in terms to say they have a right to consent to any that may restrain or destroy them. Their consent to this law was a notorious violation of the trust reposed in them." For, "upon this principle our Constitution may be one thing to-day, and another thing to-morrow. It is this, and that, or anything that our Legislative authority, for the time being, shall think proper to make it. But the prevailing faction of those days, after sowing divisions among the People to destroy their power and weaken their force, obtained a law, under pretence of providing for the distemper of the times, by which they have lost—nay, what have they not lost? They have lost the distinguishing character between freemen and slaves! They have lost the distinguishing character of Englishmen! They have lost what the most tyrannical of Kings of England could never force from them! They have lost what their forefathers have been spending their blood and treasure to defend for these thousand years! They have lost the greatest jewel that ever any People possessed! They have lost their constitutional and natural liberty, their birthright and inheritance derived from God and Nature! They have lost their constitutional redress for all their grievances! They have lost their all, their everything, by that damnable Septennial Law."

To my quotations from this invaluable essay, I beg leave to add the following, as perfectly applicable to America; and the foregoing extracts will not only justify, but enforce the doctrine it contains, to every honest heart:

"To deduce our rights from the principles of equity, justice, and the Constitution, is very well; but equity and justice are no defence against power. You must take your constitutional rights under your own protection, and that quickly too, or they will be lost forever. Protect and defend them as the apple of your eye from danger, or as you would your wives and children from destruction. And never desist from using every remedy" in your power, "till you have established them on a foundation never more to be shaken, either by King or Parliament." A Constitution that affords no check against its own servants can yield no security to us.

He who has the nomination of the Officers of Government has the whole power of that Government in his own hand, and may do with it as he pleases. This is abundantly proved by the present ruinous state of Government in every Colony, where the King or a Proprietor had the nomination. Liberty will never flourish in such a Government. "By the Constitution of the Saxon Government (says the author first quoted) no officer, either civil or military, or even ecclesiastical, could be invested in his office, or exercise any jurisdiction or authority over freemen, without the free election of those freemen over whom he was to exercise such authority. And it is for this reason, more especially, that the People of England were denominated free; for that by the ancient Laws and Constitution of the Kingdom, they had this just and natural right, viz: the free election of their Magistrates and Governours; without which our ancestors thought all our liberties were but a species of bondage. For of what use can liberty be to him whose person or estate is subject to officers, &c., set over him without his consent?" How different from, and how much superior to our present form of Government, was the Saxon, or old Constitution of England.

These three considerations form, in my opinion, an insurmountable obstacle against a reunion with Great Britain. The man who has not thought upon these points is ill qualified to judge of the necessity of Independence, or the inevitable ruin attendant on reunion.

My objections are radical, reaching to the root of the evil; and if a radical cure cannot be obtained in one way, it ought to be obtained in another. To skin over the wound would be madness. I therefore once more entreat you either to point out a complete remedy for these defects, and prove it more easily attainable than a complete delivery by a Declaration of Independence, or to give no further opposition to the measure. He who cannot see a fair prospect of removing these defects, and yet wishes to see America return to a state of dependance, has something else in view than the liberties of his country.

CASSANDRA.

N. B. No good man can agree to any terms which will not give perfect security; and a division must therefore be intended by every man who attempts to prepare the minds of the ignorant and unwary to accept of anything else. As every writer on the side of dependance has hitherto studiously evaded the point, it appears they design, if possible, to effect a division. Take care, then, ye good People of America, not to be duped by distinguished Tories.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New York, April 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to your favour of the 25th, delivered to me yesterday, I shall beg leave to inform you that it was my design to have included the Militia of this city in the two thousand or two thousand five hundred men which I thought might be wanted upon an emergency; but whether common prudence may not dictate the expediency of extending your views to a greater number, in case of necessity, is submitted to the wisdom of your Board.

The signals which I intended should convey the first notice of the approach of an enemy's fleet, you will find in the enclosed paper; but if you will please to appoint a Committee of your body, I will desire the Brigadiers Sullivan, Greene, and Lord Stirling, to meet them, and adopt a better, if a better can be thought of. New-Jersey is already advertised of these signals.

If the four battalions which were directed to be raised under the command of the Colonels McDougall, Clinton, Ritzema, and Wynkoop, are placed under the immediate care of the Committee of Safety for this Colony by Congress, I should be glad to know how far it is conceived that my powers over them extend, or whether I have any at all. Sure I am that they cannot be subjected to the direction of both; and I shall have no small reluctance in assuming an authority I am not vested with powers to execute; nor will my solicitude (further than as a well-wisher to the cause) on account of arms for, and returns of, these regiments continue, if they are not considered as within the line of my command. It becomes, therefore, my indispensable duty to be ascertained of this matter, and to know whether these regiments cannot be ordered out of the Colony, for instance to New-Jersey, if necessity should require it.

It would give me singular pleasure to advance you the sum asked for; but the low state of our cash, and heavy demands upon the Paymaster, render it altogether impracticable at this time. The Quartermaster and Commissary are both wanting money, and cannot be supplied; nor can General Ward get what he had sent for to pay the five regiments to the Eastward, till a fresh supply arrives, of which Congress is informed. General Heath, since my arrival here, has obtained a warrant upon the Paymaster for money to replace the sum which your Committee kindly lent him; and, to the best of my recollection, General Thompson told me that he also meant to do the same. These matters shall be inquired into.

With great respect, I remain, gentlemen, your most obedient, and most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Committee of Safety, New-York.

FREE CITIZEN TO THE CHAIRMAN OF NEW-YORK CITY COMMITTEE.

New-York, April 27, 1776.

Mr. GARRET ABEEL:

"Free Citizen" presents his best compliments to you, and informs you that, by Lord Drummond's orders, there were sent to the store of Hugh Wallace, next door to John Morton's dwelling, four cases, which were very heavy, and hooped with iron, containing military stores; the cartman could only carry two at once. I am of opinion there were more than what I saw; therefore please to inform yourself further, as you have it in your power, being the Chairman of the Committee and a good citizen.

To Mr. Garret Abeel, Chairman of the City Committee.

CAPTAIN MILLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-Utrecht, April 27, 1776.

I send you this, by express, to inform that at dawn of day this morning a small sloop came down the river; the sentry on Staten-Island hailed her, as also those on our side; but she would not come to; each of the sentries fired several guns at her, which she disregarded, and passed under a smart breeze to the Asia man-of-war. Our lower sentry informs me that when she came near the Asia she hoisted a blue flag, and they sent out a barge to meet her. I have just observed her going to the Hook. Where she came from I cannot learn, but imagine from New-York. She bore off from our shore so much it was impossible we could stop her passage.

HENRY MILLER, Captain.

To His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, New-York.

THOMAS PALMER TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Fort Montgomery, April 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: After sundry applications to Captain Berrien for cash, by letter from him this day he informs us that it must now be obtained by a draft on the Provincial Congress; and at the same time informs us that there is no money in the Treasury.

A state of what business we have done, and the necessary expense we have gone into, will naturally show the necessity we are in for cash. We have erected one large store-house, forty feet by thirty-four; one barrack, eighty feet by twenty, two stories high, with a cellar under the half of it; a bake-house, sixteen feet by fourteen; a guard-house, twenty feet by fourteen; a large necessary, for soldiers; all which are now completely finished: a barrack, for officers, commissary, &c., forty feet by twenty, to be raised this day; a magazine, twelve by eighteen feet, walls eight feet thick, so far complete as turning the arch on the top will finish it. We have, besides this, timber for another large barrack, eighty by twenty feet, which will be the last we intend building; besides this, we have the timber and plank for the platform of the battery. We have been obliged to send to Albany for two loads of boards and plank. And the boatman's wages for vessels to quarter the soldiers in, besides all the lime and nails which we have had engaged in the country, have been necessary articles; all which have amounted to a considerable sum, and we are daily dunned for cash, and have it not in our power to satisfy these demands on us, without your assistance. We have, however, already advanced one hundred pounds, of our own cash, to such persons as have been most in necessity.

From the above state of facts, you will easily conceive that we must soon have a supply of cash, as not only the necessary materials for the buildings, but many workmen, want their pay; we therefore desire you will furnish us with one thousand pounds, in cash, and please to pay it to the bearer hereof, Captain John Berrien, and charge it to us, for the use of the Continent at this post.

The battery goes on pretty well, considering the assistance we have had. We have one line for mounting cannon complete, except the platform, which in a day or two will be finished. Another line, calculated to mount seven cannon, the parapet complete, and the merlons above half up; but we seldom make out more than between eighty and ninety labourers per day, although we have part of five companies here—four Continental and one Minute company—but two of them only are full, and they are Captain Belknap's and Captain Billings's; Captain Swartwout's has now about twenty-two, and Captain Rosekrans's forty men; Captain Drake's Minute company is reduced from fifty-seven to thirty-three men, by means of his men inlisting into the Continental companies. Numbers of the men are sick, deserted, and gone home on parole, which reduces the labourers to the above number; and those that do turn out as labourers, for want of proper officers to command them, do but little, they conceiving themselves by no means under the command of the Commissioners. The little time we had Captain Cushing to command here, the men laboured well. Captain Billings, with his company, is ordered to join his regiment, and sets out on Monday next; when he is gone we shall have but a small party for labourers. I am of opinion that, in case we could have to turn out every day one hundred men, and the men under such command as to work faithfully eight hours in a day, we could complete the whole work to be done here in about six or seven weeks, at farthest, from this date; that is, by that time the batteries would be complete to mount thirty-five or forty cannon, and the buildings will be complete in less time. But cash we must have, and beg you will furnish Captain Berrien with it as soon as possible.

I am, gentlemen, with due respect, your most humble servant,

THOMAS PALMER, for self.

Mr. Gilbert Livingston is now in the country on necessary business for the use of this garrison.

To the Committee of Safety, New-York.

GENERAL THOMPSON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, April 27, 1776.

SIR: I arrived here on Thursday, and the whole party got up yesterday. Colonel Greaton's Regiment marched yesterday, and I have ordered Colonel Patterson's to follow him to-day, Bond's to-morrow, and Poor's on Monday; but as there are not more boats than will transport the baggage of one regiment at a time, and those boats cannot go to the Half-Moon and return the same day, I am apprehensive I shall not be able to march more than one regiment in two days.

I passed Fort Montgomery in the night, and had not an opportunity of viewing it; but, from what I can learn, it would be proper to send an Engineer there, to see how the works are laid out, and the plan executed.

Colonel Baldwin writes your Excellency concerning intrenching tools, and Captain Badlam writes to General Gates about artillery-men, &c. The bearer, Captain Van Buren, will immediately proceed to this place with such articles as you may think proper to order for Canada, and I believe everything they have mentioned is very much wanted.

As soon as Colonel Patterson's Regiment marches from hence, I shall go to the Half-Moon, and see that carriages are provided to forward the troops from that place; and shall take every method in my power to reach Quebeck as soon as possible, though, from the many carrying-places and embarkations, I am doubtful whether we shall arrive in less than three weeks.

I have not heard any intelligence from Canada that can be depended on, but believe, if I can get to Quebeck with my party before General Carleton receives reinforcements, all will be well.

I understand that cash is much wanted, and pork very scarce to the northward. I hope a sufficient quantity of both will be sent us.

Doctor Adams, of the Eighth Regiment, having resigned, Colonel Poor requests Mr. William Parker may be appointed in his stead, if agreeable to your Excellency.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
WILLIAM THOMPSON.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.
Fort George, April 27, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I had the honour to receive your favour of the 15th instant, at Ticonderoga, on the 25th, on which day the remainder of Maxwell's, De Haas's, and Burrell's Regiments, moved from thence. I stayed to see St. Clair's and their baggage across the portage and embarked, and at six in the evening set out for this place, which I reached at five yesterday morning.

Being restricted by Congress to build no more than one hundred batteaus, and eighty of these being occupied by the troops above-mentioned, General Thomas, the Commissioners, the artillery and stores, provisions, and Captain Stephens's company, with the mortars and shells, I have only twenty new ones left, and thirty-seven of those built last year; the whole of which will carry no more than fifteen hundred. I have, however, ventured to construct an additional number; and such a number of carpenters are now employed as will daily build for the conveyance of fifty men. Hence, I hope no considerable delay will be experienced; but I fear the troops in Canada, when joined by those coming up, will be in want of pork before a supply can be thrown in, as we have not one hundred and fifty barrels of pork left at this place and Ticonderoga, and those that are gone in could not take more than one hundred barrels, exclusive of ten days' provisions, which was issued to them at Ticonderoga.

Yesterday afternoon, Bennett delivered me your Excellency's letter of the 19th. I find the troops are arrived at Albany, and I fear they will be much retarded in their march to Skeneborough, for want of carriage, as all the forage in this country is expended, and the grass only begins to peep. The season has been remarkably severe. The ice had not left the lake on Friday last, when we crossed, so that we were obliged to break through the ice for many miles.

Enclose you a copy of a letter received on the 25th from General Arnold, together with a return of the troops before Quebeck; the first I have had from Canada.

I am perfectly in sentiment with you, my dear General, that we ought to engage the Indians to co-operate with us; but I fear it will be a difficult, if not an impossible task to accomplish, unless Canada should be entirely in our possession. You will be able to form an idea of their present temper and disposition from the enclosed copy of a journal of Mr. Deane, the Interpreter.

I have written to Mr. Wisner for powder, and hope he will send some; there is much too little in Canada. The licentiousness of our troops, both in Canada and in this quarter, is not easily to be described; nor have all my efforts been able to put a stop to those scandalous excesses. I shall, however, continue to give the most pointed orders, and shall hope for a more becoming conduct in future.

I have reason to think that General Thomas, who left Ticonderoga on Sunday, will reach Quebeck to-day or to-morrow, and that the Commissioners will arrive about the same time at Montreal. They parted with me on Wednesday, with a fair wind.

Our military chest is exhausted, and we are deeply involved in debt. Ten thousand pounds will hardly pay what I am personally bound for on the publick account. Should it be replenished by Congress, how is it to be drawn out for the current expense of the day? as I cannot be justified in granting warrants whilst I have the happiness to find your Excellency in this department, without your leave and approbation; and yet the force of necessity will oblige me to trespass, before I can be honoured with your commands on this head.

The vessels on Lake Champlain are sufficient to convey five hundred men to St. John's; but no sailors are yet arrived. The Convention of New-York have been written to long since to send them.

A vile ague seized me some days ago, but Doctor Franklin and the other gentlemen administered such a number of doses of Peruvian bark, that it has left me, and hope that I shall last at least this campaign. I shall not fail to advise you of every occurrence in this quarter.

Before I heard of your arrival at New-York, I ordered all Colonel Clinton's Regiment, which is levying in the vicinity of Albany, to this place and Ticonderoga, excepting two companies, which I judged it prudent to leave in Troy County. I also directed Colonel Wynkoop, with three companies of his, to repair to Ticonderoga. These will be barely sufficient to send on the provisions and stores for Canada, and open a communication by the way of Wood-Creek to Lake Champlain, which Congress has ordered me to do; but I fear those troops will not come up, as I find General Putnam had already ordered them to New-York. I shall be under the disagreeable necessity of detaining Van Schaick's Regiment (which is also raising in the neighbourhood of Albany, and is destined for Canada) at these posts, until relieved by those I have mentioned, or some other.

If half of those to be employed on the communication to Canada are supplied with arms, it will suffice, as four-fifths of them must be constantly at some kind of labour.

I am, with the most affectionate and respectful sentiments, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Besides the above, part of Porter's, Burrell's, De Haas's, and Maxwell's Regiments, had not reached Canada, when General Arnold's return was made.

Montreal, April 20, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I hope you will pardon my neglect in not writing you for so long a time, when I acquaint you that I have, from time to time, communicated every material intelligence to General Wooster, who, I make no doubt, has transmitted the same to you. The 1st instant he arrived at the camp before Quebeck. On the 2d, I had, on an alarm, occasion to mount my horse, who unluckily fell on me, and violently bruised my lame leg and ankle, which confined me until the 12th, at which time I left the camp, and arrived here yesterday. Had I been able to take an active part, I should by no means have left the camp; but as General Wooster did not think proper to consult me in any of his matters, I was convinced I should be of more service here than in the camp, and he very readily granted me leave of absence until recovered of my lameness.

Enclosed is a list of our force before Quebeck; which I am sorry to say is so very inconsiderable, and illy supplied with every requisite to carry on a siege, that I am very dubious of their success. The 2d instant, we opened a battery of three guns, and one howitzer, on Point Levi; another battery of six guns, two howitzers, and two small mortars, on the Heights of Abraham, and one of two guns at the traverse, were nearly completed when I came away. To supply the whole, there are only three or four tons of powder and ten or twelve of shot, no Engineer, and few artillery-men. Two fire-ships—one at Orleans, and one at Point-aux-Trembles—were nearly completed, to attempt burning their ships, as soon as the ice will admit of it. We have few seamen (and not one good commander) to man those vessels, or I should conceive great hopes of their success.

Our Army are supplied with provisions to the 10th of May, after which time their only resource for meat is from below. This country (which is not plentiful at best) is nearly exhausted of beef. We can procure a supply of flour, if furnished with cash. I am now stretching our credit for that purpose, which is at a low ebb.

I cannot help lamenting that more effectual measures have not been adopted to secure this country in our interest, an object which appears to me of the highest importance to the Colonies. Colonel Hazen, who is a sensible judicious officer, and well acquainted with this country, has shown me his letter to you of the 1st instant. I am sorry to say I think most of his remarks but too true; and that if we are not immediately supported with eight or ten thousand men, a good train of artillery, well served, and a military chest well furnished, the Ministerial troops, if they attempt it, will regain this country, and we shall be obliged to quit it; the fatal consequences of which are too obvious.

On my way up I carefully examined the Rapids of Richelieu, fifteen leagues above Quebeck, which appear to me a very important post. The channel runs near the shore, and few ships can go up without anchoring near the shore, at the foot of the Rapids, where a battery of ten or twelve guns, and three or four gondolas above, will, in my opinion, effectually secure the pass, as no ships larger than a frigate can go up. I have despatched Lieutenant Johnson, of the train, to Crown-Point, for four eighteen and eleven twelve-pounders, with what shot are at that place, for the above purpose, as we have very little time to fortify. I have directed him to bring down a gondola, which, I am told, is at Crown-Point. We ought to have six or eight of them immediately, to secure the river, and prevent our communication being cut off with the Army before Quebeck. The row-galley that was at St. John's has been driven over the fall and stove to pieces, and the gondola cut to pieces, so that we have only one gondola, mounting a twelve-pounder, in a shattered condition. Timber and plank for those ordered to be built here have been procured, and nothing will be done until they arrive from below. Intrenching tools are much wanted; we have very few.

I have found it necessary to order Colonel Bedel, with two hundred men, to the Cedars, a very important post, fifteen leagues above this, to prevent any goods being sent to the upper country, and to guard against a surprise from the enemy or their Indians. I have also sent a Captain and sixty men to Carrinyon. We have left at this garrison about five hundred men, about half of whom are waiting an opportunity to return home. We are waiting with the greatest anxiety to receive supplies of money and ammunition from below. Everything is at a stand for want of those resources, and if not obtained soon, our affairs in this country will be entirely ruined.

I am, with great respect and esteem, dear General, your obedient and humble servant,
BENEDICT ARNOLD.

EXTRACT OF A JOURNAL, ETC.

March 21st, 1776.—Set out from Kanonwaroharo in company with the Oneidas and the deputation from the seven Tribes in Canada, to attend the meeting of the Six Nations at their Central Council-House at Onondaga. In our way we stopped at Kanaghshorage, a small village inhabited by the Onondagas and Tuscaroras, about sixteen miles west of Oneida. Here we spent four days. The two first were taken up in condoling the death of Tharondawagon, the principal Tuscarora Sachem, who lately died at the German Flats. We were joined in the condolence by a large party of the Quigogas, who overtook us here on their return home from the Settlements upon the Mohawk River. The two last were waiting for replies to several messages, which, both before and after our arrival, had been despatched from this place to Onondaga. The Mohawks, it seems, who came from Niagara to attend the Congress at Onondaga, in one of their drunken frolics, threatened to take my life if I presumed to appear at the Council. The Sachems heard it with concern; and, as soon as they were sober, asked them whether it was really their fixed design. They assured the Chiefs it was, and that my life should end upon my arrival at Onondaga. The Sachems seeing them determined in their bloody purpose, immediately despatched an express to this place, to prevent my proceeding any further, declaring that my death would be the certain consequence of my appearing at their meeting. This the people of the place informed us of upon our arrival, and also that they had immediately despatched a messenger to Onondaga, desiring to know what they intended to do in the affair, and whether they thought themselves able to recapitulate the speeches made by the Commissioners, without any assistance; adding, that if they could do it themselves, they would consent to my being absent. They assured us that they expected an answer every minute. But no answer arriving, the Oneidas despatched another message to the Onondagas, desiring to be informed whether it was their full determination that I should not attend the Council, and declared that they would not move from this place until they received an answer. While we were waiting, arrived Little Abraham, the Mohawk Sachem, on his way to the meeting, accompanied by a certain Mohawk lately from Niagara, who was confederated with the murderous villains at Onondaga.

There was a meeting called upon their arrival; when Little Abraham publicly questioned the Mohawk, whether he knew of any such designs being formed against me. He assured him it would be in vain to lie or equivocate in the affair, for that the truth would appear. The fellow appeared somewhat embarrassed, but at last confessed that they had, in their way from Niagara, in conjunction with some of the Senecas, agreed to make me a prisoner if I came to Onondaga, or to kill me in case my friends should interpose in my behalf. They seemed not only to think his account true, but that the Onondagas too much favoured their wicked designs, otherwise they would, before now, have banished those evil-minded persons from their Council-Fire, and have desired us to proceed.

No news arriving from Onondaga, my friends sent another message to the Onondagas, desiring an immediate answer to their first message, and Abraham, the Mohawk, engaged to talk with his deluded countrymen, and if possible dissuade them from their cruel purpose.

The 25th instant, a messenger arrived from the Onondagas, desiring us to proceed forward directly, assuring me that I need not be under any apprehension of danger, for that these evil-minded persons had laid aside their wicked design. This message arrived towards evening; whereupon a Council was immediately called, consisting of the Oneidas, Caughnawagas, and Tuscaroras, in which it was concluded best that I should proceed with them to Onondaga, after they had engaged to defend me to the utmost of their power should any violence be offered me, though they finally submitted the matter to my own determination. A sense of duty induced me to proceed.

The female Governesses of the town, and those who were present from Oneida, hearing of my purpose, took the matter into their consideration, and about eight in the evening presented the following speech:

"BROTHER: We, the female Governesses, take this opportunity to speak a word, and let you know our minds. In truth, our hearts have trembled and our eyes have not known sleep since you have been here, while we consider the danger that appears to us to threaten you at Onondaga, and the dreadful consequences that must ensue, should some fatal blow be given you. We desire you to consider well of those things, and to return back from this place."

To which the following answer was made:

"SISTERS, FEMALE GOVERNESSES: I sincerely thank you for what you have said and the concern you appear to have for my safety; but, Sisters, possess your minds in peace, and let it not offend you if I do not comply with your request. I am sent by the great men upon important business, and must proceed as far as directed."

Early the next morning a messenger was despatched to the Onondagas, to inform them of our numbers, and desire them to provide us lodgings upon our arrival.

We were met on our way a few miles from the town, and informed that we could not all be accommodated together, but must be disposed of by two and three in a place. This I perceived was very disagreeable to my companions, nor did they fail to express their suspicions of some unfriendly design. A consultation upon the affair was immediately held, in which it was determined to encamp all together abroad. We marched from this place in an Indian file, as usual, only with this difference, that the warriors were directed to march together, and take me under their particular care. In this form we travelled till we came within about half a mile of the Council-House, where, about sunset, we encamped in a grove, the hemlocks furnishing us with beds. The next day passed in constant, though fruitless expectation, of being called to the Council; but none of the Sachems were to be seen or heard of, for father Bacchus, it seems, had called them to a party of pleasure, in order, beforehand, to make some compensation for the tedious abstinence they had to observe during the business of the meeting.

On the 28th we were called to the Council. This day was employed in their usual introductory speeches, viz: to wipe the tears from each other's eyes mutually, to cleanse each other's seats from blood; and, lastly, quite to remove that load of grief which obstructed their utterance, that they might freely disclose their minds to each other. After these ceremonies were over, I made a short speech to the assembly informing them of my business into their country, by whom sent, &c. They appeared well pleased, and the Speaker thanked me that I had come, and desired me to be under no apprehension of danger, but possess my mind in peace; adding, that he hoped I would send for something to wash the taste of the tobacco out of their mouths. To which it was answered, that no provision had been made for that purpose, as it was taken for granted that those who kindled the Council-fire always provided wherewith to wash the mouths of those whom they had called to sit around it.

The 29th: returned again to the Council. The business of the day was introduced with speeches of condolence addressed to the Caughnawagas and Tuscaroras. After they were ended, Teyawanronde, the Onondaga speaker, answered the speeches of condolence made by Mr. Butler and the Senecas upon the death of Otgwendagoghte and several others, who were killed in Canada last summer by the arms of the United Colonies. Several new trees, as they expressed it, were then raised in the room of those who were fallen, and their names published to the Six Nations; after which Sakayongwaraghton, the Seneca Sachem, in a speech he made to the Oneidas, informed them that he had heard they had been to General Schuyler to ask leave to go to Niagara, take Mr. Butler prisoner, and bring him down to Albany; and also, that the General was well pleased with their proposal, and thanked them for their friendship and zeal, and promised them a reward of two hundred and fifty dollars if they would present him with either Mr. Butler's person or scalp. He then advised the Oneidas, in case the report he had heard was true, carefully to think what they were about, and not to prosecute their designs any further. The Oneidas, in vindication of their conduct, repeated the whole affair from first to last, and showed that the report was false and malicious. They acknowledged they had heretofore interposed in favour of some of their old friends and neighbours who had involved themselves in trouble on account of their practices against the Colonies, but now declared to the whole Confederacy that they never would do it again in any instance, but let the white people conduct their own affairs as they pleased. Then ended the business of the day.

30th.—Five speeches of Colonel Butler were repeated in publick. The first was to put them in mind of the Council-fire kindled last summer at Oswego, that they might recollect the speeches then made them. In the second, he desired them to consider and weigh, as it were in a balance, the speeches that should be made to them both by himself and the Bostonians, that they might see (agreeable to the Indian expression) who spoke most of peace. In the third, he told them that he was much grieved and almost ready to weep to see the division of sentiment that subsisted among the Six Nations, and begged of them to heal the breach, and become of one mind. The fourth informed them the King would cross the sea two months hence, to talk of peace with the Bostonians, and that if they would not listen to him, he would then chastise them. He also advised his brethren, the Six Nations, to observe a perfect neutrality in the present quarrel, and to mind nothing but peace. Lastly, he informed them, in his fifth speech, that he was about to kindle a Council-fire at Niagara, both for the Six Nations and the Western Tribes, one month and a half hence, when he would speak to them of nothing but peace.

The above is the substance of Colonel Butler's speeches to the Indians at the late meeting held at Niagara, as they were repeated by Sorighhovane, a Seneca Sachem, who closed with declaring that he had now unburdened his mind, and laid the whole of Mr. Butler's speeches before the assembly. But two of the Mohawks, who were present at Niagara when the aforesaid speeches were delivered, declared soon after at different times and to different persons, that the Senecas had concealed one of Colonel Butler's speeches. And one of them told another Mohawk, a friend of mine, that the reason of their concealing it was because I was present, and that he would publish it himself before the meeting was dissolved, if the Senecas did not. This the Senecas were informed of, which soon proved productive of another speech, addressed in the name of the Senecas, Onondagas, and Mohawks, to the other three tribes of the Confederacy, and proposed to their consideration.

The 31st was taken up in uniting the minds of the Confederated tribes, and in mutual assurances of their fixed determination to observe a strict neutrality in the present quarrel; and that they would invariably pursue the paths of peace, and also in framing replies to Colonel Butler's speeches.

April 1st.—A speech was addressed in the name of the Senecas, Onondagas, and Mohawks, to the other tribes in the Confederacy, in which was proposed to their consideration the propriety of addressing the Commissioners directly, representing the distressed situation the Six Nations were reduced to, for want of clothing, powder, &c., and to request a trade as usual, particularly that the door might be opened at Que-beck, for goods to pass that way into their country. The passage at Fort Stanwix was also to be mentioned, which they were to desire not to be stopped. This was proposed to them, and the propriety of making such an address submitted to their determination.

The affair was deferred until to-morrow. This afternoon the speeches delivered by the Commissioners, at a late treaty held at Albany, were repeated to the whole assembly, who were convened for that purpose, upon a large green before the Council-House. The speeches seemed to engage their attention, and pretty general approbation, though it appeared to be the opinion of the Council, that the belts were not to be returned, or exchanged, as the Commissioners had desired that their talk might remain at Onondaga, as a testimony to after generations of the love and affection of the Twelve United Colonies. Upon our return to our encampment this evening, the subject of the address was introduced, and unanimously disapproved of by the Oneidas, the Tuscaroras, and the deputation from the seven tribes in Canada.

The next morning, the Quigogas came to see their brethren, the Oneidas, and desired to know their sentiments respecting the propriety of the address. The Oneidas answered, that they had disapproved of such an address at present, and could wish to have the Six Nations exercise patience a little while longer, and defer the matter till some future meeting, at Albany, which they expected would be some time the ensuing summer. The Quigogas were much dissatisfied with this reply, and insisted that the address ought to be presented as soon as possible, upon the meeting of the Council.

The Oneidas, in a decent manner, delivered their sentiments respecting the matters submitted to their determination, together with their reasons, &c., and desired it might at least be deferred till some future meeting, at Albany. The Senecas, Onondagans, and Mohawks, immediately went out to consult upon the affair. While they were out, the account of the reduction of Boston arrived; and upon their coming in, being told that I had received a letter from General Schuyler, desired to hear the contents of it directly. I read them the speech addressed by the General to the Six Nations, giving an account of the above important transaction. A variety of passions appeared in the faces of the assembly upon the recital. Some seemed much elated with joy, and others as much depressed with vexation and disappointment. Tegawanonde, the Onondaga speaker, then proceeded to answer the Oneidas, and finally declared that such a speech should be addressed to the Commissioners, in the name of the whole Six Nations; adding that there would be an alteration in their minds, if their requests were not complied with. Saghnagenrat, an Oneida Sachem, then rose and expressed his joy and thankfulness, that they had determined to petition for a trade, as usual; to desire that the passage by Fort Stanwix might not be shut up by the forces of the United Colonies; but particularly, that they had determined to have the door open for goods to come up from Quebeck. He assured them that he rejoiced at the prospect of the King's finding a passage that way into the country of the Six Nations, "who will then (said he) be a happy people indeed. And as for your belt, by which you mean to speak, it will, upon the first sight of it, bear away the mind of Thoniyoudakayon, (General Schuyler), and you will, without doubt, obtain your whole request." This ironical form of address was heard in much silence by the opposite party, though I suppose they will, notwithstanding, persevere in their design.

Saghnagenrat then addressed himself to the whole assembly, and assured them that the Oneidas and Tuscaroras were unalterably fixed in their determination not to interfere in the present quarrel, or endeavour to obstruct or hinder, by words or otherwise, any of the military operations of the contending parties, while they themselves were uninjured; which was fully confirmed by a speech delivered by one of the principal warriors of the Oneida and Tuscarora tribes.

The Oneidas, &c., could not account for the perseverance of the Senecas, &c., in their design of addressing the Commissioners, any other way than by supposing that Colonel Butler had made a speech to them for that purpose, as afterwards, by the confession of a particular person, appeared really to be the case; and was, I suppose, the speech which the Senecas concealed from the publick, on account of my being present.

This day the Council-fire was extinguished. This evening the Quigogas came to see us, and settled all difficulties subsisting between them and their brethren, the Oneidas, and renewed and strengthened their ancient covenant of brotherhood, &c.

3d.—Set out from Onondaga, and arrived safe at Oneida, without meeting anything very worthy of observation.

The above sketch of the late transactions at Onondaga are respectfully submitted to the honourable Commissioners for Indian Affairs, in the Northern Department, by their very humble servant,

JAMES DEANE.

GENERAL THOMAS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Montreal, April 27, 1776.

SIR: I have been so unfortunate, by reason of the lakes being blocked with ice, as not to be able to reach this city until last evening; and the troops which were at Albany and Fort George, waiting for the opening of the lakes, have not yet arrived on this side; but as they are on their way, hope to see them in a few days.

I have endeavoured to inform myself from General Arnold, and other gentlemen in this city, of the state of our Army before Quebeck, and in other parts of the Province of Canada. I find that the troops who engaged only to the 15th of April are mostly on their return home, and cannot be prevailed upon to continue longer in the country; and by the information given me, have no reason to expect that when those who are on their way here shall arrive, the whole will much exceed four thousand, exclusive of the small number of Canadians, who have, and are likely to engage in the Continental service.

The artillery, powder, &c., are not yet arrived, and little or no preparations made, as I expected there would have been, for the defence of the country; not an artificer, as I can find, for building boats or floating batteries, which are, in my opinion, very necessary to defend the river, nor a person who understands the use of artillery, except those who are confined in Quebeck. The provisions are not more than sufficient to victual the troops to the 10th of May, and the Continental currency has but little credit, which makes it extremely difficult to discharge the debts contracted among the inhabitants, whose dispositions are not so friendly as heretofore, owing partly to their not being paid so punctually for their services as they were promised, and partly to their disappointment in not seeing the number of troops coming into the country which they had been taught to expect. When I mention the quantity of provisions, I mean the provisions already here, exclusive of three hundred barrels of pork which General Schuyler is sending forward.

The Committee of Congress have not yet arrived; and unless, on their arrival, they can give credit to the Continental currency, we shall be subjected to many inconveniences. I am not at present able to make out a perfect return of the troops here, but shall as soon as in my power.

From the situation of things, your Excellency will judge whether double the number of troops mentioned above will be more than sufficient for the defence of this Province, should there be a reinforcement of the Ministerial troops, as there is the utmost reason to suppose there will be, as soon as the navigation of the river will permit, especially considering the little dependance that is to be made on the Canadians.

I should have been happy could I, consistently with truth, have given a more pleasing account of the state of our affairs in Canada; but it is my duty to represent facts as they are.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN THOMAS.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, April 27, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with your two letters of the 20th and 22d instant. Of the lead ore which is raising at Middletown, in this Colony, but a small quantity is yet smelted. The work is going on, and hope you may be supplied with lead from thence ere long. We are not furnished with as experienced workmen as we could wish; the only workman whose experience may be depended on is at present unfit for duty.

Some arms are wanted to furnish our troops at New-London; we have nearly sufficient for that purpose. When these are supplied, hope we shall be able to furnish some for the Continental service. Our Assembly is near sitting. Shall consult them on the subject of your requests.

The quantity of powder arrived in this Colony on Continental account is not so large as was represented. This Colony has powder arrived in Philadelphia, which is proposed to be exchanged for what is here. Whether this will take place, am not yet acquainted. I promise myself that this Colony will be refunded the quantity mentioned in mine of the 16th February last, which was lent for Continental service: the security of this Colony renders it absolutely necessary.

The account I mentioned to you at Norwich, I have desired the Commissary-General to receive the money for; the vouchers are already transmitted, and I suppose are in your hands.

I am, with great esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 4, 1776.]

Lebanon, April 27, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 12th instant, with the commissions, &c., directed to our General Assembly, are received, and will be laid before them; likewise another of the 17th, with the enclosure for Commodore Hopkins. After perusal, I immediately sealed and forwarded it, agreeable to direction. I wrote to Mr. Shaw to furnish me with intelligence, that I might act agreeable to the spirit of the resolves of Congress. Enclosed is a copy of his letter and enclosure to me.

Fortifying the harbour of New-London, and securing the navigation of the Sound to the Colonies, are objects which demand the most serious and early attention.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of Congress.

New-London, April 25, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is an invoice of the weight and size of thirty-four cannon received from Admiral Hopkins, ten of which are landed at Groton, viz: three twenty-four-pounders, two eighteen-pounders, and five twelve-pounders. The remainder are at New-London, and are mostly fitted on carriages. He has landed a great quantity of cannon ball, and shall pick out such as are serviceable. Mr. Ledyard, I suppose, has carriages already made for the guns at Groton; so that we shall have the carriages, rammers, &c., ready to pay a compliment to any of the British ships, let them come as soon as they please.

The mortars and shells General Washington desired might be sent to New-York; and the Admiral has sent them. The remainder of the cannon are partly sent to Newport, and part on board the fleet, which he wants to carry to Newport. I showed him the resolve of Congress relative to their being delivered here; but he says they cannot be taken out.

The nine-pounders are but ordinary guns, the others are all very good and new. Colonel Knox, a gentleman whom General Washington desired to take a particular view of the harbour, thinks that it would be best to have four of the twelve-pounders mounted as field-pieces—two on each side of the river; which you will consider of.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN.

To Governour Trumbull.

P. S. When all the shot and iron wheels are landed, will send you an account of the number of each and size.

Invoice of thirty-four Cannon, received of Admiral HOPKINS, viz:

3 twenty-four-pounders, 2 eighteen-pounders, 5 twelve-pounders, sent to Groton; 8 twenty-four-pounders, 2 eighteen-pounders, 4 twelve-pounders, 10 nine-pounders, left in New-London. The nines are old poor guns.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, April 27, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour of your Excellency's letter of the 18th instant, and immediately took measures for carrying your designs respecting the vessels into execution.

I have enclosed a letter, containing accounts, &c., from Doctor Brown; and an account from Mr. Singletary, and wait your directions respecting them. There are several accounts, similar to Mr. Singletary's, yet unsettled. Should your Excellency approve those accounts, they cannot be paid until the arrival of more money.

I am, sir, your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

Boston, April 27, 1776.

To His Excellency General WASHINGTON:

SIR: The Petition of Stephen Brown, Physician, humbly sheweth, that on the 23d of September was passing up Kennebeck River, and was called upon by Mr. Joseph Farnsworth, Commissary of the Provincials, (bound on an expedition to Quebeck,) to attend all the sick that came within the sphere of my visitings up and down the river, and strictly enjoined it on me to attend them with the utmost of my skill and vigilance. I, according to his desire, attended all that came within the compass of my practice, and traveled even to the distance of fifty miles up river above Fort Halifax, and twenty miles down river at Brunswick Fort, with the utmost fatigue, the roads being bad and difficult to find. Prostrating (my accounts with my orders from the Commissary) before you, considering the trouble of traveling from the eastward to Boston, which is no less than one hundred and sixty miles, for my reasonable compensation, leaving my patients at the same time, I hope you will consider me, benevolent sir.

May this be worthy your mature consideration, so far as tends to my honest satisfaction; which is the humble deprecation of your Excellency's obedient and very humble servant,

STEPHEN BROWN.

COLONEL MCINTOSH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Savannah, in Georgia, April 28, 1776.

SIR: I wrote to your Excellency the 16th of February and 8th of March, to which please to be referred; and now enclose you a report of our battalion, made to me this day, which I deferred sending you before, in expectation of our officers coming in with all their recruits; but the distance they were obliged to go rendered it impossible.

I am informed that Captain Colson is on his way, with his company nearly complete; and, with the other recruiting officers, may make above seventy or eighty men more than the report; and is altogether above half the complement of the battalion, which is more than the oldest battalion in South-Carolina can boast of yet, though near twelve months' standing, and their encouragements so much greater, their bounty being twenty-five pounds, South-Carolina currency, with the like sum for clothes, besides their rations and pay, which is also better than ours. And if the ease in which the poorest people generally live in the Southern Colonies, and the prejudice they have to any regular service, on account of the restraint that anything of a strict discipline requires, is considered, I flatter myself your Excellency will think we have not been idle. Chief of the men are enlisted for twelve months; some for eighteen; and a few who would not engage for more than six months, whom I have admitted, as I had no directions about the time, and could not tell how soon we might have occasion for them.

Our Province allows six dollars per man, inlisting money; and, upon application, have raised it now to eight dollars; which is still too little for the bounty of the men, and expense of the officer, whose pay is so small that they can barely afford to live in an extravagant country like this, where there are no kind of manufactures, and the small remains of goods advanced to two or three hundred per cent. Indeed, I fear we shall be at the greatest loss to make out clothing of any kind for them, or, what is far worse, proper arms.

The officers who are not recruiting, employ all their time in training themselves and the battalion; on which spectators are pleased to pay high compliments for the proficiency they have already made, and appearance of the men, &c.

The Raven and Cherokee are the only two ships-of-war which remain now stationed at Tybee, in the mouth of Savannah River; with whom we have no kind of communication.

Several armed vessels infest our other inlets to the southward, and made several captures, which we cannot prevent, as we have not a single vessel of any force; but they have always been driven off the shore when they attempted to get a supply of provision.

We are informed there are two thousand men now in St. Augustine, lately arrived, and that they expect more daily; but this wants confirmation, as I think in that poor, starved Colony, they must be much pinched for provision. This Province is now raising a troop of sixty horse, to prevent their getting any cattle from our Southern boundary; and another troop, of a like number, to protect our Western settlements from the insults of Indians, who are like to be troublesome.

All things considered, I certainly think this Colony should have a considerable force to defend and secure it, as its safety is of the utmost consequence to the great cause of the Continent. The troops of our neighbouring Province are all upon Provincial establishment, and at a distance; therefore, their assistance may depend upon many circumstances.

I have the honour to be your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

LACHLAN McINTOSH.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief.

LACHLAN McINTOSH, Colonel.

Savannah, in Georgia, April 28, 1776.

Colony of GEORGIA:

Whereas the unwise and iniquitous system of Administration, obstinately persisted in by the British Parliament and Ministry against the good People of America, hath at length driven the latter to take up arms, as their last resource, for the preservation of their rights and liberties, which God and the Constitution gave them:

And whereas an armed force, with hostile intentions against the People of this Province, having lately arrived at Cockspur, his Excellency Sir James Wright, Baronet, the King's Governour of Georgia, in aid of the views of Administration, and with a design to add to those inconveniences which necessarily flow from a state of confusion, suddenly and unexpectedly withdrew himself from his Government, carrying off the Great Seal of the Province with him:

And whereas, in consequence of this and other events, doubts have arisen with the several Magistrates how far they are authorized to act under their former appointments, and the greatest part of them have absolutely refused to do so, whereby all judicial powers are become totally suspended, to the great danger of persons and property:

And whereas, before any general system or form of Government can be concluded upon, it is necessary that application be made to the Continental Congress for their advice and directions upon the same; but, nevertheless, in the present state of things, it is indispensably requisite that some temporary expedient be fallen upon to curb the lawless and protect the peaceable:

This Congress, therefore, as the Representatives of the People, with whom all power originates, and for whose benefit all Government is intended, deeply impressed with a sense of duty to their constituents, of love to their country, and inviolable attachment to the liberties of America, and seeing how much it will tend to the advantage of each to preserve rules, justice, and order—do take upon them for the present, and until the further order of the Continental Congress, or of this or any future Provincial Congress, to declare, and they accordingly do declare, order, and direct, that the following Rules and Regulations be adopted in this Province—that is to say:

1st. That there shall be a President and Commander-in-Chief appointed by ballot, in this Congress, for six months, or during the time above specified.

2d. That there shall, in like manner and for the like time, be also a Council of Safety, consisting of thirteen persons, (besides the five Delegates to the General Congress,) appointed to act in the nature of a Privy Council to the said President or Commander-in-Chief.

3d. That the President shall be invested with all the Executive powers of Government not inconsistent with what is hereafter mentioned, but shall be bound to consult and follow the advice of the said Council in all cases whatsoever; and any seven of the said Council shall be a quorum for the purpose of advising.

4th. That all the Laws, whether common or statute, and the Acts of Assembly which have formerly been acknowledged to be of force in this Province, and which do not interfere with the proceedings of the Continental or our Provincial Congresses, and also all and singular the Resolves and Recommendations of the said Continental and Provincial Congresses, shall be of full force, validity, and effect, until otherwise ordered.

5th. That there shall be a Chief Justice and two Assistant Judges, an Attorney-General, a Provost-Marshal, and Clerk of the Court of Sessions, appointed by ballot, to serve during the pleasure of the Congress. The Court of Sessions, or Oyer and Terminer, shall be opened and held on the second Tuesday in June and December, and the former rules and method of proceeding, as nearly as may be, shall be observed in regard to summoning of Juries, and all other cases whatsoever.

6th. That the President or Commander-in-Chief, with the advice of the Council as before-mentioned, shall appoint Magistrates to act, during pleasure, in the several Parishes throughout this Province; and such Magistrates shall conform themselves as nearly as may be to the old establishment, form, and methods of proceeding.

7th. That all Legislative powers shall be reserved to the Congress; and no person who holds any place of profit, civil or military, shall be eligible as a Member either of the Congress or Council of Safety.

8th. That the following sums shall be allowed as salaries to the respective Officers, for and during the time they shall serve, over and besides all such perquisites and fees as have been formerly annexed to the said Officers respectively:

The above is the Report of the Committee ordered to devise a temporary Constitution or form of Government, with the Amendment made in Congress scratched out, April 15, 1776, which Colonel McIntosh begs leave to enclose.

EDMUND PENDLETON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Williamsburgh, April 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In Committee of Safety we have received intelligence from North-Carolina that they are sending off a number of their Tory prisoners, to be kept partly in Pennsylvania, others in your Province, and the remainder in our Province. We have, at their request, sent a guard to escort them (twenty-six designed for Pennsylvania and twelve for your Province) to Alexandria, to which place you will please to despatch directions where you mean to have yours kept, and appoint a proper guard for conveying them, and also for escorting those for Pennsylvania through your Province.

We need not hint the necessity of using caution to prevent their escape, as their return to Carolina may be attended with bad consequences.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,
EDMUND PENDLETON, President.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

List of Prisoners destined for MARYLAND.

1. Captain William Garner.
2. Aaron Vardie, Wagonmaster.
3. Captain Lyman York.
4. Samuel Devenny, (shot Captain Dent in cold blood.)
5. Stephen Lesney—the same.
6. Frederick Croft—the same.
7. Captain John Piles.
8. John Piles, Jun.
9. Ensign Thomas Brawford.
10. Captain David Jackson.
11. Captain Robinson York.
12. Captain Alexander McCra.
13. Lieutenant Kenneth Stuart.

J. ROGERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

April 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I shall endeavour to comply with the request in your favour received this morning by express. I am just recovering from a severe attack of the gout, and find myself much relaxed and weakened; but I am in hopes of being able to set off on Wednesday next, and of getting to Philadelphia time enough for such of the American gentlemen as intend to be at the Convention, to attend the first day of its meeting.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

J. ROGERS.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

STEPHEN WEST TO GABRIEL DUVAL.

Woodyard, Sunday Night, April 28, 1776.

SIR: Two men of Captain Stone's Company, (Thomas Norris and George Thomas.) stopping here for quarters, I had some discourse with them relative to the troops stationed near us, viz: at Port-Tobacco; and am sorry to hear that they have no arms. I have been so closely engaged at work for other people that I have done but little for myself in fixing and finishing my barrels. I have just heard of one which I think is every way as indifferent as any I shall have. The rest of the bayonets will be better, and most of the guns larger and stouter. Yet this one I think superior to any I have seen made in the country, and every way better finished.

This gun, reckoning only twenty-two shillings and six pence for the barrel, stands me five pounds seven shillings and six pence. Supposing the barrels at Harris's price, (thirty-five shillings,) would bring the piece to six pounds two shillings and six pence; and that would leave me fifteen shillings for my trouble and profit, collecting materials, &c. Few officers, I believe, have so good and well furnished pieces. The Pennsylvania gunsmiths contracted with the Virginia Convention for five pounds six shillings and three pence, with wooden rammers, and the sample no way comparable to this. My barrels have all been proved. If the honourable Council of Safety chooses to take what I have at the price above, of six pounds two shillings and six pence, I will engage to furnish a quantity in a short time, (say fifty,) equally good and well finished; and many of them every way much better. Some I have that belonged to the troops under Forbes and Stanwix, that I think superior to any I ever saw, every way. These are in hand, repairing and fixing; and when done will be wonderfully large and good. I paid a high price for them, and cannot afford them for less than six pounds two shillings and six pence. I shall have many fine pieces, fit for officers—guns that cost three and four guineas at London, which I have equipped with swivels and bayonets, and made all very fine and complete. I have had an offer from the Virginia Convention, by their agents, which I decline, our own people wanting. Please to take care of this gun and bayonet, and show them to the Council of Safety. If they think proper to contract with me, I will deal cordially and honourably with them, and put good arms into their hands. The stocks will all be in that taste, but many much stouter and handsomer.

I want brasses for mounting. You see I am forced to put polished iron or steel guards. Mr. Peale will be at Annapolis on Tuesday; if you have opportunity, let me hear from you on this subject, and the opinion and determination of the Council of Safety. These men (the bearers) can give them some account of the valuable pieces we have in hand.

My barrels, in general, are three and-a-half feet long, three-quarters bore, for an ounce ball; but some of them are of a large size. I have also some neat carbines for officers. If the Council choose wooden ramrods, I shall abate five shillings, but the others are far the best. You will see none such as mine, unless in very particular pieces.

I am, with much regard, sir, your obedient servant,

STEPHEN WEST.

To Gabriel Duwall, Esquire.

E. WRIXON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read April 29, 1776.]

Philadelphia, April 28, 1776.

SIR: Having been favoured with Mr. Secretary Thomson's letter, written by order of the honourable the Continental Congress, notifying their appointment of me to the office of Chief Engineer of the Continental Army in Canada, with the rank of Colonel, I must take the liberty to request that you will do me the favour of assuring the Congress of the high and grateful sense I entertain of the honour conferred by their appointment, and also of the unhappy necessity that obliges me to decline it; being convinced by fourteen years' service, during which my whole time and thoughts were directed in the military line, that the rank of Colonel would not enable me to do justice either to their honours, or to myself.

I must now, sir, request that you will be so kind as to excuse the trouble I have given you; and believe that I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your very humble and obedient servant,

E. WRIXON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the honourable the Continental Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM JOHN ADAMS, DATED PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 28, 1776.

Yesterday I received two letters from you, from the 7th to the 14th of April. It gives me concern to think of the many cares you must have upon your mind. Your reputation as a farmer, or anything else you undertake, I dare answer for. Your partner's character as a statesman is much more problematical.

As to my return, I have not a thought of it. Journeys of such a length are tedious and expensive, both of time and money; neither of which is my own. I hope to spend the next Christmas where I did the last, and after that, I hope to be relieved; for by that time I shall have taken a pretty good trick at helm, whether the vessel has been well steered or not. But if my countrymen should insist upon my serving them another year, they must let me bring my whole family with me. Indeed, I could keep house here with my partner, four children and two servants, as cheap as I maintain myself here with two horses and a servant at lodgings.

Instead of domestick felicity, I am destined to publick contentions. Instead of rural felicity, I must reconcile myself to the smoke and noise of a city. In the place of private peace, I must be distracted with the vexation of developing the deep intrigues of politicians, and must assist in conducting the arduous operations of war, and think myself well rewarded if my private pleasure and interests are sacrificed, as they ever have been and will be, to the happiness of others.

You tell me our jurors refuse to serve, because the writs are issued in the King's name. I am very glad to hear that they discover so much sense and spirit. I learn from another letter that the General Court have left out of their bills the year of his reign, and that they are making a law that the same name shall be left out of all writs, commissions, and all law processes. This is good news too. The same will be the case in all the Colonies very soon.

You ask me how I have done the winter past. I have not enjoyed so good health as last fall. But I have done complaining of anything. Of ill health I have no right to complain, because it is given me by Heaven. Of meanness, of envy, of littleness, of ———, of ———, of ———, I have reason and right to complain; but I have too much contempt to use that right. There is such a mixture of folly, littleness, and knavery in this world, that I am weary of it; and although I behold it with unutterable contempt and indignation, yet the publick good requires that I should take no notice of it by word or by letter. And to this publick good I will conform.

You will see an account of the fleet in some of the papers I have sent you. I give you joy of the Admiral's success. I have vanity enough to take to myself a share in the merit of the American Navy. It was always a measure that my heart was much engaged in, and I pursued it for a long time against the wind and tide, but at last obtained it.

You take it for granted that I have particular intelligence of everything from others, but I have not. If any one wants a vote for a commission, he vouchsafes me a letter, but tells me very little news. I have more particulars from you than any one else. Pray keep me constantly informed what ships are in the harbour, and what fortifications are going on. I am quite impatient to hear of more vigorous measures for fortifying Boston harbour—not a moment should be neglected. Every man ought to go down, as they did after the battle of Lexington, and work until it is done. I would willingly pay half a dozen hands myself, and subsist them, rather than it should not be done immediately. It is of more importance than to raise corn.

If the small-pox spreads, run me in debt. I received, a post or two past, a letter from your uncle at Salem, containing a most friendly and obliging invitation to you and yours, to go and have the distemper at his house, if it should spread. He has one or two in his family to have it.

The writer of Common Sense and the Forester is the same person. His name is Paine, a gentleman about two years ago from England, a man who, General Lee says, has genius in his eyes. The writer of Cassandra is said to be Mr. James Cannon, a tutor in the Philadelphia College. Cato is reported here to be Doctor Smith, a match for Brattle. The oration was an insolent performance. A motion was made to thank the orator, and to ask a copy; but opposed with great spirit and vivacity from every part of the room, and at last withdrawn, lest it should be rejected, as it certainly would have been, with indignation. The orator then printed it himself, after leaving out or altering some offensive passages. This is one of the many irregular and extravagant characters of the age. I never heard one single person speak well of anything about him, but his abilities, which are generally allowed to be good. The appointment of him to make the oration was a great oversight and mistake.

The last Act of Parliament has made so deep an impression upon people's minds throughout the Colonies, it is looked upon as the last stretch of oppression, and that we are hastening rapidly to great events. Governments will be up everywhere before midsummer, and an end to Royal style, titles, and authority. Such mighty revolutions make a deep impression on the minds of men, and set many violent passions at work. Hope, fear, joy, sorrow, love, hatred, malice, envy, revenge, jealousy, ambition, avarice, resentment, gratitude, and every other passion, feeling, sentiment, principle, and imagination, were never in more lively exercise than they are now, from Florida to Canada inclusively. May God in His providence overrule the whole for the good of mankind. It requires more serenity of temper, a deeper understanding, and more courage than fell to the lot of Marlborough, to ride in this whirlwind.

COLONEL DAYTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Elizabethtown, April 28, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Having this day, in obedience to order from the General, begun my march for Canada, I have nominated the Reverend James Caldwell for Chaplain; and who, I suppose, must supply the other Jersey Battalion, as there is no other appointed, if he is to serve no more than the battalions. It is the request of Colonel Ogden, who is present, and, I make no doubt, of Colonel Hines likewise, that their battalion may be joined with mine—that is, the First and the Third. Mr. Caldwell cannot get ready to march sooner than next week, and desires that his commission may be sent to him at this place as soon as possible. If the Committee of Safety for this Province had been sitting, perhaps it would have been proper to have saved you this trouble by applying to them; but they are adjourned, and the members say they have not any directions for the appointment of Chaplains.

I am, sir, with all due respect to you, and the other honourable members, your most obedient and humble servant,

ELIAS DAYTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, April 28, 1776, Evening.

SIR: I have the honour of yours of the 26th instant, enclosing a resolve of Congress directing me to purchase and forward to General Schuyler two thousand barrels of pork for the supply of the Army going into Canada. On my arrival in this city I was informed that General Lee had ordered four thousand barrels for the same service, which quantity, since that time, I found was not purchased, but was delayed for want of further orders, as General Lee had left the command here. I conceived that quantity would be wanted in that department; therefore, as want must be guarded against, and pay for the pork seemed a difficulty in procuring it, I immediately engaged to furnish it on the delivery in this place. This I informed General Washington of on his arrival, and he was pleased to approve my engagement. Since that, I find six regiments more are ordered by Congress into Canada; and though you do not mention the two thousand barrels now ordered to be in addition to the four thousand barrels, yet I shall order it in that manner, unless I am directed to the contrary by yours on the return of the post. I am sure the whole quantity of six thousand barrels will be wanted for the forces going into Canada before supplies of the growth of the coming season can be had; however, if Congress should direct otherwise, I shall be glad to receive their orders, which shall always be punctually observed on all occasions by me while I have the honour to serve them.

I received a letter last evening from our mutual good friend, Mr. Burr, announcing the death of the venerable and amiable Madam Hancock, last Thursday morning. I most devoutly condole with you on the melancholy occasion of the death of one of the best of women, and one most deservedly and peculiarly dear to you and your good lady.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL GRIDLEY.

New-York, April 28, 1776.

SIR: It gives me much concern to hear from every one who comes from Boston that those works that were laid out for its defence are in little more forwardness than they were when I left that town. Who am I to blame for this shameful neglect but you, sir, who were to have them executed? It is not an agreeable task to be under the necessity of putting any gentleman in mind of his duty, but it is what I owe to the publick. I expect and desire, sir, that you will exert yourself in completing the works with all possible despatch; and do not lay me under the disagreeable necessity of writing to you again upon this subject.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Richard Gridley.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

New-York, April 28, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 23d instant. The reason why I did not hitherto represent the state of your Colony to Congress was in expectation of your forwarding unto me a sketch of it in writing. I shall take the first opportunity of doing it; and if my recommendation thereof has any weight with that august body, it will give me much pleasure to render service to your Colony. I am very glad that Colonel Knox has taken a view of Newport, and hope the directions he has left will be attended with all the good consequences you mention. We have no Engineer that can possibly be spared from hence; indeed, we are very deficient in that department. The state of this place is such, that had we any more than we have there would be full employment for them. Colonel Babcock's misfortune is truly pitiable. The incontestable proofs which he has given at Cambridge and since of a distempered mind must, to every one acquainted with them, show how unfit he must be to command the forces of your Colony.

I am, with very great regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Cooke.

P. S. The only Engineer we had to spare is sent off to Canada.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL BAYLEY.

New-York, April 29, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 23d instant, with Mr. Metcalf's plan, and Captain Johnson's Journal, of the route from Newbury to St. John's. The representation that was transmitted to me by the hands of Colonel Little, I had sent to Congress. Mr. Witherspoon has been since sent to examine or explore a route; but I hear he is still at Cohoos.

The time of the Congress is so taken up with many objects of consequence that it is impossible for them to attend to everything; and as it is of importance that every communication with Canada should be made as free as possible, it is my opinion and desire that you set about the road you propose as soon as possible. As you must be the best judge, who to employ, you will please to take the whole upon yourself. We cannot, at this time, spare soldiers; you must therefore engage such men as you know will do the business faithfully and well. As to their wages, you must agree with them on the most reasonable terms, and I doubt not that you will, in this and every other instance, serve your country with integrity, honour, and justice. As you go on, you will, upon every opportunity, keep me advised, and I will provide for the expense, which you will be careful in making as light as possible.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Jacob Bayley, Esq., Newbury.

P. S. I send you by Mr. William Wallace two hundred and fifty pounds, lawful money, to begin with.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO GENERAL THOMPSON.

New-York, April 28, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Safety of this place have exhibited an account against the Continent; and, amongst other sums, there is one hundred and twenty pounds charged as being advanced to you. The General has forgotten what passed between you and him in respect to the disposal of that money; he therefore requests the favour of you to inform him the reason as soon as possible. General Sullivan is preparing to join you with six battalions.

Wishing you success, health, and happiness, I remain, with great esteem, sir, yours, &c.

S. MOYLAN, C. G. M.

To Brigadier-General Thompson.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO COLONEL NICOLL.

New-York, April 28, 1776.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th instant, and to inform you that it is not in his power to furnish you with arms, many of the troops here being deficient in this instance. He has laid the intelligence had of you about those at Kingston before the Committee of Safety, but has not yet received their answer.

His Excellency requests your most diligent attention to the works, and that they may be carried on with all possible expedition.

The troops here, when on fatigue, and only then, are allowed a gill each of Continental rum per day. The rations in no other instance are increased.

Enclosed you have a copy of the intercepted letter you sent to his Excellency. The original he will keep himself for some time, and wishes you to make such inquiries respecting it as you may think necessary and prudent and tend to a discovery of the design, and give him the earliest notice of the same.

I am, sir, yours, &c.

To Colonel Isaac Nicoll, Commanding at Fort Constitution.

CAPTAIN BELKNAP TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Fort Montgomery, April 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By the bearer hereof, Ensign Hunter, I send you the Muster-roll of my company, taken by Colonel Thomas Palmer, agreeable to your orders. The Muster-roll will show nine men short of my number, which I have actually inlisted, but are since deserted, and strolling out of the way. I expect soon to collect them, when I shall make out my return to you completed. My billeting bill also comes per bearer. You will please to furnish the bearer with every necessary for my company allowed by the warrant, except blankets, which I have procured. The balance of billeting money I shall expect, and one month's pay for my men I shall be glad to receive, as many of them have families, who are under such necessitous circumstances that obliges me to make advance to them from time to time.

I remain, gentlemen, with esteem, your most obliged and humble servant,

JOHN BELKNAP, Captain.

To the President of the Committee of Safety, now convened in New-York.

THOMAS PALMER TO FREDERICK RHINELANDER.

Fort Montgomery, April 28, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed map I sent down two months ago, and about ten days ago it was found in the boatman's house, not sent. I now send it per bearer, (Mr. Anning Smith.) who promises to deliver it with his own hand. The proper use you know, it being the original partition map. Being in haste, I say no more at present, but am, sir, your most humble servant,

THOMAS PALMER.

To Mr. Frederick Rhineland, Merchant, New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Fort George, April 28, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Last night I was honoured with your letter of the 4th instant, enclosing sundry resolutions of Congress, which shall claim my closest attention the moment the troops under the command of General Thompson are past Ticonderoga. He and they arrived at Albany on the 24th instant.

General Thomas, I have reason to believe, reached Quebeck yesterday. Doctor Franklin and the other gentlemen reached Montreal on the same day, and the last of the troops, with the cannon, military stores, and some provisions, I dare say will be at St. John's to-day. I saw them set out from Ticonderoga on Thursday, and left it myself the evening of the same day, and arrived at four the next morning at this place, where I am doing all in my power to prevent a detention of the troops coming up for want of craft.

Last night I received the enclosed information from Albany, and shall take such measures as, I trust, will effectually defeat the diabolical designs of those miscreants. If any are taken in arms, I think they should be capitally punished, to deter others by the example; but I dare not venture to do it unless I have the permission of Congress.

As General Washington is now in this department, it would be out of order to address Congress on any military subject otherwise than through him. I have lately written to him fully, and enclosed a letter from General Arnold, which will doubtless be laid before you.

The Deputies of the seven Canada tribes, as they passed here, addressed me, and requested to know if they should deliver Johnson's bloody belts here, or in Canada. I directed it to be done in Canada by the Commissioners. Copy of it, with a copy of Mr. Deane's Journal, I shall do myself the honour to transmit you in a few days, being too much engaged at present to do it.

I am, dear sir, with the best wishes, most respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable the President of Congress.

MICHAEL RYAN's testimony respecting inlisting Men for the King of GREAT BRITAIN.

Michael Ryan says he was informed by a friend of his that there were troops raising in this County in the Ministerial service; that Samuel Anderson, of Pownall, has a commission; that Joseph Anderson is a Lieutenant in Sir John Johnson's Regiment, who is to be Colonel; that Joseph Anderson has inlisted a number of men; that Alexander Doyle is a Sergeant; that he was also informed that they had raised twenty-two thousand men in this and New-Jersey Government; and that they had commissions from one Rogers; that he received the above information from Charles Gordon, of Cambridge, a blacksmith; and that there were five men inlisted in this city.

The Committee took the above information into consideration; and thereupon

Resolved, That the said Michael Ryan be requested immediately to go up to Cambridge, and make all the inquiry possible in the above matter.

April 23, 1776.—The said Ryan being further examined, says, in addition, that Alexander Doyle was to march to Sir John's yesterday, with an account of the success of his officers respecting the inlisting of men, and to have two or three Indians to mark the road from Johnstown to Saratoga, or thereabouts, in order to march the troops that are raising for the Ministerial service to Sir John's, to be joined by a number of Indians, to march to Canada to reinforce Quebeck; that one Captain Gray, near Albany, had inlisted upwards of one hundred men. Further says, that John Munro has inlisted upwards of eighty men; and that the said officers swear all the men; and that the pay of the privates is one shilling and six pence sterling, besides two hundred acres of the forfeited lands, wherever they choose to take it; that Sir John has already given deeds or bonds to those inlisted for the performance; that Captain Samuel Anderson has already salted up seven beeves for their use; that there are in this town sixteen barrels of flour, some pork, and some guns, for said use; that Governour Tryon issued out the commissions; and that Sir John is to be General of the said troops. That he had this information from the said Charles Gordon.

MICHAEL RYAN.

Sworn to the 23d of April, 1776.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Providence, April 28, 1776.

SIR: I am to acknowledge your kind indulgence in putting your Colony vessels under my care. The bearer, Captain Niles, has behaved like a good officer—has followed my orders, and been beneficial to the fleet. He has now on board some shells and one mortar for General Washington, which he will take out at New-London, or carry to New- York, as your Honour thinks fit; but I believe his schooner would be fitter for service if she were ballasted with iron, which, he tells me, cannot be procured nearer than New-York.

I am, with great respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut, at Lebanon.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, April 28, 1776.

SIR: By Mr. Harrison's letter of the 22d instant, I am informed your Excellency cannot supply me with the cash I wrote for. I am very sorry, as there are many demands on the Commissary and Quartermaster, which are not all of a late date. I have made out warrants for the payment of the five regiments here, for the month of February, and have found it necessary to give warrants for the payment of the men on board the Hancock, Franklin, and Harrison, privateers; otherwise they must have been hauled up.

I have made inquiry respecting the arrival of powder at Cambridge, since your Excellency's departure, and am informed by Mr. Barber that none has arrived.

I have given all attention in my power to the works. The fortress on Fort-Hill is in good forwardness; there are now eight twenty-four pounders and two twelves mounted and furnished, ready for action. The Court agreed to have a fortress built at Castle-Point, which is nearly finished, and I intend to have the cannon mounted in it this week. The work at Charlestown-Point, I expect, will be completed in seven or eight days. Our works and other business have been much retarded for want of teams.

Captain Fellows, (the gentleman I sent to Beverly to view the ship Jenny and the brigantine,) has just returned, and informed me that he, with Commodore Manly and Captain Bartlett, viewed the above vessels, and are all of opinion that neither of them is fit for the service.

As there are several of the enemy's armed vessels which cruise in this bay that are larger than our privateers, I wish that a ship of sufficient force to take them might cruise this way.

I am, your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

MAJOR HOBART TO RICHARD DEVENS.

Abington, April 29, 1776.

SIR: I have sent you three hundred and thirty pots to Roxbury, to Major Ruggles, to store for you. I should be glad you would send me the cash by Captain Brown, of Abington, for yourself and Mr. Robert Harrington. I beg you to move to the House and Council the affair of my making guns for the Province, as it is so great an affair, and so hazardous, that they will consider me in case I should be a great sufferer. I have made four trials, and made one good cannon, and am obliged to repair the furnace with grindstone of our materials, of clay matted. The stones we had stood, but were so badly cut that we put so much clay to make tight, that it run out.

Sir, I am, with respect, your most humble servant, &c.,

AARON HOBART.

To Mr. Richard Devens, Esquire.

N. B. In case the one is sent to Watertown, you may send me one hundred pounds, by Sergeant James Husey, the runner.

To the honourable the Representatives of the General Court, assembled at WATERTOWN:

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: Please to look over the humble petition of William Clark, William Bishop, Alexander Gordon, Charles Hickey, and Peter Mackoy, prisoners, and now confined in Worcester Gaol. Gentlemen, this petition humbly sheweth, that we are very willing to go to work, as we are almost naked, and unwilling to become a burden to the country, but had rather go out and work for our living, when it shall please you, gentlemen, to give orders for our enlargement, as we have been a long time imprisoned. William Clark was taken December 9th, 1775, in a transport, by Captain Manly, and has ever since been confined; William Bishop was taken at Machias, June 12th, 1775, in Admiral Graves's tender; Alexander Gordon, a regular, was taken at Nantasket-Beach, January 1st, 1776; Charles Hickey, a regular, taken at Charlestown, January 8th, 1776; and Peter Mackoy, a regular, taken July 17th, 1775, at the advance-post, Bunker-Hill.

Gentlemen, we humbly beg you will look over the petition of your humble servants, and grant us our enlargement.

We are yours.

Worcester Gaol, April 29, 1776.

LONDON COMMON COUNCIL.

At a Common Council holden at Guildhall, on Monday, the 29th of April, 1776,

Resolved, That the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor be requested to move the following Resolution in the House of Commons: "That his Majesty's Colonies in America be continued upon the same footing of giving and granting their Money as his Majesty's subjects in Ireland are, by their own Representatives." And the other Representatives of this city, and such other members of this Court as are members of Parliament, are requested to support the same.

ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE EXPORTATION OF ARMS, ETC., TO AMERICA.

Brussels, April 29, 1776.

An Ordinance has been published here, prohibiting the supplying the English Colonies in America with Warlike Stores, and also the exportation during the term of one year of Warlike Stores from the sea-ports; of which the following is a translation:

"MARIA THERESA, &c., &c., &c., to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

"Our most dearly beloved brother, the King of Great Britain, having required us to take proper measures for preventing the subjects of the Provinces under our dominion in the Low Countries from furnishing succour to the inhabitants of the English Colonies in America, actually in rebellion against their mother country; and as, in consequence of the friendship and good understanding subsisting between us and his Majesty, we are desirous to testify to him our zeal to second the views which so greatly interest the good of his service; we have, by advice, &c., ordered and decreed, and do order and decree the points and articles following:

"Article I. We forbid all our subjects, of what rank and condition soever, to furnish, directly or indirectly, by their own ships, or by foreign ships, any succour to the Americans, subjects of Great Britain, in Artillery, Arms, Powder, Flints, or other Ammunition, or Implements or Instruments of War, under pain to the offenders of the confiscation of such effects, and a fine of one thousand florins, to be paid by the Captain or owner, whose ship may be detained and sold for the recovery of the said fine.

"Art. II. We forbid provisionally during the term of one year, under the same penalties, the exportation of every kind of Arms, Ammunition, Instruments, or Implements of War, from our sea-ports, without a special license from our Council of Finances; which shall not be granted but on examination of the case, and taking the necessary precautions to ascertain the destination of those effects, and to prevent their being transported to the English Colonies in America.

"This we give in command, &c."

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM WILMINGTON, NORTH-CAROLINA, DATED APRIL 29, 1776.

By two men who arrived here last night, after making their escape from the men-of-war below, I find there are a number of prizes, to the amount of thirty sail. They say five transports arrived a few days past from Corik, being part of a fleet of forty-five sail, viz: thirty transports, ten store-ships, one fifty-gun ship, two frigates, and two bombs, with nine regiments on board, destined for this place; which are expected to land when the whole fleet arrives. This is generally believed here, as the ships were seen off on Monday by the pilots. The Militia, who have been but a few days discharged, are coming in fast, and who, with the Continental forces already here, will be able to make a good stand.

PETITION OF DR. POTTS.

[Presented 29th April, 1776, and referred to Mr. Harrison, Mr. Rutledge, Mr. Goldsborough, Mr. Paine, and Mr. Rodney.]

To the Honourable the Delegates of the United Colonies in Congress assembled:

The Petition of JONATHAN POTTS, Doctor in Physick, sheweth:

That upon an application lately made in behalf of your petitioner to be appointed Director of the Hospital intended to be erected for the Army in the Middle Department, your Petitioner was encouraged by many Members of your honourable House to hope for such appointment, as soon as it should be found necessary to form such an establishment; that, by the movements of the Army since that time, it appears the Hospital under the direction of Doctor Morgan will be placed in the Middle Department, and your petitioner is informed it will be necessary to establish one in Canada.

He therefore prays he may be appointed Director of the Hospital there; and hopes, by a constant and faithful discharge of the trust reposed in him, he will merit the approbation of the honourable House. And he will ever pray.

JONATHAN POTTS.

ADDRESS TO THE FREE AND INDEPENDENT ELECTORS OF PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, April 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Were any words capable of expressing the importance of exerting yourselves to maintain the character I have addressed you by, I could wish, from the bottom of my heart, to find them, and set them in due order before you. I tremble to reflect what a party there is in this City, who, either in plain words or tantamount insinuations, espouse the cause of tyranny. You have read their insidious publications; you have remarked their zeal for a reconciliation and a reunion with Great Britain on constitutional principles. This proposal, gentlemen, is a mere phantom, a lure, a pitfall to catch you in. In the first place, no man ever did or can show what this constitutional dependance on Great Britain is, or can be, which will secure our liberties. And, in the second place, no terms have been, nor at all probably will be offered us, besides those of unconditional submission to the supremacy of the Parliament in all cases whatsoever. Certainly no better have appeared from the other side the water; and, when pressed on the subject, the sticklers for reconciliation acknowledge they know of no other, and yet urge you to maintain our connection with Great Britain upon the best terms we can obtain. If such men are not advocates for absolute tyranny, I have no conception of the meaning of the words. To be commercially connected with our friends in Great Britain would doubtless be very pleasing to us all; but to be subject to the destroyers of British as well as American liberty, is what none but an ignorant slave, or an insidious tool, would propose and strive to persuade you.

The Constitution of this Province is the Shibboleth of this very loyal party. Every sensible man must know that the King of Great Britain had so material a share in the government of this Province, that the legislative nor executive powers in it can proceed one ace without him; and well did a worthy Grand Juror object to inquiring anything respecting the crown and dignity of a man who has rendered the idea of a crown detestable to the whole Western World. The Constitution is, therefore, (by the breach of Royal faith in refusing to govern according to solemn compact with all his people,) broken to pieces; and the Committee of Inspection were greatly right in proposing to call a Convention to take the state of the Province into consideration. It is easy to judge from what quarter the proposal for a more equal representation at last came. It was concluded this manœuvre would have a tendency to quiet the people, by taking one of the most unanswerable objections to the present Administration out of their mouths. You cannot, however, forget that this partial redress was a very late one, and only conceded to prevent a radical reformation.

The Patriots, notwithstanding, persuaded themselves that, in the then critical situation of affairs, it was best to acquiesce in a measure which they hoped would keep us united, rather than risk a dissension in the too violent opposition to rooted prejudices, which was necessary to clear the way for the re-establishment of a real free Constitution, on the only firm basis of our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. But remember, fellow-citizens, that, in the transaction of May 1st, you are to consider yourselves as rather acting upon a renewed system, than with too scrupulous attention to any unreasonable custom that may have crept into your old one. On this head you will suffer me to be something particular. The custom has been to deny the right of voting to all persons who have come from Germany, &c., until they have been naturalized, and taken such oaths as men nowadays much object to; and, what seems peculiar to this city alone, all men below the estate of fifty pounds are precluded. Now, I must profess myself of the Forester's opinion, that every man in the country who manifests a disposition to venture his all for the defence of its liberty should have a voice in its Councils. Persons so object as to have neither will nor sentiment of their own are readily distinguished, and cannot give much trouble. Burgesses, according to the excellent author of an Historical Essay on the English Constitution, "were elected by every resident inhabitant that paid his shot and bore his lot."—p. 28. This, I will affirm, is the ancient, free Constitution, which every honest man will venture his blood to restore. "There were three things," says the same author, in the next page, "essentially necessary to form a Saxon Government, which they applied to every case where a combined interest was concerned; and these were, a Court of Council, a Court of Law, and a Chief Magistrate. A Court of Council, to consider what was for the benefit of the whole society." Now, such a Court of Council can hardly be expected from a Qualification Law like that of Queen Anne, vesting the elective power only in the hands of the opulent. To such a pernicious partiality it is owing that the poor in England are loaded with excises on the indispensable necessities of life. Every man who pays his shot and bears his lot is naturally and constitutionally an elector in a city. And, more especially, I will affirm, that every citizen who has armed and associated to defend the Commonwealth is and should be an elector; and every non-associator and stickler for dependancy on the power that is now in actual depredation of our rights, liberties, and all that is dear to us, should be kept far from our Councils; and, unless they very speedily mend their destructive manners, sent to the haunts of despotism, where they may mix with their congenial spirits, and, with all the gratification of his Infernal Majesty's august courtiers, solace themselves in constant contemplation of human misery.

AN ELECTOR.

TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read April 30, 1776.]

Philadelphia Jail, April 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having the favourable opportunity of Doctor McLean, I would beg leave to lay before the Continental Congress a faithful and true account of the causes and circumstances that induced me to enter on this unfortunate expedition. Lamenting, with the most sincere grief, this unhappy and unnatural contest, and wishing to avoid being active on either side, I endeavoured to remove to my lands I have on the Mississippi, in West-Florida, from the disagreeable scene; but being prevented by some very aggravating and unfortunate circumstances from accomplishing this design, I went to Norfolk, with intention (I own) to join his Majesty's arms, even as a volunteer, until something better should occur. When I arrived there, notwithstanding my own recent injuries, I disapproved of their violences so much that I resolved to follow my profession in the town in a private way; but, unfortunately for me, some expression of moderation of mine to Lord Dunmore and others caused me to be accused of being a spy. This ridiculous suspicion was so strong that Captain Squire threatened to carry me on board the Otter as a prisoner, and his Lordship sent a file of men to bring my servant before him for examination. This being cleared up, and finding that the inhabitants were leaving Norfolk, I had a prospect of being appointed Surgeon of some of his Majesty's ships; but in the meantime being offered the commission of Surgeon to the new regiment on this intended expedition, and persuaded by Colonel Connolly, (whom I never knew before, and conceived to be a regular officer,) I very inconsiderately accompanied him, which I am now sorry for; but then, every concurring circumstance, particularly these suspicions against me, prevented me from refusing. Deceived by misrepresentation and false appearances, I was led into the snare, which proper reflection (had I not neglected it) would have made me avoid. But I absolutely and solemnly disclaim all knowledge of setting the Indians loose on the defenceless inhabitants; that and every other species of inhumanity I deprecate and abhor. I arrived at Norfolk on the 5th of November, 1775; we left it on the 13th; and, on the 20th, were made prisoners in Maryland, where we were closely confined. On the 29th of December I escaped, with despatches for the garrison of Detroit and Illinois, (for purposes which you already know, having got the letters,) and had a bill on Captain Lord for two hundred dollars to supply me with necessaries, being obliged to leave my clothes and go in disguise, not as a reward, which I despise and scorn—in that light no man would have made such an attempt; but from what I have since discovered, I have also great reason to repent this. I was retaken over the Alleghany Mountains on the 10th of January, and immediately brought to this city, where I have been ever since, very closely confined, to the real prejudice of my health, perpetually shut up in a very close, damp room, without air or exercise. I beg leave, gentlemen, to assure you that my health is greatly impaired; that my hands and feet frequently swell up suddenly to such a degree as to be entirely useless for a considerable time afterwards, besides a loss of appetite. I am also very often seized with violent pain and extreme sickness, and fainting, so that unless you will be so kind as to enlarge me, I really think my life will soon be greatly endangered; I therefore earnestly solicit an enlargement on parole as a particular favour in these circumstances. If you will be so good as to grant me this, I solemnly promise that whatever place or terms you may prescribe me shall be most strictly and religiously adhered to.

Understanding there have been injurious reports of me, I also would beg leave to declare, that every party or personal prejudice, pique, or resentment, I absolutely disclaim or despise. Devoted to Britain, and a friend to America, I most sincerely wish for a reconciliation on constitutional principles, and lament the effusion of blood on both sides with unfeigned concern. No man would more cheerfully than I venture his life in the cause of America against any power but Britain, to which education and nature inspire me with a reverential attachment. A sincere friend to freedom, I never wished the liberty of a British subject to be abridged throughout the wide extended empire; and I was so far from thinking the obnoxious acts of Parliament just, or of disapproving of a steady constitutional opposition to them, that nothing could have induced me to join or be active on either side, but the impossibility of remaining neutral. I then engaged in favour of the country to which I was attached by nature and by birth, but with the melancholy and painful reflection that even victory in reality was loss, and with ardent wishes for a speedy and amicable adjustment. These, gentlemen, are and ever have been, my true, undisguised sentiments; and I hope my sincerity will not give offence, being intended only to exculpate myself from misrepresentation. I beg leave again to assure you that I have suffered much by this very close confinement, particularly in my health, which is almost destroyed; and I hope, for that reason, you will be so kind as to grant this earnest solicitation for enlargement. Any restrictions you think proper shall be inviolably observed by, gentlemen, with due respect, your most obedient and most humble servant,

JOHN SMYTH.*

P. S. Being restricted from pen and ink, I am obliged to write with a lead pencil, which probably may render this illegible; if so, I could wish to be brought before you, where I will engage to be as candid as if upon honour, or even on oath.

ALLAN CAMERON TO THE CONGRESS.

[Read April 30, 1776.]

Philadelphia Jail, April 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I make no doubt, from what I have heard lately, but that I have been represented to you in a very odious and desperate light; but in justice to myself must say that few men lament the commencement and dreadful continuance of the present unhappy disputes between Great Britain and her American Colonies more than I do; and no man wishes more for a speedy reconciliation upon an honourable and firm basis, that both may revert to their former happy state, which all the world besides so much envied. However, induced by the opportunity and request of my uncle, Doctor McLean, I shall give you an exact account of the circumstances that caused me to enter upon this unfortunate expedition: Finding a northern climate necessary for the recovery of my health, I took passage from St. Augustine with the Fourteenth Regiment, and arrived in Norfolk some time in October last, still intending to take the first opportunity of proceeding north from thence to Boston, where I meant to have joined his Majesty's Army. His Excellency Lord Dunmore finding this my intention, offered me a commission in a new regiment in this intended expedition with Colonel Connolly, which I accepted; but at the same time must inform you that I never understood, nor have I any reason to think, that Colonel Connolly had any such orders as to bring down the Indians indiscriminately upon the inhabitants, much less upon defenceless women and children, as is reported. And notwithstanding my sincere and real attachment to the British Constitution, I freely own and say, that I would have no share in such an undertaking. On the 20th of November last I was taken prisoner, ever since which time I have been closely confined, so that my health is now greatly impaired thereby; often seized with sudden sickness, pains, faintings, with loss of appetite, and formerly a spitting of blood, and am apprehensive that in a short time even my life will be endangered; for this reason, gentlemen, I would beg the favour of you to admit me to an enlargement on a parole, upon such honourable terms as you may demand, and, if granted, I shall strictly adhere to, until exchanged by mutual agreement or these unhappy disputes otherwise determined.

In great expectation that you will release me from this

* This deplorable condition to which I was reduced at length moved even the iron heart of the Jailer to compassion, and he entreated me to make application to the Congress for the preservation of life; observing, that although he was restricted from allowing me pen, ink, and paper, he would send me a pencil and a card.

Determined never to acknowledge or submit to the authority of the Congress, unless by compulsion, I was much at a loss in what manner or for what purpose to address them; and I concluded only to request that they would either render my confinement supportable, or order me to immediate execution, which I infinitely preferred to my present situation of being destroyed by inches. This I transmitted to them by the Jailer, written with a black-lead pencil upon the back of a common playing card.

They then ordered me to be brought before them; and excepting some insidious attempts to corrupt my principles, behaved towards me very politely, making apologies for what had past, and promising better treatment in future, at the same time declaring their astonishment at my desperate attempt, as they called it, of reaching Detroit or Illinois alone (for I had not divulged the circumstance about Barclay) and on foot, at that rigorous season of the year, through a barbarous and hostile country, and without friends, money, or resources.

But although they promised to render my confinement more supportable, yet I was ordered back to prison almost in the same situation as before, for my situation was very little amended by them.—SMYTH'S Tour, II. 286.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. v.

most disagreeable situation, I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

ALLAN CAMERON.

JOHN CONNOLLY TO THE CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, February 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have for some time past been indulged with the privilege of walking in the Jail for the benefit of the air, and flattered myself that such enlargement would tend to facilitate my recovery; but unhappily find myself disappointed. My infirm state of health and present condition cannot fail to touch the humanity of every feeling individual; and in whatever light I may appear as an enemy, yet my distress as a prisoner, aggravated by the cruel addition of pining sickness, must command the attention of every generous heart.

My difference in political opinion, and the causes instigating me to action, however criminal they may appear, I can, with the integrity of a man of honour, assert arose from a sense of duty and gratitude too powerful to be combatted by any contrary arguments.

I have now languished near four months in close imprisonment, and my physician has never given over his visits as ineffectual towards my recovery without exercise and the open air. I shall not presume to dictate to you, gentlemen, but cannot avoid intimating that my treatment appears particularly severe. Conscious as I am of unblemished honour, when the security of my person is demanded my sensibility is deeply wounded to find you prefer the strength of a Jail to effect that purpose. Political reasons may urge this severity; but permit me to assure you that, whatever may be your determination with regard to me hereafter, I shall be equally ready to obey your summons if enlarged upon parole, as immured within these walls.

If you will be good enough to allow me to attend my brother into the country for the benefit of my health, and prescribe such bounds as you may judge proper, my honour shall inviolably determine me to pursue your directions. However different we are in sentiment, there remains no doubt of the sincerity of his political professions; and therefore in the hands of such a person, who will become responsible for my appearance whenever demanded, my person will be perfectly at your disposal. Whether I am to be admitted to a chance of recovery of health, or sentenced to drag on a miserable existence (possibly) for a few weeks longer, is what I flatter myself you will be kind enough speedily to determine upon.

I am, gentlemen, respectfully, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN CONNOLLY.

March 9th.—I visited Major Connolly yesterday, and found him still so much disordered that I fear nothing will effectually cure him but such exercise as cannot easily be had within the enclosure of the Jail. Riding on horseback, I believe, is the only remedy that will remove the cause of his disorder, which is occasioned entirely by a relaxation of his nerves.

B. RUSH.

COLONEL LOWREY TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Amwell, New-Jersey, April 29, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 20th instant, with the resolve of Congress respecting the purchase of pork. I immediately sent off two men to buy and engage the quantity ordered. I have engaged between five and six hundred barrels, and a quantity of gammons, which shall forward to General Schuyler as fast as possible. One of the men I sent out to buy pork is not yet returned; what he has bought I do not yet know. I shall buy and forward all I can. If my orders had been sooner, it would have been in my power to have purchased the quantity much lower and sooner. I had a large part of it myself, but sold most part of it before I received your orders, for the use of the troops at Amboy and Staten-Island.

I intended coming to Philadelphia myself this week, but am obliged to go immediately to New-York, to pay off and settle with the two Jersey Battalions, who, I am informed, are both ordered to Canada.

Have sent the bearer, Mr. James Wright, for the money; please to give him an order on the Treasurer for fifteen thousand dollars. He will immediately come to me at New-York, as I shall want some of the money to pay off the troops. If any commands, please to write me by Mr. White.

I am, with due regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

THOMAS LOWREY.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE NEW-YORK DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[Read May 2, 1776.]

In Committee of Safety, New-York, }
April 29, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: On the 23d March last we wrote to you upon a subject of the utmost importance: the command of the Marine Department on the lakes. Our application was occasioned by a letter from General Schuyler, a copy of which we then enclosed to you. The General in that letter informed our Congress that, in case Major Douglass should decline that command, there was no person he would more willingly have to command the vessels than Captain Wynkoop; and requested, at any rate, to send him up the soonest possible, with a sufficient number of sailors for the two schooners and sloops. We further informed you, that we immediately sent for Captain Wynkoop, communicated to him the General's letter, and sent him, with a copy of it, to Major Douglass; that he was then in service, and that it would be at least two months before he could attend at the lakes, if his health would permit; that we thereupon wrote him a letter, a copy of which, and of his answer, we also enclosed to you. In our letter to him we also gave him a gentle reproof for his uncertain answer to Wynkoop, and signified that we expected his immediate answer, and in case of his acceptance, he should stand ready for the execution of his duty at a minute's warning, whenever the service should require it. In his answer he informed us: "I told Captain Wynkoop what I now tell you, that whenever I receive orders from the Congress or General, I was willing to comply, if my health would permit; and as Captain Wynkoop is desired by the General to get his men and go up, I beg you would assist and forward him; and if I am not called upon, shall endeavour to serve my country in some station of as much importance as to command the lakes." We further reminded you in the above-mentioned letter, that the season was so far advanced that the service would suffer if the vessels on the lakes were not immediately employed. And conceiving that Major Douglass's indetermination would make room for a new appointment, we took the liberty, through you, to recommend Captain Wynkoop as a person who was bred a mariner, had frequently been master of mercantile vessels, had served with reputation last war, both in the land and sea service; that we then thought him (as we still do) an officer of merit; and that we had heard his conduct in the last campaign highly applauded, conceived him to be worthy of the trust, and that from General Schuyler's letter, the appointment would not be disagreeable to him. We further informed you that Captain Wynkoop would not continue in the marine service under Major Douglass; but that, nevertheless, we had prevailed on him, with the argument of danger that the service would suffer, to engage seamen and proceed to the General with all possible despatch. To this letter we have hitherto not been favoured with an answer; but have heard a report that some order from the Continental Congress has been sent to Major Douglass to repair to the post assigned him. General Schuyler, still attentive to the importance of the service on the lakes, in a letter of the 4th instant to General Thompson, who furnished us with a copy of it, writes thus: "Will you be so good as to request the New-York Congress that the sailors may be sent up without delay." In consequence of this we sent for Captain Wynkoop, being convinced of the impossibility of sending up the seamen without an officer, and engaged him to enlist the men, and to proceed to put the vessels in order, under the present uncertainty of his station, on condition that he be permitted to quit the service in case he should be superseded. Of this we informed General Schuyler, by letter of the 25th instant, of which Captain Wynkoop, who is gone up with his seamen, is the bearer.

After what has been said in recommendation of Captain Wynkoop, we shall presume to say no more than that, in case

Major Douglass should decline, we hope this fresh instance of Captain Wynkoop's zeal for the publick service, added to his former merit, will have sufficient weight with the Congress to confirm him in that command which was destined for Major Douglass.

We herewith send you the Petition and Remonstrances of New-York, for redress of grievances.

Major Benedict, of the first New-York Battalion, conceiving himself unfit for that office, has made a voluntary resignation, by which that Majority has become vacant. On this occasion we conceive it to become our duty to hold up two candidates for the choice of Congress. Major Barnabas Tut-hill, of Colonel Holmes's Regiment, of the last year's levies, and the person who, from an attention to rank, we put on the list of Lieutenant-Colonels for the present levies, is one. He was an officer in the last war, and we have never heard of anything to his disadvantage, either in civil or military character. Captain Marinus Willet was in service during the last war, and was Captain in the last year's New-York levies; and, with an attention to his rank as second Captain in the First Battalion, and when Captain Weisenfels, who was the first Captain, was promoted to a Lieutenant Colonelcy, we recommended Captain Willet for the Majority; but by some mistake, as we conceive, Captain Benedict, the second Captain of the Fourth Battalion, was preferred to him. Captain Willet cannot, in our opinion, have a better recommendation than General Schuyler's letter to us of the 4th March last, which is literally as follows, to wit: "When an officer has acted with remarkable attention and propriety, it becomes a duty in his commander to give publick testimony of it. Such has been the conduct of Captain Willet during the last campaign; he is therefore entitled to the attention of his country." For these reasons we beg leave to hold up Captain Willet as another candidate for the Majority.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient, and very humble servants,

By order: PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT, Chairman.

To the Gentlemen Delegates for New-York, in Continental Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL WARD.

New-York, April 29, 1776.

It is with great concern I learn from every hand, that your works for the defence of Boston and the harbour go on exceedingly slow. I must entreat you, therefore, to push Colonel Gridley on to a diligent and faithful discharge of his duty in this particular. We cannot possibly tell where the enemy will pitch their tents next. If Boston is left open and unguarded, it may be a temptation to go there; but at any rate, no time should be lost in putting the town in the best posture of defence the nature of the case will admit of. I shall be glad, in your next, to receive a particular account of what has been done towards fortifying the harbour.

Four regiments, to wit: Poor's, Patterson's, Greaton's, and Bond's, are already gone off for Canada. Reed's and Stark's will embark this day for Albany, on their route to the same place; and four others will follow in a day or two.

I am, sir, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Ward.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, April 29, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I wrote you on the 24th instant, and now, to inform you that, in addition to the four regiments detached from hence under General Thompson, I am ordered by Congress to send six more. This detachment will be under the command of General Sullivan, and consists of two of the Eastern regiments, (Reed's and Stark's), and of four of these Provinces. The two first will embark to-day, the others will be pushed forward as soon as possible.

I have spoken to the Commissary to send forward a supply of provisions. He says that he is taking measures for that purpose, and that it shall be done. The powder you wrote for I shall attempt to furnish, and as early as in my power, the augmentation of the Army in Canada necessarily requiring a large increase to that which was there before.

The Congress have sent three boxes of money, said to contain three hundred thousand dollars. They are thus far on their way to you, and will be transmitted by General Sullivan. I wish, and doubt not but that you will, make every preparation at Albany for expediting the troops to Canada. The situation of our affairs there calls aloud for despatch and the most vigorous exertions.

A Mr. Ray, of this city, has informed Colonel Ritzema that a Mr. Philip Van Rensselaar has above three thousand stand of arms in his possession at Albany. Do make strict inquiry into the matter, and if any can be had, send them here immediately, Colonel Ritzema's Regiment, and others now raising, being greatly deficient, I may say almost destitute, and without any.

I am, dear sir, with great esteem, yours, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable Major-General Schuyler.

Colonel JAMES REED's receipt for three hundred thousand Dollars, for General SCHUYLER.

New-York, April 29, 1776.

Then received from General Washington three boxes, said to contain three hundred thousand dollars, to be delivered to General Schuyler, at Albany.

JAMES REED.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON.

New-York, April 29, 1776.

DEAR BROTHER: Since my arrival at this place, I have been favoured with two or three of your letters, and thank you for your kind and frequent remembrance of me. If I should not write to you so often as you do to me, you must attribute it to its true cause, and that is, the hurry and multiplicity of business in which I am constantly engaged, from the time I rise out of my bed until I go into it again.

I wrote to you a pretty full account, just before I left Cambridge, of the movements of the two Armies, and now refer you to it. Since that time, I have brought the whole Army which I had in the New-England Governments (five regiments excepted, left behind for the defence of Boston, and the stores we have there) to this place; and eight days ago I detached four regiments for Canada, and I am now embarking six more for the same place, as there are reasons to believe that a push will be made there this campaign, and things in that country not being in a very promising way, either with respect to the Canadians or Indians. These detachments have weakened us very considerably in this important post, where, I am sorry to add, there are too many inimical persons. But as our affairs in Canada can derive no support except what is sent to them, and the Militia may be called in here, it was thought best to strengthen that quarter at the expense of this; but I am afraid we are rather too late in doing it. From the Eastern Army, under my immediate command, it was impossible to do it sooner.

We have already gone great lengths in fortifying this city and the Hudson River. A fortnight more will put us in a very respectable posture of defence. The works we have already constructed, and which they found we were about to erect, have put the King's ships to flight; for, instead of lying within pistol-shot of the wharves, and their sentries conversing with ours, whilst they received every necessary that the country afforded, they have now gone down to the Hook, near thirty miles from this place, the last harbour they can get to; and I have prevailed upon the Committee of Safety to forbid every kind of intercourse between the inhabitants of this Colony and the enemy. This I was resolved upon effecting; but I thought it best to bring it about through that channel, as I now can pursue my own measures in support of their resolves.

Mrs. Washington is still here, and talks of taking the small-pox; but I doubt her resolution. Mr. and Mrs. Custis will set out in a few days for Maryland. I did not write to you by the Squire, because his departure, in the first place, was sudden; in the next, I had but little to say. I am very sorry to hear that my sister was indisposed when you last wrote. I hope she is now recovered, and that your family are well. That they may continue so, and that our once happy country may escape the depredations and calamities attending war, is the fervent prayer of, dear sir, your most affectionate brother,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To John Augustine Washington.

PROCLAMATION

By His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies.

Whereas an intercourse and correspondence with the ships-of-war, and other vessels belonging to and in the service of the King of Great Britain, is highly detrimental to the rights and liberties of the said Colonies:

And whereas the Committee of Safety of the Colony of New-York, taking the same under their consideration, on the 18th ultimo, did resolve and order "That no inhabitant of the said Colony, on any pretence, or for any purpose whatsoever, either in person or in writing, should, directly or indirectly, presume to have or maintain any intercourse whatsoever with any Ship belonging to or employed in the service of the said King, or with any of his Officers or Ministers, or with any person or persons on board the same, on pain of being dealt with in the severest manner;" notwithstanding which, there is reason to believe that sundry base and wicked persons, preferring their own present private emolument to their country's weal, have continued to carry on the same, particularly some who, under pretence of coming to the market of this city by water, have put themselves, their vessels and effects, in the way of the said ships-of-war, for the purposes of giving intelligence, and furnishing them with supplies of provision, and have been taken:

To the end that such evil and pernicious practices may be remedied and prevented in future, I hereby publish and declare, that if any person or persons shall hereafter presume to have, hold, or continue to carry on such intercourse, or any kind of correspondence whatsoever, or furnish and supply the said ships-of-war, and other vessels in such service, with provisions and necessities of any kind, that he or they, so offending, will be deemed and considered as an enemy or enemies to the rights of the said Colonies, and, if apprehended, will be treated accordingly.

And I do hereby will and require all officers and soldiers in the Army under my command, and most earnestly entreat all persons well attached to the interest of the said Colonies, to use their utmost care and diligence for preventing the same, and apprehending and securing all persons who shall be guilty thereof.

Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, in the City of New-York, this 29th of April, Anno Domini 1776.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 29, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 27th, we have received. In answer to which, we would inform you that we shall, as soon as possible, take measures for putting our Militia in such a situation as to afford the Army the most speedy and effectual assistance in our power, whenever you shall think it necessary to call for their aid, either for the defence of this or the neighbouring Colonies.

We thank you for the information respecting the signals, fixed upon below, to give intelligence of the approach of an enemy. We assure you, sir, we meant not by our letter to intimate the least desire of being consulted in that matter, for which the gentlemen of the Army must be more competent than ourselves; but as you intimated that similar signals might possibly be of service in assembling the Militia in the neighbourhood of this city, and the adjacent parts of New-Jersey, we proposed to appoint a Committee to wait upon you, sir, that we might be informed of any plan that you might have thought of for that purpose.

We omitted, in our last, to inform you that we have not been entirely inattentive to the subject of this part of your recommendation. Every regiment of our Militia has its place of rendezvous appointed, and riders are fixed at different stages in this and the neighbouring Colonies, to alarm the country in case of invasion; but if, upon consideration, we shall judge that signals may be of service in calling in our Militia more speedily than can be done in that way, we shall communicate to you our determinations on that head.

We are sorry to find there was a possibility of misunderstanding the passage in our letter respecting the four battalions raising in this Colony. Be assured, sir, that we never considered them as under our direction, except so far as concerned the forming and equipping them; and if you will be pleased to refer yourself to our last letter, the distinction taken therein between the four battalions and Van Schaick's Regiment, will convince you that we meant nothing more than, in obedience to Congress, to have the completing of them for the command of the Continental General; nor do we esteem them so pointedly under our direction in this respect as to exclude your solicitude, as Commander-in-Chief, to have them speedily completed and armed—a solicitude highly becoming your station, and which, instead of affording the least ground for umbrage, serves to heighten the opinion which your former conduct has invariably taught us to entertain of your vigilant attention to the important duties of your office, and of your zeal for the defence and security of the rights of this much injured country. You have an unquestionable right to know the state of the regiments raising in this Colony; and it has given us no small concern that we have not been able to procure the necessary returns from the Counties, (though we have some time since taken the proper steps for that purpose,) to enable us to give you other than a very partial and unsatisfactory information on that head. We enclose you a return, by which you will find the First Battalion is most deficient. The return is from information which came to hand since we had the honour of writing our last letter to you.

We send you herewith a blank warrant, containing our terms of enlistment, which are substantially a copy of the resolutions of Congress. But upon these we would observe, that although it appeared to us that the defence of this Colony was the primary or more immediate object for which the four battalions were designed, yet we took particular pains to inform the recruiting officers that we did not conceive that to be the only object; but that they would be liable to be ordered into any of the neighbouring Colonies, (Canada excepted,) where the commanding officer in this department should judge their assistance to be necessary, for repelling the invasions of our common enemy.

We hope, sir, that the general nature of the cause we are engaged in, the generous attention of the Continent to the defence and security of this Colony, and the readiness of our neighbours to come to our assistance from time to time, when they have apprehended us to be in danger, will serve to exclude from our minds the narrow distinction of Colonies, and teach us to esteem the British Fleets and Armies as much our enemies while on the coasts of Connecticut, New-Jersey, or Carolina, as if they lay in the East River.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this day, enclosing the resolve of Congress on the subject of arming the New-York Battalions. In answer to which, we beg leave to refer you to our letter of the 25th instant, and to assure you that we shall exert ourselves, by every means in our power, for their being properly armed and accounted.

We are, sir, with the greatest respect and esteem, your most obedient and very humble servants.

By order: PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT, Chairman.

To His Excellency General Washington.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Committee-Chamber, New-York, April 29, 1776.

Whereas the honourable the Continental Congress, by their Resolves of the 13th instant, have permitted the sale and use of such Teas as then remained on hand, and upon which no duty had been or should be paid, and to prevent the Tea holders from availing themselves of the scarcity which a stoppage of the future importation thereof might occasion, and exacting exorbitant prices; they resolved that Bohea tea ought not to be sold in the smallest quantity, at a higher price than at the rates of three-fourths of a dollar (or six shillings New-York currency) a pound; a price which this Committee think generous, and will fully compensate the importer for extraordinary expense, risk, and loss of interest by being kept so long unsold; therefore we cannot entertain the least doubt that any person will hesitate a moment to comply with the said Resolve.

And whereas it is further recommended in the said Resolve, that the prices of all other Teas shall be regulated by the Committees of the Town or County where they are sold: This Committee therefore resolve, that Congo ought not to be sold by the smallest quantity for more than sixteen shillings the pound; Souchong for more than twenty shillings a pound; nor Hyson for more than thirty-two shillings a pound; and that should any person or persons in this City or County be found so lost to publick virtue and love of their country, and so stimulated by avarice, as to ask or give more than the aforesaid prices for any of the said Teas; upon proof thereof appearing to this Committee, such delinquents may be assured that, without distinction of persons, their names shall be held up to the publick as violators of the Resolves of the Congress, and enemies to the United Colonies.

A true copy of the Minutes. Published by order of the Committee.

JOSEPH WINTER, Secretary.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

SIR: We are sorry to trouble your Excellency so often, only our health, as well as our duty to our fellow-creatures, makes it necessary, having upon us the strongest symptoms of a contagious distemper; and being confined in a close room, together with three other gentlemen, they undoubtedly have the greatest reason to be apprehensive of its consequences. As we believe it foreign from your intention to endanger our lives, or the lives of others, we should be glad if you will order our case to be looked into.

We remain your humble servants,

THOMAS R. HARRIS, Master's Mate,
WILLIAM METCALFE, Midshipman,

We are, sir, your humble servants,

To the Honourable JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Esq., Governour of the Colony of CONNECTICUT, and President of the Committee of War:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: As Mr. Joseph Hillard has applied to us, the civil authority, Selectmen, and Committee of Inspection, for the town of Killingsworth, to assist in introducing him to your Honour, and the other respectable gentlemen the Committee of War, as a man of industry and mechanical invention, so that his disposition may be indulged, and his abilities exercised for the good of his distressed country, in some proper station and character; we beg leave to inform your Honour, and the rest of the honourable and worthy gentlemen of the said War Committee, that the said Joseph Hillard, the bearer hereof, (an inhabitant of this town,) is a man of steadiness and despatch in business he engages in; is of uncommon genius and readiness of invention in mechanicks and mechanical operations, and has sundry times applied the power of the screw to surprising effect, especially in weighing and getting off vessels, by storms left upon the shore.

As he has been at the expense of furnishing himself with a proper apparatus for the successful application of this mechanical power, both in a perpendicular and horizontal direction, your Honour, with the rest of the Committee, can better judge whether he may not be useful in the Continental Army, in handling heavy cannon, placing them in or removing them from their carriages, as there may be occasion, or in relieving ships from any of those distresses the violence of storms, or the superior force of the British Navy, may unhappily force them into upon our shores.

As he has served two years in the Army last war, and has acquired a general knowledge of the operations of war and military exercises; is also a man of peculiar activity and observation, and is desirous of being serviceable to these United Colonies in some proper and useful sphere; we presume to recommend him to such appointment or direction as, in your superior wisdom, may appear most likely to introduce him into the publick service of these Colonies, in a capacity you may judge him most likely to be serviceable in. As to particular instances of his successful use and application of the screw, &c., he is able, and doubtless will himself give you a just and more circumstantial account, if it be desired.

SIR: David Waterbury, Jun., of Stamford, Esquire, Colonel of a regiment from this Colony in the Northern Department the last year, and at the taking of St. John's and Montreal, and lately in service at New-York, with Major-General Lee; at all times behaved with bravery and honour.

When you have a vacancy in the Army answerable to his rank, do heartily recommend him to your kind notice and regard.

I am, with great esteem and regard, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

SUBMISSION, RECONCILIATION, OR INDEPENDENCE?

"Had the spirit of prophecy directed the birth of a publication," it could not have fallen upon a more fortunate period than the time in which Common Sense made its appearance. The minds of men are now swallowed up in attention to an object the most momentous and important that ever yet employed the deliberations of a People.

There are but three methods we can take: either to submit unconditionally, that is, to the mercy of Parliament; to be again dependant on the footing of 1763; or to set up a Government of our own. Common Sense, like a ray of revelation, has come in seasonably to clear our doubts, and to fix our choice.

As to absolute submission, it would be an insult to my countrymen to show its inexpediency.

The second is more specious; but would prove not much less destructive. Should we revert to our former dependence, that power, which has attempted to conquer us by open force, will doubtless employ her policy to divide us, though a reconciliation were made, the most perfect of its kind; because it is her interest to keep us divided. Disputes about our boundaries will be excited and fomented, and every artifice employed to render a future union impracticable: but if Great Britain should use no endeavours to divide us, Colony will naturally be jealous of Colony, while we have no Continental Supreme Legislature to connect our separate interests, and while every dispute between the Provinces must be carried to that inimical Court, whose interest it is to foment, not to decide the quarrel. That spirit of union in which we are so happy at present, once broken, cannot be easily re-established. Reason tells us, that thirteen powerful States as these Colonies will, separately, be fifty years hence, unconnected of each other—nay, worse, jealous of each other—never yet were, and probably never will be united. This is built on a supposition that a reconciliation can last fifty years; I am persuaded it would not last half the time. I am firmly persuaded, if a reconciliation was effected, and at the end of fifty years we should declare Independence, we should be very little united—nay, not united at all; our property being increased we should be more timid in risking it.

History shows us, that the noblest and most successful stands for liberty have been made by the weakest, poorest, and least populous States: witness Sparta, Athens, Rome in its infancy, Holland, and Corsica the unfortunate. History hardly affords an instance of a Nation's recovering their liberty when they were ancient, numerous, rich, and powerful.

'Tis next to a miracle to bring over the inveterate in an ancient, the interested in a rich, and the parties in a numerous people, to an entire and solid union; the solid union of many distinct Provinces is a phenomenon of the cometary kind—so remarkable, it does not happen for ages; and so fortunate when it does, it would be a wilful murder of posterity not to improve it.

It is acknowledged on all hands, if a reconciliation were to take place that it would be a temporary one. Whigs and Tories confess the Colonies will one day fall off from Great Britain. If this should happen fifty years hence, and the Colonies be disunited, what will be the consequence? Several distinct Empires will be set up. The Southern Provinces may form one, the Northern another, and Canada a third. Perpetual discord, obstinate rivalry, and ambitious contests for dominion, like those of Carthage and Rome, will follow; till the standard of absolute Government is established by the victorious Empire over the rest; and thus, if we neglect the present union, this land of freedom may become as tyrannical as Siam or Bengal.

I appeal to you, O! Philanthropists! who are breathing for peace, and to you, ye Tories! who are preaching dependence, whether the most prudent method for ourselves, and the most peaceful for posterity, is not to set up Independence, and to continue the war till that Independence is established and acknowledged. Those who cannot subscribe to these opinions had better see them at large in that excellent pamphlet, Common Sense, from which they are for the most part taken. It is unnecessary to add, that if we reject the two first, viz: Submission and Dependence, we must of consequence be Independent.

Boston, April 29, 1776.

C. W. F. DUMAS TO DOCTOR FRANKLIN.

Utrecht, April 30, 1776.

SIR: I received on the 6th instant at the Hague, from Mr. Thomas Story, the despatches of the 19th December, 1775, of which he was the bearer.

I am deeply penetrated by the honour done me, and the confidence reposed in me by the Committee appointed by the General Congress to maintain the correspondence between the American United Provinces and Europe, and of which you, sir, are one of the worthy members. I shall die content if the remainder of my life can be devoted to the service of so glorious and just a cause. I accept, therefore, joyfully, the commission you have bestowed, and whatever you may think fit to give me in future; and I promise a hearty good will and an untiring zeal. I hope my ability will justify the favourable opinion you entertain of me. This promise on my part is, in fact, an oath of allegiance, which I spontaneously take to Congress; receive it as such.

When I remarked in my last letter to you, "that all Europe wishes you the most happy issue in your defence of your liberty," I meant the unprejudiced, equitable, humane, European publick; in a word, the citizens of universal society—men in general. You must except from this number the holders of English funds, and those Courts of Europe who have an understanding with England. These, far from assisting you, will sacrifice you to their interests or their fears. The allies which, under such circumstances, are suitable for you, are France and Spain; for it is their interest that you should be free and independent of England, whose enormous maritime power fills them with apprehensions. I have, therefore, opened myself to the French Minister, and a copy and translation of your requests and letters of credence to me have been for a fortnight in his hands. In the conversation I had with this Minister I observed, that the wishes of his nation are for you. He said that there was one difficulty in affording aid to the Colonies: if they should be reconciled with England, they would assist her against the power which had aided them, and would imitate the dog in the fable. I had no reply to make to this, except that, in this case, reasonable beings were concerned; that if they saw the object was not to deprive them of the liberty for which they were contending, but to assure it to them, they would not be so ungrateful as to join, against their benefactors, those who wished to destroy that liberty. Finally, he desired to know from me positively, what I would ask for the Colonies of his Court. I answered, that you wished to be informed:

1. If the King of France would, from motives of humanity and magnanimity, interpose his mediation on behalf of an oppressed people, and effect a reconciliation, which should preserve to them all the liberties they formerly enjoyed.

2. In case such a reconciliation could not be effected, would the Nations subjects of the House of Bourbon, be willing to accede to an alliance with the Colonies, with the advantages of an immense commerce?

He was pleased with the former proposition to offer to his young King the glory of conferring peace on the subjects of others as well as on his own. The other proposition is not disagreeable to him, were it not for the dreadful war which would ensue in Europe. I then delivered to him, together with your letter, a memorial, showing how important it was for France not to allow the subjugation of the Colonies. The whole was sent to his Court about a fortnight since; and if the answer should be delayed, it will be of no disadvantage. Meanwhile, we have gained this advantage, that an opening is made, which must dispose France in your favour, and engage her to tolerate and secretly to encourage even any assistance your vessels can derive from France, Spain, and the Indies. I have, therefore, in the extract, copied exactly what you pointed out to me as the most necessary, as engineers, arms, munitions, &c.

I have done all this with the most profound secrecy. The person of whom I have spoken to you required it from me, and promised it in return, so that no one in this country, excepting he and I, knows anything of it. It is more advantageous to you and safer for me that I should not be known as your agent.

Mr. Story, not daring to take two letters with him to England, one for Arthur Lee, the other for Mrs. Hannah Philpotts Lee, left them in safe keeping with me; and he did well. I learn by two letters, which I have received from Mr. A. Lee, of the 20th and 23d of April, that on Mr. Story's landing in England, they took from him a letter which I had sent by him for Mr. Lee; fortunately it was not signed with any true name, and could give no information to your adversaries. They have, therefore, committed this additional violence to no purpose. I have sent those letters to a friend at Rotterdam, according to the request of Mr. Lee, and that friend informs me, under date of May 3d, that he has forwarded the packet by a Captain of a sloop, one of his old friends, who promised him to deliver them himself to the address which I put upon them by Mr. Lee's directions. The sudden departure of the vessel will prevent me from informing you whether they have been safely delivered. I shall do it by some future opportunity. I joined to the packet a cipher for Mr. Lee, like that I sent to you, but grounded on different words, so that we shall be able to communicate with each other in perfect safety. I informed him, also, that I had the honour of writing you frequently; so that he can send his letters through me, if he has no better way.

I know an engineer, over thirty years of age, able, experienced, and very well qualified not only in his branch, but in the whole art of war; in a word, a fine officer, but very inadequately rewarded. I shall not be able to speak with him for several weeks, when I will propose to him the service of the Colonies. But as he is a widower, without means, and has several children, it will probably be necessary, if he accepts, to make him some advances to enable him to go over. I will give you an account in due time of the conversation I shall have with him.

I have endorsed to-day your bill of exchange of one hundred pounds sterling to the order of M. Rey, Bookseller, at Amsterdam. Good reasons prevented me from doing it sooner and at any other place than Amsterdam. May the conscientious use which I shall make of this fund entirely satisfy your wishes, and the confidence with which you have honoured me. I am persuaded of the generosity of Congress, and I pray Heaven that I may deserve, by my services, to be the object of it, when God shall have blessed their labours for the welfare and prosperity of the Colonies, either by a firm and sincere reconciliation, or by the success of your righteous and just arms. In reality, I hope much more than I fear on this point. The wisdom of Congress, so constantly manifested, the perfect union and harmony which prevail there, encourage me more and more. By this rare, happy, and admirable union, much more surely than by all the alliances in the world, you are, and you will finally be superior to your enemies, however formidable they may appear. Concordiâ res parvæ crescunt, discordiâ maximæ dilabuntur; may this great truth and the sublime words of Themistocles to Euripides, who raised a weapon against him in the Council, "Strike but hear," be constantly present to your minds and hearts, as well as to those of your constituents. What power will then be able to withstand yours? Ascribe the freedom of this address to the enthusiasm with which I am animated for your union, the noblest edifice that liberty has ever reared. In it, centres all that the political world contains attractive for me.

I thank you, sir, for your fatherly kindness to the two French gentlemen. They are young, and ought not, therefore, to entertain even the idea of being an instant a burden to any one, and a useless load to society.

I am very glad that the statement of the points in dispute between Great Britain and the Colonies has been approved, so far as to cause it to be printed for the instruction of your friends the Canadians. This is the only effect of that paper, for the printer not having sold enough of his journals to be at any other expense than the impression, has ceased to pay the author of those pieces. I have obtained his address, for the purpose of engaging him to assist me in refuting the Jew Pinto, whose venal pen has been employed in the most insolent manner against the Americans. A certain person, whom you know, regrets having allowed himself to be dazzled by his financial system, so far as to approve it without reserve in a letter, or advertisement, at the head of the Treatise on "Circulation;" for although there are some good things in it here and there, yet that person has long since been enlightened in regard to many false brilliants, which the Jew passed off for genuine.

As for the Idea on Government and Royalty, I learn with pleasure that it has been agreeable, and that the time will perhaps come when it will receive more attention. This idea renders me more happy and proud than if I had written the Iliad; for I think with Phædrus, nisi utile est quod facimus, stulta est gloria. It is a seed, which I thought myself bound to sow in your country, the only place in the known world where it could spring up. I consider that idea more and more practicable and true, and of all political systems the most completely proof against all objections. It requires only to be developed. God grant that we may soon be able to do it in peace and at leisure. I shall then beg you, sir, with the estimable and learned author of the Pennsylvania Farmer, to correspond with me on this subject, and to prove it, if not to our contemporaries, at least to posterity.

I thank you, sir, for the Journal of Congress from the 10th of May to the 1st of August, 1775, which you have had the kindness to send me; be good enough to complete it by sending what precedes and follows; for we have here nothing authentick relating to your affairs. All that we know of you, we get from the Gazettes, imperfectly, by scraps, in a vague and uncertain manner, a mixture of truth and falsehood.

May 9th.—I have just received the following letter without signature: "You will, perhaps, be tempted to come to the Fair at the Hague. I shall have the honour to renew the expressions of my sincere esteem. I shall be at your orders every day at noon, or sooner, if you will write me from your lodgings to let me know what hour will be most convenient for you. We shall be able to moralize some moments upon subjects which we have already discussed. I have but little to say to you, which I shall do with a sincerity and candour which I trust you will approve."

I shall make this visit Saturday night, so as to return here Sunday night or Monday, not being able to do it otherwise. I shall send this letter to-day to Amsterdam, as they tell me the vessels will else sail without it. I shall therefore give you an account of the conversation in another letter, either by the same vessel or by some other. I am sorry to be obliged to leave you in suspense on a subject so interesting.

Receive, sir, for all the Members of Congress in general, and for yourself, Mr. Dickinson, and Mr. Jay, in particular, the sincere assurances of my profound respect.

DUMAS.

To B. Franklin, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Secret Correspondence.

GEORGIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Council of Safety, 30th April, 1776: Present: John Wereat, Benjamin Andrews, George Walton, John Girardeau, Samuel Salters, Jonathan Bryan, Daniel Roberts.

Resolved, That the following Address be presented to his Excellency the President; and that Messrs. Wereat and Roberts do wait on his Excellency to know when he will be pleased to receive the same.

"GEORGIA:

"To His Excellency ARCHIBALD BULLOCK, Esquire, President and Commander-in-Chief of the Province of GEORGIA: The Address of the Council of Safety for the said Province:

"May it please your Excellency:

"The long session of the late Congress, together with the season of the year, called particularly for a speedy recess; and the House having adjourned while you were out of town, it becomes more particularly necessary for us to address your Excellency. All, therefore, with unfeigned confidence and regard, beg leave to congratulate, not only your Excellency on your appointment to, but your country on your acceptance of, the supreme command in this Province.

"It would be needless and tedious to recount the various and yet multiplying oppressions which have driven the people of this Province to erect that Government which they have called upon you to see executed; suffice it, then, to declare, that it was only an alternative of anarchy and misery, and, by consequence, the effect of dire necessity. Your Excellency will know that it was the endeavour of the Congress to stop every avenue of vice and oppression, lest the infant virtue of a still more infant Province might in time rankle into corruption; and, we doubt not, that, by your Excellency's exertions, all the resolutions made or adopted by Congress will be enforced with firmness, without any regard to any individual, or any set of men; for no Government can be said to be established, while any part of the community refuses submission to its authority. In the discharge of this arduous and important task, your Excellency may rely on our constant and best endeavours to assist and support you."

Messrs. John Wereat and Daniel Roberts, waited on the President; who informed them that he would be ready to receive their Address on to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock.

May 1, 1776.—The Board waited on his Excellency the President, with their Address, to which he was pleased to give the following Answer:

"To the Honourable the Members of the Council of Safety of the Province of GEORGIA:

"HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I am much obliged to you for your kind expressions of congratulation on my appointment to the supreme command of this Colony. When I reflect from whence the appointment is derived—that of the free and uncorrupt suffrages of my fellow-citizens, it cannot fail to stimulate me to the most vigorous exertions in the discharge of the important duties to which I am called by our Provincial Congress. While I have the advice and assistance of gentlemen of known integrity and abilities, I doubt not but I shall be enabled to enforce and carry into execution every resolve and law of Congress. And, as far as lies with me, my country may depend I will, with a becoming firmness, and the greatest impartiality, always endeavour to cause justice in mercy to be executed.

ARCHIBALD BULLOCK.

At a meeting of the Council of Safety, May 2, 1776:

GEORGIA.

By His Excellency ARCHIBALD BULLOCK, Esq., President and Commander-in-Chief of the Province of GEORGIA, in Council:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the honourable the Continental Congress have, among other things, resolved, that the venders of Dry Goods ought not to take advantage of the scarcity that might be occasioned by the Non-Importation Agreement, under pain of being declared inimical to the liberties of America: And whereas, the Provincial Congress have resolved, that whoever shall depreciate the Currency of this Province, shall forfeit all right to protection from said Congress, or any authority acting under it: And whereas, it hath been represented to me in Council that several persons in this Province do, notwithstanding the above resolutions, sell their goods at a most exorbitant price, to the great prejudice of the inhabitants of this Province, especially the poor: I have, therefore, thought fit, with the advice and consent of the Council aforesaid, to issue this my Proclamation, notifying to all persons whom it doth concern, that if they persist in their unwarrantable proceedings they will be subject to the pains and penalties annexed to the foregoing resolutions, and their names published accordingly.

ARCHIBALD BULLOCK.

JOHN DENT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, April 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In conformity to the appointment of George Plater, Esquire, and myself, by your Honours, to co-operate with the Commissioners from Virginia in erecting beacons on the river Potomack, we have fixed the different stations for the same to the number of twenty, whereof thirteen are in Maryland, viz: one in Prince George's, nine in Charles, and three in St. Mary's; averaging about five miles from each other. To accomplish which we have advanced the sum of thirteen pounds and four-pence-half-penny, a moiety of the charge for a boat and hands, together with a draftsman, exclusive of our own expenses; which I flatter myself will be allowed.

We have likewise agreed upon the form of the alarm post; which is to be a kind of an iron grate, suspended by a chain, on the end of a sweep, fixed with a swivel, so as to be turned agreeable to the wind. And as a further sum of money will be wanting to have them erected, which, with submission to your Honours, I think may be done with greater convenience and despatch by the Committees of Observation, (under our direction,) hope you will order the same into their hands, or otherwise, as you may think proper.

I am, gentlemen, with due esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN DENT.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

LUX AND BOWLY TO MARYLAND COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, April 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As Captain Patterson does not choose to proceed in the Fortune, we have engaged Captain Sund to proceed the voyage, with your approbation; and for that purpose he waits on you. The brig is ready, and we think it the fairest opportunity to push out. We send you, enclosed, some letters we just received from Mr. Vanbibber, by which you will see his situation, and that it is necessary to support him.

We would recommend to order the Captain to St. Martin's, as Captain Vanbibber directs. You will please to give the Captain his orders, and despatch him as soon as is convenient.

A gentleman from North-Carolina, yesterday, brings us the account of their taking a tender, with old Goodrick, of Virginia, on board; he saw him put into Halifax Jail; and we have an account to day that the Roebuck is on shore, on a shoal called the Hen-and-Chickens, just to the southward of Cape Henlopen, and that the Province ship, and another, with all the gondolas, were gone down to take her.

We are, most respectfully, gentlemen, your obliged obedient servant,

LUX & BOWLEY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. Please to return Captain Vanbibber's letters.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having accepted the resignation of the Honourable James Warren as Paymaster-General, have been pleased to appoint William Palfrey, Esquire, to succeed him in that Department. I have written to Mr. Warren to acquaint him that there are Superintendents of the Treasury appointed, to whom he is to render his accounts and vouchers. I have also directed Mr. Winthrop to deliver to Mr. Palfrey the cash and papers in his possession belonging to the office.

Your several letters have been duly received, and, as soon as Congress shall have come to a determination thereon, I will do myself the pleasure of forwarding the same, at which time I will write more fully. In the interim, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In order to give success to the expedition into Canada, nothing is so much wanted at this juncture as a supply of specie. General Schuyler says it is absolutely necessary; and the Congress have received from him the most pressing letters on that head.

Should the Army be compelled to evacuate Canada, it is impossible to say what will be the consequences, or where the mischief may end. It becomes us, therefore, as we regard our country and its best interests, to exert every nerve to guard against so fatal an event. For this purpose, and as a step of the utmost importance, I am commanded by Congress earnestly to request you to take the most speedy and effectual measures to collect as much hard money as possible, and to send the same to General Schuyler. Whatever sum you may collect for this use, you will please to draw on me for the amount, and the bills shall be honoured.

The unprepared state of the Colonies on the commencement of the war, and the almost total want of every thing necessary to carry it on, are the true sources from whence all our difficulties have proceeded. The fact, however, furnishes a most striking proof of the weakness or wickedness of those who charge them with an original intention of withdrawing from the Government of Great Britain, and erecting an independent Empire. Had such a scheme been formed, the most warlike preparations would have been necessary to effect it.

From the distinguished ardour and zeal of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay in the American cause, I am persuaded you will pay all the attention to this request of Congress which the importance of it demands.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

[Council of Massachusetts-Bay; New-Hampshire; Governor Trumbull, of Connecticut; Governor Cooke, of Rhode-Island.]

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO WILLIAM WINTHROP.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

SIR: The Honourable James Warren having resigned his commission as Paymaster-General, the Congress have been pleased to appoint William Palfrey, Esquire, to succeed him in that Department. I am, therefore, to request you will immediately deliver to him all the cash and papers in your possession belonging to the office; and am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To William Winthrop, Esquire.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO COMMODORE HOPKINS.

In Marine Committee, Philadelphia, April, 1776.

SIR: As it is essentially necessary for promoting the service that full and speedy information of the state and condition of the enemy's fleet in the different parts of America should be communicated to you, from whence you may be the better enabled to act with vigour and success in your naval department, we therefore write to acquaint you that, from the best information, the force in Virginia at this time consists of the Liverpool frigate, Captain Bellew, of twenty-eight guns; the Otter sloop, Captain Squires, of sixteen guns; the William, an armed ship of ten guns, with Lord Dunmore; the Erlbeck, a large store-ship, with some small guns. It is said and believed that both the Liverpool and Otter are exceedingly weak from the want of hands, their men being chiefly employed on board a number of small tenders fitted out by Lord Dunmore to distress the trade on the coast of Virginia and Bay of Chesapeake. His Lordship has now between one hundred and one hundred and fifty sail of vessels, great and small, the most of which are prizes, and many of them valuable; these, so far from being any addition in point of strength, will rather weaken the men-of-war, whose hands are employed in the small vessels. The force at Wilmington, in North-Carolina, you will observe by the enclosed extracts of letters.

Whether you have formed any expedition or not, the execution of which will interfere with an attempt upon either or both of the above fleets, we cannot determine; but if that should not be the case, there is no service, from the present appearance of things, in which you could better promote the interest of your country, than by the destruction of the enemy's fleet in North-Carolina or Virginia; for as the seat of war will most probably be transferred in the ensuing campaign to the Southern Colonies, such a manœuvre, attended with success, will disconcert, or at least retard, their military operations for a length of time, give spirit to our friends, and afford them an opportunity of improving their preparations for resistance. These reasons, sir, added to your known spirit and inclination to serve America, will, we make no doubt, sufficiently weigh with you to undertake that service.

The Roebuck, Captain Hammond, of forty guns, is now in Lewistown Road. You will observe by the papers that Captain Barry, in the Brigantine Lexington, has taken an armed tender with twenty-five picked men, commanded by a Lieutenant of the Liverpool; which is a loss they cannot easily provide for—the want of men. Should you come to the southward and determine to go into the Chesapeake, advise us of the time of your sailing, that orders may be given to the different armed vessels on the coast, as also to those in the Chesapeake, and the Commander-in-Chief in Virginia, to co-operate with you in the attack. As you were directed by a former instruction, in case you determine to proceed into Chesapeake Bay, “that you should despatch a swift-sailing vessel to reconnoitre the coast, and gain intelligence of the strength of the enemy,” we now remind you of that instruction, and desire you would send a vessel for that purpose from the fleet.

Wishing you success, we are, sir, with esteem, your most obedient servants,

JOHN HANCOCK,      GEORGE REED,
STEPHEN HOPKINS,    RICHARD HENRY LEE,
JOSEPH HUGHES,      SAMUEL HUNTINGTON,
R. ALEXANDER,      JONATHAN D. SERGEANT.

To Commodore Hopkins.

TO THE FREEHOLDERS AND ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

MY FELLOW-CITIZENS: I did expect that those innovators who, for a few weeks past, have been attempting to bring about a revolution in the happy Constitution of this Province, would have been satisfied with declamation, and relied upon the artful performances they have published, to convince the judgment of the respectable freeholders and electors of this city that their measures are desirable. But, alas! they themselves are afraid to trust to their arguments; they know their fallacy; they know that their plot is so thinly covered that men of reflection and consideration, men who have lived under the generous plan of liberty, which has been handed down by our forefathers for any length of time, are not to be gulled into their visionary scheme; and are now, by a bold stroke, attempting to take the election of four members for this city out of the hands of the lawful electors, and give to a new set of men the only privilege which subjects can rely on as a security for their liberty.

I need not tell you that the piece I have in my view is that signed An Elector; a piece, give me leave to say, that contains treason—the worst of treason—treason against the Constitution. The scope of this performance is, to destroy the right of election; for if every stickler for dependancy on Great Britain is to be kept far from our Councils, I will undertake to say that two-thirds at least of the electors of this city will lose their voices. Conscious of this, they want to deprive them of their votes, and give the power to those only who have already fixed their sentiments in favour of independence, without regard to their age, condition, or their knowledge of our Constitution. We well know that a great number of the Associators in this city are minors and apprentices, a great number of them new men lately arrived among us, who know not the happy form of the Government of Pennsylvania; yet these are the persons who are to elect Representatives for this city to guard the Constitution against invaders. Our author supposes, and perhaps truly, that such men, if they are permitted to vote, will be easily influenced to vote for that party who raise them to consequence by giving them the rights of citizens before the law and Constitution of the Province entitle them; and men thus rewarded beforehand for the part they are to act, are the only persons who can be relied on to carry their point.

This writer impudently takes it for granted that all men who oppose the scheme of Independence are advocates for absolute tyranny. Were this once proved, as it has been often asserted, the contest would be at an end, and we should all unite in hand and heart for their beloved Utopian plan; but it never has, it never can be proved. The opposers of Independence in every publick body, from the Congress downwards, and in the mass of the people, are the true Whigs, who are for preserving the Constitution, as well against the secret machinations of ambitious innovators as against the open attacks of the British Parliament; they are the men who first set on foot the present opposition, and who, I trust, will, if they are permitted to go on, bring it to a happy conclusion.

In the second paragraph, this writer discovers the true motives of his party: He tells us “the idea of a Crown is rendered detestable to the whole Western World.” What a daring falsehood is this! When have the Western World authorized you, Mr. Elector, thus to speak their sentiments? Do you not know that you stand contradicted by the voice of the Representatives of all those Colonies who have yet spoken their minds upon the subject? Is there one Colony whose Representatives, either in Assembly or in Convention, have taken upon them to instruct their Delegates to favour the whim of Independence and a Republick? You know there is not.

We are told in the last paragraph that a preclusion of all men below the estate of fifty pounds from voting seems peculiar to this city alone. From this hint I collect that the writer has deceived you in calling himself an Elector. What elector in this city can be found that is so ignorant of our Constitution? There is not a man in the Province who speaks English but knows that this circumstance is not only not peculiar to this city, but universal throughout the Province, and not this Province only, but the Delaware Government and Maryland. In New-Jersey none but a freeholder has a right to vote for Representatives; and when a Convention was lately chosen to represent that Province, the people who were not freeholders complained that they were excluded, and demanded to be admitted to that right upon “the terms of the free Constitution of Pennsylvania.” Their demand was thought reasonable, and granted, and they remain perfectly satisfied. Surely thou must be a stranger in this Province, or thou wouldst have known its Constitution better. But the Boroughs in England, those sinks of corruption, that rotten part of the British Constitution, are to be used as a precedent for the free States of America. “Burgesses were elected by every resident inhabitant who paid his shot and bore his lot; this I will affirm is the ancient free Constitution, which every honest man will venture his blood to restore.” These are our author’s words. Now these Burgesses are the Representatives of those venal Boroughs in England, against which every honest man now so justly complains. At their first institution they were allowed to send members to Parliament to represent the trading part of the Kingdom, as the Knights of the Shires represented the farmers, who were freeholders; but the very doctrine our author holds up rendered them the servile tools they are at present. Every resident was allowed to vote, whether he had property or not; the majority (being men of little or no property) were, in a course of time, easily brought to part with their votes to acquire a little property; and this put their votes in the power of one or two men of property, who bought them in order to sell them at an advanced price to the candidates. The Ministry in a course of time became the principal purchasers, and now engross the whole race of Borough-jobbers; and hence arises their power to attempt to enslave us. The wise Pennsylvania Legislator, seeing these blemishes in the English Constitution, guarded against them by his Charter to this Province; he fixed the qualifications of electors to such a standard as secures us from bribery, by excluding necessitous poor from a vote, who, perhaps, might be induced to part with it for a mess of pottage, and at the same time allows every man to exercise that right who is so little elevated as to be owner of property to the value of fifty pounds. This generous plan of Government, which has set the name of Penn on a footing with Solon and Lycurgus, is now to be laid waste, to let in the ambitious, Republican schemes of a set of men whom nobody knows.

Permit me, my fellow-citizens, to warn you against the arts of these men. They are attempting to hurry you into a scene of anarchy; their scheme of Independence is visionary; they know not themselves what they mean by it. We are already, to every necessary purpose, independent of Great Britain, and are now fighting to secure good terms of reconciliation. If we continue upon this ground, Great Britain will soon be brought to reason, and our liberty be established on the most lasting foundation. If, on the other hand, we should leap in the dark, and declare to the world that we will have no connection with Great Britain, what do we get by it? Will it frighten Great Britain into our terms? It will not. Will it secure us any foreign assistance? We know not that it will, but have every reason to think the contrary. Will it strengthen the hands of our friends in England, and our advocates in the Parliament? Alas! it will have directly the contrary effect; it will unite the whole force of Great Britain and Ireland against us—a force that has hitherto been much divided, from an opinion that we only seek peace, liberty, and safety, in a constitutional connection with Great Britain. Will it lessen the influence and weaken the hands of the Ministry? No, but the reverse; it will confirm the unjust, the untrue reflections cast upon us by the Ministerial hirelings, that we took up the sword to establish an independent Empire, and will probably save them from destruction. They deceived the Parliament by such information into the present unnatural war; and if they do not make good that information, they must fall a sacrifice to the resentment of a deceived, enraged nation; but if we can be driven into a declaration of it, (whether by Ministerial influence or Republican ambitious partisans, is of no consequence,) the foresight of the Ministry will be applauded, and they supported in their unjust measures. Indeed, it is so much the interest of the Ministry to procure a declaration of Independence, that I cannot help suspecting that it is countenanced by their hirelings, and took its first rise from their influence. Did we know who were the first broachers of the doctrine here, it would be worth while to inquire into their connections in England, and we might probably find that the wheel so violently turned here has some secret connection with the Ministerial machine at home.

Suffer not yourselves, therefore, to be either cajoled or frightened out of your Charter liberties and privileges. Exert yourselves in the choice of men whom you know to have the publick good at heart; and give every countenance and support to the officers who conduct the election in preserving the Constitution inviolate; so shall ye be instrumental in preserving your country, and have the pleasure of enjoying liberty while you live, and transmitting it to the latest posterity.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

A tradesman being asked why the principal merchants and gentlemen in Philadelphia were so much against Independency, replied: The gentlemen are chiefly of a certain connection, which speaks for itself, and may be properly called the family compact of Pennsylvania; and our great merchants are principally those who have gotten the whole trade into their hands, and, in consequence, are making immense fortunes at the expense of the People. None but capital houses dare now risk a trade. These great merchants, therefore, buy our produce cheap, and set what price they please on the goods they import. If affairs continue any time in their present condition, they will have the whole wealth of the Province in their hands, and then the people will be nearly in the condition that the East-India Company reduced the poor natives of Bengal to; whereas, were Independence declared, so that the Powers of Europe could tell Great Britain that they did not trade with Rebel subjects, they would push in as quick as possible, and strive which should secure the greatest trade to themselves. This would soon bring down the price of goods at present so much complained of, put an end to their monopolizing schemes, and destroy their present prospect of making enormous estates at our expense. Their golden harvests would then be at an end, and all ranks and conditions would come in for their just share of the wealth which would flow in upon us from all quarters. Would you have men, says he, to be for Independency, who gain as much upon one ship's cargo now, as they did formerly by ten, purely because Independency is not declared? What is the ruin of their country to men who make from fifteen to twenty thousand pounds per month profit? They will rise, let who will fall. This is the connection which Cato boasts of. Some few there are, I agree, who value no private interest when their country is at stake; but they make no part of this combination. Above ninety of these merchants, having drawn in a few of our friends, who saw not their designs of destroying the influence of patriotick Committees, sent in a most insulting Remonstrance to our Committee of Inspection, denying their power, and refusing to submit to their decisions, merely because they attempted to moderate the extravagant price of their goods, and keep them within such limits as would enable the common people to purchase what they wanted. One of this junto, combined against North-America, declared that he would shed blood before Independency should take place. Another, in a publick company, said there was a large number of the first men on the Continent who would publicly declare against the Congress, and oppose them as soon as they declared for Independency. A third said, he would submit to the claims of Parliament rather than see these Colonies independent; and a fourth, when told there was not the least prospect of Great Britain accepting any other terms than absolute submission, and the giving up a number of our principal patriots to the halter, replied, "Well, and if they have committed crimes against the State deserving of death, why should they not suffer?" Some of these are at the head of the party that oppose Independency, and these are the terms they expect to bring us to. They have been repeatedly called upon to declare what are the terms of reconciliation which they will accept, and the arguments to support its propriety. But they evade the matter. And as to arguments, they have something more substantial in view; they have the certain prospect of rising on the ruins of their country. Here is the true cause of their opposition.

This appears to me to deserve the publick notice. And if such a Remonstrance as is above hinted at, has been handed to the Committee of Inspection, I hope they will publish it, with the names of the signers affixed to it, that the people may know who are their friends, and who are against them.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

TO THE ELECTORS AND FREEHOLDERS OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: A late law of this Province having appointed the election of four additional Members of Assembly for this city, to be held to-morrow, and the choice of fit persons for this trust being a matter of the highest importance, it has been thought proper, in a brief and plain way, to submit a few things to your serious consideration on this great occasion.

The chief blessings which a People can enjoy under a free Government, depend upon a fair and equal representation; the having frequent elections of those to whom they consign the care of their rights; and holding these elections in such a way, that every person entitled by law to a vote may exercise that most valuable of all privileges, agreeable to his own reason and conscience, without being overawed by the threats of power or party.

The late law has provided for the first of these three things, viz: a more equal representation. And our prudent ancestors, in their former laws, by the method of ballot, have provided for the two latter in such a way as hath rendered our Constitution the admiration of all our neighbours. But the best laws are of no signification, if a People become insensible of their value, or inattentive to their execution. The office of a Burgess for the City of Philadelphia is as great and honourable a trust as can fall to the share of any freeman of Pennsylvania; and yet a stranger, who had observed what a small proportion of the electors of this city have thought it worth their while to step from their houses to give a vote, in some late instances, would imagine either that we hold this privilege at a cheap rate, or that we have nothing at stake in our Representatives; and this neglect has lately been construed against us, by an anonymous writer, into a tacit approbation of new doctrines, by no means agreeable to the general sense of the good people of this city.

A question has lately been started, which has greatly changed our political ground, and has driven all our little distinction of parties entirely out of sight. It is, whether united, as heretofore, we shall continue our resistance to an oppressive Ministry till we can bring vengeance on their heads, and open the door for renewing our happy connection with the People of Great Britain; or whether, without waiting to know clearly whether this be possible or not, we shall, by our own act, shut the door against reconciliation, immediately declare ourselves a separate people, and run the risk of all the evils which may follow.

Upon one side of the question, we have every publick declaration of the Continent; the avowed design of our taking arms into our hands; the ardent desire of multitudes of good men deeply interested in the consequences; the sense of this Province, uniformly expressed from the beginning; and of some neighbouring Provinces, just renewed in their latest transactions. On the other side, we have the publication of nameless writers, setting themselves up in opposition to publick bodies, striving to inflame the passions, and lead us on to schemes of dangerous and uncertain event, wholly inconsistent with our original purposes.

If peace can be obtained upon safe terms, no good man can think, without horror, upon the pursuit of new schemes which present nothing to us but a long stoppage of our trade and commerce, an immense increase of our taxes, changes in our civil Governments, the consequent uncertain situation of our lives and properties, the ruin of families, intestine divisions, and all the calamities attendant upon civil war. There is this essential difference between a declaration of Independence, as it hath been called, and the continuing our defence upon the present foundation: in the one case, a conviction of her error, on the part of Great Britain, may restore peace and tranquillity; in the other, we leave no room for such a conviction to operate in our favour. On the contrary, the tools of power will strive to verify their predictions, that we were aiming at a separation from the beginning. They will thereby seek to raise the indignation of the world against us, and to unite the whole British Nation in a fixed enmity. They will exert every engine to defeat our schemes, and practise every art, in every Court in Europe, to injure our credit.

As prudence and regard to ourselves can never direct us to give an enemy such an advantage, or to pursue such a conduct till the last extremity, it becomes one of the most weighty concerns that ever employed our attention, to be careful what sort of men we intrust with the conduct of our affairs during the ensuing five months; in which time we shall probably be able to judge whether reconciliation be yet possible. If violent men, who have predetermined this great question, should be our choice, the guilt of every rash measure, into which we may be hurried, will lie at our own door. But if the majority of voices shall be given to those who are known to be firm in the defence of American rights, friends to the Constitution of this Province, visibly interested in its prosperity, and, at the same time, desirous of peace upon honourable terms—everything will be safe in their hands. If the fatal necessity should evidently arise which will justify new declarations and a change of measures, such men will never dissent from the general voice of their constituents.*

Upon this single consideration, the matter now rests. All other distinctions are vain and trifling. Let unnecessary heats be avoided, and every man give his voice, according to his conscience, with that freedom which ought to distinguish a people in the exercise of one of their most sacred rights, under the sanction of the best laws. This is not a time either for timidity or rashness; and threats or abuse will only disgrace those that make use of them. In this light, a most daring publication is to be considered, which has just appeared over the signature of An Elector. At a time when all America is contending, among other things, for the Charter rights of one of the Provinces, he calls upon the people of this city to trample the Charter of this Colony under their feet; to act upon a novel system; to pay no regard to the legal qualification of voters; not to those sacred laws by which every man, who becomes a citizen of Philadelphia, has agreed to be bound. This would be giving a fatal stab to our liberties, and may teach us what we are to expect should we suffer men professing such principles to get the direction of our affairs.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER TO CHARLES CARROLL.

Philadelphia, April 30, 1776.

DEAR SIR: To-morrow will determine the question of Dependance and Independence, in this city, by the election of four additional members of Assembly. It will, from what I can learn, be carried in favour of the former, if there is not a division in the party about their men. It is expected that the contest will not end without blows.

I have been present at two meetings of our Delegates, (the last I am but this moment returned from,) to consult upon the principal points to be discussed in Convention, and the Delegates to attend. There will be another meeting this evening or to-morrow, when they will be finished and agreed upon. I believe Mr. Goldsborough and Mr. Johnson will be the Delegates. The points as to the Governour's staying, and representation, will be determined, I think, as you and my brethren would wish, with the latitude of being varied by the Convention, as circumstances may cast up.

I shall be happy if my poor endeavours here have or shall be instrumental towards the reconciliation of the two Shores, and settling those two material points, as it will be the means of obtaining forgiveness from my brethren for my abrupt departure from Annapolis. You must be my advocate. It was a maddened fit that came upon me; and it appeared to me, from a previous question or two, that, if I had asked leave gesses at the election, (1st of May,) as will be sure to promote, to accept, and adopt all such measures. These are the schemes that are now ardently pursued by those men.

23d.—Near eight o'clock, I went, with J. B. Smith, to Colonel Hancock's, to deliver a Remonstrance from the Committee to Congress, we being appointed for that service; the which he received very politely, and promised to perform and favour us with the result of Congress thereon.

25th.—Went to Jacob Schwimer's; met sundry persons there; went thence to the sign of "Rotterdam," in Third-street; stayed till the ticket was settled for Inspectors, and three persons to put into practice the resolve of Assembly for disarming Non-Associators; thence to meet the Committee at William Thorn's School-room, where we concluded and fixed the ticket for four Burgesses, viz: George Clymer, Colonel Roberdeau, Owen Biddle, and Frederick Kuhl; but to be kept a secret from the public till after our next meeting, on Second Day night, at that place, at seven o'clock.

27th.—Past two o'clock, went to Kensington, where a number of persons (not much short of one hundred and fifty) were collected, in order to get the upper-deck beams into both the frigates building there. The same was completed, without any accident happening, by six o'clock in the evening. I then came away with Frederick Kuhl, James Davidson, and James Cannon, to whose house I went, and drank coffee.

28th.—After supper, Joseph Lecond and myself took a walk down to Plumstead's wharf, in order to see what readiness the two ships-of-war were in, as they were under sailing orders, occasioned by an express that arrived about three o'clock this afternoon, who left Lewistown about six o'clock last night, sent by land from Henry Fisher, giving an account that the man-of-war the Roebuck, pursuing a vessel, had, that afternoon, run ashore on the Brandywine Shoals, and was then, to appearance, fast. The vessels were nigh ready, as we learned, and would sail in the morning.

May 1st.—At nine o'clock, A. M., went to William Thorn's School-room, by appointment; from thence to my son's; thence to Coffee-House, and so home; from there down to Draw-bridge; thence to the State-House; stayed till one o'clock; went in company with Thomas Paine, and dined at son Christopher's; went back to the State-House; engaged till past five o'clock; then went with James Cannon to his house; drank coffee there; then we returned to the State-House; stayed till eight o'clock; then I came home, ate supper, and went back; stayed till past ten o'clock, the Sheriff having proclaimed to close the poll in half an hour. This has been one of the sharpest contests, yet peaceable, that has been for a number of years, except some small disturbance among the Dutch, occasioned by some unwarrantable expressions of Joseph Swift, viz: That except they were naturalized, they had no more right to a vote than a Negro or an Indian. And, also, past six o'clock, the Sheriff, without any notice to the public, closed the poll, and adjourned till nine o'clock to-morrow, and shut the doors. This alarmed the people, who immediately resented it—flew to the Sheriff and to the doors, and obliged him again to open the doors, and continue the poll till the time above prefixed. I think it may be said with propriety, that the Quakers, Papists, Church, Allen family, with all the Proprietary party, were never, seemingly, so happily united as at this election, notwithstanding Friends' former protestation and declaration, of never joining with that party, since the club or knock-down election. "Oh! tell it not in Gath, nor publish it in the streets of Ascalon," how the Testimony is trampled upon."

About midnight, casting up the poll, it turned out thus, viz: Samuel Howell, 941; Andrew Allen, 923; George Clymer, 923; Alexander Wilcox, 921; Thomas Willing, 911; Frederick Kuhl, 904; Owen Biddle, 903; and Daniel Roberdeau, 890.—Marshall.

April 1st, 1776.—About three o'clock, went to James Cannon's; spent good part of this afternoon and evening, till eight o'clock, there, in conversation with Thomas Paine, Dr. Young, James Wigdon, and Timothy Mutlack; came away about eight o'clock, by the cry of "fire;" went home; thence up town, where the whole malt-house and new front-house of Robert Hare was in flames; went with Colonel Roberdeau to the Powder-Magazine, where a number of us attended with an engine, which played upon the Magazine, and other buildings adjacent, for fear of sparks.

5th.—Dined at home with James Cannon; we then went to Paine's; stayed some time; thence, Cannon and I went to Dr. Young's; not at home; we went up to Kensington; found him and several friends there, at work on board the frigate building by Messrs. Eyre; we joined them in assisting what we could, till night; then came home.

6th.—Near two o'clock, set off for Kensington, in order to assist, with a number of fellow-citizens, in getting the lower-deck beams on board the frigate building by Messrs. Eyre. I presume there came not short of one hundred, who stayed till they were all put on board—in which were included three parts of the Light-Infantry, of First Battalion, who came in warlike array; came away just at dark.

9th.—Near seven o'clock, went to Committee-room, at Philosophical Hall; came away before ten; at which meeting, Townsend Spikeman attending, owned he refused and could not take the Continental money; he refusing to appeal, his case was ordered to be published.

11th.—After dinner, went to Kensington, where a number of inhabitants met, in order to assist in getting the lower-deck beams in the ship that was building for man-of-war, by Bruce & Co.

16th.—News confirmed of our fleet's arrival at New-London, and of the arrival of General Washington at New-York; some particulars, see in Evening Post, No. 193. Near seven o'clock, went to Committee-room, at Philosophical Hall; came home past ten; great debate about rescinding the prices some time past affixed to sundry articles by the Committee. This debate arose from a Remonstrance now presented by sundry citizens.

18th.—Near seven o'clock, went to Committee-room, at Philosophical Hall, (called by summons,) where the rights and powers of the Committee were discussed, and proved to be invested in them by the votes of Congress, and the call and nomination of the people at large; and that the regulations they had entered into were well founded; yet, in order to promote peace and harmony at this time, a vote was passed, (contrary to my approbation and that of many others present,) that a remonstrance be sent to Congress, requesting them to explain some former resolves. A Committee was appointed for that purpose, to draft it, and bring it to the next meeting for approbation. At this meeting, after Committee was over, many stayed, and appointed sixteen members present to confer with the Committee of Privates, and the Patriotick Society, respecting the candidates for Burgesses, on the 1st of May next. Agreed to meet to-morrow evening.

19th.—Near seven o'clock, went to William Thorn's School-room, Videll's Alley. Met a number of persons appointed to consult upon persons proper to be returned as four Burgesses from this city, on the 1st of May. Came away past nine o'clock, having adjourned to seven o'clock to-morrow evening, at same place. I was chosen Chairman; James Cannon, Secretary.

20th.—Went thence to James Cannon's. Past seven o'clock, went with him to William Thorn's School-room, as by appointment last night. Came away about ten o'clock.

21st.—Many, I understand, were the private meetings of those called Moderate-men, (or those who are for reconciliation with Great Britain upon the best terms she will give us, but by all means to be reconciled to or with her,) in order to consult and have such men carried for Burin form, I should not just then have obtained it, though it had been agreed before that, so soon as there was a full Council, I might go where I pleased. My health required a jaunt, and I found considerable relief whilst on my journey; but my giddiness has again returned, and I must set out for Maryland as soon as I possibly can.

I have, I think, almost brought R. H. L. to shame. He has the impudence and assurance of the devil. He at first justified Purviance, and denied that General Lee had directed the Governour to be seized; and brought his brother Frank to pledge his honour that the fact was not so. I concealed from them that I had a copy of the General's letter in my pocket, nor do they yet know I have it. I shall this day show it to some gentlemen that were present when they roundly asserted and assured me that I had been misinformed. Colonel Harrison has written to his friends in the Committee of Safety of Virginia, that they must apologize to our Council for the insult. We are highly applauded, in this city, for our spirited conduct in the late conspiracy, for such I must term it.

Adieu. My best respects to my brethren, whom I hope to see on Sunday in Annapolis.

Yours, sincerely and affectionately,

DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. I have written in the greatest hurry.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, April 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I perceive by the tenour of your favour of yesterday, that my letter of the 25th has given umbrage, which I am sorry for, as it was not most distantly in my ideas to give any.

Three things led me to suspect that the New-York Battalions were not upon the same establishment of the other Continental troops: current report, an implied exception in the order for detaching six more battalions to Canada, and that part of your letter signifying that four of these battalions were to be raised under your immediate direction; which intimation, coming in corroboration of the two first reasons, (for I never had any information of this matter from Congress,) led me to believe that you intended it as a gentle hint that I was not to consider them in the same light I did the others. It was not to be wondered at, therefore, that I should wish to know the extent of my authority over them, that my conduct might be regulated thereby; or, that I should be so solicitous in arming regiments raised for local purposes as those for the general service, when the latter are also greatly deficient in this essential point. These were the ideas that filled my mind at the time of writing. If the extreme hurry, occasioned by a variety of business which is continually pressing upon me, clouded the meaning I wished to convey, I can only add that it never was, and I hope never will be, my intention to give unprovoked offence. Of this your Committee may be once for all assured, that it is my earnest wish to co-operate with them in every measure which can conduce to the general good; and that if I should at any time differ with them in the means, I shall feel my share of the concern; being, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Committee of Safety at New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 2, 1776, and referred to the Committee on the Eastern Department.]

New-York, April 30, 1776.

SIR: I mean through you, sir, to do myself the honour of laying before Congress a copy of an address transmitted them some time ago by the Assembly of Rhode-Island, which Governour Cooke favoured me with in the month of January, at the same time requesting me to interest myself in procuring a body of forces on the Continental establishment for the defence of that Colony. I doubt not but the address, and subject of it, have had the attention and consideration of Congress before now; but if they have not decided upon the matter, I would beg leave to mention that I have made inquiry into the situation and condition of the Colony, and find it to be as stated in the address; and with all deference to the opinion of Congress, conceive it highly necessary and expedient that they should adopt some measures for relieving their distress, and granting the aid prayed for. The importance of it in the chain of union; its extensive sea-coast, affording harbours for our shipping and vessels, at the same time exposing and subjecting the inhabitants to the ravages and depredations of our enemies; the zeal and attachment which it has shown, and which still actuates it toward the common cause; their incapacity to pay a sufficient number of men for its defence, should they be able to furnish them after so many engaged in other services; these, and many other reasons which are too obvious to mention, plead powerfully for the notice and attention of Congress, and seem to me to claim their support.

Having thus stated the matter to Congress for their consideration, agreeable to my promise to Governour Cooke when I had the honour of seeing him in my way here, I shall leave it with them, not doubting but they will duly weigh its importance, and give such assistance as they may think reasonable and just. What they chiefly wish for is, that the troops they have raised may be taken into Continental pay, and commanding officers be appointed by Congress.

I have the honour to be, with much regard, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

Providence, January 15, 1776.

We, the General Assembly of the English Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, beg leave to represent to you the state and condition of said Colony, and to request such assistance as our situation and the welfare of the United Colonies shall appear to require.

Soon after the conclusion of the late glorious war, in the successes of which the Colonies had so considerable a share, we were alarmed with divers acts of the British Parliament, strongly indicating a design to divest the Colonies of those rights which are essential to the freedom of a People, and which they had enjoyed, with but few innovations, from their first settlement. The Act passed in 1765 for levying stamp duties in America, and many subsequent Acts, manifested that design so clearly as to leave no room for a doubt. This Colony, ever tenacious of its liberties, zealously took a part in all the common measures entered into for the common safety.

When at length the Ministerial troops, by the attacks at Lexington and Concord, had reduced us to the necessity of immediately taking up arms, or submitting to a slavery which, at the distance we are placed from the seat of the power to be exercised over us, must be the most absolute and terrible that we can form an idea of, this Colony, notwithstanding its exposed situation, did not hesitate; it did not wait for the example of more powerful Colonies; but, conforming itself to the spirit of the resolutions of the honourable the Continental Congress for 1774, ordered a body of men to be raised and marched to the encampment near Boston.

Unfortunately for the inhabitants, this Colony is scarcely anything but a line of sea-coast. From Providence to Point Judith, and from thence to Pawcatuck River, is near eighty miles. On the east side of the bay, from Providence to Seconet Point, and including the east side of Seconet until it meets the Massachusetts line, is about fifty miles; besides which are the navigable rivers of Pawcatuck and Warren. On the west side of the bay the Colony doth not extend twenty miles, and on the east side not more than eight miles from the sea-coast above described. In the Colony are also included the following Islands: Rhode-Island, about sixteen miles in length; Conanicut, nine; Block-Island, nine; Prudence, seven; and the smaller Islands Patience, Hope, Gold-Island, and several others; all which are cultivated and fertile, and contributed largely to the publick expenses. The greater part of the above-mentioned shores are accessible to ships-of-war.

By an exact estimate, taken in the year 1774, the whole number of inhabitants in the Colony amounted to fifty-nine thousand six hundred and seventy-eight. The town of Newport contained nine thousand two hundred and nine, was the principal place of trade, and paid above one-sixth part of the publick taxes. A very considerable commerce was also carried on from Providence; and several small towns in the Colony were also concerned in trade and navigation. Ship building was a great branch of business; in short, the inhabitants of the Colony derived their subsistence almost wholly from commerce.

The convenient situation of this Colony for receiving supplies from the other Colonies for the Continental Army near Boston, we suppose, was the principal reason why so great a number of the King's ships have been stationed in our bay; we having had for above seven months past, two ships of twenty guns, one of sixteen, a bomb ketch, and about eight tenders, who have made prizes of more vessels belonging to this Colony than have been lost by any other; have put almost a total end to commerce; have committed repeated depredations in different parts of the Colony; have kept our coasts constantly alarmed, and obliged the inhabitants to keep almost continually under arms.

The once flourishing town of Newport, by the loss of trade, and consequent cessation of all business, instead of being able to contribute to the expenses of the war, hath been reduced to so deplorable a state, that we have been obliged to grant money out of the general Treasury for the support of their poor; and many of the wealthy inhabitants have not only left the town, but the Colony. Conanicut and Prudence, lately the scenes of the most wanton and savage desolation and barbarity, are deserted. New-Shoreham, from its situation, is rendered worse than useless to the Colony; and the other Islands will no longer be of service to any but the enemy.

The troops sent by this Colony to the Army near Boston, amounted to about one thousand seven hundred, inclusive of officers, of which two hundred and fifty are in Colonel Arnold's detachment in Quebeck. Many have entered on board the armed vessels fitted out by General Washington, particularly almost every officer and seaman in the brig commanded by Captain Martindale, unfortunately taken and carried into Boston, belonged to this Colony; and of the others, the greater part by far have reinlisted in the Continental service, so that very few of them have returned, or can return. We fitted out two armed vessels for the protection of our commerce and coasts, which carried upwards of one hundred men, one of which is now at Philadelphia, in the Continental service, with the greater part of her crew.

Above a hundred men have also been enlisted for the Continental Navy. We have also built and equipped two row-galleys, to carry fifty men each. Besides these extraordinary exertions, we were alarmed in October last with the arrival of a number of transports from Boston, destined to procure fresh provisions for the Ministerial Army. To prevent their obtaining supplies was an object of such great importance as obliged us to send a number of Minute-men upon the several Islands to defend the stock, which created a most enormous expense.

When the Assembly met in November, a regiment of five hundred men was ordered to be raised for the defence of Rhode-Island and the other Islands; notwithstanding which we have been obliged repeatedly to call forth our Minute-men. To prevent the great charge of which, we have augmented the regiment, ordered to be raised in November, to seven hundred and fifty men, exclusive of a company of artillery consisting of one hundred and five men, with their officers; and have also voted another regiment of seven hundred and fifty men to be immediately raised and equipped; besides two hundred and thirty-eight artillery-men for the management of thirty-four field-pieces ordered to be procured and placed in the several towns upon the sea-coast. We have ordered sixty cannon (eighteen and twelve-pounders) to be cast, and have already sent a vessel with a very valuable cargo, to purchase powder and other warlike stores, and are fitting out another, which will soon sail.

From the above representation of our situation, exertions, and losses, and the depredations of the enemy, which are not exaggerated, the exhausted state of the Colony, and its utter inability to maintain the present force established and voted, as well as to take any further measures to defend itself, will clearly appear. We need not observe to you the great importance of Rhode-Island, or the damages that would be sustained by the enemy's possessing themselves thereof—its harbours and the adjoining Narraganset Bay being greatly superior to any other in America; and its convenient situation with respect to the sea and the other Colonies, making it still more important.

We therefore request that you will give the earliest attention to this address; and have no doubt that you will take the most proper measures for defending the Colony; otherwise Rhode-Island, and the other Islands in the Bay, with the surrounding sea-coast upon the Continent, must be depopulated, and the Colony entirely ruined.

We submit the foregoing to your judicious determination; and are, with great respect and confidence, your Honours' most obedient and most humble servants.

Signed at the request and in behalf of the General Assembly,

NICHOLAS COOKE, Governour.

To the Honourable the Delegates of the United Colonies now convened in General Congress in Philadelphia.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 27, 1776.

(Parole, Camden.)

(Countersign, Chatham.)

The riotous behaviour of some soldiers of the Continental Army, yesterday, and the evening before, has filled the General with much regret and concern; and lays him under the disagreeable necessity of declaring, that if the like behaviour should be practised again the authors will be brought to the severest punishment, if taken, or treated as a common enemy if they dare to resist. Men are not to carve out remedies for themselves. If they are injured in any respect there are legal modes to obtain relief, and just complaints will always be attended to and redressed. It should be the pride of a Soldier to conduct himself in such a manner as to obtain the applause and not the reproach of a people he is sent to defend; and it should be the business, as it is the duty of an Officer to inculcate and enforce this doctrine.

The honourable the Continental Congress having been pleased to order a Brigadier-General and six more Battalions to be immediately sent to Canada, his Excellency directs the Colonels or commanding officers of the Regiments of Stark, Reed, Wayne, Irvine, Dayton, and Winds, to prepare their corps for immediate embarkation. The Quartermaster-General will forthwith provide vessels, and the Commissary-General provisions; and General Sullivan will order every Regiment to embark, and sail with all convenient expedition.

The honourable the Continental Congress, in consideration of the four last-named Regiments being ordered out of the Middle Colonies, are pleased to direct them to be put upon the same pay with those already upon more remote service; which pay is to commence from the first day of May next.

Colonel Stark's and Colonel Reed's Regiments to be ready to be mustered to-morrow morning, at eight o'clock, upon the Common, near the Park of Artillery.

All Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, and Soldiers, at present absent from the Regiments commanded by the Colonels Wayne, Irvine, Dayton, and Winds, are forthwith ordered to join their respective Corps.

Colonel McDougall's and Colonel Ritzema's Regiments to parade on Monday morning, at ten o'clock, upon the Common, to be reviewed.

William Hains, of Captain Denton's Company, in Colonel Ritzema's Regiment, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Baldwin was President, for "Desertion:" The Court finding the prisoner guilty of the charge, do sentence him to be whipped twenty-five lashes on his bare back. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be put in execution on Monday morning, at the head of the Regiment.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 28, 1776.

(Parole, Manchester.)

(Countersign, Ponsonby.)

The Commanding Officers of Regiments and Corps are to be careful that the men are made perfectly well acquainted with all Orders that issue for the government of the Army; and are not to be less diligent in enforcing obedience thereto. Yesterday a number of Colonel Irvine's Regiment were found in different places firing their pieces, and wasting their ammunition, under pretence of not knowing they were acting contrary to Orders.

The Articles of War are to be read at least once a week, to every Company in the Army, that neither Men nor Officers may plead ignorance against any of the Rules and Regulations therein contained.

Colonel Winds's and Colonel Dayton's Regiments to be mustered on Tuesday morning, at eight o'clock, upon the Common, where the Commissary-General of Musters will attend. The Muster-Rolls of those Regiments to be prepared immediately.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 29, 1776.

(Parole, Dunning.) (Countersign, Glynn.)

The Army to be ready to encamp upon the ground marked out by the Quartermaster-General, on Wednesday morning, at eight o'clock. Colonel Mifflin will, upon the application of commanding officers of Regiments and Corps, supply the necessary tents and camp-equipage, straw, and fire-wood. The troops are to be brigaded and encamped in the following order: The first Brigade on the right, the second upon the left, and the fourth in the centre; the Regiment of Artillery in the rear of the Park of Artillery, which is to be formed upon the ground assigned for that purpose. The Regiments are to be brigaded as follows, viz:

First Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Heath: Learned's, Bailey's, Prescott's, Reed's, and Baldwin's.

Second Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Spencer: Parsons's, Wyllly's, Huntington's, Arnold's, and Ward's.

Third Brigade, under the command of Brigadier-General Greene: Hand's, Hitchcock's, Varnum's, and Little's.

Fourth Brigade, commanded by Brigadier-General the Earl of Stirling: Webb's, Nixon's, McDougall's, and Ritzema's.

The Third Brigade, under Brigadier-General Greene, to encamp upon the ground marked out upon Long-Island. The Companies of Virginia and Maryland Riflemen to be included in Lord Stirling's Brigade.

As Captain Van Dyck, commanding the Grenadier Company of the City of New-York, has, by letter, acquainted Lord Stirling that the Circular Battery, to the northwest of this city, is now complete, and the General being informed that the said Grenadier Company did, on the first alarm of danger from the enemy, voluntarily undertake to erect the said battery, and have themselves, in a most masterly and neat manner, finished the same, the General, justly admiring such an example of spirit and perseverance, and highly esteeming a body of men possessed of the noblest virtues of good citizens, desires his thanks to be thus publicly given to the Company of Grenadiers, for this instance of their ready compliance with his wishes.

The officers and men of Colonel Winds's Regiment to be dismissed from the Laboratory, and prepare for embarkation.

The Regiment of Artillery are immediately to furnish a sufficient number of men for that duty.

Colonel Prescott's Regiment are to remain in their present encampment until further orders.

Colonel Wyllly's Regiment are to occupy the Barracks at present possessed by Colonel McDougall's Regiment.

The Quartermaster-General, with the Field Officers of the Regiment of Artillery, are, with proper assistants, to assemble at sunrise to-morrow morning, at Bayard's Hill, to mark out the ground for the Artillery Park, and for the encampment of the Regiment of Artillery.

Head-Quarters, New-York, April 30, 1776.

(Parole, Sacchridge.) (Countersign, Oliver.)

All Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, and Soldiers, belonging to any of the Regiments now in or going to Canada, to parade to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, in the street opposite to General Sullivan's Quarters, near the Bowling Green, to receive his orders.

All Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, and Soldiers, are strictly commanded, upon no pretence whatever, to carry anything out of their Barracks, or the houses they at present occupy, that belongs to such Barracks or houses; neither are they to injure the buildings within or without. All damages wantonly done to the houses where the troops are quartered, to be paid for by the troops quartered in them. The Commanding-Officers of Companies to deliver to Colonel Brewer, Barrackmaster, a list of the names of those quartered in each house, his own name at the head of the list, and the Regiment to which he belongs. Immediately upon the troops encamping, the Quartermaster-General and Barrackmaster to examine the condition the houses are left in, and secure them in the best manner, and make their report to the General.

General Greene's Brigade to encamp to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock, upon the ground marked out upon Long-Island.

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

COLONEL NICOLL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Constitution, April 30, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Enclosed you have a return of the state of the fortifications under my command ; by which you will readily see that the men in general are very deficient in arms, and more especially the standing companies. I think it would be prudent to have them armed as soon as possible, as there are many disaffected persons in the adjacent Counties of Westchester and Dutchess, who, in case of an attack at New-York, (if they knew our weakness,) might attempt to take the garrisons by surprise. I have been informed that one Captain Menos, a half-pay officer from Dutchess County, has gone off, about the 20th instant, with forty men, supposed to join the Ministerial Army.

There is no ammunition at Fort Montgomery for small arms, but one quarter-cask of powder, and forty-eight pounds of musket balls, which I got of the Commissioners ; and they produced instructions from Congress not to let any of the powder be made use of without their further order ; but as there was a necessity for it, I prevailed with them to let it go. I have given orders to Lieutenant Stephens (of the artillery) to have it made up into cartridges for the use of that garrison. Gun-flints we are destitute of. No physician has been ordered here yet, and a number of the men in garrison are sick and lame, and cannot have proper means used for their recovery.

The time for which one of the Minute-Companies, now at this fortress, is inlisted, will expire in about fifteen days. If your Excellency thinks it proper more should be called in, I should be glad of an order for that purpose as soon as possible. In the mean time you may rest assured, sir, that nothing shall be wanting on my part to secure the different posts under my command ; and for that purpose the work shall be forwarded to the utmost of my power.

I am, with the greatest esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL, Commanding Officer.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army, at Head-Quarters, New-York.

WILLIAM BEDLOW TO JOHN BERRIEN.

Fort Constitution, April 30, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 24th and 26th instant, have received, with the two padlocks. We note your answer from the Committee of Safety respecting the proposed barrack near the battery on Bun's Hill, and readily obey that and every other direction from that honourable Board ; but we should be wanting in the duty of our office not to mention, that the battery ordered by the Continental Congress, of eighteen pieces of heavy cannon, to be erected on said hill, will be the most respectable at this post. The barracks now here will be at too great a distance for relief, in case of an attempt to surprise it by night. This the Engineer (who, we are informed, is the chief in the Continental service, and came here with Major-General Thompson, to view this post, in their way to Canada) joined us in ; and, also, thought it absolutely necessary, that a block-house, or small redoubt, should be erected on the high rock, between the Gravel-Hills and the other works to the westward, in order to keep open the communication between both, and cover the Gravel-Hill. A block-house, we judged, would be expensive ; so are about a redoubt of four cannon, to be built of those large pieces of timber which had been ordered by Romans, and which we have no other use for at present, filled in with earth. This eminence on the rock, Engineer Smith, and every gentleman of the Continental Congress and officers of the Army who have come here, have always pointed out to us to be fortified. Four guns here, with fourteen on the Gravel-Hill, will make out the eighteen ordered by the Continental Congress. The necessity of having the battery on the Gravel-Hill as well taken care of in winter as summer, arises from our being surrounded with a number of disaffected people, who might, in one hour, at night, destroy it.

We are obliged to you for the information respecting our accounts, and flatter ourselves that the Committee of Safety have that confidence in us, to think that we shall be extremely careful in not putting the publick to any unnecessary expense. We beg you will get the check-book, with the bag it was in, and send us, as we kept no copy of it. Brewer, the carpenter, Colonel McDougall's negro, Colrain Time, with others that were and are here employed, we want, in order to settle their accounts.

From the Continental Congress's resolves of February 15th, sent us by the Provincial Congress, we are to erect a work on the east side of the river, opposite the West-Point, to mount thirty cannon. Will not a barrack be wanting there ? As we have many very good six and four-pounders here, should be glad to know from the Committee of Safety, if we may make carriages for them, as they will be wanted ; doubtless we shall not get heavy cannon for all the works. We had forgot to mention that we are satisfied respecting Mr. McCarty's account for the boards by McKey, and beg you will settle it with him, or his order. It is not our fault it was not paid long ago. We wrote to him last fall about it, but never received any answer.

We are, dear sir, with regard, your humble servants,

WILLIAM BEDLOW.

To John Berrien, Esq., Commissioner of Fortifications of Hudson's River.

CAPTAIN BELKNAP TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Fort Montgomery, April 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This morning my Lieutenant arrived from New-York, by which I am informed that I am in Colonel Clinton's Regiment, with which I am well satisfied. But by a list of the arrangements in his regiment, it appears I am the fifth Captain in rank, and Captain William Jackson the fourth ; therefore in rank before me. You may remember, gentlemen, that I waited on you immediately on filling up my company ; which was the 9th of March. Captain Jackson had not then waited on you, neither was his company filled at that time. My company by the 10th of March was in actual service. You will please to remember, at the same time, that I mentioned that in particular, and insisted that no one ought to rank before me who had not filled his company, and made report to you before that date, except the companies of last year; upon which, I had the promise of your honourable House that no one should, and that you were determined to make that a rule. I humbly conceive that, in your hurry of business, it has happened by mistake. I therefore beg and insist that it may be altered, and I placed in my proper rank; which I make not the least doubt at present will be done. But should that not be the case, I cannot accept a commission in rank behind Captain Jackson; but, notwithstanding, will serve my country in the rank I now stand placed, by virtue of my warrant.

I am, gentlemen, with due respect, your most humble servant,

JOHN BELKNAP, Captain.

To the New-York Committee of Safety.

CORNELIUS STEENROD TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Cortlandt Manor, April 30, 1776.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK:

Whereas, I have received a permission to enlist a Company for the service of this Colony, and to be ready with my Company by the 11th of May next; I desire to know whether I am expected to march from home that day, or to be at York that day; and likewise, where my men are to be reviewed, as I want to go by water from Horse Neck; and, as some of my men are not well able to fix with clothing so soon, whether I may come with about fifty men, and leave an officer to bring the others afterwards.

Your answer will much oblige your Honours' humble servant,

CORNELIUS STEENROD.

To the Honourable Chairman of the Provincial Congress of New-York, or Committee of Safety.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Montreal, April 30, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have the pleasure to acquaint you of the safe arrival of the gentlemen from Congress, in good health and spirits. At a council of war held this morning, it was agreed to fortify at Richelieu and Jacques Cartier, two important posts, the last eleven, and the former fifteen leagues above Quebec; also, to set on foot and build immediately four row-galleys, or gondolas, at Chambly, under my direction; and that Colonel Hazen have the overseeing the workmen, procuring materials, &c.; of which, I make no doubt, the Committee of Congress will advise you, as also our prospects and resources in this country, which are very slender. I hope no time will be lost in hurrying on provisions, &c.

On my arrival here, I sent Colonel Hazen to command at St. John's, Chambly, &c. I have this minute received a letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Buell, acquainting me of his being appointed to command at those places, and having orders to build a store-house; for which purpose, there are no materials to be procured at present. I fancy you have not been apprized of the store-rooms at St. John's and Chambly, which are capable of holding two thousand barrels of provisions, and want little repairing.

We have engaged a number of French carpenters and batteaumen, to be employed at Chambly, under the direction of Colonel Hazen, who is so well acquainted, both with the falls and inhabitants of the country, that a more useful man could not be employed at these posts. Perhaps you will think best that Colonel Buell should remain at this place, or go down to Richelieu, where I apprehend he will be of the greatest service; his want of the French tongue is a great hindrance to business here.

I should be glad that the small hausers and anchors at Ticonderoga might be sent to St. John's for the gondolas, and if fifty or a hundred good seamen could be engaged out of the troops coming up, to man them, with proper officers to command them, it will forward the matter much.

We have received no material advice from Quebec lately; our last was the 24th ultimo, when our batteries were playing on the town. Expect soon to hear their effect.

I am, very respectfully, dear General, your obedient and humble servant,

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

To General Philip Schuyler.

CAPTAIN WHIPPLE TO COMMODORE HOPKINS.

Providence, April 30, 1776.

HONoured SIR: I have had the honour to serve under you in the last French war, and I believ'd to your satisfaction; and since my arrival at Philadelphia, where I was appointed by the honourable Continental Congress to the command of the ship Columbus, I have strictly obeyed your commands, and done all in my power for the honour of the fleet, to the best of my knowledge.

The night we fell in with the Glasgow man-of-war, two of my Lieutenants were on board the two prizes we had taken, and fourteen of my best seamen. When we were running down on the ship, getting in order to engage, and quartering the men in the places of those that were absent, the Glasgow suddenly hauling to the northward, brought me to the southward of her, and brought her directly into your and Captain Hopkins's wake. I hauled up for her, and made all sail with my three topgallant sails. Captain Hopkins then beginning the fire, the Glasgow returning the same, and my being in her wake, and as far to the leeward as she, it instantly deadened all the wind, which put it entirely out of my power to get up with her. I used my utmost endeavour, but in vain. Before I had got near enough for a close engagement, the Glasgow had made all sail for the harbour of Newport. I continued chase under all sail that I had, except studding sails, and the wind being before the beam, she firing her two sternchasers into me, as fast as possible, and my keeping up a fire with my bow guns, and now and then a broadside, put it out of my power to get near enough to have a close engagement. I continued this chase till you thought proper to hoist a signal for my return into the fleet. I accordingly obeyed the signal; and, on our arrival at New-London, I found that a report was spread, (from the Alfred and Cabot,) that I was a coward, and many other ill-natured and false aspersions. If I did not do my duty, it proceeded not from cowardice, but from want of judgment. The inhabitants of New-London, and others, by means of those cruel aspersions, look on me with contempt, as a man not serving the country in my station. The circumstance of having a family of children to be upbraided with my supposed cowardice, and my own character rendered infamous through the Thirteen United Colonies, is an indignity I cannot bear. If I am a coward, I have no business in the service of this Continent. I therefore request that there may be a Court-Martial called, that I may be tried by my brother officers of the fleet, and either acquitted with honour, or broken with disgrace. I ask no favour of them. If I should be broken, the publick will then have a right to despise me. If I can obtain no satisfaction in this way, I should be under a necessity to return you my commission. I will then thank the Congress for the honour they intended me, and curse those who first spread the infamous report. I have never yet mentioned the matter to any one. If your Honour had let me come to Newport when the Scarborough man-of-war lay there, as was my request, I might perhaps have convinced the world that I am not a coward; but this is now out of my power.

I am, &c.,

ABR. WHIPPLE,

To Esek Hopkins, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the American Fleet.

P. S. Your Honour will observe that it was in the night when we bore down upon the Glasgow, which rendered it difficult to see when she altered her course.

TO THE FREEMEN OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Salem, April 30, 1776.

MY BRETHREN AND FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN: The general voice of the People now seems to be, to break off all commerce with the button-makers of Great Britain. Indeed, we have not the least need to keep it up. Very good buttons are manufactured in Concord in this Colony; and the trade will soon spread through all the United Colonies. The "voice of the People is the voice of God" always. If this voice should be unanimous with respect to the prohibition of the forementioned commerce, (dropping metaphor,) the question is, What must next be done in regard of our own Colony? As a member of it, my advice is, that, after the approaching election, the Council and House of Representatives of the people unite in one congregation, consult, debate, and determine conjunctly, by such majorities of votes as they shall agree upon. To act separately is aping the two Houses of Parliament in the British Constitution, which is a relict of the old feudal system, which was founded in injustice, and supported by lawless tyranny. I appeal to common sense, for which Americans are distinguished, whether the two Houses, acting separately, can enter into each other's sentiments and views so fully as in conjunction; and whether acting separately (each having a negative upon the other) has not a direct tendency to breed ill-will and resentment, which, for humanity's sake, let be avoided. Let there be no distinction but what wisdom and virtue make. Instead of a Governour, I would advise the Representatives of the people to choose, for the sake of despatch in business, one or more of the wisest of their number to act in the Executive department during the session, and in the recess of the Assembly.

In your next election of Representatives, let your eyes, my brethren, be upon the wise and virtuous of the land. Perhaps there never was, nor ever will be, an assembly which will have more important matters to debate and determine upon.

For God's sake, and for the sake of mankind, if we make any alterations, let us shun the errors of our ancestors in the reigns of Henry VIII. and Queen Elizabeth. They got rid of one Pope, indeed, but at the same time set up another. Examine with candour, my brethren, and you will find a great deal of contemptible, but superstitiously-worshipped, rubbish, both in Church and State, which has been swept down to us from heathenism and popery, by the great net of time. It is now high time to examine the net, cull out the good fishes, and cast the bad away! If we act as Providence now most evidently points out we should act, we shall have the honour of being "fellow-workers with God;" and America will soon become "the glory of all lands" for the equity of its civil Government, and "the joy of the whole earth" for the purity and practice of the Religion of Jesus Christ.

MASSACHUSETTENSIS.

PROCLAMATION.

At the Court at St. James's, the 1st day of May, 1776; Present: The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas his Majesty was graciously pleased, by his Royal Proclamation, bearing date the 22d day of March last, to promise and declare that the bounties of three pounds for every Able Seaman, and two pounds for every Ordinary Seaman, fit for his Majesty's service, should be paid in the manner thereby directed, to every such Able and Ordinary Seaman, not above the age of fifty nor under the age of eighteen years, who should, on or before the 30th day of April, then following, enter themselves to serve in his Majesty's Royal Navy, either with the Captains or Lieutenants of his Majesty's ships, or the chief officers on board such tenders as should be employed for raising men for the service of the Royal Navy; and it being judged expedient for his Majesty's service that the said bounties should be continued to be paid for some longer time, his Majesty, with the advice of his Privy Council, doth therefore order, and it is hereby accordingly ordered, that the time limited for payment of the said bounties be prolonged and extended from the said 30th day of April to the 30th day of June next, inclusive; whereof all persons concerned are to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

STEPHEN COTTRELL.

HAMPDEN AGAINST INDEPENDENCE.

Williamsburgh, Virginia, May 1, 1776.

In my last, I endeavoured to show that a constitutional Independence, founded on the ancient Charters and original contracts of the Colonies, and warranted by the laws of nature, ought to have been the object of our wishes from the beginning of the dispute. I mean such an Independence as would have given us a total exemption from Parliamentary Government, under the allegiance of the Crown of England. I will now proceed to show why we ought still to have in view this great object of a constitutional Independence, and that the necessity of a total separation from Britain does not yet arise.

Those who cry out incessantly for an immediate subversion of our ancient political system, would do well to consider the subject in all its points of view, and look forward into the probable consequences. They will find, from a thorough knowledge of the history of mankind, that the British Constitution, when conducted on its pure and true principle, is the most perfect form of Government which ever yet has been invented by the wit of man. Every writer on politicks agrees in this point. All nations acknowledge the truth of the assertion. This beautiful system of legislation, which so equally tempers and combines the different forms of Democracy, Aristocracy, and Monarchy, secures a sufficient degree of liberty to the People, while it curbs the ambitious strides of their rulers. It is free from those numerous evils which arise out of either of the other forms, and ought forever to be the object of a wise People. We should remember that the primary object of the dispute was a restoration of this Constitution; and, when reduced to the dire necessity of taking up arms in defence of our invaded rights, it is our duty to avoid sullyng so fair a cause by an unjustifiable subversion of the whole system, with the determined purpose of never sheathing the sword till we have recovered our rights. We should deem the re-establishment of our original, our constitutional Independency, a sufficient fruit of our victory. Let us resolve in our minds all the benefits which we have derived from our original country. She hath ever been to us an outwork of defence against the ambitious and potent Nations of Europe. She hath served as a guide and a governour, to prevent and to heal those civil dissensions which mutual jealousy and emulation are too apt to excite in Colonies growing up in each others neighbourhood. To the influence of her excellent Constitution we are indebted for that peace and prosperity which we have formerly enjoyed; and while we continue to live in the full possession of our rights, under the gentle rule of the Crown of England, we must go on progressively in that boundless career, of which there is no other instance in history, until the seat of Empire shall be transferred from Britain to America.

Such is the prospect on one side. Let us now see what the opposite view will present us. A publick declaration of absolute Independence will exclude us forever from terms with Great Britain, and either create us a perpetual enemy, who will have it in her power to check our prosperity, or reduce us to the most abject state of slavery. The events of war are uncertain; and however much we may be elated with our present successes, every wise politician will keep within his own grasp the means of promoting a continuance of success, or of securing the best terms on a reverse of fortune. The People of England have manifested an early inclination to do us justice, while we contend for our constitutional liberties, and the Ministry have found it difficult to recruit their armies; but the moment a Declaration of Independency comes out, every man in England will become our enemy. Numbers in America, too, who have been foremost in their opposition to unconstitutional oppressions, will conscientiously stand forth against the idea of innovation. Already the evil has begun. Pennsylvania and the Jerseys have declared for a constitutional connection; the two Carolinas for a total separation. What the event will be, let those reflect that have thrown the deadly cause of disunion among us. Why say anything about it? If we are victorious, we shall have it in our power to command our own terms; but if the battle goes against us, what terms can we then expect, or where can the evil end?

I will venture to go further. Were we this moment triumphant in all the success of victory, I should still think it for the interest and happiness of America to enjoy the benefits and advantage of a free trade, and a constitutional Independence, under the allegiance of the British Crown. A system of absolute Independence would burst asunder the bands of religion, of oaths, of laws, of language, of blood, of interest, of commerce, of all those habitudes, in fine, which hold us united among ourselves, under the influence of the common parent. Who sees not that such a rending to pieces must reach the entrails, the heart, the very life of the Colonies? Should they have the good fortune to escape the fatal extremity of civil wars, will it be an easy matter for them to agree on a new form of Government? Is it probable that they will establish a form on the same salutary principles as the old one; or is it practicable? If they should incline to do so, who among us has pretensions to the Throne? But if, as is most probable, Democracies or Aristocracies should be the modes, who does not feel himself a considerable loser by the change? Was every Colony to become a distinct and separate State, what endless divisions among them! Should such a number of little Commonwealths (where the diversity of laws, the inequality of riches, the variety of possessions, must sow in secret the seeds of opposition in interests) be disposed to form a confederated union, how adjust the rank which each should hold in it, and the influence which each should possess, in proportion to their respective risks and importance? Jealousy, and a hundred other passions, which so early divided the States of Greece, would spread discord through a multitude of Colonies, rather associated by resentment and indignation against Britain, (which are but transitory and galling ties,) than by the sober and well-weighted principles of a natural and permanent union. Their confederacy will continue no longer than the necessity of opposing the common enemy. When that necessity ceases, the turbulent spirit of conquest will break loose, the strong will overrun the weak, and they will mourn for the peaceful influence of the parent country. All these considerations seem to evince that an eternal divorce from Britain would be a great and grievous misfortune to these Colonies.

But, say the friends of innovation, it is both unnatural and inconvenient for the Sovereign of America to reside at three thousand miles distance. This I look upon to be one of our greatest blessings. A King at a distance can never have that personal influence which we find to be the cause of every subversion of the rights of the People; and although some inconveniences may arise from his distant situation, the good by far overbalances the evil.

Others have asked, How can we again be reconciled to a People who hath declared us Rebels, or acknowledge allegiance to a King who has violated the rights of the subject, and broke through the barriers of the Constitution? I answer, that I care but little for their declarations; for as long as we have the power of retaliation in our hands, they will not dare to treat us as Rebels; and although I detest the principles of George III., and shall think it my duty, at all times, to oppose his unjust encroachments, yet I mean to preserve the Constitution, by restraining the King. All men are intoxicated with power; and it is the duty of the People to watch over those who must of necessity be invested with supreme command. The same caution holds good in Monarchies, Aristocracies, and Republics.

But, I am told, your scheme is merely visionary; the People of England will never agree to such a reconciliation as renders the Crown independent of Parliament. Let us beat them into compliance. They will be glad to receive us on those terms, rather than lose us altogether. And while we acknowledge allegiance to the Crown of England, let us assert our natural, our constitutional rights to a free Government, and oppose an invincible resistance to every shadow of Parliamentary resistance over these Colonies.

With much more show of reason, it is alleged that necessity and our common safety call out aloud upon us to separate forever. The advocates of this doctrine tell us, that as long as we continue under the allegiance of the Crown of England, the Nations of Europe will not lend us any assistance. And have we, then, so bad an opinion of our own strength as, in despair, to call in the assistance of foreigners? No, say they; but surely an alliance with foreigners will be an advantage to us, by enabling them to supply us with the necessaries for carrying on the war; that on a declaration of Independence, and not before, our seas and rivers will be crowded with French and Spaniards; a ready market will be had for our produce; and gold and silver will pour in apace. Alas! I fear it will prove but a golden dream, out of which we shall awake restless, dissatisfied, and in despair. The very reverse appears to me to be the most probable. While Britain remains mistress of the seas, and blocks up every inlet into our country, how are the French and Spaniards to get in amongst us? Have we not seen her an overmatch for France and Spain united? And while she continues in alliance with Russia and Holland, is it not probable that she will beat the rest of the united world on that element? But I will suppose France and Spain able to lend effectual assistance; yet I affirm that it is neither their interest to give it, nor our interest to accept of it, with a view to absolute Independency. Cut the knot which ties Old England to the New, and soon would the Northern Colonies, alone, possess more force than they now have united with Britain. This vast Continent, let loose from every connection in Europe, would enjoy the liberty, the command of all her own movements. It would then become a measure of equal importance and facility for her to seize those lands whose treasures might supply what the mediocrity of her own productions denies her. Her independent position would enable her to complete the preparations for invasion, before the rumour of them would reach the European climates. She might choose her enemy, the field, and the moment of her victories. Her thunder would always discharge itself on coasts where it was least expected, on seas but feebly guarded by distant States. Those countries, for the defence of which forces were sent over, would be conquered before they could be succoured. They could neither be recovered by treaty, without great sacrifices, nor prevented from again falling under that yoke from which an enfeebled hand had delivered them. The Colonies of these States would hasten to acknowledge a master who would offer them no conditions so vexatious as that of their own Government; or else, animated by the example of the English Provinces, they would break the chain which fastens them so shamefully to Europe.

Sound policy, then, will prevent the rival Nations of England from precipitating, by their secret Councils, by clandestine succours, or by open assistance, the total Independence of America, which can only deliver them from a neighbouring rival, by giving them a conqueror at a distance. I will go further, and assert, however paradoxical it may appear, that although the other Nations of Europe will not assist in bringing about a total separation, it will be their true interest to join the Americans in that constitutional Independence which gives them a free trade under the allegiance of the Crown of England.

England, it is true, derives the influence she is mistress of, especially in the New World, from the extent and population of her Northern Colonies. It is they who put it in her power to attack at all times, with advantage, the isles and the continent of other nations, to conquer their lands and to ruin their commerce. But let it be considered that this Crown hath, in the other quarters of the globe, interests which may run counter to her progress in America, which may hamper or retard her enterprises there, and which may annihilate her conquests by the necessity of restitutions.

France and Spain have nothing more to gain from a total separation of the Colonies, but what they will receive from their independent trade under the Crown of England. They have a great deal more to lose. This reasoning, it is said, may hold good with respect to Spain, but the French Territories in America are so insignificant that an extensive commerce with the Continent, and the prospect of a powerful fleet, will vastly overbalance the other considerations. And can we be serious in our wishes to aggrandize the power of France—that nation who lately aspired at universal empire, and only wanted a fleet to carry her scheme into execution? Shall we be such short-sighted politicians as to furnish her with that fleet? Soon would she give laws to the whole American Continent. Or, suppose the power of France should be only an equal match for Britain, what shall we gain by the conflict? A diversion of the British forces, perhaps, in our favour. But is it not more probable that the contending Powers, being wearied with their mutual losses, would join to divide the Colonies between them?

Thus, every great and powerful motive combines to mark the line of American politics—the rights of a free trade, under the Crown of England, and the power of granting supplies as the free gift of the People, until, in the fulness of time, the seat of Empire shall be transferred from Britain to America.

NORTHAMPTON COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Northampton County, Virginia, }
May 1, 1776. }

Captain Duncan Hill, Commander of the Schooner lately loaded with Flour, formerly commanded by Captain Kell, laid his Instructions from the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland before the Committee, and desired their advice therein. The Committee accordingly took his case under consideration, and are of opinion that, agreeable to his Instructions, he may make a trial to get out of the Capes; the Committee being of opinion there is a possibility (though very little probability) of his escaping the Tenders.

Extract from the Minutes:

DRURY SMITH, C. Committee.

Northampton County, Virginia, }
March 20, 1776. }

Personally appeared before me, one of his Majesty's Justices of said County, Thomas Kell, Master of the schooner Dolphin, of and from Baltimore, Robert Bailey Mate, and William Cunningham Seaman, and made oath on the Holy Evangely of Almighty God, that on the 12th day of February, 1776, they sailed from Baltimore, bound for the Island of Martinico, and on the 26th ultimo, being between the Horse-Shoe and Cape Henry, were chased by two of the King's row-boats and one tender, which caused them to bear away and run into Cherry-stone, for the safety of the vessel and cargo, and there waited for a favourable opportunity to run to sea; and further, these deponents declare that, on the 4th of March, a sloop tender attempted to come into said harbour in order to take them out, but was prevented by running aground; and further declare that, on the 18th instant, a sloop tender came in and took possession of said schooner Dolphin, hove up her anchor, and made sail, in order to run her out, and at the extreme of the harbour they run aground; after which said tender plundered and took from said Dolphin, salt and fresh provisions, together with cordage, cabin furniture, &c.; and on the 19th the said tender made another attempt to carry out the schooner Dolphin, but was repulsed and prevented by two Companies of Minute-men, one Company of Regulars, and several of the Militia; and finding that said schooner Dolphin could not get out with safety, and consulting the Committee in the County of Northampton, their advice was, to land the said cargo, and then for the said Captain to proceed up to the owners for further orders from Council of Safety. And the deponents protest against the said tenders and row-boats for their detention, damages, &c., which they and their owners have or may sustain from the said tenders and row-boats.

Given under my hand the date above.

HENRY GUY.

CAPTAIN SMITH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore Town, May 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Campbell by this conveyance resigns his commission of First Lieutenant in my company, in order to be of more essential service to his country, by distressing the trade of our enemies in a privateer, fitted out by a gentleman of this town.

If it does not interfere too much with a plan you may have laid down for promotions in the Regular service, I shall be exceedingly happy to have my Second Lieutenant appointed to the vacancy. He is very capable, and more acquainted with the men and their dispositions, and of consequence can be of more use in the company, than a stranger.

Should you have determined to raise the officers according to their seniority, I doubt not you have heard of Mr. Kid's character, (who is eldest Second Lieutenant,) and I rest satisfied you will not promote any person who is not equal to it. Should you not have promised the Ensigny that will be vacant, I shall be happy to have my brother James in the service. He has been in the Independent Company of this town ever since its formation, and understands the duty as well as most young officers.

I am, gentlemen, your obliged and most obedient servant,

SAMUEL SMITH.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

JAMES CAMPBELL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 1, 1776.

SIR: Several gentlemen here are desirous to send me out in a privateer from this place; my own inclination also leads me to go, having been accustomed to the sea service. We have taken great pains to get a vessel fit for the purpose, and think we have succeeded. You will receive enclosed the commission with which I am honoured; retaining the utmost gratitude and respect for the publick from whom I had it. I hope to have the testimony of my brother officers, that I served with vigilance and attention since my appointment, and beg leave to assure you that no consideration would induce me to leave the service, but the hopes of being more useful in another department. I entered into the service a volunteer, and now quit it with regret. I looked on the commission I held as a testimony of the publick confidence and esteem, and shall endeavour in my new capacity to merit the attention that was paid me.

I shall go to Philadelphia to-morrow, to purchase such necessaries as cannot be got here, and make application for a commission for the vessel. Could I obtain a few lines from your honourable Council, signifying that I was in the land service of this Province, it would no doubt facilitate my business, and be of service to me. We are much distressed for canvass; I know of none, private property, to be had. Could your honourable Council spare us any, would forward our enterprise, and enable us to fit out with more expedition than will be otherwise in our power.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES CAMPBELL.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq.

COLONEL WARE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have just been informed by Dr. Weisen-thall, that the small-pox prevails in several parts of this town, which renders a fear that other officers, myself, and several soldiers, are in danger of taking the infection, as our duty requires our passing frequently by houses where it is. The Doctor has advised me to be inoculated immediately, as a person of my age must be in great danger who takes it in the natural way. I have therefore thought it my duty to state the matter to you, and wait your instructions thereon; and hope if you should disapprove of inoculation, that you will contrive some method of getting the troops encamped without the town. Whetstone Point would be the most proper station, could we be provided with tents and other camp utensils; but neither of the officers has a tent, nor do I think it in their power to furnish them, as proper cloth is not to be had.

I am, gentlemen, with due respect, your very humble servant,

FRANCIS WARE.

To the Maryland Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO WILLIAM LUX.

[No. 136.]

Annapolis, May 1, 1776.

SIR: The Council of Safety, upon consideration, some days ago, of the impracticability of square-rigged vessels escaping the enemy in their way to their several ports of destination, did conceive that small sharp-rigged vessels would more probably meet with success. We have therefore thought it most advisable to send the cargo of the brig Fortune to the West-Indies in such vessels, and for that purpose have written to persons who, we are informed, can furnish us with them. In the mean time we would direct that the cargo of the brig should not be unloaded, but kept on board until you have further instructions from us. Captain Vanbibber cannot be much if any in advance, after the arrival of the Hannah, and the bill he has drawn.

We are, &c.

To Mr. William Lux.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO HUGH YOUNG.

[No. 137.]

Annapolis, May 1, 1776.

SIR: We send you enclosed a letter to the Committee of Baltimore County, and request you would present it to them, and then get the schooner Ninety-Two ready as soon as possible, and let the Captain call on us for instructions.

We are, &c.

To Mr. Hugh Young.

P. S. We have not yet received the letter from Captain Beath.

ELBRIDGE GERRY TO JAMES WARREN.

Philadelphia, May 1, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: I am exceedingly desirous that measures of defence should be first attended to, and have place of every other undertaking, and shall be most happy to hear that the Capital and its valuable harbour is well fortified, and something done for the other sea-ports; that your powder-mills are at work; that manufactures of lead and sulphur are attended to, and preparation made for casting cannon; that the Committees of Correspondence throughout the Colony are ordered to make returns of the manufactures of fire-arms, employed or unemployed, and that measures are taken to erect public works; that the established forces, whether Continental or Colonial, are well armed, equipped, and ready for action. When this is done, (and I think with a little assiduity it may be accomplished,) the Colony will be in a situation to receive the enemy; and they being informed thereof, as they generally are of our weakness or strength, will carefully avoid another visit.

I think it may be demonstrated that the Eastern District alone is able, of itself, to declare Independency. The Colony of South-Carolina has behaved nobly in taking up Government, choosing a Governour, &c.; and the Convention of North-Carolina have unanimously voted to follow their example. Virginia is always to be depended upon; and so fine a spirit prevails among them that, unless you send some of your cool patriots among them, they may be for declaring Independency before Congress is ready.

I am glad you approve the proposal for instructions, and can with pleasure inform you that North-Carolina has taken off from her Delegates the restriction relative to this matter, and, as I am informed, has left them at liberty to vote for a final separation from Great Britain.

Your friend as ever,

E. GERRY.

To Mr. James Warren.

CAPTAIN SIMON'S PETITION TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.
[Read May 3, 1776, and referred to Mr. McKean, Mr. Wythe, and Mr. J. Adams.]

To the Honourable Continental Congress now sitting, the humble Petition of PETER SIMON and ISRAEL AMBROSE sheweth:

That on the 10th of January last they sailed from the Island of Saltatuda on board of the sloop Sally, loaded with salt, molasses, rum, paper, wine, &c., bound for North-Carolina; on the 14th of February was taken near Cape Hatteras by the armed sloop General Gage, George Sibble, Commander, who, for the want of a Prize-Master, put James McKnight (the Mate of Captain Radden, who was taken the day before) on board the aforesaid sloop Sally, as Prize-Master, as the said McKnight had agreed to enter into their service. The said sloop General Gage took your petitioners on board, and ordered the said McKnight to proceed to Cape Fear with the sloop Sally; but that night a hard gale came on, which drove the sloop Sally to the northward; after which, the said McKnight run the vessel on shore, in order to convert her to his own use; to accomplish which he has misrepresented every circumstance to the honourable Congress to obtain their order to dispose of the said sloop Sally and cargo, contrary to the orders and instructions given to the said McKnight and the Committee of Burlington. The said McKnight has broken open our desks and trunks, and secreted one hundred half-johannes, wearing apparel, arms, &c.; also has not given any account of one-half the goods that were saved out of said sloop Sally, to the prejudice of your petitioners' three thousand pounds; therefore, we pray you may take it in your great wisdom to restore our sufferings, and prevent our being robbed by such imposters on our country. And your petitioners will ever pray.

PETER SIMON.

Philadelphia, May 1, 1776.

Claim of JAMES MCKNIGHT to the honourable Continental Congress.

To wearing apparel, linen, a watch, &c. - -	£25 0 0
To wages due to the time I was taken, - - -	4 0 0
To sundry articles which I carried as a venture, -	7 0 0
	£36 0 0

The sloop Charming Sally was cleared out from Dominica to Newfoundland, as I saw the clearance of her on board the sloop General Gage; to which I could be qualified if called upon.

The above is a low estimate of things belonging to me on board the sloop Joseph, Captain Radden, when taken by the sloop General Gage, on the 14th of February, 1776.

JAMES MCKNIGHT.

Memorandum of Sundries in my Chest when taken by the Sloop GENERAL GAGE, February 14, 1776, viz:

1 chest; 88 johannes and 27 dollars, which were found in the hands of McKnight; 6 white shirts, and some check ones (2 or 3); 3 cravats; 2 coats, (one never worn); 4 waistcoats; 4 pairs of breeches; 1 pair of drawers; 12 pairs of stockings; 1 pair of shoe-buckles; 1 pair of knee-buckles; 1 pair of shoes, not worn; 3½ pieces of linen; 2 pieces of checks; 2 beaver hats; 1 straw hat; 1 quadrant, and all my books; 1 pocket-book, with sundry papers; 6 plates; bed and bedding; 3 pocket handkerchiefs; 1 parcel of fine thread.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE TO GENERAL PUTNAM.

New-York, May 1, 1776.

SIR: The bearers, Captain Schalch and Doctor Gill, prisoners of war, having been removed here from Schenectady and Albany, in order to be sent to some place in the country, and having behaved as becometh gentlemen of honour in the above-named places from whence they have come; and as they are desirous of being stationed in New-Jersey, at Burlington or Trenton; on account of the healthiness of the climate, as well as the small family of a wife and five children which the said Captain has hopes of receiving from Quebeck; they have, by a gentleman of our Committee, applied to me to request that your Excellency will be pleased either to station them at and about the aforesaid towns, or to permit them to remain here until they shall have the pleasure of waiting on General Washington for the purpose aforesaid, who, they doubt not, has, by the letter directed to him, been informed of their character and behaviour in the places they were last in. The gentleman who introduced them to me is well acquainted with them, and has known the Captain for many years, and I can confide in his representation of them as men of the clearest honour.

I am, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

GARRET ABEEL,

Chairman of the General Committee.

To His Excellency Major-General Putnam.

JOHN SNYDER TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Kingston, May 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Whereas the command of the First Regiment in Ulster County has devolved on me as Colonel thereof, I do hereby enclose you a state of the said regiment as to the number of men; and as to arms and accoutrements we may supply ourselves, and nearly complete now; but ammunition is very scarce, especially powder, for none is to be had here. If your honourable Board could procure a quantity of powder, and send it up to the care of such person as you may judge proper, to be kept and disposed thereof to the regiment if necessity should require it, with directions how and in what manner we shall answer for the same, it would be satisfactory to the publick; for we have a general complaint for that article. And further, I must acquaint your honourable Board that the Captain of the Troop of Horse has been promoted to the office of Major of the abovesaid regiment; and therefore it is necessary that new commissions should be made out for the said troop, which I desire you will do, and send them to me, to wit: A Captain's commission for Sylvester Salisbury, Esq.; First Lieutenant, Petrus Myndertse, Esq.; Second Lieutenant, Cornelius C. Newkirk; Cornet, Cornelius J. Dubois; First Quartermaster, James Rive; Second Quartermaster, Tobias Dubois. And also desire two commissions to fill the vacancies in Captain Mattys Dederick's Company, to wit: First Lieutenant, Petrus Post; and Ensign's commission for Thomas Van Staenburgh. I desire the commissions may be sent by the bearer; and in so doing you will oblige your sincere friend and humble servant,

JOHANNES SNYDER.

Kingston, May 1, 1776.

To the Deputies of the several Counties of the Province of NEW-YORK in the honourable Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety, of the said Province:

The Memorial of DIRCK LEFFERTS, of the City of NEW-YORK, sheweth:

That some time in the month of February last past, a party of the Minute-men of the County of Westchester, under the command of Colonel Drake, came to the country-house of your memorialist, and upwards of thirty of them were quartered upon him at his house, where he frequently furnished them with many necessaries and conveniences, viz: firewood, vegetables, cider, &c.; that the said men have continued at his said house until now, or very lately; that after they had been there for some time, the said men, by order of Engineer Smith, (he supposes,) went upon the woodland of your memorialist, which he had purchased for his own particular use, to supply his family with firewood, and cut down and destroyed a great part of the trees then growing on the said land, and almost entirely ruined the young wood there; and although the said wood may have been cut down to be used in building the Fort at Horne's Hook, (as your memorialist supposes it was,) yet as he has sustained great loss, and been put to great expense by the said men having been quartered upon him, and having cut down and destroyed his wood, whereby a greater part of the burden hath fallen upon him than is his part in proportion with the rest of his fellow-citizens; he prays the Congress or Committee of Safety to take the matter into their consideration, and to grant him such redress and compensation as they in their discretion may think reasonable, and adequate to the loss and damage he hath sustained.

DIRCK LEFFERTS.

COMMISSIONERS IN CANADA TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read May 16, 1776.]

Montreal, May 1, 1776.

SIR: After some difficulty and delay in getting through the ice of Lake George, we arrived here on Monday last, and were very politely received by General Arnold, who at present commands in this post.

It is impossible to give you a just idea of the lowness of the Continental credit here, from the want of hard money, and the prejudice it is to our affairs. Not the most trifling service can be procured without an assurance of instant pay in silver or gold. The express we sent from St. John's, to inform the General of our arrival there, and to request carriages for La Prairie, was stopped at the ferry, till a friend passing changed a dollar bill for him into silver; and we are obliged to that friend (Mr. McCartney) for his engagement to pay the calashes, or they would not have come for us. The general apprehension that we shall be driven out of the Province as soon as the King's troops can arrive, concurs with the frequent breaches of promise the inhabitants have experienced, in determining them to trust our people no further. Therefore the utmost despatch should be used in forwarding a large sum hither, (we believe twenty thousand pounds will be necessary,) otherwise it will be impossible to continue the war in this country, or to expect the continuance of our interest with the people here, who begin to consider the Congress as bankrupt, and their cause as desperate. Therefore, till the arrival of money, it seems improper to propose the Federal union of this Province with the others, as the few friends we have here will scarce venture to exert themselves in promoting it, till they see our credit recovered, and a sufficient army arrived to secure the possession of the country.

Yesterday we attended a Council of War, the minutes of which we enclose. The places proposed are proper to prevent the further progress of the enemy in case they should oblige us to raise the siege of Quebeck. The plank and timber for the gondolas are all prepared and ready at Fort Chambly, and some of the carpenters are arrived from New-York; others are to be engaged here; and as hard money is necessary for these, we have agreed to advance some out of what the Congress put into our hands for our own subsistence, to be replaced when cash shall arrive.

We understand that the troops before Quebeck have not now ten days' provision; but hope, as the lakes are now open, supplies will soon reach them.

We have directed the opening of the Indian trade, and granting passports to all who shall enter into certain engagements to do nothing in the upper country prejudicial to the Continental interests.

We hope to-morrow to obtain an account of our debts that ought instantly to be paid. If, besides what is necessary for that purpose, we had a sum to manage, by opening a bank for the exchanging Continental bills, it is supposed that we might thereby give a circulation to these bills. The twenty thousand pounds above-mentioned will, we think, answer both these purposes. We are told that not less than the eight thousand ordered by Congress will be a sufficient Army for this quarter. As yet there are but about three thousand, including those now passing down to Quebeck, who are just come over the lakes. The small-pox is in the Army, and General Thomas has, unfortunately, never had it.

With great respect to yourself and the Congress, we have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servants,

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,
SAMUEL CHASE,
CHARLES CARROLL of Carrollton.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

At a Council of War, held at Head-Quarters, April 30, 1776:

Brigadier-General Arnold , President.	} Members.
The Hon. Benjamin Franklin ,
The Hon. Samuel Chase ,
The Hon. Charles Carroll ,
Brigadier-General Woedtke ,
Colonel Moses Hazen ,
Colonel De Haas ,

Agreed, that it is immediately necessary to take post at and fortify the shore and island at the Falls of Richelieu, with a number of cannon, not exceeding twenty pieces, under the direction of such persons as General Thomas or the Commanding Officer in Canada shall appoint for that purpose.

Agreed, that it is necessary immediately to fortify the Post at Jacques Cartier, with a number of cannon, &c., not exceeding ten pieces, and that the Commanding Officer in Canada give directions for that purpose.

Agreed, to build immediately, at Chambly, six gondolas, of a proper size to carry heavy cannon, to be under the direction of General Arnold, who will employ Colonel Hazen to oversee and direct the workmen.

BENEDICT ARNOLD, Brigadier-General.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REVEREND JOHN CARROLL,
ONE OF THE AMERICAN COMMISSIONERS TO CANADA,
DATED MONTREAL, MAY 1, 1776.

We have at length come to the end of our long and tedious journey, after meeting with several delays, on account of the impassable condition of the lakes; and it is with a longing desire of measuring back the same ground that I now take up my pen to inform you of my being in good health, thank God, and of wishing you a perfect enjoyment of yours.

We came hither the night before last, and were received at the landing by General Arnold, and a great body of officers, gentry, &c., and saluted by the firing of cannon, and other military honours.* Being conducted to the General's house, we were served with a glass of wine, while people were crowding in to pay their compliments; which ceremony being over, we were shown into another apartment, and unexpectedly met in it a large number of ladies, most of them French. After drinking tea, and sitting some time, we went to an elegant supper, which was followed with the singing of the ladies, which proved very agreeable, and would have been more so if we had not been so much fatigued with our journey. The next day was spent in receiving visits and dining in a large company, with whom we were pressed to sup, but excused ourselves in order to write letters, of which this is one, and will be finished and dated to-morrow morning.

I owe you a journal of our adventures from Philadelphia to this place. When we came to Brunswick, in the Jersey Government, we overtook the Baron de Woodtke, the Prussian General, who had left Philadelphia the day before us. Though I had frequently seen him before, yet he was so disguised in furs that I scarce knew him, and never beheld a more laughable object in my life. Like other Prussian officers, he appears to me as a man who knows little of polite life, and yet has picked up so much of it in his passage through France as to make a most awkward appearance.

When we came to New-York, it was no more the gay polite place it used to be esteemed, but it was become almost a desert, unless for the troops. The people were expecting a bombardment, and had therefore removed themselves and their effects out of town; and the other side, the troops were working at the fortifications with the utmost activity. After spending some disagreeable days at this place, we proceeded by water up to Albany, about one hundred and sixty miles. At our arrival there, we were met by General Schuyler, and entertained by him during our stay with great politeness and very genteelly. I wrote to you before of our agreeable situation at Saratoga, and of our journey from thence over Lake George to Ticonderoga; from the latter place we embarked on the great Lake of Champlain, about one hundred and forty miles to St. John's. We had a passage of three days and a half. We always came to in the night time. Passengers generally encamp in the woods, making a covering of the boughs of trees, and large fires at their feet; but as we had a good awning to our boat, and had brought with us good beds, and plenty of bed-clothes, I chose to sleep aboard.

* MONTREAL, May 1, 1776.—On Sunday last arrived here Baron Woodtke and Colonel De Haas, with Mr. Joseph Terry, of this place, accompanied by several other gentlemen of the Army; and on Monday, the Committee of the honourable Continental Congress for establishing and regulating the Continental affairs in this Province, with the celebrated Doctor Franklin at their head. They were received on the beach at the Post de Vadonvil by General Arnold, and the friends to liberty, and a salute was fired from the Citadel. Being escorted to Head-Quarters, they and a number of friends to liberty spent the evening with decent mirth.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Providence, May 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yours I received per express this day, dated in April, and observe the contents. Shall endeavour to give you a state of the Navy under my command; and shall begin with the time we arrived in New-London River, where we landed sick people, not fit for duty, in the hospital, which I provided with difficulty: seventy-two from the Alfred, thirty-four from the Columbus, fifty-eight from the Andrew Doria, seventeen from the Cabot, sixteen from the Providence, and five from the Fly; in all two hundred and two people, which weakened the fleet so much that I applied to General Washington and got an order for two hundred men; about one hundred and seventy of whom I got on board the fleet; when I came to sail with our fleet, in order to speak with the fleet at or near Newport; but the Alfred got ashore near Fisher's Island, and was obliged to be lightened to get her off, which we did without much damage. In the mean time Wallace and his whole fleet left Newport.

We sailed from New-London on the 24th April, and met nothing; the next day the weather proving rough we put in here, where we have landed upwards of one hundred sick men; and there are daily more taken down with some new malignant fever. I was making all the despatch possible to procure provisions and stores, in order for a three or four months' cruise, when I received by the same express General Washington's orders to send his men immediately to New-York; which I must comply with.

I had brought round here twenty-six heavy cannon, for the defence of the town of Newport, and by that service expected to obtain liberty to enlist men out of the Government troops to have made up my complement; but if the cannon must be taken away I cannot ask it with modesty, and if I do, I am in doubt whether it would be granted.

I am ready to follow any instructions that you give at all times; but am very much in doubt whether it will be in my power to keep the fleet together, with any credit to myself or the officers that belong to it; neither do I believe it can be done without power to dismiss such officers as I find slack in their duty. I left the sloop and the Andrew Doria at New-London, unloading stores; when I get a return of what they land, shall immediately transmit it to you. I ordered the Andrew Doria to careen there, which I hear is done. Should be glad you would give orders what should be done with the New-Providence sloop, which I wrote my brother about.

Enclosed you have a copy of Captain Whipple's request to me, which suppose I shall grant, and expect that may bring on some more inquiries; but do not expect anything which may now be done will mend what is past.

I am, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Marine Committee.

ADMIRAL HOPKINS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, May 1, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 25th of April, per express, have received. Am very much obliged to you for the use of your men, and shall despatch them to New-York immediately, in the sloop Providence, Captain Hazard; although we still continue to be sickly on board all the vessels, so that it will be impossible to go to sea with the fleet, before we get recruited with hands, which will not easily be done.

I am, with great respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ESECK HOPKINS.

To General Washington.

JOSEPH HAWLEY TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Watertown, May 1, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: The Tories dread a declaration of Independence, and a course of conduct on that plan, more than death. They console themselves with a belief that the Southern Colonies will not accede to it. My hand and heart are full of it. There will be no abiding union without it. When the Colonies come to be pressed with taxes they will divide and crumble to pieces. Will a Government stand on recommendations? It is idle to suppose so. Will Canada ever join us without Independence and Government? They will not. Can we subsist, and support our trading people, without trade? It appears more and more every day in the country and Army that we cannot. Nay, without a real Continental Government our Army will overrun us, and people will, by and by, sooner than you may be aware of, call for their old Constitutions; and as they did in England after Cromwell's death, call in Charles the Second. For God's sake let there be a full Revolution, or all has been done in vain. Independency, and a well planned Continental Government, will save us. God bless you. Amen and amen.

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To Elbridge Gerry, Esq.

ELEAZER RUSSELL TO COLONEL JOSHUA WENTWORTH.

Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, May, 1776.

SIR: When you offered me the Association to subscribe, my indisposition was so great that I could hardly speak or think; therefore, entreated you to call again, or give me leave to wait on you when able.

Respect to publick authority inclines me much to sign it; but as I am utterly unable to comply with the letter of it, can by no means do it without restriction and reserve.

The article of defending the country with arms is explicit and peremptory; which the total loss of health makes me incapable of—my constitution rent for three successive years with paralytick fits, seldom able to walk a mile without assistance, often falling headlong when crossing a floor, and always confined in cold or damp weather.

There is also an original scruple on my mind, strengthened by more than thirty years' reflection, on the subject of the lawfulness of shedding human blood of any nation, except for crimes condemned by human laws founded on the divine.

A thought never entered my heart but what was replete with the tenderest emotions for the country in its bleeding state. My duty is clear in submitting to the powers now in being in the Colony, and my disposition fixed to serve the publick in every view consistent with the above description of my health, and the rights of conscience as expressed in a late resolve of the Continental Congress.

It is you, sir, I have immediately to do with in this affair; and if you will please to make these thoughts known to any of the Committees, or Court, that may be proper, I think it will excuse, I am sure it will oblige, your respectful and most humble servant,

ELEAZER RUSSELL.

To Joshua Wentworth, Esq.

COSMOPOLITAN.—NO. X.

To the Inhabitants of the AMERICAN Colonies:

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: It was hard, it was cruel, to have British laws imposed upon us against our repeated petitions, in the face of our most solicitous remonstrances. It was mean, it was irritating, to have standing armies forced into our towns, and ships-of-war stationed in our harbours, and we ourselves denied a law for our safety, the means of defence, in case of unjust violence and lawless depredations. His policy was to keep us defenceless, unprepared, and unarmed, that we might fall an easy prey to the intended invasion. Hence, and from his innate aversion to everything not instamped with the characters of slavery, was his repeated reprobation, in their virgin purity, of bills for a new necessary regulation of the Militia, and for the prevention of bribery and corruption, those bulwarks of the publick peace, integrity, and safety.

We have gradually and insensibly been departing from our once happy Government, by the practices of those whose interest it was to filch away the liberties of the subject. Men, the first in ability and rectitude, have been dismissed from the service of the country, for no other reason but their unshaken attachment to her interest; and others, the servile minions of power, placed in their stead, and crammed down the throats of the people. Wealth was accumulated, and offices monopolized by the few; of consequence their influence increased, and their power dangerously augmented. The power in the hands of the people was diminishing in the same proportion as individuals became great and wealthy by the administration of publick justice. Under the combined influence of the Justices of the Peace, officers of the Militia, Judges and officers of the Courts, and other standing Magistrates and officers, a Republican Government, with a Monarchical check, was rapidly degenerating into an Aristocracy, the most oppressive and arbitrary of all Governments. I do not mention it as alone peculiar to the late demolished set of Magistrates; some others, perhaps, would have done the same. It is the lot of mortals, it is incident to humanity. Few, very few, are fortified against the bewitching charms of power, and the pleasant sweets of emolument. However, it evinces the necessity of two political maxims—the necessity in all Governments, both of a limited delegation of power in point of time, and a frequent resort to first principles.

My dear countrymen, when I recollect your descent, your loyalty, your worthy achievements, with the motives of your conduct, I feel the workings of a laudable pride, and the flame of vanity kindling within me. But the fire of indignation burns fierce when I consider how you have been galled by Parliamentary pressure, and Majestrical power; how petitions for redress have been the occasion of adding insult to cruelty, and increasing the weight of your wrongs, of procuring sneers from your bosom enemies, and frowns from a deluded Sovereign, at first pocketed by an American Minister, and then branded with infamy, despised, spurned at, and trampled under foot. Groundless, scandalous, and vexatious, have been the refined appellations to mark the character of the whole community—intolerable oppression to a man susceptible of the suggestions of an English heart. History may unfold the dangers of thus wantonly sporting with the feelings of a spirited people. For this, Charles I. lost his head, and James II. the British Crown. But to return. When I review your past sufferings, how you have been cramped and obstructed in the making of necessary laws; your Militia discouraged; your Magistrates appointed with the advice of a maimed hebdomadal Council; your agents refused pay, to prevent the possibility of complaints, however necessary; your castle surrendered; your manufacturing house attacked; your harbours invested with a powerful fleet; your capital with a lawless soldiery; your Representatives made to give way to a Standing Army, kept in duress, dissolved, prorogued, adjourned, and harassed about, with a great expense to their constituents, for no other reason but because they refused to betray their trust, and submit to a wanton exercise of arbitrary power; your ears wounded by horrid oaths; your eyes with wretched scenes; your persons with frequent indignities; your Sabbaths profaned; your religion despised; the morals of the young corrupted; innocence seduced, and chastity abused; your countrymen butchered; your property destroyed; your laws trampled upon; your Governour and your Judges made independent; a Board of Commissioners constituted; Courts of Admiralty established; their jurisdiction enlarged, and trial by Juries in many instances taken away, and others greatly impaired; and, finally, how every branch of your Constitution, principle of law, and maxim of freedom, were swept away by the present Parliament, enthroned in thunder, and a most pacifick community involved in tumult and in blood. When I ruminate on these, with many other oppressions, and take into consideration recent piratical depredations, I am staggered in believing any American so abject as not to be diverted from sinister pursuits, and roused to opposition. Sure I am, that there is no man of true wisdom and a manly spirit, but would sacrifice his all, and risk his very life, rather than run the venture of having the one controlled, and the other commanded by a power so monstrous as the one from whence those calamities flowed.

In addition to these, others, the constant attendants of a conquered country, will be our lot, and the portion of posterity, unless in this critical moment we play the man, and defend our rights. It is not duty to leave wealth or honours to coming generations; but indispensable is the obligation to bequeath them liberty, and this, by the tenderest ties of interest, and the strongest cords of affection. It is the dictate of nature, a principle of self-preservation, when the laws of equity, the sanction of Charters, and the fundamentals of the Constitution are found insufficient to restrain the violence of domination, to arm and to fight. The character of a soldier is respectable, and his duty noble, when discharged in opposition to tyranny, in defence of the rights of mankind. A cockade unprostituted is a badge of greatness, a mark of goodness. It procures friendship, commands respect, and adds a dignity to the person who wears it. There is something godlike in hazarding in defence of one's country. The present hostile invasions are such as to demand all our resentment, and to arouse all our courage. The inheritance transmitted by our great forefathers, the safety of our friends, liberty purchased by the best blood of our ancestors, the surest, the fairest, the brightest jewel we possess, which alone communicates dignity to peace, and renders life a blessing, are all at stake. If we fail in our necessary duty, our land will become the price of conquest, the plunder of foreigners; and the effect of this conquest will be ruin and destruction to its present inhabitants, poverty and slavery to their immediate and remote successors. It is enough to fire with an invincible resolution rather to be wrecked in the storm, than to survive, the subjects of slavery, or the objects for a military execution.

We have passed the Rubicon; there is no retreat. What a Hutchinson has planned, a George has executed. The long and black catalogue of measures projected by the former, has been sanctified by the latter, and adopted by Britons. They received them with eagerness, carried them into their Senate, and made them their own. They are therefore principals in a felony, sufficient to wean from all attachments. Considering how we have been oppressed, and (if we may judge of the future by the past) how we shall be oppressed, if viewed as subordinate, instead of allied; it pleads strongly for bursting asunder those imaginary bands which have too long chained us to misery; for to contemplate the doctrines of Independency, and in earnest to inquire whether, if totally afloat from a state on which, as such, we were never dependant, we cannot, by the compass of common sense, weather the storm, and steer safely into the harbour of absolute freedom. The characters of Kings, as contained in the story of the world, have been made up of knaves or of fools. The former have been monsters for extravagancies, barbarity, and dissipation; the latter, like a weak ship in a violent tempest, with a vast sail, and no rudder. Examples are numerous.

A worthless villain having filled the ears of a foolish King with false stories of the Jews, he issues his Proclamation for their utter extirpation, and to kill at pleasure, and seventy thousand were slain. If a frantick fancy come into the head of a drunken whore, (the famous Thais,) Persepolis, a Royal city of Persia, must be burnt by the hand of Alexander. If the man after God's own heart is smitten with the charms of Bathsheba, Uriah must be murdered. If a dancing wench please Herod, half his kingdom is at stake, and the most venerable of mortal heads must be sacrificed to the rage of her impure mother. If Helena, the daughter of a King, the most beautiful woman of her time, run away with a young rake, Troy must be reduced to ashes by a ten years' siege. But if the son of a King ravish a woman, Kings must be expelled.

The instances of weak, wicked, and barbarous exercises of Monarchical power, which caused the Tyber to swell with blood under the Emperors, are too many, and too horrid to be described. The history of the dreadful contest for the Throne between the Houses of York and Lancaster, which fattened the fields with human gore; of the cruel carnage of the bloody Mary, who blackened the air with gibbeted men; the mad pranks of Henry VIII., Charles I., and George III., are too notorious to need repeating. Thus bewitching and metamorphosing is power; thus fluctuating is Government, and wretched the governed, under the capricious wantonings of Regal domination. Surely it is enough to destroy in the breast of thinking beings that mysterious veneration for the crowned monsters; to exclude them from every system contrived for happiness; and to prepare the formal bills for our perpetual divorce from such political fornicators.

Attempts will still be made by the artful and wicked to create animosities, dissensions, and party strife. We trust the penetration of the times will be sufficient to discover their intentions, and resent the affront. If we become strangers to magnanimity, harmony among ourselves, integrity, and personal courage; if we yield to the cautions of a timorous moderation, to the maxims of a temporary interest, to the lullings of an unmanly repose, or the misplaced orders for State connections; if betrayed by cowardice, perverted by cunning, or subdued by power,—all will be gone, all dependant upon the momentary will of a Prince, or his minions in office. Happiness and liberty, property and life, will become matters of gracious indulgence; rights and privileges, the meums and tuums of private interest, will be no more. The sublime doctrines of jure divino, of a British or an American Dr. Sacheverel, will form our creed; the irreligious edicts of an unprincipled Senate regulate the conscience; the subtlety of a jacobitish Chief Justice direct our contemplations, whips and swords procure submissions, the terror of chains and the horrors of a prison secure subjection.

Having, in a general way, touched upon those calamities which demonstrate the dangers that we have been, and still are exposed to, unless repelled by vigorous, timely, and united exertions; I shall suffer the pen which has too long trespassed on the reader's patience to drop from the hand ever ready for the service of the publick; and as an atonement for dwelling thus long on a character so justly odious to every honest man as the hero of our paper, I drop him likewise with ineffable contempt, never to be stooped for again.

Friends and Fellow-Christians: That you may constantly implore His aid who winds up the chain of eternal events, coops in space, and dwells in the fields of immensity; that wisdom from on high, firmness, magnanimity, and a sagacity that lifts up the curtain of futurity, may pervade the bosoms of our Senatorial bodies; that the tears of America may be bottled in the vials of Heaven; that the LORD GOD of GODS, the LORD GOD of GODS may gird on the sword of his Majesty, and lead on our host to the battle; that our Generals may know no fear; that the feet of our soldiers may be like the roaring of lions, and their faces firm as the mountains; that the fountain of their life may be shielded by the spreading hand of Omnipotence; that their injuries may be healed with celestial balsam; that the blood of those who breathe out their souls at open wounds, may flow into the veins of a crucified Saviour; that they may exchange the present weapons of their warfare for crowns and for diadems; that every man, woman, and child, where, when, and whomsoever he be, may have discernment of their duty, and integrity and courage to discharge it; that the enemy may come out in one way, and retreat in ten; that their plots may be discovered, themselves taken in their own craftiness, and their sroward Councils hurled headlong; that their cannon may refuse to roar, and the winds to wave their hoisted banners; that health may encircle our camps, success repair to our standard, and adversity stand trembling at a distance; that America may rise triumphant, blossom as the rose, and swell with increasing splendour, like the growing beauties of the Spring, bearing in her right hand the great Charter of Salvation, the Gospel of the Heavenly Jesus, and in the left the unfolded volumes of Peace, Liberty, and Truth, until the sturdy pillars of Nature shall totter into ruin, and the whole fabrick of Creation retumble into chaos,—is the daily prayer of

COSMOPOLITAN.

JOHN BAXTER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore Town, May 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Permit me to take this opportunity of acknowledging the grateful sense I entertain of the honour done me by the late Provincial Convention held for this Province, which honourable body you now represent, in appointing me a Lieutenant in the Fourth Company of the Regulars, raised for the defence of this Province. An opportunity now offers, by embracing of which, I am fully convinced I can equally serve the American cause, and, peradventure, reap considerable private advantage; and inasmuch as I am well assured that numbers of gentlemen, with superior abilities, and, I hope, with equal zeal and attachment, will gladly accept of my berth, I therefore humbly beg leave to resign my commission, which I have sent you enclosed; most ardently wishing that America in general, and this Province in particular, may ever be successful in their struggle for the glorious cause of liberty.

I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your very humble servant,

JOHN BAXTER.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

CHARLES CARROLL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Mount Clare, May 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed were brought to me yesterday, by Mr. William Smith, which I promised him I would transmit to you by the first opportunity. I sent for Mr. Hopkins, as you desired, and directed him to send half the linens to Annapolis, by the Defence or her tender; but they had set off before he returned to town. Be pleased to write to him, whether he may hire a boat and now send them with safety to you. I have been so much out of order that I have not been able to call on Colonel Ware about the tents, but will do it as soon as I possibly can.

I am, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

CHARLES CARROLL.

To the Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

[No. 138.]

Annapolis, May 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We understand from Captain Nicholson, that you have now got your boom down at Whetstone Point. We desire, therefore, the schooner Ninety-Two may no longer be detained, and have ordered Mr. Young to despatch her immediately. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL SMALLWOOD.

[No. 139.]

Annapolis, May 2, 1776.

SIR: Upon considering the representation made by Major Gist, relative to Christian Castler, the Council of Safety are of opinion that his case comes properly under the seventh Article of War, and that he cannot be punished with death; and therefore that the appointment of a Court Martial by the Council of Safety is unnecessary.

We are, &amp;c.

To Colonel William Smallwood.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, May 2, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby directed to station thirty-five men, with a proper officer, of your battalion, at the False Cape, to protect the navigation, and do duty there, until further orders.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.To the Officer commanding the Battalion of Continental Troops in Delaware Government.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-York, May 2, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 22d ultimo, and am sorry to inform you that it is not in my power at this time to refund to your Colony the powder lent the Continent, our magazines here being very low, and the pressing demands from Canada obliging me immediately to forward sixty barrels thither. Should any inconvenience result to the Colony from not having it, it will give me much uneasiness. You may rest assured that as soon as I possibly can, I will make a return of it.

The Commissary-General has not presented the account yet; when he does, it shall immediately be paid.

I am, sir, with esteem, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL JAMES CLINTON.

New-York, May 2, 1776.

SIR: Having received information that there is a number of arms at one Wiltsey's, at the Fishkills, among the officers' baggage which came from St. John's, I request and authorize you to make inquiry about them, and to secure all you can find.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel James Clinton, Third New-York.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL WARD.

New-York, May 2, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency having heard that the Regiments stationed on Dorchester-Heights and Bunker-Hill are not employed in carrying on the works for the defence of Boston, from some misapprehension in you that they were to be kept constantly there, I am commanded by him to signify to you that he never had it in idea that they were to be exempted from the common round of duty and fatigue, and that he expected them to give every assistance you might judge necessary, for expediting and completing the fortifications, &c. I am, sir, yours, &c.

R. H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Ward, Boston.

COLONEL LEARNED TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, May 2, 1776.

SIR: With regret I must humbly represent my case to your Excellency. Being so indisposed in body that I am absolutely rendered unfit to serve the much injured and distressed publick with that alacrity and usefulness I could wish, or the importance of the cause requires; yet my heart and greatest wish is that your Excellency may receive renown, and the United Colonies' arms still be distinguished with success and victory, and in God's own time every worthy member in this struggle return to and enjoy his own habitation in peace.

But at present must request to absent myself from the Army in the manner your Excellency shall prescribe; and if it shall be thought most expedient I should be dismissed the Continental service, if my past conduct is equal, should pray I may be dismissed with honour and supported home. In obtaining this, I shall have fresh instances of your Excellency's favour; and lay me under new obligations ever to remain your very humble servant,

EBENEZER LEARNED.

To the Hon. His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

FRANCIS LEWIS TO ROGER SHERMAN.

New-York, May 2, 1776.

SIR: I have been favoured with your letter of the 25th ultimo, which should have answered sooner, but waited for an opportunity of consulting Colonel Mifflin, Quartermaster-General, on the subject of shoes, who informs me that the full quantity, (say ten thousand pair,) ordered by Congress, will be wanted for the Army. I have therefore directed Mr. Ogden to continue the shoemakers at work in Jersey, and have also employed others here. Stockings are not to be procured in this city; they must be got at Philadelphia, and money must be sent here to pay for the shoes.

Enclosed you have a return of shoes already delivered here. Hempen and yarn stockings will be the most suitable.

As our election for Delegates is to be on the 14th instant, I shall defer my return to Philadelphia till that is over. I am, sir, your very humble servant,

FRANCIS LEWIS.

To Roger Sherman, Esquire, at Philadelphia.

ISAAC SEARS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-Haven, May 2, 1776.

SIR: Your Excellency will please excuse my writing to you on a subject that it is most probable you will have taken up before this comes to hand; but as it is the business of the Provincial Congress at New-York to first see that the resolves of the Continental Congress are carried into execution, I must suppose your Excellency would not interfere with them, unless you should see an absolute necessity for it; and it is a duty I owe to my country to use my utmost endeavours to preserve and keep inviolate the laws of the Continental Congress.

I must now acquaint your Excellency that, before I left New-York, I heard many of the tea holders say they would have a dollar the pound for their tea, (if it should get to that, would it stop there?) and since I have been here, information has been given me that some of the tea holders have begun to sell their tea at eight shillings, which has induced the tea holders in this Colony to refuse selling their tea till they see what New-York intends to do. I think it would be a very dangerous consequence to sell the tea higher than the Congress has limited it; for it would lay a foundation for violating every law the Continental Congress has made, and may hereafter make, whenever it suits the mercenary merchant to line his pocket with cash; and it is scandalous to the highest degree for the merchant to sell the tea higher than the limited price; for the Continental Congress has limited it to one shilling and six-pence per pound higher than the tea holders asked for it last fall, which pays them a very large interest; and as to my part, I am entirely satisfied with the price; although I have as much tea by me as would advance my estate largely, were the tea holders to violate the resolves of the Congress; for I make not the least doubt but they would soon get twenty shillings a pound for it. I had thirty-nine chests in this Government; and since I returned from New-York have opened the sale by the small quantity, at six shillings, New-York currency, and sold about ten chests; but shall now stop till I see the event of what will be done in New-York respecting that article, as, if there is not a stop put to the use of it, the tea that I sell at the limited price may be sold by others at twenty shillings per pound.

I am, your Excellency's most obedient, and very humble servant,

ISAAC SEARS.

To His Excellency General Washington, at New-York.

CAPTAIN DELAPLACE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 8, 1776]

Weathersfield, Connecticut, May 2, 1776.

Captain Delaplace, of his Majesty's Twenty-Sixth Regiment, begs leave to acquaint the honourable the Continental Congress that, by their late resolves respecting the prisoners in their custody, he, as an individual, lies under many particular and severe hardships, to wit: his private stock at Ticonderoga, consisting of forty-five sheep, eleven horned cattle, household and kitchen furniture, besides many other articles, such as three fusils, a silver-hilted sword, a silver mounted hanger,—the whole amounting to two hundred pounds sterling and upwards; for which no account has ever been made him, though assured by Colonels Allen and Arnold that he should be no loser by the leaving such property behind him. As to the second particular wherein he is a sufferer, that he must refund, from the time of his arrival at Hartford as a prisoner, being the 21st of May last, (1775,) what has been allowed from the General Assembly for the maintaining him, his wife, two children, and a servant, amounting weekly to seven dollars per week.

Having thus laid before their Honours the particulars of his sufferings, begs their assistance, for which he shall esteem himself highly honoured; and is, with the greatest respect, their most obedient servant,

WILLIAM DELAPLACE, Captain 26th Regiment.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

N. B. Captain Delaplace begs leave to acquaint the honourable the Continental Congress, that he wrote to his Excellency General Schuyler concerning the within mentioned particulars, but has not, as yet, obtained any assistance from him.

NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN., TO ADMIRAL HOPKINS.

New-London, May 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received a line from Captain Hopkins to put as much provision on board the Andrew Doria as will serve them for three months; which I shall comply with, and imagine she will be ready to sail by Saturday next.

I received a line from Bedford, and my friend writes me that he has delivered the five hundred weight of powder to Governour Cooke's order; so I shall take that quantity out of the powder you landed here.

We have two deserters here that came from the brig that is at Block-Island, they say the ship Cerberus has thirty-two eighteen-pounders, and two hundred men; and that the people at Block-Island tell them all they know. The ship sails very fast. I am, sir, your humble servant,

NATHANIEL SHAW, JUN.

To Essex Hopkins, Esquire, Commander-in-Chief of the American Fleet, at Providence.

SAMUEL PURVIANCE, JUN., TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I forgot to get from you a copy of the letter which I wrote by Captain Smith to the gentlemen of the Baltimore Committee when at Annapolis. Please to order your clerk to furnish me a copy thereof per return of Captain Smith; which will oblige, gentlemen, your humble servant,

SAMUEL PURVIANCE, JUN.

To the Council of Safety.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO HENRY YOST.

[No. 140.]

Annapolis, May 3, 1776.

SIR: In November last you contracted with the Council of Safety for the delivery of seventy-five muskets, with worms, steel ramrods, bayonets with steel blades, &c., on or before the 1st of May, to the Council of Safety, at the city of Annapolis, and received one hundred and fifty pounds currency per advance. We are now in great want of the guns, and the time being past, we request you would let us have them as soon as possible, or at least as many as you have ready; they may be delivered to the order of Major Price, at Fredericktown. We also expect you will comply with your further contract for the delivery of twenty-five muskets, with like accoutrements, at Georgetown, per month; the time commences on the 14th of this instant. We are much surprised that we have not had some guns delivered us heretofore from your shop. We are, &c.

To Mr. Henry Yost, Frederick County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JOHN UNSOLD.

[No. 141.]

Annapolis, May 3, 1776.

SIR: On the 14th of December, 1775, you entered into an engagement to make and deliver, on or before the 1st day of May, 1776, to the Council of Safety, or their order, at Georgetown or Baltimore town, eighty good, substantial, proved muskets, three and a half feet in the barrel, three-fourths of an inch in the bore, with double bridle-locks, black-walnut or maple stocks, and plain, strong brass mounting, bayonets with steel blades seventeen inches long, steel ramrods, double screws, priming wires and brushes fitted thereto, with a pair of brass moulds to cast twelve bullets on one side, and on the other side to cast shot of such a size as the musket will chamber three of them. Twenty-nine muskets, very roughly made, with pickers and wipers, and one bullet mould, have been delivered; but not one bayonet. The residue of the arms, and the bayonets, &c., are immediately wanted. The Province has been greatly disappointed by your non-compliance with your contract; we therefore require you will immediately send them, on pain of answering all the evil consequences that may ensue. We are, &c.

To Mr. John Unsold, Frederick County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL WARE.

[No. 142.]

Annapolis, May 3, 1776.

SIR: We leave Colonel Ware entirely at large on the point of inoculation; we think it the safest method of taking the small-pox, but would have him judge of the risk; we are doubtful tents cannot be provided for some time. Captain Fulford comes up to make some inquiries for us; if it lies in your way to assist him, we should be obliged to you for it. We are, &c.

To Colonel Francis Ware.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO FREDERICK COUNTY COMMITTEE.

[No. 144.]

Annapolis, May 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We send you enclosed a list of prisoners transmitted to us from North-Carolina, who are to be kept in custody in this Province. We request you would make the best inquiry you can into the circumstances and condition of the persons, and have those kept that you may think entitled to any indulgence in some room or rooms in Fredericktown under a proper guard; the others in the publick prison there, until the Tory-House is got ready, which we hope will be done soon. The Convention from North-Carolina have sent us no state of the prisoners' particular cases, nor anything more than we enclose you a copy of; they are to do it soon. Should any of the prisoners incline to hand any state of their case in writing to us, we should be obliged to you to forward any such, and we will consider the affair more fully hereafter, and give instructions, if any be necessary, what further we would have done. The immediate expense will fall, we suppose, on this Province; but surely North-Carolina or the Continent will reimburse us. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for the Middle District of Frederick County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL MAGRUDER.

[No. 145.]

Annapolis, May 3, 1776.

SIR: We request you would appoint a proper guard to convey the prisoners from North-Carolina that will be delivered to you at Georgetown, from thence to Fredericktown, there to be delivered to the Committee of Observation, to whom we have written on the occasion. The Province will be answerable to you for reasonable expenses.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Zadock Magruder.

COLONEL HAND TO ANDREW ALLEN.

[Read May 4, 1776, and referred to Mr. Reed, Mr. Sergeant, and Mr. Huntington.]

Philadelphia, May 3, 1776.

SIR: I beg leave through you to inform the honourable Continental Congress that, in consequence of their resolution of the 15th ultimo to recruit and reinlist the Rifle Regiment, I have, with the approbation of the Commander-in-Chief, ordered a number of officers and men on that service. In full confidence that the honourable Congress would be pleased to advance a fund for the purpose of recruiting, to be deducted from the future pay of the regiment, I have directed the officers (who will be here to-morrow) to call on me for money. As the country is much drained of men, and the inlisting for two years a matter of novelty, we will be obliged to advance each man a month's pay on his inlisting, which, for the seven companies now to be completed, will amount to one thousand three hundred and forty-seven pounds ten shillings, Pennsylvania currency, allowing each man to receive advance as private, exclusive of the sum allowed for inlisting each recruit, and for subsistence of the officers and recruits until they join the regiment, which I am unacquainted with, and beg the Congress will please to ascertain.

As arms are scarce, and those now in the regiment are the property of the soldiers, it will be necessary to detain those belonging to the men that will not re-engage, and pay them the value, which will be a charge against the recruits. Money for this purpose I must also request the honourable Congress will be pleased to permit me to draw for, as soon as I know the sum wanted.

A decent pride being one of the most necessary constituents of a soldier, and as nothing contributes more to a man's good opinion of himself than dress, I trust that the Congress will advance me a sum sufficient to purchase a complete uniform dress for the Rifle Regiment. I am convinced it will be of great utility, and contribute much to the good of the service; and as it will be deducted by easy stoppages from their pay the ensuing year, the Continent can suffer no loss.

As at the time the Rifle Regiment was raised the Congress thought it proper to allow no more than one drummer or fifer to a company, and as the regiments since raised are allowed a drummer and a fifer to each company, which is absolutely necessary; I therefore pray that I may have the same indulgence.

I have only to add, that his Excellency has laid his commands upon me to use the utmost diligence in recruiting; and that I am, sir, with much respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

EDWARD HAND,

Colonel of First Continental Regiment.

To Andrew Allen, Esq., in Continental Congress.

PENNSYLVANIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 3, 1776, and referred to Mr. Sherman, Mr. Floyd, and Mr. Sergeant.]

In Committee of Safety, Philadelphia, May 3, 1776.

SIR: This Committee having considered the petition of Mr. Oswell Eve, are of opinion it should be laid before the honourable Congress; and they take the liberty of sending it to you for that purpose; at the same time, they certify that Mr. Eve has at different times, upon the recommendation of this Board, shown his works and improvements to such gentlemen as were appointed from this and the neighbouring Colonies to view the same.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN NIXON, Chairman.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL WYNKOOP.

New-York, May 3, 1776.

SIR: Since the Adjutant-General's letter to you of the 1st instant, I have received from the Committee of Safety a note of the companies belonging to each regiment, and the places where they are stationed; by which I find that four of the companies belonging to Colonel Clinton's Regiment are at Fort Montgomery and Fort Constitution, which will answer the purpose intended when the order was sent to you to repair thither, which order I now think proper to countermand, as I have received by express from General Schuyler a letter, wherein he mentions the necessity of having a regiment stationed on the communication between Albany and Canada; you will therefore, sir, on receipt hereof repair to Albany, and obey such orders as you may receive from General Schuyler respecting your regiment.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Wynkoop.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

New-York, May 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received your favour of the 27th ultimo yesterday evening, with its several enclosures; and in part answer thereto, refer you to mine of the 29th, which probably will have come to hand ere now. But lest any accident has prevented it, I will again inform you that, in obedience to an order of Congress, I have detached six more regiments, under General Sullivan, in addition to those under General Thompson, to reinforce our Army in Canada; all of which, except a few companies, are embarked; and as the situation of our affairs in that quarter is not so promising as we could wish, and an early arrival of them may be of infinite advantage to us, I shall repeat my request, and in full confidence trust, that you will do everything in your power to hasten their march. I have sent forward with them sixty barrels of powder, which is all that can be spared from hence at this time, which I hope will arrive safe. The Commissary I have been importunate with; he tells me eight hundred barrels of pork are gone to Albany, and that he every day expects a further quantity from Connecticut, which he will order to you as soon as it comes, without stopping here. You will also receive three boxes of money, said to contain three hundred thousand dollars, which, from my letter from Congress accompanying them, are for Canada: yours probably will be more particular. But I should think, my dear sir, if the whole will not be more than sufficient to pay the troops and the claims there, (though some of it might be intended for you,) that it will be advisable to send it forward. You will have it in your power to get a further supply before long to satisfy your engagements; those in Canada, either with our men or others, should not remain unpaid at this critical and interesting period; you, however, will be better able to judge what should be done in this instance than I possibly can. With respect to your military chest, when replenished, I see no impropriety in your giving warrants as usual; it seems to be necessary, and of consequence must have my approbation.

The Quartermaster has forwarded a parcel of intrenching tools and other necessities, with about five hundred tents, the latter to be equally and properly distributed among this last detachment: no more can be had at this time. You will also receive the chain which General Lee ordered, which I think should be sent to and fixed at the place it is designed for with all possible expedition: it may be of great service and benefit. In respect to sailors to cruise and pass in the lakes, on the 24th ultimo I gave a warrant to a Captain Jacobus Wynkoop, for two hundred and seventy-six and two-thirds dollars, for a month's advance pay for himself, officers, and men, who are engaged in that service; of this I then advised you, and of their different pay, that you might take an account of it, and know what they are to receive in future.

I am exceedingly sorry you should have been so indisposed. I had hoped you would get perfectly restored, so as not only to have seen the end of this campaign, but your great labour and unwearied assiduity in the cause of your country crowned with success and the blessings of freedom. You have my most fervent wishes for it.

I have just received an arrangement of the companies allotted by the Committee of Safety to Colonels Wynkoop and Clinton for their regiments, a copy of which you have enclosed, by which you will see they are differently arranged from what you expected or I knew; I have therefore countermanded an order which was issued to Colonel Wynkoop before, and directed him (the companies at Albany being in his regiment) to repair immediately to you for such directions and orders respecting his regiment as you may judge necessary to give. This you will employ at the posts you mentioned for the communication. I can spare no more from hence, the ten regiments already detailed having weakened us here too much. The four companies of Colonel Clinton's Regiment at the Highland fortifications I intend shall remain there, for carrying on and garrisoning those works, and which will be joined by another. Those on Long-Island will be kept there.

I am, dear sir, with sentiments of great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To General Schuyler.

PETER T. CURTENIUS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, May 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have no bed-cases, nor cartouch-boxes, &c. These articles are in possession of Mr. Roorback and Norwood, who are not authorized to deliver any to my orders; therefore Captain Jackson will require an order on each of them for what he will want.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

PETER T. CURTENIUS.

To the Committee of Safety.

N. B. One bed-case for two men is the allowance.

MESSRS. SECRETARIES: Please to remember, when you make out orders, that Norwood has the guns and pouches, and Roorback the bed-cases, irons, trammels, pails, shovels, and tongs.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED NEW-YORK, [MAY 3,] 1776.

Soon after I received your letter, I sent for Colonel Sears, Mr. John Smith, and some others, whom I knew to be staunch, to spend an evening with me, that I might converse with them upon the subject. It would not do to show your letter, or even hint that I had received it; but an opportunity for introducing the subject soon offered. A Captain of my guard came and reported that the Committee of Safety had sent some persons to the main guard, who had no complaint lodged against them. I immediately sent to the Committee, and they sent a Sub-Committee to wait upon me. I asked them what charge they had to lay against the prisoners. They informed me, one was a Collector, who had not accounted for the money he had collected, and had abused their Congress; the others were in for different crimes. I told them that I could by no means consent to have free citizens subjected to trials by Court-Martial; they must try them by proper courts, if such there were; and if not, the offenders must run at large till necessity obliged them to constitute the proper courts. This opened the door for me, and I took advantage of it. The Sub-Committee thanked me for my care over the liberties of their fellow-citizens, and owned the necessity of taking up Government. Sears, Smith, &c., were strongly of that opinion, and all went home perfectly satisfied, and without suspecting the conversation was anything more than accidental.

The next day Greene and I were ordered to the jail, to see some prisoners of war. There I found some persons in for robbery, and one for murder. As I found I had good success in the beginning, I determined to keep on, and frequently took occasion to mention the great difficulty which must attend their present state; that it would be tyrannical to execute those persons without a trial; to try and execute them by process, in the name of a King with whom we were at war, would be absurd; and if neither of these methods were taken, they must, whether guilty or not, suffer perpetual imprisonment. The argument took effect; and even Tories themselves acknowledged it was best to take up Government till reconciliation should take place. This doctrine pleased me well; for I knew if Government was once assumed, upon whatever motives, they would find that the Rubicon was passed, and that they could never return to their ancient form.

I then, by the advice of my Privy Council, drew up a piece purporting to be a Petition to the Committee of Safety, to request leave from the Continental Congress to take up Government. This piece I enclose you; and though badly written, it steers so directly between Whigism and Toryism, that no person can tell whether it was drawn by a Whig or Tory. My Privy Council informed me that it had the desired effect. The Whigs were fond of it, because, if it took effect, their point was carried, and no retreat could ever take place; the Tories were fond of it, because it held up the damned reconciliation they were seeking after.

Being well informed of my success, I thought it time to sound our Colonel. I sent for him. We conversed freely upon the matter of taking up Government. He owned the necessity of it, and said it would be carried into execution, at all events, at the meeting of their Convention. He informed me that almost every person began to see the necessity; and that the instructions then drawing up for their Delegates mentioned nothing about effecting a reconciliation, but to protect and defend America. When I found him in the true way to happiness, I dismissed him and attacked others. To Tories, I painted the evils attending their present state; to Whigs, I held up the advantage of seizing the precious moment. I soon found my party increase with surprising rapidity.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

The Petition of HENRY DAWKINS, a Prisoner now in custody, in behalf of an order from the said Congress, humbly sheweth:

That your Petitioner, understanding that a certain Philip Youngs is apprehended on account of being concerned with your unfortunate Petitioner in counterfeiting the Continental and other money; in order to protect the innocent, feels bound, by all the ties of humanity and conscience, to declare that the said Philip Youngs hath never, directly or indirectly, been concerned in the aforesaid counterfeiting, printing, or passing of the said bills; and that all information on that account is absolutely groundless, as your Petitioner declared the same to Captain Wool, at the house of Nathaniel Williams, at Huntington, on the Sunday your Petitioner was apprehended. Your Petitioner therefore humbly hopes that the Congress will consider the matter, and discharge the said Philip Youngs from his confinement; which obligation shall ever be acknowledged by the Congress's distressed, humble servant,

HENRY DAWKINS.

Old City-Hall, May 3, 1776.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress of the Province of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 14, 1776. Referred to Mr. Livingston, Mr. Jefferson, and Mr. J. Adams.]

Fort George, May 3, 1776.

SIR: I am just now honoured with your favour of the 20th of April, enclosing sundry resolutions of Congress, which I shall minutely attend to, as far as I may be able.

The lead found at Crown-Point, I have been under the necessity of ordering to Canada. It did not exceed three tons and a half, and no more can be procured there. We have not ten pounds either in Albany, Ticonderoga, Crown-Point, or this place, and we should not be long left destitute of so necessary an article.

The want of money to pay our debts, the scarcity of forage, and the immense quantity of baggage with which our troops encumber themselves, are so many sources of inexpressible distress to me. I fear that, notwithstanding every possible exertion, the Army in Canada will suffer, as the pork comes very slowly from Albany. "The people in general," as Mr. Livingston, in a letter of the 1st instant, observes, "are resolved not to ride until they are paid off. Some thousands are now owing to them, and they have not wherewith to purchase provender." I shall hasten to Albany the moment I have seen General Thompson from hence, and I hope to meet with some better success in forwarding provisions, as I have requested Mr. Livingston to signify to the people that money is on the way from Philadelphia, which I hope may prove true.

I do not apprehend that there is any just foundation for the fears entertained by the people of New-Jersey. About one hundred and fifty Indians are now at Albany, and I cannot believe that any hostilities will be commenced by others while they remain there. The Senecas and Cayugas are not friendly; but I believe they will not act against us, from prudential motives, and I cannot think we have anything to fear from the others.

Mr. Douw is purchasing goods at Albany, for the Indians now there. It is absolutely necessary to be done, that they may go home well satisfied.

Some of the people mentioned in the affidavit I did myself the honour to transmit you in my last, have been apprehended and lodged in Jail at Albany. I cannot learn that they had much success in procuring adherents.

The Commissioners arrived at St. John's on the 27th; and, on the 28th ultimo, twenty-four batteaus, with troops, &c., &c., had already arrived, and the others were momentarily expected. I believe the whole are now before Quebeck.

I have found myself under the necessity of building a number of batteaus, far exceeding what Congress ordered. One hundred and thirty are now built, and I propose to complete them to two hundred; but if more troops should be sent, even that number will be insufficient.

Commodore Douglass is not arrived, nor is a single sailor come up; so that I shall be obliged to send on the provisions in batteaus from hence to St. John's; and for this arduous service, I have only seventy men of the troops raised for the defence of this Colony, the others being not yet come up, if raised, which I much doubt.

I am perfectly recovered of the ague, and hope to be able to endure any fatigue, and to go through any service I may be called to.

I am, with the most unfeigned respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort George, May 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Since I did myself the honour to address your Excellency, on the 27th ultimo, I have had no intelligence from Quebeck.

John Carroll, in a letter of the 28th April, dated at St. John's, has advised me of the safe arrival of himself and his brothers, the Commissioners, at that place on the preceding day. He adds, that twenty-four batteaus, with troops, had already passed that place, and that the remainder were momentarily expected, as the wind was fair. It continued so the 29th and 30th, so that I have great reason to believe the whole, together with the heavy cannon, are arrived before Quebeck.

In hopes of a supply of ammunition from below, I sent on all that was here, and at every other post. Mr. Wisner, in a letter of the 29th April, informs me that I may immediately expect about three tons of powder. I will detain no more here than what may barely suffice, and send the rest on to Canada. Your Excellency will please to order some lead to be forwarded to me.

Colonels Greaton and Patterson's Regiments are arrived at Ticonderoga; the former is to move thence to-day, and the latter to-morrow. Colonel Bond's arrived here last evening, and crosses Lake George to-day. Colonel Poor's, which I expect to-morrow, will not be detained a moment. I shall attend General Thompson to Ticonderoga, and arrange matters in that quarter, and then hasten to Albany, to push on pork, which comes on very slowly, as the wagoners refuse to ride until they are paid off, and we have not a farthing of money. I have written to Philadelphia for it, but I fear the service will suffer before I can procure it from thence. Is it not possible to send some from the military chest with you?

Besides several deserters which we have in custody, Captain Romans and some of his men are expected here, against whom heavy and numerous complaints are lodged by the inhabitants, and I fear too well founded. On the former, I am under the necessity of ordering Courts-Martial to sit, although I know it is not strictly military, whilst your Excellency is in this Department; but the occasion, I hope, will excuse me with you. I wish some direction for my future conduct in such cases.

Our Army in Canada will expend near fifty barrels of pork per day; and before any fresh provisions can be procured there, it will be necessary to send seven thousand barrels of pork, which they will expend.

I have not heard anything from Colonel Wynkoop. I had him much at Ticonderoga.

Be pleased to present my compliments to the gentlemen of your suite.

I am, dear sir, with every affectionate wish, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

PHILIP SHEARMAN TO ADMIRAL HOPKINS.

Dartmouth, May 3, 1776.

SIR: We received yours of the 18th March, per Captain Jenne, together with the guns and shot. Permit us to return you our sincere thanks for your publick services, and in a particular manner for those necessary engines of defence sent us by Captain Jenne. The shot which will not answer for us, we shall convey, by the first opportunity, either to Providence or Howland's Ferry.

We are your and the country's most obedient and humble servants.

Signed in and on behalf of the Committee of Inspection for the town of Dartmouth, by PHILIP SHEARMAN, Clerk.

To Commodore Eseck Hopkins, on board the Ship Alfred.

GENERAL WARD TO COLONEL WARREN.

Boston, May 3, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is a copy of a letter I received this morning from Mr. Derby. If the General Court should send an express to Congress, I should be very desirous that he might come through Boston, to carry my despatches to the southward.

I am, sir, your obedient humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To Colonel Warren, Watertown.

Ipswich, May 2, 1776—5 o'clock P. M.

SIR: I am now on my way from Newburyport to Salem, from whence I proposed sending the following advice per express; but meeting with an opportunity by one of your officers, I embrace it, and inform you that about two o'clock this afternoon Captain John Lee arrived at Newbury, from Bilboa, in twenty-nine days, and informed me that on the 14th of last month, in longitude forty-five from London, he spoke a vessel from Plymouth in England, who informed him that, three days before, he parted with a fleet of sixty sail of transports, bound for Boston, under the command of Admiral Lord Howe, having on board twelve thousand Hessian troops. He saw and read the London papers down to the 12th March, from which, and by the Captain of the vessel, he learned that there were twenty-seven Commissioners on board this fleet, and that they were directed if possible to adjust matters; if not, they were ordered to risk everything to penetrate into the country; if not able to effect this, then to burn and destroy all in their power.

Burgoyne was near sailing, with four thousand Hanoverians, for Quebeck, and a number of regiments are gone to the Southern Colonies. The Ministry had quieted the Prussian Monarch by paying him all his demands. France and Spain had objected against any Russians coming this way. This is the purport of what I had from the Captain, who is a man of veracity. I advised the gentlemen at Newbury to collect what further they could and inform you. Please inform the Court of this matter.

I am, &c.

RICHARD DERBY, JUN.

To General Ward.

P. S. Captain Lee could not obtain leave to bring any English papers, but only to read them.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, May 3, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday afternoon a vessel arrived at Newbury from Bilboa, in twenty-nine days, the Captain of which informs that, on the 14th of April, in longitude forty-five from London, he spoke a vessel from Plymouth in England, who informed him that, three days before, he parted with a fleet of sixty sail of transports, bound for Boston, under the command of Admiral Howe, having on board twelve thousand Hessian troops; that twenty-seven Commissioners were on board this fleet; that they were directed, if possible, to adjust matters with the Colonies; if not, to penetrate, at the risk of everything, into the country; if this could not be effected, then to burn and destroy all in their power. That General Burgoyne was near sailing with four thousand Hanoverians for Quebeck; that a number of regiments are gone to the Southern Colonies; that the King of Prussia was made quiet by having all his demands complied with; and that France and Spain had objected against any Russians coming to America.

Commodore Manly declines going on another cruise until he has a larger ship; and he says he cannot recommend his First Lieutenant for the command of the vessel he last sailed in.

Frequent applications are made to me to appoint Commanders of the privateers, and for other matters, which no person here is authorized to transact.

I am, in great haste, your Excellency's obedient humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

THOMAS CUSHING TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Watertown, May 3, 1776.

SIR: By order of a Committee of the General Court of this Colony, whereof I have the honour to be Chairman, I enclose you a copy of a piece of intelligence which is of the greatest importance, received by Captain John Lee, a gentleman who may be depended upon. We would humbly submit it to your Excellency whether, as the British troops left this Colony in disgrace, they will not return here to retrieve their character. On this occasion we take leave to suggest to your consideration whether it would not, considering the number which are gone out of this Colony, be for the publick safety to reinforce the detachment under General Ward's command as soon as may be, as the regiments under his command are by no means full.

I am, with great respect, your Excellency's most humble servant,

THOMAS CUSHING.

To His Excellency General Washington.

[At the bottom of the Letter, in Washington's hand, and written with a pencil, are these words:]

General Washington would remark on this letter, that one of the five Regiments left at Boston was complete, and that the other four contained the average of those brought away.

THOMAS CUSHING TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 10, 1776, and referred to the Committee on the state of the Eastern Colonies.]

Watertown, May 3, 1776.

SIR: The General Court of this Colony have appointed a Committee, whereof I have the honour to be Chairman, to give you the following interesting intelligence:

Captain John Lee, a gentleman who may be depended upon, arrived at Newbury on the 2d instant, in twenty-nine days from Bilboa, and gives information, that on the 15th of April he fell in with a brig from Plymouth, bound to Newfoundland, the master of which informed him that, three days before, he parted with a fleet of sixty sail of transports, under the command of Lord Howe, having on board twelve thousand Hessians, bound to Boston, together with twenty-seven Commissioners; that General Burgoyne, with four thousand Hanoverians, sailed, or was to sail, about the same time for Quebeck. Lee says he read the English papers on board the brig, by which it appears that the Parliament had voted to pay foreign troops; and that the King of Prussia's demands on Britain were complied with; that the people of England were very desirous of a settlement; and that the Commissioners were to use their utmost endeavours to effect it, which, if they failed in, the forces were to lay waste the whole country, if they could.

Mr. Guardoqui, of Bilboa, by his letter, dated 27th March last, writes to Isaac Smith, Esq., by Captain Lee, in these words: "No other news from England, but that seventeen thousand three hundred German troops were going to Boston and Quebeck, some of which were embarking about three weeks ago."

This intelligence appears to the General Assembly of this Colony too important to the whole Continent not to be forwarded to you by express. Where these troops will endeavour to begin their ravages is uncertain; but as the British arms were brought into disgrace by General Howe's being compelled to abandon this Colony, it is reasonable to suppose that they will endeavour to regain their honour in the place where they lost it. And we should be guilty of injustice, as well to the other United Colonies as to this, if we should not inform your Honours, that this Colony is by no means in a good state of defence, a great number of our arms being carried away in the Continental Army, and to Canada; and our powder, which we supplied the Army with, being eight tons at least, not being replaced, wherefore we cannot have that dependance on our Militia which we otherwise should have; and the detachment of Continental forces under General Ward's command being, as we apprehend, insufficient to repel a heavy attack, there being but five regiments, and they not half full.

We are by no means solicitous about the particular interest of this Colony; nor do we wish ourselves to be excused from being the more immediate object of their relentless rage; but, for the sake of the publick cause, we wish ourselves in a situation fit to receive them with that spirit which they have been taught to expect in men fighting for the freedom of America. The attention which the Congress has shown to the safety of this Colony, as well as the whole of the United Colonies, gives us reason to hope that they will neglect nothing that can tend to our relief and protection.

I am, sir, with great respect to the Congress, your most obedient humble servant,

THOMAS CUSHING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

Salem, Thursday Evening, 9 o'clock, May 2, 1776.

The Committee of Salem have this moment received the following intelligence by Richard Derby, Jun., from Newburyport, who says that he this day, about one o'clock, talked with Captain John Lee, then just arrived, in twenty-nine days from Bilboa, who says that on the 15th of April, he fell in with and was on board a brig from Plymouth, in England, bound to Newfoundland, the master of which informed him that, three days before, he parted with a fleet of sixty sail of transports, under the command of Lord Howe, having on board twelve thousand Hessians, bound to Boston, together with twenty-seven Commissioners. That General Burgoyne, with four thousand Hanoverians, sailed, or was to sail, about the same time with the fleet above-mentioned, to go to Quebeck. That he (said Lee) read the English papers on board the brig, by which it appeared that the Parliament had voted pay for the foreign troops; that the King of Prussia's demands on Great Britain had been paid; that the people in England were greatly desirous of a settlement, and that the Commissioners were to use their utmost efforts to that end, which failing, the troops were to lay waste the country, if in their power.

Isaac Smith, Esq., showed us a letter from Mr. Guardoqui, (brought by Lee.) in which is the following paragraph:

"No other news from England, but that seventeen thousand three hundred German troops were going to Boston and Canada, some of which were embarking about three weeks ago. May God preserve you, is the hearty wish of
"JOSEPH GUARDOQUI & SON."

Dated Bilboa, March 27, 1776.—Directed to Isaac Smith, Esq.

The foregoing intelligence the Committee of Safety thought it their duty to communicate by express to the honourable Court.

By order of the Committee:

TIMOTHY PICKERING, JUN., Chairman.

To the Honourable the General Court of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay.

THOMAS CUSHING TO THE GOVERNOURS OF RHODE-ISLAND AND CONNECTICUT, AND PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Watertown, May 3, 1776.

SIRS: By order of a Committee of the General Court of this Colony, whereof I have the honour to be Chairman, I enclose you a copy of a piece of intelligence which may be depended upon. As the British troops were driven in a hasty manner from this Colony, we think we have reason to expect that they will endeavour to retrieve their character in the same place; we therefore ardently wish that you would hold a number of Militia Regiments in readiness to reinforce us, or to give us the same assistance you may depend upon from us, should the attack be made on your Colony.

I remain, with great respect, your most humble servant,
THOMAS CUSHING.

LORD GEORGE GERMAINE TO GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, May 3, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Brown, to whom you intrusted your important despatch to Lord Dartmouth, of the 21st of March, arrived here this afternoon, and I immediately laid it before the King.

The enclosed duplicates of the letters which have been written to you since that from Lord Dartmouth, of the 22d October, which you say was the last you had received, and the copies which I also send you of Mr. Robinson's letters, will show that every possible attention has been given to your situation, as well in explaining to you the measures which had been taken for an early reinforcement of your Army, as in sending out ample supplies of provisions and stores of every sort.

The miscarriage of the despatches has been very unfortunate, and your not having received supplies would have been fatal, but for the step you very prudently took of withdrawing from the town of Boston, which, under the circumstances you have stated, is a measure very much approved by the King, and in the execution of which you have given the fullest proof of his Majesty's wisdom and discernment, in the choice of so able and brave an officer to command his troops in America.

You will see by my despatch to you of the 18th of November,* 6th and 27th of December,† 5th of January,‡ 1st and 7th of February,§ 28th of March,¶ and 27th of April,¶ that every possible effort has been used to give you such a force and to send you such supplies, as would enable you to act with effect in the course of this summer, and at the same time to secure the possession of Canada, and reduce the Southern Colonies to obedience.

With respect to that part of the force destined to those different objects, which is to reinforce the Army under your immediate command, you will see that the Army sent to the southward has orders to join you as early as possible, and to hazard nothing that may defeat that junction. You will also see that the Highland Corps, amounting to eight thousand two hundred men, is actually arrived at Spithead, and will probably sail to-morrow or next day, in company with a detachment of guards, amounting to one thousand and ninety-eight men, and there is great hope that it will not be long before the remainder of the Hessians, computed at about four thousand, will be ready to proceed.

The transports for the reception of General Burgoyne's regiment of Light Cavalry, and for about eight hundred draft horses, are also fitting in the river; and those articles of military stores demanded in the returns transmitted, with the different letters I have received from you, have been either already sent, or are now preparing to be sent, as far as we have been able to procure them.

With regard to that part of the force which is destined for the service in Canada, consisting, exclusive of the early relief sent out with the Isis, of seven regiments from Ireland, one from England, and a body of near five thousand foreign troops: those regiments sailed from Cork the 8th of April, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Frazer; and the first division of Brunswickers, amounting to about two thousand men, together with the Hanau Regiment, and the Twenty-First Regiment from Plymouth, also sailed under the command of Lieutenant-General Burgoyne, on the 7th of April; and from the time at which they sailed, and the fair wind they have had since, they are by this time in the River St. Lawrence; and you will, I trust, have been early enough apprized of this arrangement to have prevented you in your design of sending any part of your force to Quebeck, for it is of consequence, in every light, that it should be kept entire.

* By the Triton. † By the Milford Frigate. ‡ By the Greyhound. § By the Milford Frigate. ¶ By a Packet express from Boston. ¶ By another Packet.

Under these circumstances of preparation, the King had entertained a well grounded hope that an early and effectual impression would have been made, either in New-England or New-York; and that the supplies which have been sent out would have arrived in time to have enabled you to have maintained yourself at Boston until a force was collected adequate to some decisive blow. The failure of these supplies is a very unfortunate event; but, though in your situation at Halifax, you will, for a time, be further removed from those places where the force you have under your command must ultimately be employed, yet, as I see you have taken the proper measures, in leaving cruisers off the coast of New-England, that the ships which may arrive from England may still join you with security, you will soon, I trust, have it in your power to carry on operations to the southward.

This change in your situation appearing in your letters to have been adopted for the temporary purpose of convenience, and the better to enable you to disengage yourself from the embarrassment that might obstruct a more decided operation, will, therefore, induce no alteration of the plan to send the Hessians and Guards to Rhode-Island, according to my instructions to Lieutenant-General Heister; and they will of course take post there (if practicable) if they find no orders from you to the contrary. As they cannot, however, be supplied from hence with a sufficient quantity of artillery and intrenching tools, you will endeavour to send them what you think adequate to that service. The Hessians have their regimental field-pieces. Some light three-pounders are on board an ordnance store-ship that sails with them; and the number of cartridges, which I understand is about thirty rounds per man, will be made up to sixty out of the stores at Portsmouth; but they must depend upon you for intrenching tools, though every effort will be made to collect what can be procured at Portsmouth and the Tower, and to put on board the transports as much as they can receive.

By the intelligence we receive from time to time of what is passing at New-York, it seems as if the Rebels had determined to oppose a landing at that place, and for that purpose to collect a large force there; but of this, it is most likely you will receive certain and better accounts than we can get. I send you, however, the latest intelligence we have from that quarter, because it points out the particulars of the defence the enemy are preparing to make, and it may, in that respect, be of some use to you. The plan you propose for attacking New-York as soon as possible, is becoming that spirit and vigour with which you always act; but as such large reinforcements are going to you, I wish they may arrive before the time of carrying it into execution, that your force may be so increased as to render your success more certain.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE GERMAINE.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Williamsburgh, May 4, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I am just returned from Suffolk, and the posts below, and the post is just going out; so that this must rather be considered as an apology for not writing than as a letter. In a few days I shall set out for Carolina, but before I set out shall send you a full description of our state and situation. We want arms, medicines, and blankets, most cruelly; indeed, we want some battalions. I wish, dear General, you would prevail on the Congress to increase the pay of our Engineers—it is too wretched; no men qualified for the business will serve on the terms. Enclosed is an uncouth return of our force.

Adieu, dear General. Yours respectfully, and affectionately,

CHARLES LEE.

VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read May 13, 1776.]

Williamsburgh, May 4, 1776.

SIR: We have your favour of April 23d, with several resolutions of Congress, commissions for the officers of our Army, and instructions and bonds for those who shall apply for letters of marque and reprisal; to all which we shall pay due attention.

Feeling, as we do, the warmest resentment for the unmerited and repeated severity meditated against America, by a despotick and unrelenting Administration, fully manifested, had any doubts remained of it, by their last act retrospectively sanctifying every instance of rapine, violence, and plunder, without distinction of circumstances, provided an American was the suffering object, we shall not fail to strain every nerve for defeating their cruel attempts, and, as far as may be in our power, to carry into execution the several resolutions of Congress to effect this purpose.

For, and by order of the Committee of Safety of Virginia, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

EDMUND PENDLETON.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of Congress.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL SIM.

[No. 143.]

Annapolis, May 4, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed we send you a copy of Edmund Pendleton, Esq.'s letter to us relative to the prisoners from North-Carolina. We request you would give the necessary orders for conveying those intended for Pennsylvania through Prince George's County to Queen Anne's, where a proper guard will be appointed to receive them and conduct them to Baltimore town. Those twelve intended to be kept in custody in the Province, we think it would be best to have them sent under guard by water to Georgetown, and request you would give the necessary orders for that purpose. There Colonel Magruder will receive and convey them to Fredericktown, and deliver them to the Committee of Observation for the Middle District of Frederick County, to whom we have likewise written on the occasion. The Province will be answerable to you for reasonable expenses.

We are, &c.

To Colonel Joseph Sim.

P. S. In case any letters or papers should come for us by the guard, send them forward by express.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO GEORGE WOOLSEY.

[No. 146.]

Annapolis, May 4, 1776.

SIR: We contracted with you on the 9th of February last for the brig Rogers, to proceed on a voyage to the foreign West-Indies on account of this Province, and advanced you one thousand eight hundred pounds towards purchasing a cargo of flour for her. We have not since then heard from you on that subject, nor doth it appear to us that you have done anything therein; we therefore request you would acquaint us, by the return of Captain Fulford, what you have done in this matter; and oblige, sir, yours, &c.

To Mr. George Woolsey, Baltimore Town.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, May 4, 1776.

SIR: Since writing the foregoing, (see letter April 26th,) I have it further in charge from Congress to desire you to inform them whether the Continental commissions sent to you for the officers of the troops raised by Connecticut the last campaign, were delivered or offered to them, or any and which of them, and whether any and which of them accepted or refused the same; and particularly, whether commissions were offered to Colonel Waterbury and Colonel Easton, and whether they refused accepting them; and also to desire you, in case Major Douglass declines to take the command of the vessels on the lakes, that you appoint Captain Wynkoop to that command, and inform Congress thereof by the first opportunity.

I have the honour to be, &c.

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Schuyler, at Albany.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, May 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am commanded by Congress to request you will inform them whether the Continental commissions which were sent to you, for the officers of the troops raised by Connecticut the last campaign, were delivered or offered to them, or any, and which of them; and whether any, and which of them accepted or refused the same; and particularly whether commissions were offered to Colonel Waterbury and Colonel Easton, and whether they refused accepting them.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Committee of Safety of New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, May 4, 1776.

SIR: A vacancy having happened in the First New-Jersey Battalion by the promotion of Lieutenant-Colonel Winds, the Congress thought proper to elect Mr. Ogden to supply his place.

Lord Stirling, in his letter of the 18th of March last, among other things, informed the Congress that, by this appointment, Major De Hart and the battalion considered themselves "exceedingly hurt;" and enclosing a memorial from Major De Hart and the officers of that regiment, he strongly hinted and expressed a hope that the Congress would supersede Mr. Ogden and appoint Major De Hart, or some other officer of the battalion, in his stead.

This letter, with the memorial enclosed, having been committed, and a report made thereon, the Congress came to sundry resolutions, which I have the honour to enclose; and am, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. You will please to order Colonel Ogden to join his Regiment.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL LIVINGSTON.

Head-Quarters, New-York, May 4, 1776.

SIR: You will on receipt hereof, give orders to the officers of the battalion of which you are Lieutenant-Colonel, to join their respective companies; which, if you do not find complete, let an officer from each go on the recruiting service; and if in want of arms, you must apply to the Committee of Safety to procure them for you if possible. There are four companies belonging to your regiment now stationed at Fort Montgomery and Fort Constitution. You will repair thither, and if no superior officer is there, you must take the command and look to the works now carrying on there, which you must exert yourself in seeing finished as soon as possible. The three companies of your regiment stationed on Long-Island are to remain there; the other company you will order to join you at the fort, with all convenient speed.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Henry B. Livingston.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO COLONEL NICOLL.

New-York, May 4, 1776.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency to inform you that he received yours of the 30th ultimo, with a state of the fortifications; and it gives him much concern that the men are so deficient in arms. He imagined the want was great, but nothing like what it appears to be. He has taken every method in his power to obtain a supply, but without any effect; and has applied to the Committee here, who say they are using the only means they have for getting them. How they will succeed cannot now be determined.

His Excellency desires that you will make strict inquiry about Captain Menos; and if the fact is as you have represented, that he be taken and secured, if it can be done, though, most probably, he will have entirely escaped before now, if he went away on the 20th ultimo.

His Excellency will have orders given on the Commissary of Artillery and Ordnance Stores, for four or five barrels of powder and other necessary ammunition, which, on account of their great scarcity and difficulty in procuring, he desires your greatest care and attention to, and that they may not be wasted or embezzled.

Doctor Foster, one of the Physicians of the General Hospital, has been directed to send you a Surgeon, who will probably be with you now in a day or two.

When the time of the Minute Company expires, you are not to call in others.

Another company, of Colonel Clinton's Regiment, will be ordered to join the four already with you, as soon as it is recruited and made up.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT H. HARRISON.

To Colonel Isaac Nicoll, Fort Constitution.

WILLIAM PALFREY (PAYMASTER-GENERAL) TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 8, 1776.]

New-York, May 4, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Agreeable to the order of the honourable Congress, I applied to Mr. Winthrop, who delivered me the books and papers belonging to the office of the Paymaster-General, and also cash to the amount of ninety-two thousand three hundred and seventy dollars, for which I have given him a receipt. I now do myself the honour to transmit you a state of the office, to Saturday, 4th May, which I shall continue to do weekly, as I think it highly necessary the Congress should be often acquainted therewith, that they may make the necessary provision.

When I undertook the office, I intended to have transacted the business of it without the assistance of a clerk; but I now find that, unless I am allowed such assistance, I cannot do that justice to it I could wish, as the General has informed me that, besides the usual business, I must examine all the abstracts, and draw the warrants; which was never before done in the office, though doubtless very proper. It is also highly necessary I should have some person with me on whom I can depend, in case I should, by sickness or any other accident, be prevented from executing the duties of my office; and as other officers in the Staff (say Adjutant-General, Quartermaster-General, Commissary-General, and Barrackmaster-General) are allowed clerks, I make no doubt the honourable Congress will see the necessity of it, and grant me the same indulgence.

When General Washington left Cambridge a considerable sum was left with Colonel Warren for payment of the troops stationed there. As his commission is now suspended, I should be glad to know whether any, and what steps will be taken for paying those troops; whether Congress will appoint a person for that purpose, or whether it must go through my hands. Your speedy answer would be very agreeable.

The General just now showed me a letter from General Ward, wherein he complains that money is much wanted for that Department. You will be pleased to represent the matter to Congress, that they may take such order upon it as shall seem meet.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM PALFREY.

To John Hancock, Esquire, President of Congress.

To the Right Honourable the President and Members of the Provincial Convention of the Province of NEW-YORK:

The humble Petition of WILLIAM DUER, of the County of CHARLOTTE, humbly sheweth:

That your Petitioner on the 16th of April last, was regularly chosen one of the Deputies to represent this County in Provincial Convention for the ensuing year, by a very large body of the principal freeholders and freemen, who have all signed the General Association, and are unfeignedly attached to the cause of American liberty.

That John Williams, Alexander Webster, and William Malcolm, of New-York, have been likewise chosen for Deputies in several Districts; and that the elections in none of the Districts, where such persons were chosen, were held either on the day, or in the manner appointed by the Provincial regulation of the 12th of March last; but that, on the contrary, the most malicious falsehoods, arts, and threats, were made use of to influence the minds of the electors, by the very persons who held the polls in some Districts, and that many persons were admitted to vote, by no means qualified as the law directs.

That the Committee of the County of Charlotte met on the 1st of May; and notwithstanding the irregularity of the election, in the Districts of New-Perth, Skenesborough, Black-Creek, and Granville, they decided the election in favour of the persons above-mentioned, without waiting for the poll-lists from several townships, in which your Petitioner was elected, or granting a scrutiny agreeable to his earnest application; although the union of the County much depended on an impartial decision of the merits of this election.

That the only reason that your Petitioner has ever heard offered for this precipitate step, was the non-attendance of the members for the Districts of Kingsbury, &c., in order to produce their poll-lists on the 1st of May; although no positive order to that effect was, (as your Petitioner is credibly informed,) at the preceding meeting of the 29th of March, ever entered on the Minutes of the Committee. A strange conclusion! from which it may be inferred that the orders of the Committee, however irregularly specified, are to be inexorably observed, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, even at the hazard of the union of the County, whilst the positive ordinances of your honourable body may be dispensed with, by the mere caprice of the Chairman of the County Committee.

Your Petitioner further begs leave to represent, that several members of the County Committee, instead of judges, made themselves parties to the merits of the election; by which means the jealousies and dissensions which have arisen in the County, from the designs of turbulent, interested, and ambitious persons, and from an inadequate representation of the freeholders and freemen in the County Committee, have much increased.

That your Petitioner, at the earnest request of several of the principal freeholders and freemen in this County, offered himself a candidate to represent them in Convention, flattering himself that, from an impartial representation of the political management of affairs in this County, the inhabitants might be rescued from that anarchy and oppression with which they are threatened.

That the most wicked and false aspersions have been thrown out to discourage his exertions, by the arts and influence of men who are strangers to integrity, and the true principles of civil liberty; and that the Committee have unhappily given their sanction to such unworthy attempts.

That your Petitioner is, nevertheless, conscious of his zealous attachment to the grand cause, and pledges himself to prove to the satisfaction of your honourable House the truth of these assertions, and the purity of his zeal for the happiness and union of this country.

He therefore humbly prays, that the Deputies now offering themselves for this County may not be permitted to take their seats in your honourable House, as the legal Representatives of this County; and that any proceedings with respect to your Petitioner, and the Committee of this County, may be suspended until his arrival in New-York, which he flatters himself will be about the 14th instant.

Your Petitioner is at present engaged in procuring true lists of the qualified votes in the different Districts, and in collecting other materials to prove to the satisfaction of this House the lamentable state of this County, and the urgent necessity there is that the wisdom of your body should interfere to save it from anarchy and oppression. Your Petitioner, therefore, flatters himself that this may plead in excuse should he not be present on the first day that the new Convention meets.

This Petition is presented in behalf of upwards of two hundred of the principal freeholders and freemen of the County, to the westward of the New-Hampshire Grants, whose sacred rights of election, your Petitioner esteems it his duty to defend from the usurpation of any body of men whatsoever.

They were the legal majority at the close of the poll had a regard for justice and the ordinances of your House prevailed. He therefore considers himself one of their legal Representatives; and your Petitioner, &c.,

WILLIAM DUER.

Appendix.—The election in the different Districts where

John Williams, Alexander Webster, and William Malcolm, were chosen, opened on the following days, at the places mentioned: New-Perth, 23d of April; Black-Creek, 22d of April; Skenesborough and Granville, on the same day, between the 1st and 16th of April. W. DUER.

New-York, May 4, 1776.

COLONEL GEORGE CLINTON TO RICHARD VAN WYCK.

Fishkill, May 4, 1776.

SIR: I herewith enclose you General Washington's order to me, to make the necessary inquiry relative to a number of arms he was informed was in Wiltsy's store, with the baggage of officers taken at St. John's, and to secure the same. Agreeable to which, I beg you will secure said arms, as I am informed they are removed from Wiltsy's store, and are now in your possession; and transmit to me as expeditiously as possible, the officer's name and rank, and where he now is, who stored them at Mr. Wiltsy's; the number of arms, and every other circumstance which may come to your knowledge respecting the same, authenticated by affidavits of the facts, where in your power. And if it shall appear that he has in this respect violated the articles of capitulation, I would advise, in such case, he be secured from escaping until the pleasure of Congress shall be known as to his conduct.

I am, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE CLINTON.

To Richard Van Wyck, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Rombouts Precinct, Dutchess County.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort George, May 4, 1776, ten o'clock, A. M.

DEAR SIR: Your Excellency's favours of the 24th and 29th of April, are this moment come to hand.

To-morrow evening I shall furnish batteaus sufficient to carry the remainder of General Thompson's Brigade to Canada; but as we can build only four a day, the troops must necessarily be detained some time, unless part of the batteaus should return from Canada, which I ordered to be done when the first left this. To supply so large an Army with provisions will require the greatest attention and alertness. Nothing shall be wanting on my part.

I believe Mr. Ray's information is groundless, as all the arms Mr. Rensselaer (who is conductor at Albany) has, were purchased by my order; and I cannot think he has a sufficiency for the troops raising at Albany. I shall direct him to send your Excellency a return.

I shall procure more carpenters, that the troops may be despatched the soonest possible; and hope four days hence to build six batteaus a day. One regiment will be able to cross Lake Champlain in vessels, and I shall find means to get it to Ticonderoga, without waiting for batteaus to pass Lake George.

I am, with every sentiment arising from respect and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO ALBANY COMMITTEE.

Fort George, May 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am this moment advised by express from General Washington, that six regiments were to leave New-York after the 29th of April last. The First Brigade, under General Thompson, came unexpectedly on me, and has distressed me much. The addition of that now coming under General Sullivan, I do not know how to get on to this place, without stopping the transportation of provisions; and if that is done, our Army already in Canada must suffer, if not starve. In this truly distressing dilemma, I apply for your aid without hesitation, and with the fullest confidence to receive it, as I have had such repeated instances of your readiness to promote the good of the common cause, and to relieve my distresses.

Permit me, then, to wish you to write circular letters to the Committees in every District, to try to procure all the carriages they possibly can, and to send them up without the least loss of time. They will be paid at the rate of three pounds ten shillings per trip; or if employed at any intermediate post between this and Albany, they will have at the same rate, according to the distance; and for such as live above eight miles below Albany, an allowance at the rate of ten shillings for every thirty miles will be made for coming to Albany. I wish them to come provided with forage for at least ten or twelve days; and as three hundred thousand dollars have left New-York the beginning of this week, I promise that none of them shall return home unpaid, and that I will give orders for paying all arrears for past services.

I am, gentlemen, with every sentiment that arises from respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,
PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Sub-Committee of the City and County of Albany.

P. S. Whatever expenses the District Committee may be at in procuring the carriages, I will most cheerfully repay.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, May 4, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 29th of April has just come to hand. Agreeable to your desire, I shall give an account of what has been done towards fortifying the harbour. The Forts on Fort Hill in Boston, Charlestown Point, and Castle Point, are almost completed, with a number of heavy cannon mounted in each. A work is in good forwardness on Noddle's Island; and a detachment of the Army is at work at Castle Island, repairing the batteries there. A number of hulks are preparing to sink in the channel.

I have employed the troops here to the greatest advantage in my power; have ordered all the men not on actual duty to turn out on fatigue every day, not allowing any superfluous cooks or waiters; and upon receiving intelligence of a British fleet being on its passage this way, I directed all the officers to turn out with their men upon the works, which they cheerfully complied with, and are constantly upon fatigue with their men. I have set every wheel in motion which I could move to advantage, and shall neglect nothing in my power in order to give the enemy a proper reception if they should pay us a visit.

I have enclosed a return of this division of the Army.

I am to inform your Excellency that I have just received a letter from the President of the Congress, by which I am informed the Congress has accepted my resignation. The sooner I am relieved the more agreeable it will be to me, as my health has declined much this spring.

I am, your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,
ARTEMAS WARD.

PELEG WADSWORTH, Major-Brigade.

By Major-General CLINTON, Commander of his Majesty's Forces in the Southern Provinces of NORTH-AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas a most unprovoked and wicked Rebellion hath for some time past prevailed, and doth now exist, within his Majesty's Province of North-Carolina; and the inhabitants, (forgetting their allegiance to their Sovereign, and denying the authority of the Laws and Statutes of the Realm,) have, in a succession of crimes, proceeded to the total subversion of all lawful authority, usurping the powers of Government, and erecting a tyranny in the hands of Congresses and Committees of various denominations, utterly unknown and repugnant to the spirit of the British Constitution; and divers people, in avowed defiance to all legal authority, are now actually in arms, waging unnatural war against their King; and whereas all attempts to reclaim the infatuated and misguided multitude to a sense of their error, have unhappily proved ineffectual: I have it in command to proceed forthwith against all such men, or bodies of men in arms, and against all such Congresses and Committees, thus unlawfully established, as against open enemies to the State.

But, considering it a duty inseparable from the principle of humanity first of all to forewarn the deluded people of the miseries ever attendant upon civil war, I do most earnestly entreat and exhort them, as they tender their own happiness, and that of their posterity, to appease the vengeance of an injured and justly incensed nation, by a return to their duty to our common Sovereign, and to the blessings of a free Government, as established by law; hereby offering, in his Majesty's name, free pardon to all such as shall lay down their arms and submit to the laws, excepting only from the benefit of such pardon Cornelius Harnett and Robert Howe. And I do hereby require that the Provincial Congress, and all Committees of Safety, and other unlawful associations, be dissolved, and the Judges allowed to hold their Courts according to the laws and Constitution of this Province; of which all persons are required to take notice, as they will answer the contrary at their utmost peril.

Given on board the Pallas transport, in Cape-Fear River, in the Province of North-Carolina, the 5th day of May, 1776, and in the sixteenth year of his Majesty's reign.

H. CLINTON.

By command of General Clinton:

RICHARD REAVE, Secretary.

To the Magistrates of the Province of North-Carolina, to be by them made publick.

COLONEL MAGRUDER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Rock-Creek, May 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received your orders yesterday evening, and should have been glad to have known the number of prisoners that were to be at Georgetown. I sent off a guard of six men well armed, and if they wanted assistance to apply to some officers at town.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

ZADOCK MAGRUDER.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

GERRARD HOPKINS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to an order received from you this day, I have sent one half of every kind of linen which was in the magazine, viz: forty pieces rolls, seventy-four pieces hessings, forty-five pieces osnaburghs, and two and a half reams cartridge-paper, it being all the paper now in the magazine. I shall render an account by Captain Fulford of all the stores now in the magazine. The muskets which came in Captain Tibbet were delivered to Captain Nathaniel Smith, agreeable to an order from you, which was all I have had in the magazine, except one received from Major Gist, which he bought for the Province. I did not agree with the skipper, Paul Miller, for the freight of the linens; you will please settle with him.

I am your most humble servant,

GERRARD HOPKINS, Son of R.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety.

P. S. Captain Smith has fifty-five muskets.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 7, 1776, and referred to Mr. J. Adams, Mr. Braxton, and Mr. Duane.]

New-York, May 5, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 30th ultimo, and observe what Congress have done respecting the settlement of the Paymaster's accounts. This seems expedient, as he is out of office, and I am certain will be attended with but little, if any difficulty, nothing more being necessary than to compare the warrants with his debits, and the receipts he has given with his credits. I wish every other settlement as easy, and that a Committee was appointed to examine and audit the accounts upon which the warrants are founded, particularly those of the Quartermaster and Commissary-Generals. They are long, and of high amount, consisting of a variety of charges—of course more intricate, and will require time, and an extraordinary degree of attention to adjust and liquidate in a proper manner. Upon this subject I did myself the honour to write you a considerable time ago.

Having had several complaints from the officers in the Eastern Regiments, who have been and are engaged in recruiting, about the expense attending it, and for which they have never yet been allowed anything, though the officers in these Governments have, as I am informed; I shall be glad to know whether the allowance of ten shillings, granted to the officers for every man enlisted by the resolve of Congress in — is general and indiscriminate, or confined to the Middle District. If general, must I have retrospect to the time of the resolve, and pay for the services since, or only for future enlistments?

In a letter I wrote Congress the 25th of December, I enclosed one I had received from Jacob Bayley, Esq., about opening a road from Newbury to Canada. I have received another of the 15th ultimo; and from his account, and the intelligence I have from others upon inquiry, I have no doubt of the practicability of the measure, and am well informed that the distance will be considerably shortened, insomuch that our people going from any part of the New-England Governments, eastward of Connecticut River, to Canada, or returning from thence home, will perform their march in five or six days less time, than by coming or going any way now used; add to this, that the road may be so conducted as, it is said, to go to the River Missisque, from whence the water carriage to St. John's is good, except forty odd miles; or to be carried so far to the northward as to keep clear of the lakes altogether, and afford an easy pass into Canada at all seasons. The advantages resulting from this route being so great and important, I have advanced Colonel Bayley two hundred and fifty pounds to begin with, and directed him to execute his plan. No doubt it will require a more considerable advance to accomplish it, but that will soon be sunk. The expense saved from taking off six days' pay and provisions from the soldiers returning to the Eastward Governments at the expiration of this campaign, will be almost, if not more than equal to the charge incurred in opening it; if not, as in all probability there will be often a necessity for sending detachments of our troops to Canada from those Governments, and for others to return, it will soon be repaid.

By a letter from General Schuyler, of the 27th ultimo, I find General Thompson and his brigade were at Albany; General Sullivan with the last, except three or four companies of Colonel Wayne's Regiment not yet come, is embarked and gone, and probably will soon be there. I am apprehensive, from General Schuyler's account, they will not proceed with the wished-for expedition, owing to a difficulty in getting teams and provender for cattle necessary to carry their baggage, and a scarcity of batteaus at the lakes for so large a number, though he is taking the utmost pains to procure them. Should they be stopped for any time, it will be exceedingly unfortunate, as their going from hence has weakened us here much, and our Army in Canada will not be strengthened. I have sent with the last brigade sixty barrels of powder, and other stores and intrenching tools, a supply being asked for; also the chain for a boom at the Narrows of Richelieu, and the three boxes of money, brought by Mr. Hanson; and have written to General Schuyler to have the boom fixed as soon as possible. The Commissary, too, has forwarded about eight hundred barrels of pork, and is in expectation of a further quantity from Connecticut, which will go on without stopping here. As the magazine from whence the Northern and Eastern Armies will occasionally receive supplies of powder will probably be here, and our stock is low and inconsiderable, (being much reduced by the sixty barrels sent to Canada,) I shall be glad to have a quantity immediately forwarded. Our stores should be great; for if the enemy make an attack upon the town or attempt to go up the North River, the expenditure will be very considerable. Money, too, is much wanted; the regiments that are paid have only received to the 1st of April, except those of Pennsylvania and Jersey which are gone to Canada—they are paid to the last of April. By a letter from General Ward I find his chest is just exhausted, the money which was left with him for the payment of the five regiments at Boston and Beverley being almost expended by large drafts in favour of the Commissary and Quartermaster, and in fitting out the armed vessels. I would here ask a question, to-wit: Whether, as Mr. Warren's commission is superseded by Mr. Palfrey's appointment, it will not be necessary to fix upon some person to pay the troops there, or are the payments to go through his hands? He does not incline to do anything in the affair without the direction of Congress.

I have enclosed you a return of the last brigade detached, and, also, of the forces remaining here; and as it is a matter of much importance to know the whole of our strength from time to time, and to see it at one view, for regulating our movements with propriety, I wish it were a direction from Congress to the commanding officers in the different districts, to make monthly returns to the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army of the state of the troops in their departments, and also of the military stores. Such direction will probably make them more attentive than they otherwise would be. I could not get a return of the Army in Canada all last year.

I beg leave to lay before Congress a copy of the proceedings of a Court-Martial upon Lieutenant Grover, of the Second Regiment, and of his defence; which I should not have troubled them with, had I not conceived the Court's sentence upon the facts stated in the proceedings, of a singular nature; to be by no means adequate to the enormity of his offence; and to be of an exceedingly dangerous and pernicious tendency. Upon these principles, I thought it my duty to transmit the proceedings to them, in order that they may form such a judgment upon the facts stated as they may conceive right and just, and advancive of the publick good. At the same time I would mention to Congress, that I think it of material consequence that they should pass a resolve, cutting off the right of succession in the military line from one rank to another, which is claimed by many upon the happening of vacancies, (upon which principle this offence seems to have originated, in a great measure, and the extraordinary judgment in this instance to be founded,) declaring that no succession or promotion can take place upon any vacancy, without a Continental commission giving and authorizing it. It is of much consequence to check and entirely suppress this opinion and claim, which is becoming too prevalent, and has an obvious tendency to introduce mutiny and disorder; or if they conceive the claim good, and that it should take place, that they will declare it, so that the point may be settled and known in future.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of the highest respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the President of Congress.

NEW-YORK, ss.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the line, held at Head-Quarters, in the City of New-York, by order of His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the forces of the Thirteen United Colonies, for the trial of all Prisoners to be brought before them, April 29th, 1776.

- Colonel BALDWIN, President.
- Captain Butler,

Captain Brewster,

Captain Brown,

Captain Symonds,

Captain Clap,

Lieutenant Wheeler,

Lieutenant Walker,
- Lieutenant Hoyt,

Lieutenant Thompson,

Lieutenant Fowler,

Lieutenant Brazier,

Lieutenant Haws,

Lieutenant Phelps.

WILLIAM TUDOR, Judge Advocate.

The Court being duly sworn, proceeded to the trial of Lieutenant Grover, of Captain Wilkinson's Company, in the Second or Colonel Reed's Regiment, brought before the Court and accused of insulting Captain Wilkinson, disobeying his orders, and giving him insolent and abusive language.

Lieutenant Grover being arraigned on the above complaint, pleads Not Guilty.

Evidence in support of the complaint.

Lieutenant-Colonel Hartley deposes: Yesterday morning Colonel Reed's Regiment was parading. Happening to be near the quarters of that regiment, observing there was some talk at Captain Wilkinson's Company, I went up to it. There stood two or three officers talking about the Captain heading the company, when Lieutenant Grover said he did not know who was the Captain, nor where to find him—whether in Heaven or Hell. Upon this speech the men raised a loud laugh. The air and manner of Lieutenant Grover was insulting, and, in my opinion, very provoking.

Major Trumbull: I was with Colonel Hartley yesterday morning, at the time he has mentioned. I went up to Captain Wilkinson's Company, where stood Colonel Reed, Captain Wilkinson, the prisoner, and another subaltern. Colonel Reed observing, in good humour, that there were four likely officers standing together, the prisoner asked who they were. Colonel Reed replied, the officers of this company. The prisoner said he did not know who his Captain was. Yes you do, answers the Colonel; here he is, (pointing to Captain Wilkinson.) On this Lieutenant Grover said he did not know where to find his Captain—whether in Earth, Heaven, or Hell. This speech produced a laugh among the company. Lieutenant Grover affected to act the Captain, and assumed airs of much superciliousness.

Colonel Reed: Soon after Captain Wilkinson arrived in town, about ten days ago, in my room, I introduced Mr. Wilkinson to Lieutenant Grover and Lieutenant Maxwell, as their Captain; upon which Captain Wilkinson took out two commissions, and presented one to each of them; they refused to accept the commissions; Lieutenant Grover said he would not take a commission under Captain Wilkinson. I then tendered the commissions to them, which they refused to receive. The same day, in Brigade orders, Captain Wilkinson was declared the commander of the company in which the prisoner was Lieutenant. Captain Wilkinson has been more than once upon duty since this. Yesterday morning, when the men were parading to be mustered, Lieutenant Grover presented me a muster-roll of the company. Finding Captain Wilkinson's name not inserted, I asked him how that omission happened. He replied he did not know who his Captain was. I observed he must have known that Captain Wilkinson was. What answer he gave me I forget. I confirm the substance of Major Trumbull's deposition.

Sergeant Adams. Question: Did not Captain Wilkinson yesterday, when his company was marching off the parade, order Lieutenant Grover to march the men to the barracks, as he was unacquainted with them?

Answer: He did. Lieutenant Grover replied he wanted himself to go to his barrack, and immediately walked off. I marched the men to their quarters. Yesterday morning, in Lieutenant Grover's room, the prisoner asked Captain Wilkinson if he had done the business he undertook, (meaning as I understood, the making up a muster-roll.) I don't know what reply the Captain made him.

Question: Did the prisoner tell Captain Wilkinson that he was as capable of making a muster-roll as of doing anything else?

Answer: He did, in a sneering manner.

Question: Did Lieutenant Grover tell Captain Wilkinson that he was not a man of honour, or he would not have come into the company?

Answer: Yes, he did.

Lieutenant Maxwell. Question: Have you heard Lieutenant Grover say that if Captain Wilkinson was put over him he would not obey him?

Answer: I have heard the prisoner say, if Captain Wilkinson was put over him he should not choose to obey him, but would quit the service. Yesterday morning, when the company was parading, Captain Wilkinson said the place was inconvenient, and it would be best to parade the men somewhere else. Lieutenant Grover replied, he might parade them on top of the house. This was angrily said, and in hearing of the men.

Q. M. Fry. Confirms Major Trumbull's deposition.

Sergeant Davis. Yesterday, when the company was marching from the place where they had been mustered, Captain Wilkinson asked Lieutenant Grover to march the men to their barracks. Lieutenant Grover replied in anger, he wished the Captain would do it himself; and went off. I have several times heard Lieutenant Grover say he should not choose to obey Mr. Wilkinson.

The evidence being finished in support of the complaint, the prisoner moves the Court that he may have time till tomorrow to procure evidence.

The Court consent to the motion, and the further hearing of this case is postponed till Tuesday, 30th April, at nine o'clock, A. M.

April 30.—The Court resume the consideration of the case of Lieutenant Grover, adjourned from yesterday.

Lieutenant GROVER produced the following witnesses.

Colonel Stark. At Winter Hill, before any Captain was appointed to the company of which the prisoner was Lieutenant, I heard General Sullivan promise Lieutenant Grover that no person should be put over him except Captain Ogden, if he could help it.

Colonel Reed. Confirms what Colonel Stark deposes, and adds, that all the men in that company were inlisted by the prisoner and Lieutenant Maxwell.

The Court being cleared, after the maturest consideration are of opinion, that the prisoner is guilty of insulting Captain Wilkinson and disobeying his orders. But it not being in the power of the Court to affix any punishment for said offence other than cashiering, imprisonment, or fine, and the Court not being of opinion that the prisoner is so far guilty as to merit cashiering, do adjudge that the prisoner be mulcted of one half month's pay.

LOAMMI BALDWIN, President.

LIEUTENANT GROVER'S DEFENCE.

GENTLEMEN: As I am called before this respectable Court, pray indulge me a few moments. When I first took out orders to raise men, I inlisted a number of men, in good credit and of good estates. On their desire I promised them that I would not return them till I found who their Captain was to be. We came down to Colonel Reed, at Winter-Hill, and he went with me to Brigadier-General Sullivan, and we talked of this affair; the General told me that there never should be a Captain put over me, if Captain Ogden did not come, if he could help it: Witness Colonel Reed and Colonel Stark. I relied on his promise, and I spared no pains nor money. I have inlisted forty-four with the assistance of one Sergeant. After some time I heard that Mr. Wilkinson was appointed my Captain. I informed General Sullivan of it; he told me if he was, he did not know it; I then was easy. After we came to this city, it was put in Brigade orders that Mr. Wilkinson was to take the command of the company that was called Captain Ogden's. I then went to the General again with Lieutenant Maxwell, and told him we were uneasy and the company very much cast down; after some talk, the General told us he would inform his Excellency of this matter, and may be, he will make this easy for you all, for Captain Wilkinson tells me he expects to be Major. All this time Mr. Wilkinson never came to see nor speak to any of the company, save in the Colonel's room he offered me my commission. I did not hear him speak. Colonel Reed told me that was my company. Last Sunday Mr. Wilkinson came in my room; I was much disturbed when he said he was come to take the command of this company, and called for the muster-rolls. For him to step in at this time, when I was looking for some help from the General; to think Mr. Wilkinson never inlisted but one man; and I had such promises, and spent so much money in raising this company, it set me in a passion. I did not treat him like a gentleman.

THOMAS GROVER, Lieutenant.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read May 8th, and referred to Mr. S. Adams, Mr. Wythe, Mr. Rodney, Mr. R. H. Lee, and Mr. Whipple.]
New-York, May 5, 1776.

SIR: I have so often and so fully communicated my want of arms to Congress, that I should not have given them the trouble of receiving another letter upon this subject, at this time, but for the particular application of Colonel Wayne, of Pennsylvania, who has pointed out a method by which he thinks they may be obtained. In the hands of the Committee of Safety at Philadelphia, there are, according to Colonel Wayne's account, not less than two or three thousand stand of arms for Provincial use; from hence, he thinks, a number might be borrowed by Congress, provided they are replaced with Continental arms as they are brought into the magazine in that city. At a crisis so important as this, such a loan might be attended with most signal advantages, while the defenceless state of the regiments, if no relief can be had, may be productive of fatal consequences. To give Congress some idea of our situation with respect to arms, (and justice to my own character requires that it should be known to them, although the world at large will form their opinion of our strength from numbers, without attending to circumstances,) it may not be amiss to enclose a copy of a return which I received a few days ago from the forts in the Highlands, and add, that by a report from Colonel Ritzema's Regiment, of the 29th ultimo, there appeared to be only ninety-seven firelocks and seven bayonets belonging thereto, and that all the regiments from the eastward are deficient from twenty to fifty of the former. Four of those companies at the fortifications in the Highlands belong to Colonel Clinton's Regiment; but in what condition the residue are on account of arms, and how Colonel Wynkoop's men are provided, I cannot undertake to say, but am told most miserably, as Colonel Dayton's (of New-Jersey) and Colonel Wayne's (of Pennsylvania) also are. This, sir, is a true, though melancholy description of our situation; the propriety therefore of keeping arms in store, when men in actual pay are wanting them, and who, it is to be presumed, will, as they ought, bear the heat and burden of the day, is submitted with all due deference to the superior judgment of others. I cannot, by all the inquiries I have been able to make, learn what number of arms have been taken from the Tories, where they lie, or how they are to be got at.

The Committee of Safety for this Colony have assured me that no exertions of theirs shall be wanting to procure arms; but our sufferings in the meanwhile may prove fatal, as men without are in a manner useless. I have therefore thought of employing an agent, whose sole business it shall be to ride through the middle and interior parts of these Governments, for the purpose of buying up such arms as the inhabitants may incline to sell, and are fit for use.

The designs of the enemy are too much behind the curtain for me to form any accurate opinion of their plan of operations for the summer's campaign. We are left to wander, therefore, in the field of conjecture; and as no place—all its consequences considered—seemed of more importance in the execution of their grand plan than possessing themselves of Hudson's River, I thought it advisable to remove, with the Continental Army, to this city, so soon as the King's troops evacuated Boston; but if the Congress, from their knowledge, information, or belief, think it best for the general good of the service that I should go to the Northward, or elsewhere, they are convinced, I hope, that they have nothing more to do than signify their commands.

With the greatest respect, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the President of Congress.

COLONEL CHAMBERS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Utrecht, (Long-Island, New-York,) May 5, 1776.

SIR: By Lieutenant Docherty I send to your Excellency one Peter Pillyouse, who was taken yesterday coming from the Asia man-of-war; he was taken by Mr. Docherty, who commanded the picket-guard at that time, and will let you know the particulars; from your humble servant,

JAMES CHAMBERS, Lieutenant-Colonel.

To His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

COLONEL GEORGE CLINTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-Windsor, May 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: On my arrival here I went immediately to Fishkill, to make inquiry about the arms said to be stored at Wiltsy's. I find that, about a week ago, a certain Duncan Campbell, a Major in the Ministerial Army, taken on board the enemy's vessels at the mouth of the Sorrel, came to the Fishkill, on board of an Albany sloop, landed there, and put in Wiltsy's store a number of chests and trunks, containing (as he said) officers' baggage, for which he took Wiltsy's receipt. He had a pass from General Schuyler to go to Fredericksburgh, in Dutchess County, with his baggage, which he showed Wiltsy, and applied for assistance to take his chests, &c., there; but being disappointed in getting teams for the purpose, they lay some days in the store; in which time, some little boys, playing in the store, discovered that one of the chests, which had been nailed down and lashed with a rope, but had partly got open, contained fire-arms, of which they acquainted Mr. Wiltsy, who immediately gave the Committee of the Precinct notice thereof. The Committee met, opened the chest, found it contained thirteen officers' pieces, with a paper, on which was written the owners' names, fastened to each; seven broadswords, and some pistols. The Committee ordered all the chests (nine in number) to their Chairman's house, about ten miles back in the country, where they now are, as yet unopened; but from their extraordinary weight, it is probable they are all filled with arms. The trunks which contained baggage only are not detained—I believe taken away by Campbell. The Committee have appointed to meet and open all the chests on Monday next, and have summoned Campbell to attend them. In this I fear they have been over-prudent, for if guilty he will fly for it—it is reported, and I believe, he has already.

It will be out of my power to attend the Committee to open the chests, as my business calls me to Kingston (forty miles distant) on that day. I have, therefore, sent the Chairman your order to me, enclosed in a letter, of which I now send you a copy. And as he is an active man, warmly engaged in his country's cause, I doubt not but everything will be done, as well for securing the arms as Campbell, if necessary; and as soon as I receive their report, I will transmit it to you.

Fredericksburgh is a neighbourhood in which several Scotch half-pay officers (of course disaffected persons) live; among the rest Menos, mentioned in the letter you showed me. I cannot learn with certainty that he is gone off, though it is confidently said many persons in that place have lately absconded.

I am, with the highest esteem, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE CLINTON.

To His Excellency General Washington.

JOHN COLLINS TO ADMIRAL HOPKINS.

Newport, April 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I congratulate you on the success of your cruise with the Continental fleet; and hope, nay, expect to see the day when the American fleets will give laws on the Atlantick Ocean. It will give me great pleasure to see your fleet riding in the harbour of Newport. The present motions in this town, I make no doubt, you are well informed of. We received with joy the ten cannon you sent us, and expect to get them mounted before this week is out, in proper forts and batteries. We have ten of our old twenty-four and eighteen-pounders mounted, and two that you sent us; and hope you will send as many more as you conveniently can.

I am, with great regard, your humble servant,

JOHN COLLINS.

To Eseck Hopkins, Esq., Admiral of the Continental Fleet, New-London.

PRESENTMENTS OF THE GRAND JURY AT GEORGETOWN, SOUTH-CAROLINA.

I. When a People, ever dutiful and affectionate to that system of Government formed for their happiness, and under which they had long lived, find that, by the baseness and corruption of their rulers, those laws which were intended as the guardians of their sacred and unalienable rights, are impiously perverted into instruments of oppression; and, in violation of every social compact, and the ties of common justice, every means is adopted by those whom they instituted to govern and protect them, to enslave and destroy them: human nature and the laws of God justify their employing those means for redress which self-preservation dictates. It is with the most joyful sensibility we behold this once happy country, amidst all the evil attempts of her British enemies to enslave and oppress her, and whilst she is involved in all the tumults of war, still fix that system for which she is contending, by forming a Constitution of Government the most equitable and desirable that human imagination could invent, thereby convincing the world of the justice of her intentions, and her own regard to the rights of mankind. The present Constitution of Government, formed by the late Congress of this Colony, promises to its inhabitants every happy effect which can arise from society. Equal and just in its principles, wise and virtuous in its ends; we now see every hope of future liberty, safety, and happiness confirmed to ourselves and our posterity, and the possession of which our own virtuous perseverance must render perpetual. Every good citizen will joyfully exult at those considerations; and when he finds himself living in a community where virtue alone is sovereign, where tyranny is banished, and every system of oppression held as detestable, earnestly endeavour, regardless of every danger, to support these glorious advantages against any hand that dares to molest them. And should there be a wretch so lost to every humane principle, whose heart but harbours the least dissatisfaction in such a situation, we hold him as unworthy the society of men.

II. We cannot but express our unfeigned satisfaction in the choice of the present publick officers acting under our Constitution, the method of their appointment being founded on the strictest justice and impartiality, the duration of their power being consistent with every principle of safety to the people, and the characters of such as are now in appointment so confided in from their well-known personal merits.

III. When we reflect on the general harmony which now prevails in this part of the Colony, and are sensible how soon the good effect of our present Government must appear to every one, we promise to ourselves the happiness of soon seeing this oppressed and much injured Colony enjoying a state of freedom and felicity unknown before.

And lastly: We beg leave to return our sincere thanks to the Honourable Mr. Justice Mathews for his truly patriotick and spirited charge delivered to us at the opening of this session, and to request that these our sentiments and thanks be printed in the publick papers.

BENJAMIN YOUNG, Foreman.

VIRGINIA ASSEMBLY DISSOLVED.

Williamsburgh, May 10, 1776.

Last Monday, May 6, forty-five Members of the House of Burgesses met at the Capitol pursuant to their last adjournment; but it being their opinion that the people could not now be legally represented according to the ancient Constitution, which has been subverted by the King, Lords and Commons of Great Britain, and consequently dissolved, they unanimously dissolved themselves accordingly.

The same day, the General Convention of Delegates from the Counties and Corporations in this Colony met at the Capitol.

INDEPENDENCE IN BUCKINGHAM COUNTY, VIRGINIA.

To CHARLES PATTERSON and JOHN CABELL, Gentlemen Delegates for the County of BUCKINGHAM, now in General Convention:

The Address and Instructions of the Frecholders of the said County.

As you were elected and deputed by us to fill the most difficult and important places that the Representatives of this County were ever appointed to act in, we cannot, in justice to ourselves and posterity, forbear to give some instructions concerning the discharge of your great trust. In this we have the example of many; but would not tie you down in a manner too strict and positive. Though a general confidence in your honesty and wisdom may be required; yet, in some great and leading questions, it may not be unnecessary to take the sense of your constituents: we give you ours in the plainest, easiest, and best method it can be collected. If it does not agree with the general opinion, we trust, at least, it will be pardonable. Actuated by a warm and sincere regard for the interests and rights of mankind, and a deep sense of our present situation, we wish to think and proceed aright in affairs of such great consequence; and are willing, therefore, to submit our opinions to the candid judgment of the publick.

The unhappy dispute between Great Britain and these United Colonies seems now arrived to a crisis, from whence events ought to take place which, at the beginning, we believe, were in contemplation of but few, and even by them viewed at a much greater distance. When dissensions first arose, we felt our hearts warmly attached to the King of Great Britain and the Royal family; but now the case is much altered. At that time we wished to look upon the Ministry and Parliament as the only fountains from which the bitter waters flowed, and considered the King as deceived and misguided by his counsellors; and were therefore led to think that he might, in a proper time, open his eyes, and become a mediator between his contending subjects. The measures, however, still pursued against America leave no room to expect such an interposition from motives of goodness and affection, or with concessions, which may be justly required. Our enemies denounce our ruin, from the whole tenour of their conduct; and the King's speeches, and addresses, resolutions, and acts of the Parliament, are evidently concerted to carry their great favourite point. Prospects of a reconciliation have opened themselves to some; but they, we fear, were only the ignorant, credulous, and unwary; and even to them they must, ere this, have closed with more threatening appearances. The gracious receipt of a Continental petition, and the bare mention of Commissioners, have been severally construed good marks of reconciliation and peace, by those who too fondly hoped what was generally desired.

When the British Parliament assumed an absolute power over us, and attempted to exercise that power, an opposition was formed in the United Colonies, the most pacifick which could be adopted, with any probability of success, in the last resort, should our enemies persist in their measures, and endeavour to drive us into submission by force. This opposition became a great offence in their eyes: our petitions were treated with contempt, our actions termed rebellious, and arms used to subdue us. As the Colonies seemed determined, from the first, to maintain their rights, and the rights of a free people, they were obliged to repel force by force; and, for the effectual purpose thereof, as occasions required, to take into their own hands the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial powers of Government. This was a necessary consequence, and no settled and permanent opposition could be made without it. They violated the faith of Charters, the principles of the Constitution, and attempted to destroy our legal as well as natural rights. We could do nothing without forming at least a temporary Government of our own, by laying aside that part, and dispensing with those forms, of the old Constitution, which were incompatible with our safety or success. They have broken through positive laws, and express acts of Assembly, as well as the ties which unite man to man in general affection; by which means they have become felons and enemies under those laws. In the struggle, the lives of hundreds have been destroyed; flourishing towns burnt down and demolished; property seized and taken, secretly and openly; thousands reduced from easy and affluent circumstances to poverty and distress; and all the horrors of an expensive and dreadful war experienced. We have opposed with arms, and persevered in our measures, with a resolution to maintain our rights, and regarded no law heretofore made but as it was found consistent with such a laudable design. Both sides grew every day more and more incensed, from circumstances which always arise in such contests; and that general confidence, so necessary to the support of every kind of Government, seems entirely annihilated, without a prospect of reunion of affections sufficient to restore it; it becomes daily more out of their power and farther from their inclinations to put us on the footing we stood at the close of the last war, or repair the great damages we have sustained; which, if they should ever confess their errors, and desire to close with us on the terms we have hitherto offered, they must, in justice and reason, agree ought to be done.

Besides, the welfare of ourselves and future generations obliges us to turn matters over in every point of view, and consider what has been the issue of contests most similar to our own. As virtue or publick spirit cannot be thoroughly lost in any country, but must survive in the breasts of many individuals, so it would be too sanguine to imagine that any country is without some men of ambitious and selfish views, who, taking the advantage of favourable opportunities and an unsettled state, turn the scale too much to their own side, and destroy the liberty or fix the chains of their country. This evil we find generally arises in or after civil broils, when the people have no established Government, or are led, from a sense of danger or unlimited confidence, to give themselves up blindly to their leaders. This misfortune, we hope, will never happen among us; nor do we believe that, at this time, there is any influence or inclination to effect or desire it. However, it is better to prevent evils than have them to remedy; and no precaution can be too great for the attainment of every valuable end to mankind. When things are fixed in a point beyond the present, many advantages may probably accrue; we, therefore, your constituents, recommend and instruct you, as far as your voices will contribute, to cause a total and final separation from Great Britain to take place as soon as possible; or, as we conceive this great point will not come within your immediate province, that, as far as in your power, you cause such instructions to be given to the Delegates from this Colony to the Continental Congress; that you weigh well the importance of the matter, and endeavour to lodge power in the hands of those whose honesty, wisdom, and love for their country, will direct them to use it for the publick good; that, as far as you conceive are admitted, you cause a free and happy Constitution to be established, with a renunciation of the old, or so much thereof as has been found inconvenient and oppressive; and that you endeavour to fix a publick jealousy in this Constitution, as an essential principle of its support.

In the present unsettled state of affairs, when the Government erected among us is confessed on all hands to be only temporary, for the immediate purpose of opposing the arbitrary strides of Great Britain, and effecting a reconciliation with the mother country; when the contest is between subject and subject, with the established power of peace and war at the head of our enemies, and our professions and actions tend only to bring about a reconciliation, we have not the least room to believe that any foreign nation will espouse our cause in an open and an avowed manner; but when we lay aside these considerations, and bid the last adieu, some foreign power may, for their own interest, lend an assisting hand, settle a trade, and enable us to discharge the great burdens of the war, which otherwise may become intolerable.

Here, again, we would direct you, as far as relates to your Province, to beware of any other than commercial alliances with foreigners; and to keep their armies off your shores, if possible. We ask for a full representation; free and frequent elections; and that no standing armies whatever should be kept up in time of peace. We trust you will use your utmost care and circumspection at this trying crisis, that, as America is the last of the world which has contended for her liberty, so she may be the most free and happy. She has many advantages which others in nearly her circumstances have not known, arising from her situation and strength, and the experience of all before to profit by. View well the defects in other Governments, and consider the visible causes which reduced them from freedom to slavery, or raised them from slavery to liberty; and learn by these examples. It was by a Revolution, and the choice of the people, that the present Royal family was seated on the Throne of Great Britain; and we conceive the Supreme Being hath left it in our power to choose what Government we please for our civil and religious happiness; and when that becomes defective, or deviates from the end of its institution, and cannot be corrected, that the people may form themselves into another, avoiding the defects of the former. This we would now wish to have effected, as soon as the general consent approves, and the wisdom of our councils will admit; that we may, as far as possible, keep up our primary object, and not lose ourselves in hankering after a reconciliation with Great Britain.

Good Government alone, and the prosperity of mankind, can be in the Divine intention; we pray, therefore, that, under the superintending providence of the Ruler of the Universe, a Government may be established in America, the most free, happy, and permanent, that human wisdom can contrive, and the perfection of man maintain.

ROLFE ELDRIDGE, Clerk.

CHARLES MAC IVER TO ROBERT TOWNSHEND HOOE.

Alexandria, May 6, 1776.

SIR: As I have never been concerned in drawing Petitions or Memorials, and have no patterns of such writings, may I hope your honourable Convention will condescend to grant the contents of this paper a hearing, destitute as it will be of form.

I would humbly represent, that I have for many years interested myself in plans of emigration, which, though they may seem directly intended for the benefit of particular people, yet were also originally intended, and eventually calculated, for the emolument and prosperity of this Continent, wherein I have been long disposed to end my days.

Though more instrumental in these emigrations than any individual I have heard of, others reaped the benefit of my designs, whilst I lost time and money by the unpunctuality, clashing interests, selfishness, indolence, and inattention of various people on both sides of the Atlantick.

When the spirit of emigration was largely diffused among the common people, some people of superior rank took advantage of it; and, desirous to fatten on the ignorance and dependance of their poorer countrymen, conceived the design of diverting them into clusters, resembling the clanships of their native country. At the same time I was deceived by some, and disappointed in my expectations of others on this side, which obliged those I had instructed and retained as my assistants on the other side to look for employment elsewhere. Employers they readily found, and some, both employers and assistants, have made fortunes, of which the greatest part might have been fixed in America, could I have got the Virginians to adventure. As I have wasted many years depending on a successful issue of my designs, so I have contracted such a relish for them as has disqualified me, in some measure, from the pursuit of other business, though I understand a variety.

Wherefore, though you promised no support to the plan of which you have heard the sketch, which, as a member of Convention, you did not think it your duty nor for the interest of your constituents to do; yet, agreeable to what you thought the Convention would encourage, give me leave to represent that the address necessary to engage any kind of emigration is no more than a necessary part of the plan I showed you. I have never failed to persuade the poor and disinterested of my country with whom I had opportunities of conversing, except in very few instances, wherein they were tampered with and supported by men of superior wealth, and principles widely different. I therefore entertain little doubt of success of engaging artisans, of whom my former plans required no inconsiderable number.

The wisdom of the honourable Convention may devise some plan of alluring and interesting the affections of such people, whether by removing every civil or religious stumbling-block, if such exists, or some temporary or permanent accommodation equally inviting.

The last paragraph solely regards the plan you propose to support in Convention. I would now beg leave to address you, and such other members of your honourable body as it may suit to adventure as individuals, or in mercantile adventures or copartnerships. To such I would intimate that I have not relinquished the design of diverting a considerable part of the tide of emigration to the districts of Potomack, on which I had in a more particular manner fixed my affections. My hopes are founded on a proper acquaintance with what appertains to this subject, and the best instruments in Scotland, and in the north of Ireland.

If, in these pursuits, I can procure such appointments from the Convention and individuals as may enable me to pursue my design with incessant application among the various ranks of life, and to shift my situation as often as it is proper and necessary so to do, I have little doubt of acquitting myself a useful member of your community.

Whatever selfishness may be laid to the charge of this undertaking, I beg it may also be known that I have long been inclined to repose my hopes of political happiness on the prosperity of America, to which few of her own sons have been attached with such a fervour of enthusiasm. If the honourable Convention is pleased to enjoin it upon me as a necessary task, I doubt not of procuring such consistent evidence of this, as they may also please to accept as an earnest of the zeal and fidelity with which I propose to serve them. And as a further security against any egregious imposition, I would humbly propose that one or more sensible and candid friends of the Convention, residing in Europe, may have a power to disburse my appointments with such precaution that I may not long eat the bread of idleness, nor be allowed to triumph in my ingratitude to the country and magnanimity of the Convention. At the same time let me beg the honourable Convention may give me assurances of support and redress against the selfishness, caprices, or tyranny of any persons intrusted with such a power.

Too much address, secrecy, and precaution on all hands cannot be used in this business; for, notwithstanding I may have as many advantages on the whole, from the country of my birth, from the nature of my education, and the manner of my life, as most men; yet unknown dangers from private attacks, publick oppression, or despotick laws, may start in the prosecution of this business.

In hopes of all the support you and other sons of liberty can give this undertaking, (which, for various reasons, cannot commence at a more proper period than the present,) I respectfully remain, sir, your obliged and humble servant,

CHARLES MAC IVER.

To Robert Townshend Hooe, Esquire.

ROBERT POTTENS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 6, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: Sometime ago I did myself the pleasure of waiting on you with two letters of recommendation, one from William Lux, Esquire, the other from Major Gist, intimating that I was willing to serve this country as far as my abilities were able. As I am informed there are at present some resignations, I hope your Honours will be so kind as to think of me, and grant any commission that you may think my character most deserving of; or if not now, at any time hereafter that may be most convenient. I hope if I am so happy as to be granted a commission, that I shall discharge my trust with fortitude and honour, and shall never be backward when occasion requires.

I have the honour to subscribe myself, honourable sirs, your most obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT POTTENS.

To the Honourable the Maryland Council of Safety.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation for Baltimore County, }
May 6, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: We received your letter of the 1st instant. Mr. Young had liberty to take the schooner Ninety-Two at our last meeting. We have the pleasure to inform you that our boom is now laid down, and so far secured that we judge the vessels sunk at Whetstone may be removed. You will therefore please to give orders for that purpose as soon as you think proper.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

SAMUEL PURVIANCE, JUN., Chairman,
WILLIAM LUX, Vice Chairman,
WILLIAM BUCHANAN, JAMES CALHOUN,
JOHN STERRETT, WILLIAM BOYD,
B. GRIFFITH, WILLIAM AISQUITH.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

GEORGE WOOLSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received your favour of the 3d instant by Captain Fulford, and observe the contents; and never was so much surprised as on the receipt, and your informing me that you never heard from me since the 9th of February, which was the time I contracted with you for the brig Rogers; and, also, that it does not appear to you that I have done anything. In the purchase of her cargo, it certainly must appear to you that, when the Committee took the vessels here to sink for the safety of this town, mine was detained as well as all others; and I do suppose that Charles Carroll, Esquire, must know that was the case. However, soon after the Otter was here, Mr. William Lux was going to Annapolis, and I requested him to let you know that my brig was detained, and the cargo ready to put on board her, and requested your further instructions. On his return he told me that you had not any further orders to give me; but if you had any further you would send them to me hereafter; on which account I thought it was unnecessary to give you any more trouble, but resolved to load the vessel as soon as possession was given me, unless orders had come from you to the contrary. Last Monday they gave me possession, and I now have nine hundred barrels on board her, and I shall have her ready for sea this week; and I hope in the end shall give you every necessary satisfaction, though you seem to think, by what you say in your letter, that I have not laid out the publick money properly. If I had been one of those kind of men, Mr. Thomas Jones, of this town, would not have given me a letter to any friend he had, and that time I contracted with you, to give me a few lines to Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esquire, your President. However, I must confess I was to blame to trust to any man, and see now I should have written you in preference of sending by Mr. Lux; but if he has deceived me I cannot help it now, but shall, for the future, never depend on him or any other man on such business.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WOOLSEY.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

DARBY LUX,

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

PREESON BOWDOIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, May 6, 1776.

SIR: Captain Matthews was some time last fall sent a prisoner by Lord Dunmore, in a sloop from Norfolk bound to Boston; but on the passage was retaken by the Lee privateer, and carried into some port in New-England. This gentleman, since his return to Virginia, told me that he had informed your Excellency that the sloop in which he was retaken had been partly the property of myself and brother; but unjustly seized by Captain Collins, and that you told him if I would prove the property you would have her paid for. This I shall be able very amply to do, by some papers I expect from Virginia next post. If your Excellency can find time from your more important business, shall esteem it a favour if you will inform me whether it will be necessary for me to come to New-York myself, or whether sending the papers will do.

Your answer will much oblige, sir, your most obedient servant,

PREESON BOWDOIN.

To His Excellency General Washington, at New-York.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-York, May 6, 1776.

SIR: I have this day drawn on you in favour of Mr. Matthew Irvine, for ten thousand dollars, payable at six days sight, it being the one half of the twenty thousand dollars ordered by Congress to be placed in my hands for the purchase of two thousand barrels of pork, for the subsistence of the Army going into Canada; which I hope will meet your approbation and payments.

I am, most respectfully, sir, your most humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

COLONEL MCDUGALL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, May 6, 1776.

SIR: The officers of the four battalions raised last year in this Colony have been allowed but a single ration; nor have they had any allowance for billeting money even while they were recruiting. The expenses they were exposed to in the northern campaign were great, far beyond those in the English Colonies, owing to the high charges attending the carriage of the necessities they wanted on that service, which they were subject to, as there were not boats sufficient on the lakes to transport stores for them. This occasioned them to fall a prey to the avarice of the Suttlers. They are making frequent application to the Convention, Committee of Safety, and to me, for an allowance of rations, or billeting, to compensate for those expenses, or to put them on the same footing with the other Continental troops who served at Cambridge; but we are utterly at a loss how to settle with them for this demand, as we are destitute of any rule for it. I must, therefore, beg your Excellency to inform me what rations were allowed at Cambridge to the officers of the Army, in order that the settlement with the officers of those battalions may be made.

It is with no small reluctance I trouble the General with this request; but I hope the pressing nature of the case (as a settlement of this matter will be advancive of the reputation of the service) will be a sufficient apology for your Excellency's very humble servant,

ALEXANDER MCDUGALL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

COLONEL RITZEMA TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Monday, May 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The daily complaints for the want of pay of Captain Hutchings's men, and their disorderly behaviour in consequence thereof, give me the utmost uneasiness; it being impolitick to act en militaire with soldiers who have large arrears due to them. Some of these men say they have three months' pay due.

Mr. Van Zandt directed me to pay no moneys to Captain Hutchings, as he had received several sums at different times from the Committee, besides fifty pounds from me for blankets. As this matter, gentlemen, is of the utmost importance, I shall be extremely happy in your settling it without delay; and if you have been imposed upon, or the soldiers defrauded, that the delinquent be punished with the utmost severity. If the fault is in the soldiers, they shall have their reward at the hands of a Court-Martial.

The mustering of my regiment being put off last Saturday for the incomplete state of Captain Riker's Company, and the absence of Captain Pearce, your direction respecting the former, as the regiment is to encamp to-morrow, and the General's desire of having it complete in every respect, will much oblige, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

RUD. RITZEMA.

To the Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York.

JACOBUS SWARTWOUT TO COLONEL GEORGE CLINTON.

Rombouts Precinct, May 6, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to your request and General Washington's order, we have secured the arms brought to this Precinct, with Ensign Duncan Campbell, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, to the following amount, viz: Seven fowling fusils, one double-barrel fusil, four regimental fusils, with four bayonets; one French musket, one gun-barrel, six steel-mounted swords, two silver-mounted swords, one silver-mounted hanger, one silver-mounted pistol, one Highland pistol, four pouches with belts, three sword-belts, one powder-horn, (engraven,) one powder canteen, one hand-saw. We shall wait his Excellency General Washington's orders where to have them directed.

I am, sir, in behalf of the Committee of Rombouts Precinct, your very humble servant,

JACOBUS SWARTWOUT, Chairman.

To Colonel George Clinton, in Ulster County.

PHILIP VAN RENSSELAER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, May 6, 1776.

SIR: I think it my indispensable duty to acquaint you that the small arms now in store, unfit for service, cannot be made fit for service this season by the armourers in this place, and the neighbouring places. I applied to General Thompson for his armourers, but he was of opinion that they would be wanted in Canada. I therefore give you this early notice, and beg that some armourers may be sent as soon as possible to repair the publick arms. Great numbers of the troops that come from New-York have arms unfit for service, and numbers without any at all.

I am your most humble servant,

PHILIP VAN RENSSELAER.

To General Washington.

GENERAL THOMPSON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort George, May 6, 1776.

SIR: I arrived at this place the 4th instant, and have since been detained by bad weather and contrary winds. Greaton, Patterson, and Bond's Regiments have been gone from here some days. Greaton's and Patterson's have left Ticonderoga; and I expect Bond's will be also gone from there before Poor's can reach that place. I hope to set out tomorrow morning, with the last of my party, and expect in ten days to be in or near Quebeck.

General Schuyler does everything, indeed much more than I thought was in the power of man to do, in forwarding the troops and provisions. A number of Poor's Regiment, and six or seven men of Captain Nelson's Company, have deserted on the march.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM THOMPSON.

To His Excellency General Washington.

COMMISSIONERS IN CANADA TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read May 18, 1776, and referred to Mr. Livingston and Mr. Jefferson.]

Montreal, May 6, 1776.

In our letter of the 1st instant, we informed you of the lowness of the Continental credit in this Province, and the necessity of a speedy supply of hard money. Unless this very essential article arrives soon, our forces will suffer exceedingly from the want of many necessaries, particularly flour, which might be laid in much cheaper here than it could be supplied from New-York, provided gold or silver could be procured to purchase it. It is very difficult to keep soldiers under proper discipline without paying them regularly. This difficulty increases in proportion to the distance the troops are removed from their own country. The want of money frequently constrains the commanders to have recourse to violences in providing the Army with carriages, and other conveniences, which indispose and irritate the minds of the people. We have reason to conclude that the change of sentiments, which we understand has taken place in this Colony, is owing to the above-mentioned cause, and to other arbitrary proceedings. If hard money cannot be procured and forwarded with despatch to Canada, it would be advisable, in our opinion, to withdraw our Army, and fortify the passes on the lakes, to prevent the enemy, and the Canadians, if so inclined, from making irruptions into, and depredations on, our frontiers. We have given orders for the return of Mr. Fraser to this city; and we now have under consideration the confinement of the other gentlemen particularized in our instructions.

At Fort George we had an interview with the Deputies of the seven Indian tribes of Canada to the Great Council at Onondaga; they were on their return home from this Council. They informed us that the result of their deliberations was to maintain a perfect neutrality during the present contest. That they had received the hatchet from Colonel Guy Johnson; but being a sharp weapon, and liable to wound their bosoms, they were resolved no longer to keep it, but to deliver it up to us. Since our arrival in this city, we have had another conference with the same Deputies, which terminated in a confirmation of their former promises—not yet complied with, but delayed only to give time for the assembling of all their tribes, that the hatchet may be given up with the consent of the whole, and with greater solemnity. We judged it expedient to make them a small present; and we think it will be necessary to make them another more considerable when the hatchet is delivered up.

We are informed that our debts in this Colony amount to ten thousand pounds, exclusive of what is due to Mr. Price. We have hitherto obtained a list amounting only to between three and four thousand. It will be necessary to appoint persons to settle these accounts.

With great respect to yourself and the Congress, we have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient humble servants,

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

SAMUEL CHASE,

CHARLES CARROLL, of Carrollton.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, May 6, 1776.

SIR: Your Excellency's favour, in which you assure me that you will recommend this unhappy Colony to the Continental Congress, hath been laid before the General Assembly, to whom it gave great satisfaction.

I enclose you a copy of Colonel Babcock's dismissal. The office of Brigadier-General is still kept vacant, in hopes that the brigade will be put upon the Continental establishment, and that a Commander-in-Chief will be appointed by Congress.

I also enclose a copy of an act discharging the inhabitants of this Colony from allegiance to the King of Great Britain, which was carried in the House of Deputies, after a debate, with but six dissentient voices, there being upwards of sixty members present. I may also inform your Excellency that the Delegates from this Colony are instructed and authorized to join with the major part of the Delegates in entering into treaty with any Prince, State, or Potentate, for the security of the Colonies, and to adopt any other measures that may be thought prudent and effectual. This instruction passed nem. con. The Lower House afterwards passed a vote for taking the sense of the inhabitants at large upon the question of Independence; but the Upper House represented to them that it would probably be discussed in Congress before the sense of the inhabitants could be taken and transmitted to the Delegates, in which case the Colony would lose their voice, as the Delegates would be laid under the necessity of waiting for instructions from their constituents; and further observed, that the Delegates, when they should receive a copy of the vote renouncing allegiance to the British King, and their instructions, could not possibly be at a loss to know the sentiments of the General Assembly. Upon this the matter was dropped.

I have the satisfaction, also, to inform your Excellency that, at a very full town-meeting of the inhabitants of Newport, held last Monday, it was unanimously voted to enter into the defence of the town; and last Thursday a considerable body of them began to work upon the fort to be erected upon Brenton's Point. This happy event I have great hopes will make us a united people, and root up every seed of disaffection in the Colony.

I take the liberty once more to press your Excellency in behalf of the Colony, the defence of which must be abandoned, unless we receive assistance from the Congress.

I am, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. By this day's post I have forwarded to Mr. Hopkins an instruction from the General Assembly, directing him to make immediate application to Congress to put our troops upon the Continental establishment.

Rhode-Island, in General Assembly, }
May Sessions, A. D. 1776. }

Whereas, it hath incontestably appeared to this Assembly that Henry Babcock, Esq., Colonel of a Regiment in the service of this Colony, is at times deprived of the perfect use of his reason, and thereby rendered unfit to command; it is voted and resolved, that the said Henry Babcock be, and he is hereby dismissed from the command of said Regiment; and that office is hereby declared vacant.

Colony of Rhode-Island, &c., in General Assembly, }
May Sessions, 1776. }

An Act Repealing an Act entitled "An Act for the more effectual securing to his Majesty the allegiance of his Subjects in this his Colony and Dominion of RHODE-ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS," and altering the form of Commissions, of all Writs and Processes in the Courts, and of the Oaths prescribed by law.

Whereas in all States existing by compact, protection and allegiance are reciprocal, the latter being only due in consequence of the former: And whereas George III., King of Great Britain, forgetting his dignity, regardless of the compact most solemnly entered into, ratified, and confirmed, to the inhabitants of this Colony by his illustrious ancestors, and till of late fully recognized by him; and entirely departing from the duties and character of a good King, instead of protecting, is endeavouring to destroy the good people of this Colony, and of all the United Colonies, by sending Fleets and Armies to America, to confiscate our property, and spread fire, sword, and desolation, throughout our country, in order to compel us to submit to the most debasing and detestable tyranny; whereby we are obliged by necessity, and it becomes our highest duty; to use every means with which God and nature has furnished us, in support of our invaluable rights and privileges, to oppose that power which is exerted only for our destruction:

Be it, therefore, enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That an act entitled "An Act for the more effectual securing to his Majesty the allegiance of his subjects in this his Colony and Dominion of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations," be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

And be it further enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That in all commissions for offices, civil and military, and in all writs and processes in law, whether original, judicial, or executory, civil or criminal, wherever the name and authority of the said King is made use of, the same shall be omitted; and in the room thereof the name and authority of the Governour and Company of this Colony shall be substituted, in the following words, to wit: "The Governour and Company of the English Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations;" that all such commissions, writs, and processes, shall be otherwise of the same form and tenour as they heretofore were; that the courts of law be no longer entitled or considered as the King's courts; and that no instrument in writing of any nature or kind, whether publick or private, shall in the date thereof mention the year of the said King's reign: Provided, nevertheless, That nothing in this act contained shall render void, or vitiate any commission, writ, process, or instrument, heretofore made or executed, on account of the name and authority of the said King being therein inserted.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the oaths or engagements to be administered to the officers appointed in this Colony shall be as follows, to wit:

General Officers.—"You, . . . , being by the free vote of the freemen of this Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations elected unto the place of . . . , do solemnly engage to be true and faithful unto this said Colony, and in your said office equal justice to do unto all persons, poor and rich, within this jurisdiction, to the utmost of your skill and ability, without partiality, according to the laws established, or that may be established, by the General Assembly of this Colony, as well in matters military as civil; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

Deputies.—"You, . . . , being chosen to the place of a Deputy, to sit in the General Assembly, do solemnly engage, that you will be true and faithful to the Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations; and that you will do equal right and justice to all persons who shall appeal unto you for your judgment in their respective cases, according to the laws established, or that may be established, by the General Assembly of this said Colony; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

Judges of the Superior Court.—"You, . . . , being by the General Assembly of this Colony chosen to the place of a Justice of the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize, and General Jail Delivery, in and throughout the Colony, do solemnly engage to be true and faithful to this said Colony, and to execute the office unto which you are chosen as aforesaid, with fidelity, to the best of your skill and knowledge, according to the laws established, or that may be established, by the General Assembly of this said Colony; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

[Publick Notaries, Clerks of the Superior and Inferior Courts, Justices of the Inferior Courts, and Sheriffs, to take the same oath as the Justices of the Superior Courts, mutatis mutandis.]

Grand Jurors.—"You, A B, being of the Grand Inquest, on behalf of the Governour and Company of the English Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, do hereby promise to make a true return to this Court of all such bills as shall be presented to you, or such breakers of law as shall come to your knowledge; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

Petit Jurors in Civil Causes.—"You, A B, being of this Jury of Trials, shall well and truly try the issue of this case, and all cases that shall be committed unto you from this Court, between the parties plaintiff and defendant, according to law and evidence; and to keep together until you agree of a verdict in the case or cases committed to you, and make true return of the verdict or verdicts unto this Court, and to keep your own and fellows' secrets; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

Petit Jurors in Criminal Cases.—"You, A B, being of this Jury of Trials, shall well and truly try, and true deliverance make, between the Governour and Company of the English Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Planta- tions and the prisoner at the bar, according to law and evidence; and to keep together until you are agreed of a verdict or verdicts in the case or cases that shall be committed to you from this Court, and to keep your own and fellows' secrets; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

Town Officers.—"You, A B, do hereby solemnly engage to be true and faithful unto this Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations; and that you will well and truly, according to the laws established, or that may be established by the General Assembly of said Colony, execute the office of . . . for the ensuing year, or until another be engaged in your room, or you be legally discharged therefrom; and this engagement you make and give upon the peril of the penalty of perjury."

Military Commissioned Officers.—"You, A B, being by the General Assembly chosen and elected unto the place and office of . . . , do solemnly swear to be true and faithful unto this Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, and to the authority therein established by the General Assembly; and you do also further engage well and truly to execute the office of . . . , to which you are elected, according to your commission; and to perform and observe all the laws made and provided for the support and well ordering of the Militia, without partiality; and that you will observe and follow such orders and instructions as you shall from time to time receive from your superiors: so help you God."

Clerk of a Company of Militia.—"You, A B, do solemnly swear well and truly to perform and execute the office of Clerk of the Company, or trained band, under the command of C D, to the utmost of your skill and ability, without partiality, according to the laws of this Colony which relate to your office: so help you God."

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO THOMAS CUSHING.

Providence, May 6, 1776.

SIR: At the request of the General Assembly, I am to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 3d instant, and to inform you that in case of an attack upon the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, this Colony will afford all the assistance in our power to give. Orders have been given to several of the Colonels of Militia to hold their regiments in readiness.

The enclosed act passed the Upper House unanimously, and the Lower House by a vast majority, there being upwards of sixty members present, and only six votes against it.

I am, with great regard, sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To the Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esq.

ADAM BABCOCK TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-Haven, May 6, 1776.

SIR: I heard, a few days since, that you Excellency had fitted out an armed vessel, under the command of Captain Perrit, to cruise to the southward. Should that be the case, I beg leave to propose that a vessel I have fitted out, commanded by Captain Brooks, may go out in company with her; which will make them both quite secure against anything they may chance to meet with in getting off the coast, except they should fall in with a man-of-war. The little vessel I have fitted mounts six three-pounders, with swivels, blunderbusses, and small arms for fifty men, which she carries, and is already manned, and is a prime sailer. She will sail the beginning of next week, but will wait till Thursday for your Excellency's vessel, if in the mean time I am informed that she will be ordered here, and to keep company with my vessel till both are clear of the coast.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and regard, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

ADAM BABCOCK.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

GENERAL WARD TO COLONEL WARREN.

Boston, May 6, 1776.

SIR: I would inform you that, last evening, a man made his escape from Lovell's Island, in this harbour, who appears to be an honest American. He informs that yesterday he was on board the man-of-war which lies in Nantasket, and that an officer of the Navy told him the fleet and troops from Halifax were expected to return soon to this place; and that they intended to land their troops below, and march to Boston by land, while the man-of-war made an attack by water. The same account was given by another man who made his escape from the same man-of-war the night before last. What regard ought to be paid to these accounts you will determine. I thought it my duty to give you the information, that you might acquaint the General Court therewith.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the Honourable James Warren.*

JAMES WARREN TO JEDEDIAH PREBLE.

In the House of Representatives, Waterford, }
May, 1776. }

SIR: Last fall this Court made choice of you for their Truckmaster to the Penobscot Tribe of Indians. We trust you have been duly acquainted with your appointment, as your son was in town when you were appointed. This Court have lately received a letter from said Indians, dated the 22d of last November, complaining to us that they were not satisfied with their present Truckmaster: they say he detains them a long time when they come to trade with him. Their chief complaint is the want of despatch. They desire that Mr. Lowden may be appointed their Truckmaster. We have promised them that their case shall be considered as soon as may be after the meeting of the next General Court. You are sensible, sir, that it may be attended with very ill consequences to have these Indians uneasy. We desire you to search into the cause of their complaints, and report to the next General Court on or before the second Wednesday of their first meeting.

JAMES WARREN.

To the Honourable Jedediah Preble, Esq.

COLONEL GILMAN TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Head-Quarters, May 6, 1776.

MOST RESPECTED GENTLEMEN: My officers here make a great complaint for the want of paper. They cannot receive the necessary orders, and make proper returns of their companies, for want of that article. By the best information I can get, the officers and non-commissioned officers in the Continental Army are allowed that article. I should be glad that the matter might be considered, and that you would grant such relief as you in your wisdom may think best. My command here is attended with some considerable difficulty, the soldiers being very mutinous, (Captain Dearborn's Company in particular,) not owing to their officers being backward in their duty, but from a notion that the Artillerymen have no right to build fortifications. I have ordered that company over to Sevey's Island, in hopes to have them in some better order. Five of the said company are now under trial of a Court-Martial for mutinous behaviour.

You may remember, gentlemen, when you were down here I mentioned something concerning boats to reinforce New-Castle, in case we should be attacked by the enemy: I am of the same opinion still, and think it worthy of your consideration. I have almost completed the battery on Church-Hill. Should have done it long ago, if the wind and weather had not prevented getting turf. We have begun to enclose Fort Washington, and hope, in a short time, to have it in a good way. I will endeavour cheerfully to comply with your orders at all times, and exercise my small talents in the glorious cause we are now contending for.

* IN COUNCIL, May 7, 1776.—The Committee of both Houses to whom is referred the consideration of a letter from General Ward, have considered the same; and, from various circumstances, are led to conclude that the probability of the enemy's return to this Colony is such as renders it highly necessary that part of the Militia be called to the lines near Boston, with all possible despatch; and that due care be immediately taken to provide proper magazines of provision, and a sufficient supply of intrenching tools and camp utensils, for their use and support. All which is humbly submitted.

J. WINTHROP, per order.

PEREZ MORTON, Deputy Secretary.

I am, with great respect, your Honours' most obedient servant,

DAVID GILMAN.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety of New-Hampshire.

P. S. I think we are neglected with regard to Chaplain. The men are badly provided with arms: I fear the Muster-masters did not discharge their duty in that respect. Flints are much wanted, and cannot be had.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CAPTAIN DEMPSTER, OF THE TRANSPORT BLUE-MOUNTAIN VALLEY, DATED NEWRY, IRELAND, MAY 7, 1776.

I wrote you, from America, the misfortune which befel me in the loss of my ship; but as you probably never received it, I will inform you of the misfortunes that have befallen me from my leaving the Downs till my arrival in Ireland. I left the Downs towards the end of October last, when that dreadful gale of wind drove so many ships ashore on the coasts of England and Ireland; but I escaped from that tolerably well. The remainder of my passage was one continued gale of wind, until my arrival on the coast of America, where I found my ship disabled in every respect, being leaky, &c., having had a thirteen weeks' passage. The moment I came off New-York, I sent my chief mate on shore by a pilot-boat, in order to get on board the ships-of-war lying there, to demand assistance in carrying the ship into New-York, where we might refit, in order to proceed to Boston, our intended port; but unluckily for me, as I afterwards learned, my mate was taken prisoner, and was obliged by threats to discover what the ship was, where bound, and of no force. Upon this intelligence, they fitted out four armed vessels, with about sixty men each—in all upwards of two hundred men—an overmatch (as you may easily believe) for a ship with four small guns, and sixteen hands in all, after being thirteen weeks at sea, and hardly able to keep the ship from sinking. When the vessels made their appearance, I took them for vessels from the men-of-war, the officer who commanded the party being dressed in the uniform of a Lieutenant of the Navy, and I did not then know my mate was taken prisoner. They boarded the ship in every part, and carried her about ten or twelve miles up a river, where two of the King's ships lay, to a place called Elizabethtown, making a prize of the ship and cargo, and myself a prisoner upon parole. After the Americans, by order of the Congress, had unloaded the ship, by an order from that same power, I was set at liberty conditionally—that I should not go near either the Army or the Navy, but return to Britain the first opportunity, which I gladly embraced by coming home in the Catharine, Captain Moore, bound for Newry; and happy was I to get away, lest they had recalled this indulgence. I arrived here the 5th of May, after a pleasant passage of five weeks, and shall proceed with all speed.

JOHN HAMILTON DEMPSTER.

GENERAL ARMSTRONG TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read June 17, 1776.]

Charlestown, South-Carolina, May 7, 1776.

SIR: Having on the 3d instant arrived at this town, duty would have led me without loss of time to have made returns of the Continental forces raised in this Colony, their situation, arms, stores, &c.; but found the military department of this Colony established in a different way from that which is Continental. By virtue of the resolutions of the Provincial Congress, the military was committed to the Council of Safety, upon the dissolution of that body after forming a Constitution for the Colony. It has since been assigned, by an ordinance of the Legislature, to his Excellency the President, from whom the officers derive their commissions, as well those of the Provincial regiments as of the Militia; so that at present I have little more to do than to receive the civilities of the gentlemen here, equally hospitable and polite.

The President having candidly disclosed to me that the troops of this Colony are not on the Continental establishment, and that the reasons why are at large laid before and submitted to the decision of the honourable the Continental Congress, I shall not, therefore, attempt any detail of, nor observation upon them, further than express my opinion that the difficulties might all have been obviated, and the troops stood on the common footing. On the other hand, such is the activity and publick spirit of the officers, the great merit and distinguished abilities of the President, procuring to him the common suffrage of this country, that I see no reason to apprehend the publick service should suffer in his hands. In the mean time, I shall here wait the further orders of Congress, begging only to be favoured with these as early as may be convenient. I shall also obey the orders of General Lee, to whom I now write, or return to North-Carolina, in case the enemy should gain footing there. I should be unpardonable to omit the very friendly reception given me by the President, to which, in a gentlemanly style, he has added a series of good offices. The great loss of this country is its want of men, and the misfortune of so many malcontents, said to be about two thousand or upwards. A number of the better sort of these are coming over; but the greater part of them are said to be of the canaille, who probably want to avail themselves of a day of publick calamity, for the abject purposes of rapine and plunder. Four thousand men, I think, have been voted by this Government; of that number, about two thousand are now raised, and many officers out recruiting. Some accounts from Georgia speak of two thousand British troops being at St. Augustine; not generally believed. The Continental troops at Georgia are about four hundred; and when joined by the Militia, are, by the gentlemen here, estimated at one thousand. I shall, however, write to the Colonel of that battalion. For the North Government, we hope for considerable numbers, and a short time will probably bring one of the Carolinas into action, as appears by a late accession to the fleet at Cape-Fear. Happy for these Colonies, (particularly South-Carolina and Georgia,) should the Insurgents, the domesticks, and Indians, be restrained.

I have the honour to be your most obedient and most humble servant,

JOHN ARMSTRONG.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

P. S. Captain Conner is come forward, in order to serve, as was proposed, in the character of Brigade-Major.

GENERAL LEE TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 14, 1776, and referred to the Committee to whom a former letter from General Lee was referred.]

Williamsburgh, May 7, 1776.

SIR: I find the part I have acted in the business of Mr. Eden has given great umbrage to the Council of Maryland. I take the liberty of enclosing to you a copy of my letter to that Board on the occasion. As I hope it will appear to the Congress a full explanation and justification of my conduct, I shall not trouble them any more on the subject.

Five transports with troops are arrived at Cape-Fear; I shall, therefore, set out on Thursday for Wilmington, by the way of Halifax. When we consider, sir, the vast extent of the vulnerable parts of this country; the numerous navigable intersecting waters; the multitude of slaves; that we have not more than five thousand regulars fit for duty in the Province; that of these five thousand, not more than three are properly armed; that to arm them, (defectively as they are,) the Province has been driven to the necessity of disarming the Minute-men,—I say, sir, when these circumstances are considered, I shall appear, I hope, reasonable in entreating the Congress to spare us if possible some battalions, and of those battalions which are best armed. If indeed, our Minute-men were properly furnished with muskets and ammunition; if our rivers were already secured in the manner I propose, I should think myself capable of baffling all their attempts with our present force; but situated as we are, my anxiety for the common safety obliges me to solicit a reinforcement.

A letter from one of your members informs me that five thousand blankets and five thousand pair of shoes are on the road, for the use of this Army. They are much wanted. The number is, I believe, sufficient. We are, as I observed before, wretchedly in want of medicines, as well as of a director to our Hospital. Doctor McClurg is a very able man, and universally esteemed qualified for the office. The pay of the Regimental Surgeons, established by Congress, is so low that it is in this part of the world (where the common country practice of surgery is singularly lucrative) impossible to find capable men who will accept; but I am in hopes that the Convention will make such additions, out of the Provincial purse, as to enable us to fill the commissions with proper and competent persons. Now I am on the subject of pay, sir, I must beg leave to urge the necessity of considerably increasing that of the Engineers. It is impossible that men qualified for this important office should be prevailed upon to serve on such miserable terms. You have no American Engineers; they must of course be foreigners; and foreigners expect, in their language, de quoi manger; that is, something which will enable them to eat and drink. Twenty dollars per month will not enable them to eat, drink, and wear linen, or, indeed, any kind of clothes; besides, it must be considered that these gentlemen are obliged, by the nature of their duty, to make more journeys than other officers; that horses must be purchased and fed; that the expenses of travelling are, in the Southern Provinces, very high. From these reasons, and many others, the pay of Engineers ought to be, as it is in all other services, greater than that of other officers. Upon the whole, sir, I really do not think that they ought, or can do with less than forty dollars per month, and rations at least for their horses. On more moderate terms, I am persuaded, you cannot procure men equal to the task. As the corps is distinct and not numerous, this necessary addition of pay will be an expense beneath the consideration of the Congress.

Colonel Richard Henry Lee informs me that it was not the intention of the Congress that Captain Innis's company should be reduced to make way for Arundel's, but that they should both be established. I think, sir, it would be a useless expense. Captain Innis, who must, I am sure, be an excellent officer in any other department, professed himself ignorant in this branch. His officers were equally ignorant. Arundel has got possession of the company, and by his activity and knowledge will, I am persuaded, make them fit for service; indeed, to establish an artillery company, Captain, subalterns, and non-commissioned officers, being entirely composed of novices, can answer no end or purpose. It is my opinion, therefore, sir, that, instead of these two companies proposed, the addition of thirty or forty men to Captain Arundel's, and two subaltern officers, will not only be better, but that it promises more advantage to the service. Now I am on the subject of Captain Arundel, I beg leave to remind the Congress of what I mentioned with respect to his expenses on the road. There is one circumstance, of which, sir, I could wish to be ascertained: Is the expense of the defence of these rivers, (that is, the construction of row-galleys, floating batteries, tenders, &c.) to be brought to the account of the Continent, or of the Province? I wish to be ascertained on this head, because if it is at the expense of the latter, I shall regularly propose to the Convention, or Committee of Safety, every scheme which may be attended with expense, before it is entered upon.

If the Quartermaster-General, or his Deputies, when they despatch any teams from Philadelphia with powder, or other necessities, were to purchase the horses throughout, for the Continental use, instead of hiring them, the saving would be considerable—for in this country the hire is intolerably dear; so great, indeed, that I have ventured to order a number of teams to be purchased.

I have just received a vague return of the forces of North-Carolina, of their powder and cannon. It does not appear that they have of effective regulars, properly armed, more than two thousand; of powder, more than two ton and a half; and as to cannon they are almost totally destitute. As the enemy's advance guard, if I may so express myself, is actually arrived, I must, I cannot avoid detaching the strongest battalion we have to their assistance; but I own I tremble at the same time at the thoughts of stripping this Province of any part of its inadequate force. I am puzzled how to direct my motions, from the uncertainty of the enemy's plan; but not dispirited, as I am confident that the Congress will afford me every relief in their power, and am not in the least diffident of the courage and zeal of the men and officers.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

P. S. I have as yet heard nothing of Mr. Stabler, the Engineer. I ought, in fact, to have at least half a dozen, for we have a variety of posts to throw up, and there is not a man or officer in the Army that knows the difference between a chevaux-de-frise and a cabbage garden. I wish the Congress would indulge me with Mr. Smith, whom I know to be an able and active man. Massenbaugh is a treasure. A little hurt in my hand obliges me to write by the pen of my Secretary.

General Lee presents his compliments; sends an extract of a letter just received from Major Hendricks, of Hampton, as it may be of consequence; dated 6th May, 1776:

"A few days ago the Liverpool frigate, with two merchant brigs, set sail (as I have since learned) for Delaware River, in order to give the Roebuck their assistance in getting her off some flats, where she is grounded, in nine feet water, somewhere about the mouth of the Brandywine. This is told us by a Captain Ryson, who is now on shore on his parole. I must confess I do not much like these people coming on their parole so often, as I make no doubt but many of them are as fond of carrying intelligence as bringing any. Three or four days ago the sloop Nautilus, of eighteen guns, came up, and now lies in the road, in the Liverpool's station—a glorious opportunity for our fleet if they were now here."

Williamsburgh, May 6, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I find that I am extremely censured not only by your Board, but by a multitude of others, for my letter to Mr. Purviance, with respect to the seizure of Mr. Eden's person and papers; but I really think, when the circumstances are explained, the censure will appear unjust, and that I was neither violent, assuming, nor precipitate. When the Secretary of State's letter to your Governour was put into my hands, I naturally concluded that, could we possess ourselves of all Mr. Eden's papers, the whole machinations of the Ministry might be discovered; that this discovery might enable us to prevent their effects, and perhaps defeat the whole plan. The possession of these papers could not be hoped for without previously securing his person; and to accomplish this, the utmost secrecy and expedition were necessary. Now, sir, as I imagined you had no troops at Annapolis to execute the purpose, (but in this I find I was mistaken,) and as I knew there were troops in readiness at Baltimore, and as there was no Continental General or other officer in Maryland, Mr. Purviance, Chairman of the Committee on the spot where I had conceived troops alone to be stationed, occurred to me as the only person to whom I could, with propriety and effect, make application. Had I known, sir, that a regiment, or any troops, were stationed at Annapolis, I should undoubtedly, sir, have addressed myself to you as President of the Council of Safety.

It is said, sir, that Maryland was out of the district of my command; that, consequently, to intrude myself into the business and concerns of that Province, was assuming and arrogant. I really conceive, sir, that when the safety, or very being of the whole community appears at stake, the part I have acted in this affair cannot with justice be esteemed arrogance. I did not presume authoritatively to order; but as one servant of the publick, earnestly to entreat and conjure another servant, who alone appeared to me to have the means in his hands, to take a certain step of the last importance to the publick cause. I must repeat, sir, that my reason for addressing myself to Mr. Purviance, at Baltimore, proceeded entirely from my ignorance of there being any troops at Annapolis, and not (as I have been told has been thrown out) from any diffidence in your virtue and decision. I suppose the Committee of Safety here viewed it in the same light; for I read my letter to them, and it was approved of. In times like these, sir, I conceive that, when we have received sufficient evidences of any treasonable practices being carried on, and that when it appears to us that the immediate seizure of a particular traitor's person may lead to discoveries on which the salvation of the State may depend; that when the utmost secrecy and expedition are necessary to the seizure of his person, it is the duty of a good citizen not to delay a single instant, if a single instant's delay may prevent the execution. This was the manner I thought it my duty to proceed in, in the case of Mr. Wormley, on the discovery of his correspondence with the enemy: I gave orders for the security of his person and papers, and then referred the affair to the proper tribunal—the Committee of Safety. The measure was so far from giving umbrage or creating jealousy, that it met with their unanimous approbation. If this method is proscribed, at a juncture like the present, the great check on dangerous correspondence and conspiracies will be taken off. If Councils are to be held previously to the seizure of any traitor's person or papers, notwithstanding the strongest evidences against him, I am much mistaken if every traitor does not slip through your hands. I must now, sir, conclude, with assuring you, and the respectable body over which you preside, that if they suppose me capable of aiming or wishing to extend the military authority, or trespass on the civil, they do me the most cruel injustice. Although I was bred in the Army, I thank God the spirit and principles of the citizen were ever predominant; and I solemnly declare that if I thought it possible I should ever be so far intoxicated by military command as to harbour a wish injurious to the civil supremacy in all things, I would now, whilst I retain my senses, beg leave to divest myself of my present office, and serve as a volunteer in the glorious cause in which I have embarked my person, fortune, and reputation. What I did in this affair I did in the character of a common, zealous member of the community, not of an officer. What appeared irregular or offensive in the mode, I hope I have explained to your satisfaction; and I intreat that it may be entirely attributed to a mistake, for which I am heartily concerned, as it has prejudiced me in the opinions of men whose esteem I am most ambitious of obtaining.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., President of the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JOSEPH TURNER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Charles County, May 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The three hundred pounds, received by Lieutenant Adams, being nearly expended in providing necessities for Captain Rezin Beall's Company, now in Port-Tobacco, and the Committee for this County not meeting till this day week, I take the opportunity, by Lieutenant John Halkerston, to draw on you for one hundred and fifty pounds, currency, for the purpose of paying for further provisions for said company, the Commissary not having as yet prepared for their support, and no certainty as to what time he will be in readiness for that purpose. On Saturday next, one week's board for the soldiers will be due, which amounts to upwards of fifty pounds, and I have only twenty-six pounds and some odd shillings this day in hand, of the former sum; out of which there is rent likewise due for a house hired as a barrack for said men; for which reasons I hope your Honours will not fail sending the sum now wrote for.

I am doubtful that any considerable number of blankets cannot be got in this County, (hitherto only eight blankets have been collected, and those delivered to Captain Beall, for the use of his men, who are still in want of more,) notwithstanding proper persons have been appointed by the Committee in every district of the County for the purpose of collecting them.

I am, sirs, your most humble servant,

JOSEPH TURNER, Treasurer for Charles County.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee, Baltimore Town, May 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed paper contains the opinions and sentiments of a certain Alexander Magee, an inhabitant of this County, which appear to this Committee to be dangerous and inimical to the cause in which America is now embarked. On examining the man, he avowed some of them, and equivocated as to others; and as he appears to have some influence among the common people, the Committee thought it their duty to order him into custody, and to be kept safe till your further directions can be obtained. If you choose that he should be sent down to you, please to direct in what manner, and by whom to be guarded down, and at whose expense, as the commanding officer here apprehends he has no authority to act in the matter, further than to guard him till your answer can be received.

We are, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

ANDREW BUCHANAN, V. C.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

Sentiments, Opinions, and Assertions, of ALEXANDER MAGEE, abstracted from a short conversation on MONDAY, the 29th of APRIL, 1776: Present, Doctor WILLIAM LYON, Mr. ROBERT LYON, and myself, viz:

That enrolling and mustering was taking up arms against the King; that it was flying in the face of, and destroying the Constitution; that it was perjury to such as had taken the oath of allegiance; that the King and Parliament had a right to reclaim the American Charters as forfeited; that the American opposition to Great Britain is not calculated or designed for the defence of American liberty or property, but for the purpose of enslaving the poor people thereof; that the Americans were wrong in disputing the matter with Great Britain, so far as an appeal to arms, for which they had neither officers, men, nor discipline; that it was owing to the liberality and forbearance of Great Britain she had not convinced us of our error ere now, two years being hardly sufficient to rouse her to a war with France or Spain, much less with her own subjects; but that after the great slaughter we should suffer the ensuing campaign, those who survived would think better of it; that he (Magee) would join the King's troops if he had an opportunity; that signing a paper did not alter the heart, and he knew there were thousands among us who had enrolled that were still of his way of thinking; that he would never pay any fine as a non-enroller, and would shoot any person who should attempt to execute his effects for that purpose.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

[No. 147.]

Annapolis, May 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The quantum of salvage on Mr. Hudson's ship depends, in Congress, on the length of time she was in possession of the tenders in Patapsco River; and we request, (as it will occasion a great deal of trouble and expense to bring witnesses for the purpose before our Board,) that you will immediately take, and transmit to us, the affidavits of such persons as are best acquainted with the time of the capture and recapture, that we may communicate them to our Deputies.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, May 7, 1776.

SIR: Since I wrote you by Mr. Palfrey, on the 30th of last month, I have not been honoured with any commands from Congress relative to your letters, except the enclosed resolve,* which I am ordered to forward to you.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington, at New-York.

* IN CONGRESS, May 6, 1776.—Whereas, General Washington has requested directions concerning the conduct that should be observed towards Commissioners said to be coming from Great Britain to America,

Resolved, That General Washington be informed that Congress suppose, if Commissioners are intended to be sent from Great Britain to treat of peace, that the practice usual in such cases will be observed, by making previous application for the necessary passports or safe conduct; and on such application being made, Congress will direct the proper measures for the reception of such Commissioners.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Philadelphia, May 7, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Since I had the honour of writing on the 30th of April, upon the subject of collecting specie for the support of our Army in Canada, I have nothing further in charge from Congress, at this time, but to transmit you the enclosed resolve;* and have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

JAMES DUANE TO THE ASSEMBLY OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Treasury Office, Philadelphia, May 7, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: The Congress having, on the 17th of February last, appointed a Standing Committee for superintending the Treasury, and, on the 1st April, among other things, resolved, that all Assemblies, Conventions, Councils, and Committees of Safety, Commissaries, Paymasters, and others entrusted with publick moneys, should, within a reasonable time after being called upon for that purpose by the Committee of the Treasury, produce their accounts at the Treasury Office, in order to their being settled and adjusted, we are, in pursuance of the said regulations, to request your honourable body will be pleased to give orders that an account be rendered of the expenditure of the Continental moneys which, by the acts of Congress, have passed through your hands into the Office, with the proper vouchers, that the same may be settled and adjusted here, and reported, for the final allowance of Congress.

I have the honour to be, in the names of the Superintendents of the Treasury, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JAMES DUANE, JUN., Chairman.

To the Honourable James Warren, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 10, 1776, and referred to the Committee on the state of the Eastern Colonies.]

New-York, May 7, 1776.

SIR: At a quarter after seven this evening, I received, by express, a letter from Thomas Cushing, Esquire, Chairman of a Committee of the honourable General Court, covering one to them from the Committee of Salem; copies of which I do myself the honour to lay before Congress, that they may judge of the intelligence contained therein, and direct such measures to be taken upon the occasion as they may think proper and necessary. I would observe, that supposing Captain Lee's account to be true in part, I think there must be a mistake either in the number of troops or the transport ships. If there are no more ships than what are mentioned, it is certain there cannot be so many troops; of this, however, Congress can judge as well as myself; and I submit it to them whether, upon the whole of the circumstances, and the uncertainty of their destination, if they were seen at all, they choose that any forces shall be detached from hence; as they will see from the returns transmitted yesterday that the number of men now here is but small and inconsiderable; and, what is to be regretted, no small part of those without arms. Perhaps by dividing and subdividing our force too much, we shall have no one post sufficiently guarded. I shall wait their direction, and whatever their order is, shall comply with it as soon as possible.

I have the honour to be, with much respect, sir, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

P. S. I have, by the express, a letter from General Ward, containing a similar account to that from the Salem Committee, and by way of Captain Lee.

Should the Commissioners arrive which are mentioned, how are they to be received and treated? I wish the direction of Congress upon the subject by return of the bearer.

* IN CONGRESS, May 4, 1776.—Resolved, That the Cannon and other stores in Boston, which were originally purchased and provided by and at the expense of the Colonies of Massachusetts-Bay and New-Hampshire, be considered as belonging to the Colony that so purchased and provided them; and that all the other Cannon left in the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay by the British forces be presented to the said Colony.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL McDUGALL.

New-York, May 7, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour upon the subject of rations; and, agreeably to your request, have enclosed a list of rations allowed the officers of the regiments before Boston. Those in service the 1st of July have been allowed from that time; others appointed to office since, from the dates of their commissions.

Having never given any direction about the officers alluded to, or any others, except those that were immediately under my command, I would observe that I do not mean to do it in this instance, as they were acting in a distinct and different district.

I am, sir, yours, &c.,
 To Colonel A. McDougall, First New-York.
 GEORGE WASHINGTON.

WHITEHEAD HICKS TO JOHN MCKESSON.

Tuesday, 2 o'clock, May 7, 1776.

SIR: I wrote you last week relative to an order of the Congress about the persons who had moved out of town, which, as I was exempted from military duty, I conceived did not apply to me, and desired you would get that explained; but I have not received any answer from you. As I am now in town, and shall go out this evening, should be glad to hear from you.

I am, sir, your humble servant,
 To John McKesson, Esq.
 WHITEHEAD HICKS.

ALEXANDER MONCRIEFF TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, May 7, 1776.

Honourable Gentlemen of the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety:

This I am to acquaint you, that I am under the necessity of resigning the office of being your Jail-keeper, which this honourable Board conferred upon me the 24th April, 1776. While I do return my sincere thanks to the honourable Board for the preferment, be pleased to give me an audience before this honourable Convention, and I will give my candid reason for my desire of resigning.

I am, with sincerity, your most obedient servant,
 ALEXANDER MONCRIEFF.

JOHN MCKESSON TO ABSENT MEMBERS.

New-York, May 7, 1776, 2 o'clock.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress has now waited two days for the attendance of the Members of your County to make a House and proceed to business. All the other Counties present complain of you.

When the gentlemen from Westchester were here on Saturday, they engaged that a representation of their County should attend on Monday. There are publick clamors from all quarters for want of money, and a Congress. I have it in command from the gentlemen present to request the attendance of a quorum from your County; and that if any of you on whom this express should call cannot set off immediately, and travel to the City-Hall without a stop or rest, that, in that case, you send to some gentleman who will attend.

Some gentlemen say that Westchester ought to pay the express, and the whole expense of the Members attending here while they are absent.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, gentlemen, your humble servant,

JOHN MCKESSON.

To Lewis Graham, Joseph Drake, Stephen Ward, Robert Graham, and Joseph Paulding, Esquires, and the other Deputies of Westchester County, or any three of them.

JOSEPH BLANCHARD TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

New-York, May 7, 1776.

Gentlemen of the Committee of Safety, now convened in the City of NEW-YORK:

As I am under an accusation of carrying on a communication with some of the seamen on board the ships lying near Sandy-Hook, I hope you will indulge me in laying the matter before you, which I will do according to the best of my remembrance.

Captain Darby's evidence, which you have minuted, is very just as to what I said about there being a communication from persons in this city to the ships. If he said anything about my sending books on board, that is wrong, for I neither bought nor sent any, nor anything else except a small memorandum blank-book, quarter of a hundred of goose quills, and one small bottle Turlington's balsam; which I sent Colonel Fanning, by Mr. Nixon. The books were bought of one Green, by the Colonel's negro, as I learned to-day from Mrs. Hatch. I never saw them, but heard her say they were sent. While Mr. Nixon went on board the Dutchess, I often wrote to Colonel Fanning; my letters were always delivered to him open; nor did I ever send one to him sealed since he went on board. The last letter I received from him is dated the 20th April, I think, and enclosed an order I had sent to receive some money for me from one Pell, who I thought was on board the Asia. I gave an order to this Pell to receive of Mr. Banyar, and bring to me, fifteen pounds, expecting him back immediately with the money; but instead of bringing me the money, he went on board the Asia, as I learned afterward by the man that carried him. By the last letter I received from the Colonel, I had some small hopes of getting the money, which was the occasion of my sending him the last letter, enclosing the order as before, and the map he wrote for; which letter contained nothing but a desire to him to use his utmost to get that money, and to send up a return of a warrant of survey, executed by Mr. Bancker and myself. I did not think there was any harm in this small piece of negotiation, as not one word was written about anything but about the money, the return of survey, that his deed was ready for him, and that I hoped he had received the quills, &c.

Not one word of news, or anything about politicks, was ever hinted either from him to me, or me to him, in any letter that passed between us. As to the Governour, I never wrote him one word, nor ever received any kind of message from him of any kind whatsoever. Captain Gibbs says I could tell what I was arrested for, though he never mentioned anything of the occasion to me. When he was examining over my papers, he saw a letter directed to the Governour, which he spoke something about, and viewed it with more attention than he had other papers; and my calling to mind the discourse I had with Captain Darby, and that I had sent letters on board, concluded it must be that. That I had carried on a correspondence on board is not denied; but then it will not follow that it was criminal, unless it was so in sending the last letter after the Committee had resolved to the contrary. He also mentions that he found in my room General Sullivan's marching orders. That is true; and at first I did not recollect much about it, but after a little while I remembered that I picked it up in Lieutenant Fisher's house, which was much frequented by the Jersey officers. What led me to look on it particularly, was my seeing General Sullivan's name to it; and as I knew him when he was a young man, I looked to it to see the handwriting. I have not the least remembrance of putting it into my pocket, nor do I remember anything about it afterwards, till I saw it on the table where Mr. Gibbs found it; but this I can positively declare, that I never did, nor thought of making any kind of use of it in any respect, except it was just to look it over out of curiosity; nor do I conceive what use could be made of it, that could not have been as well effected without it; for these orders were as publick as anything in town; nor was the least secrecy observed about them. The business wrote about to Lord Stirling, I effected by letter to Colonel Fanning, so Major Rogers said there was no occasion of delivering it. I knew the contents, and went several times to my Lord's on purpose to deliver him the letter, but could not see him. As to my using the officers ill that informed against me, (if I did,) it was occasioned by my being confined in such a manner; had any of them come to me for information about conveyance, I would have freely given them all the information I was possessed of, which, in short, I had done before, which I thought they would not have disputed, on the least reflection on the openness which appeared in me in our former conversation on that head. My ill-treatment of them is much exaggerated; neither were they altogether silent in their retorts.

As to every tittle of what I have written above, I can be qualified to the truth, and will if desired. When any man's trial depends on his own confession, the whole should be taken, and not any one part. My political principles are known by some of this Committee, and I defy even envy itself to say that I ever said or did anything disapproving of the measures now pursuing by the Continent to free America from the oppression designed her by Great Britain; but always thought, and often said, that the American opposition was just, and I heartily wished it success. I will cheerfully attend the honourable Committee whenever they shall see fit, and give any satisfaction to them in my power concerning these matters; and rest their most obedient and most humble servant,

JOSEPH BLANCHARD.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety, now sitting in the City of New-York.

COLONEL NICOLL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Constitution, May 7, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY; I received your two letters of April 25th and May 4th, the 5th of this instant. Your Excellency may rest assured that I shall do everything in my power to forward the works. It would be of great service if the Congress would order a few hogsheads of rum here, so that the fatigue party might have a gill a-piece per day, as the fatigue is hard. My orders are that every man, except the sick, lame, those on guard, and those last relieved, work every day.

There are a number of Tories sent to Fort Montgomery from Dutchess County, by order of the County Convention, to be put to hard labour till the further order of the Convention. I have ordered the commanding officer there, if any more of these disaffected people should be sent there, not to receive them, or send them to Fort Constitution; as I think it wrong to send so many of these people to a garrison that is so weak. And it remains a doubt with me, as they are our prisoners, whether we should oblige them to do hard labour or not. I hope your Excellency will be pleased to give me some directions about them. One of those disaffected people told me yesterday that the report about Captain Menos's going away was false, and that he lived near him.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, and very humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL, Commanding Officer.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army.

FRANCIS ABBOTT TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Charlestown, No. 4, Sunday morning, May, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received by the post Sunday evening your letter and the five hundred dollars. I have received accounts of three of the teams being cast away, and all are gone from this town, and I am going off myself. The post from Ticonderoga informs me the wagons that went first had arrived at Otter Creek, and got over all the worst of the way. I propose to go from Otter Creek to Skenesborough, which is a trifle farther, but the roads much better, and the remainder must be by water, if possible. As for the tent-poles all getting into the camp, it is impossible, and I wish I had burnt them in this town. Pray inform Mr. Harris all the cannon will be on the road, as I come back. Three teams are just arrived, that could not get more than fifteen miles; but I hope for a blessing to attend the remainder of this journey.

I subscribe myself, your humble servant, friend, and well-wisher,

FRANCIS ABBOTT.

To the New-Hampshire Committee of Safety.

P. S. Excuse my not being more pithy, and particularly on news, for I am in haste.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GENERAL HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAINE, DATED HALIFAX, MAY 7, 1776.

As I did not in my last, of the 25th of April, particularly acknowledge the receipt of despatches by the Milford frigate, I have now the honour to specify the following from the Earl of Dartmouth, viz: of the 27th of October, 8th of November; circular of the same date; copies of letters to Lord William Campbell and Governour Martin, of the 7th of November; duplicates of the 22d, 27th, and 28th of October, 8th of November, and a triplicate of the 22d of October.

Your Lordship's despatches were, circular of the 10th of November, and duplicate; 18th of November, and duplicate; copy of instructions to Major-General Clinton, 6th of December; letter of the 23d of December, and 5th of January.

In your Lordship's despatch of the 5th of January, mention is made of a separate letter, wherein I may expect the honour of his Majesty's commands for the operations of the ensuing campaign, which is not yet received. I hope my design of removing with the Army from hence to New-York, as soon as I am enabled by a supply of provisions, may not meet with the King's disapprobation, although it should take place before I receive the letter in question, for every instant we remain here must increase our embarrassments. The fogs sitting in upon the coasts may delay the fleet upon its passage, occasion a separation, and thereby prevent the Army from acting in full force upon its arrival; the enemy will be better prepared for our reception, and the reinforcements from Europe may arrive before us. From these considerations, I shall, at all events, get away from hence without a moment's unnecessary delay; but I tremble when I think of our present state of provisions, having now meat for no more than thirteen days in store, with the possibility of supplies not arriving before the fogs take place; after which time the ships may be a month upon the coast, without being able to get into port. The frost being now out of the ground, the works for a temporary security to the dock-yard were begun this day.

By the addition of vessels taken into the service, and of arrivals at this port since leaving Boston, we shall have a sufficient quantity of tonnage for the removal of the Army from hence, without the inconvenience of the officers and soldiers being crowded, which was experienced on our way to this port. The greatest part of the women and children will be left, and subsisted at the usual allowance, of half a ration for each woman, and one quarter for a child; in which a supply of rice (lately arrived from Georgia) will be a principal article.

By this opportunity I have sent to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury an estimate of the forage expected from the Bay of Fundy; and if we have not a sufficient quantity of hay for the Seventeenth Dragoons, that regiment will be left, to follow the Army as soon as it can be procured; it is now in cantonments, in the neighbourhood of Windsor, for the convenience of getting hay.

I have also sent to their Lordships a return of seamen engaged in the West-Indies, who are put into transports, and are a very seasonable assistance. It is at the same time humbly submitted to their Lordships' consideration, if it would not be an expedient measure to send out a naval store-ship, for furnishing the transports with the several articles of rigging and stores, which they greatly need at present, particularly pitch and tar; likewise, a victualling ship for their seamen, who have no other supply than from the Army stores.

Lieutenant-Governour Oliver, five of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, and some of the inhabitants from thence, go to Britain at this time. The Honourable Peter Oliver, Esquire, Chief Justice of the Superior Court of Judicature, whose steady zeal and attachment to Government is well known to General Gage, and to whose counsel and judgment I have been indebted on many occasions, accompanies Governour Legge, in the Harriet packet; and that your Lordship may know the number of persons who removed from Boston, I enclose a list of them, taken at this place, as well as a list of those embarking.

The stores destroyed, and left by the different departments, on the late removal of the Army, will appear from the enclosed returns. I must own, in the ordnance branch they have exceeded my expectations; but in that of the forage, it was inevitable from the want of shipping.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands, for a more explicit account of the expedition to Falmouth, which was intrusted to Lieutenant Mowat, of the Navy, assisted by a detachment of marines and artillery, I have re-examined the officer who commanded this detachment, and find that his orders from General Gage were, to embark on board several armed vessels the 6th of October, 1775, and to aid and assist Lieutenant Mowat in annoying and destroying all ships and vessels belonging to the Rebels on the coast and in the harbours, to the eastward of Boston; that they first examined the harbour of Cape-Anne, and finding an attack upon it inexpedient, they proceeded to Falmouth, and laid the armed vessels before the town, on the evening of their arrival; after which Lieutenant Mowat sent an officer on shore, with a summons to the inhabitants to deliver up their arms and ammunition, acquainting them at the same time that his orders directed him to destroy the town if they did not comply with his demand, of which they should be allowed two hours to consider and to remove their women and children. Shortly after, three persons, deputed by the inhabitants, came on board, requesting a longer time; and it was agreed to wait their answer until eight o'clock next morning; about which hour the same persons returned, and reported that the inhabitants were determined to wait their fate. Within half an hour a signal was made by Lieutenant Mowat, the vessels began to cannonade, and several carcasses were thrown into the town, which set fire to the houses, and, in a few hours, consumed the greatest part of them; a detachment was then landed, who completed the destruction, and re-embarked without loss. The small vessels in the harbour were burnt, sunk, or brought away the 18th of October, and the armament returned to Boston the 5th of November, without attempting anything further.

Your Lordship was informed in my last that Lieutenant-Colonel Grant had returned from Georgia, where he had been sent with two transports, and one hundred and seventy rank and file, under convoy of the Scarborough frigate, to procure rice for the Army. He found the country in open rebellion, the Governour and many of the King's friends prisoners at large, others disarmed, and all legal authority subverted; a vessel sunk in the narrow part of their river, the town of Savannah garrisoned by five hundred men, and batteries raised in the commanding grounds, to obstruct the passage of the ships. Every means were used to convince the people that his designs were not hostile, that everything required should be paid for, and their trade protected. To this they were at one time reconciled; but the violence of the mob soon overset his intentions. The only measure left was to secure the ships then in the river, by surprise; which was effected by the detachment going up Back River in boats, with two or three small armed vessels, through an intricate channel, and little known, while the larger armed vessels proceeded up the ordinary passage by way of feint, engaged their attention, and these met with every opposition the enemy could make from their cannon, or with small arms. The plan succeeded: eighteen vessels of different sizes were rescued, and brought down the back channel; more ships would have been brought off had the detachment been stronger. Such were the rage and disappointment of the people on this occasion that they set fire to the Inverness, a large ship richly laden, with a view of destroying the rest.

Sir James Wright and his family narrowly escaping the search of a detachment of one hundred and fifty men sent to seize him, got on board the Scarborough, and is now here, intending to sail for England by this opportunity. This detachment, disappointed in their principal aim, fired upon a Sergeant's party, sent ashore for wood, which the non-commissioned officer returned, and retired to his boat, with the loss of one man killed and scalped, one wounded, and one missing. The Rebels, on the approach of troops in boats, quitted the spot.

The quantity of rice obtained by Lieutenant-Colonel Grant is one thousand and eighty-three tierces, for which certificates were given to the owners, as the price could not be ascertained under such circumstances. Sir James Wright is the principal proprietor.

A private trader from Waterford arrived this morning, with as much beef and pork as will supply the Army six days, which, though a small circumstance, may not be displeasing for your Lordship to know in the present situation of things.

THOMAS EWING TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, May 8, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIRS: When last in Annapolis, I left my account with you for inspection. There was a charge in the account current for bringing my company to station, the amount of which was left blank. Enclosed I send you an account of sundry expenses which I paid, which, after deducting what is allowed for recruiting, and the charge allowed for a fifer, leaves fourteen pounds nine shillings and eleven pence due me by the promise of that account, which I hope you will allow, as otherwise I shall be so much loser. The balance due, exclusive of that, is eighty-four pounds twelve shillings and ten and a half-pence, which I will esteem as a favour if you will send me by return of the bearer, Mr. William Lux. I have paid several sums since my last account for sick soldiers, which I doubt not will be allowed, as it is by order of your Surgeon. I am getting hunting shirts made for my company, of home-made linen, which I bought and paid Mr. Edward Parker for, at three shillings and nine pence per yard. I have in that consulted with Colonel Ware, who thinks with me that they will not come much dearer than osnaburghs, the linen being much broader, and one shirt will be worth two; I therefore hope you will allow it.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

I have the honour to be, honourable sirs, your very humble servant,

THOMAS EWING.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN HINDMAN.

[No. 148.]

Annapolis, May 8, 1776.

SIR: We received your letters, and are sorry to hear you do not approve of the muskets sent you from Chester; they were taken from Captain Nathaniel Smith's Company of Matrosses, at Baltimore, but a few days before, and Mr. T. Smyth says they appeared all to be in good order, except a few. They had been in constant use for some time, and are of the best sort belonging to the Province, although not new. Whatever repairs are wanting for them we desire you will have done as soon as possible. We would have you purchase the muskets you mention, at seventy-five shillings each, and are glad to hear you can get cloth to clothe your company. We desire it may be made up as soon as it can be done.

The price you are asked for houses at Oxford for barracks is most extravagant; and much higher than, from the information we have received, ought to be given; and we request you would endeavour to procure them, or others, at a lower rate. Camp-kettles are an article that cannot be procured in this Province; we have procured you some pots, which we conceive, as you are now and may for some time, remain at your barracks, will well answer every purpose you have occasion for at present. Platters we shall have ready for you next week, and will send by first opportunity; and we have enclosed to you two orders on the Treasurer of the Eastern Shore for one hundred and sixty-six pounds, your subsistence money to the 3d of May, and two hundred and fifty pounds for the purchase of cloth, and the purposes you have mentioned; and for which you will hereafter render us account.

We are, &c.

To Captain James Hindman.

COLONEL EASTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 9, 1776, and referred to Mr. McKean, Mr. Adams, and Mr. Wythe.]

Philadelphia, May 8, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I beg leave to give you the trouble of this. I have been in jail three weeks, and having no prospect of being set at liberty, I now humbly apply to your Honour, having no friends to assist me in this part of the world. I am sued for fifteen hundred pounds, York currency, and I owe my creditors about nine hundred pounds more, York currency. I have due two thousand pounds, lawful money. My creditors have a landed security of what I value at three thousand pounds, lawful money. In several letters they have received from me since I came to this place, I have offered my land and my outstanding debts at an honest appraisal; in short, I have done everything in my power to get a settlement, but have heard nothing from them. There is no such thing as obliging people to pay their debts in the Massachusetts, by the resolves of the honourable Congress.

I ought to be on my way to Canada: the settlement with the Commissioners appointed by Congress requires it; a settlement of my regimental accounts of five captains still in the service at Canada, and getting the stores and vessels taken by the regiment appraised, the court of inquiry to be holden there in regard to Major Brown and myself, and many other important matters, all urge it; in short, I am in pain to see the event of Quebeck.

I have, with my one hundred and fifty men at the Sorel, taken more for the Continent, on board Prescott's savage fleet, than three times over to pay all my debts, viz: one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five barrels of provisions, including three hundred and sixty-five firkins of butter, at sixty shillings per barrel, amounting to five thousand five hundred and five pounds. The eleven sail of vessels were of no small advantage to the Continent in transporting General Montgomery's Army to Quebeck; not to mention smaller matters, but not to forget Ticonderoga. May not my honour be taken till I can go to New-York, and try to settle my affairs, and if I cannot do it to return to jail again? I understand Savage Prescott is gone off on a parole. His Excellency General Washington was pleased to observe, in a letter I laid before the honourable Committee on my affairs, at the City Tavern, that I had merited from the publick, though I am accused by General Arnold. I live in the faith that it is in the power of the honourable Congress to relieve me, consistent with their true dignity; and believe they will at any rate, as I think they cannot be losers by me.

Honoured sir, please to use (if it is not inconsistent) your influence to liberate the unhappy man, when it can be of no advantage to any creditor to keep me here. I humbly beg your counsel in the matter.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES EASTON.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 9, 1776, and referred to Mr McKean, Mr. Samuel Adams, and Mr Wythe.]

New-York, May 8, 1776.

SIR: Having been informed that the contract I made with the Provincial Convention of this Colony in behalf of the Continent, is thought by the honourable Continental Congress disadvantageous to the publick, I beg leave to explain the motives on which I founded my proposals: Having seen an advertisement in the publick prints, requesting all those who were willing to contract for victualling the Army of the United Colonies to be stationed in this Province, to send their proposals sealed to the Provincial Convention, who were then sitting; what particularly induced me to make tender was, that I thought few persons in this city would be concerned in so great an undertaking; and as I had always an earnest desire to serve my country, and being brought up to business, was confident that the Representatives of this Colony would not be displeased should the contract fall in my hands. These considerations, with the prospect that the emolument arising therefrom would be adequate to the trouble and expense that such a contract would naturally create, induced me to offer proposals, which were esteemed the most advantageous to the Continent of any delivered, and finally I contracted to victual the Army. But as I am informed the honourable Continental Congress are of opinion that my contract is very injurious to the publick, and although I earnestly wish to be in the service of the Continent, having met with considerable losses, and altogether thrown out of business by the present unhappy disputes, yet I esteem it my duty, and shall always prefer the good of the American cause to my private interest; I will, therefore, with the utmost cheerfulness, resign my contract, should the Congress in their wisdom think it expedient.

I have the honour to be your most obedient, humble servant,

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTON.

To the President of the Honourable Continental Congress.

EVE PROVOOST TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York, May 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Being informed that my son David Provoost, a passenger on board the brig Amazon, lately taken by the men-of-war at the Hook, is detained a prisoner on board the Asia man-of-war, I beg leave to ask the favour of the gentlemen of the Committee of Safety to use their influence with his Excellency General Washington, to permit some person to go on board the Asia, in order to treat about my son's releasement; as it is peculiarly hard upon him, who had nothing to do with the vessel or cargo, to be detained a prisoner almost at my own door.

Your kind offices, therefore, to effect, if possible, my son's discharge, will much oblige, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

EVE PROVOOST.

WILLIAM MALCOLM.

COMMISSIONERS IN CANADA TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read May 18, 1776.]

Montreal, May 8, 1776.

SIR: With this you will receive copies of our two preceding letters. We find ourselves obliged to report the necessity of sending immediately the supply of hard money therein mentioned. We have tried in vain to borrow some here for the immediate occasion of the Army, either on the publick or on our own private credit. We cannot even sell sterling bills of exchange, which some of us have offered to draw. It seems it had been expected and given out by our friends, that we should bring money with us. The disappointment has discouraged everybody, and established an opinion that none is to be had, or that the Congress has not credit enough in their own Colonies to procure it. Many of our friends are drained dry; others say they are so, fearing, perhaps, we shall never be able to reimburse them. They show us long accounts, no part of which we are able to discharge, of the supplies they have furnished to our Army, and declare that they have borrowed and taken up on credit so long for our service, that they can now be trusted no longer, even for what they want themselves. The Tories will not trust us a farthing, and some who, perhaps, wish us well, conceiving that we shall, through our own poverty, or from superior force, be soon obliged to abandon the country, are afraid to have any dealings with us, lest they should hereafter be called to account for abetting our cause. Our enemies take the advantage of this distress, to make us look contemptible in the eyes of the Canadians, who have been provoked by the violences of our military, in exacting provisions and services from them without pay—a conduct towards a people who suffered us to enter their country as friends, that the most urgent necessity can scarce excuse, since it has contributed much to the changing their good dispositions towards us into enmity, and makes them wish our departure; and, accordingly, we have daily intimations of plots hatching and insurrections intended, for expelling us on the first news of the arrival of the British Army. You will see from hence that your Commissioners themselves are in a critical and most irksome situation, pestered hourly with demands, great and small, that they cannot answer, in a place where our cause has a majority of enemies, the garrison weak, and a greater would, without money, increase our difficulties. In short, if money cannot be had to support your Army here with honour, so as to be respected, instead of being hated by the people, we report it as our firm and unanimous opinion, that it is better immediately to withdraw it. The fact before your eyes, that the powerful British nation cannot keep an army in a country where the inhabitants are become enemies, must convince you of the necessity of enabling us immediately to make this people our friends. Exclusive of a sum of money to discharge the debts already contracted, which General Arnold informs us amounts to fourteen thousand pounds, besides the account laid before Congress by Mr. Price, a further sum of hard money, not less than six thousand pounds, will be necessary to re-establish our credit in this Colony. With this supply, and a little success, it may be possible to regain the affections of the people, to attach them firmly to our cause, and induce them to accept a free Government; perhaps to enter into the Union; in which case the currency of our paper money will, we think, follow as a certain consequence.

With great respect to yourself, and the Congress, we have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servants,

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

SAMUEL CHASE,

CHARLES CARROLL, of Carrollton.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

CHARLES MILLER TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

[Read May 23, 1776, and referred to Mr. Whipple, Mr. Gerry, and Mr. F. Lee.]

Boston, May 8, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 29th ultimo was duly received, and observe the contents. It gives me pleasure to find that my appointment to this office is agreeable to you. You may depend on my utmost endeavours to serve the cause I am employed in. There is a considerable quantity of damaged butter, fat, hard bread, raisins, barrels old pork, &c., the latter of which article I am now selling from sixty-six shillings and eight pence to seventy-two shillings per barrel. In your letter you desired I would have them properly inspected. I am at a loss to know whether you intended there should be persons appointed to inspect it, or whether it should be left to me to determine which is good or bad. I would recommend to have all that is bad sold at publick vendue, if agreeable to you, as I think they will sell for as much or more that way than at private sale. As to the liquors, I should be glad to know the cost of them, which will be a guide to me in the sale. The prize flour will be baked into hard bread, and it is very likely the ships will want a considerable quantity, which, I suppose, may be supplied by an order from Mr. Cushing. I shall acquaint Major Frazer with what you wrote respecting the essence of spruce.

There is a great demand here for pork. I suppose I can sell a considerable quantity at about eighty shillings per barrel, provided it is agreeable. You will find by the receipt given Mr. Avery, that there are considerable quantities of provisions here more than will be wanted for the Army for twelve months to come—whether it would not be best to sell such quantity as will not be wanted. By Mr. Avery's order, I have supplied this Colony with a considerable quantity of pork, beef, and fish. I should be glad to know whether I am to continue supplying the same if wanted, and whether I must get the cash for it, or let it remain charged to the Colony. We are every day expecting the Fleet and Army to return here with double force; if they should, they will take more provisions than would be agreeable to me.

This Colony has not as yet done anything worth mentioning towards the protecting of this town. Three or four ships, and about three thousand men, would take it again with great ease. Yesterday a privateer schooner from Marblehead took (in plain sight from this town) and carried into Lynn, two large brigs, loaded with beef, wine, and butter.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

CHARLES MILLER.

To Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General, at New-York.

P. S. There is a quantity of salt at Jamaica Plains, for which Mr. Blaney sent to me for a receipt; but not knowing the quantity there was, and having received no order to bring it into Boston, I desired him to let it remain in the care of the person in whose store it was, until I heard from you.

JEREMIAH WADSWORTH TO JOHN BROWN.

Boston, May 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In the month of September last, the brigantine Polly, Giles Sage master, from Jamaica and Hispaniola, laden with rum, sugar, and cotton, whereof Matthew Talbott, Esq., of Middletown, in Connecticut, and myself, were owners, was taken by the Nautilus man-of-war, brought into this port, and here condemned by a Court of Admiralty, and sold. I now find that some part of her cargo, viz: twenty-one bags of cotton, containing two thousand three hundred and eighty-three pounds, are in the store of George Erving, Esq., and am informed that you have taken the same under your care, in behalf of this Colony, believing it to be the estate of the said George Erving, Esq., or some other persons inimical to this country. But I am able to make proof that the said cotton was actually brought in said brigantine Polly, and was the property of us, the said Talbott & Wadsworth, and we conceive it still to be our property, not believing that the unjust capture made of our estates hath in anywise changed the property. We therefore lay before you our claim, and desire you will deliver the cotton to some person by us authorized to receive it. I should have applied to you, gentlemen, in person, but as you were not sitting to-day, and I being obliged to go out of town, desire you will transact the whole matter with Mr. Benjamin Clarke, whose receipt for the cotton, or any other matters to us belonging, shall be as effectual as if signed by us. I am further to inform you that Richard Alsop, Esq., late of said Middletown, was concerned in some part of the cargo of said brigantine, and that I am empowered by his administratrix, Mrs. Mary Alsop, to transact for her, as well as for Matthew Talbot, Esq. As by said power determined, Mr. Clarke will appear.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
JEREMIAH WADSWORTH.
To John Brown, Esq., Chairman of the Committee in Boston.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Joseph Miscer, in full for the loss of his Gun at the battle of Bunker's Hill, the sum of one Pound sixteen Shillings.

Whereas Committees were appointed by this Court, in several Counties in this Colony, to procure subscribers, who should certify under their hands what sum of hard money each subscriber would exchange for Continental Bills, but no Bills have been granted for that purpose:

In the House of Representatives: Read, and concurred, and Mr. Cooper, Colonel Orne, and Mr. Sullivan, are joined.

Petition of James Holmes, setting forth: That in the transport-ship called the Friendship, lately cast ashore on Cape Cod, whereof he was master, he had a considerable sum of money, (his own private cash,) to the amount of three hundred and seventy-five dollars, the whole of which, together with a gold watch and his wearing apparel, were taken from him by the captors of the ship; part of the money has since been expended in bringing the crew of said ship to Head-Quarters, so that only two hundred and twenty-five dollars now remain in the captors' hands; by which means your Petitioner is reduced to the most necessitous circumstances, destitute of a single farthing to subsist on, in a country where he has neither friends nor connexions, and where he has no other dependance but on the characteristic benevolence and hospitality of the Americans. He recognises with gratitude your Honours' recommendation to the captors to return his wearing apparel, and he humbly begs that you will add to that recommendation a return of his private moneys, in order that he may be able to support himself in some degree of reputation, till he shall have an opportunity to return home.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Selectmen of the Town of Truro, that they return to Captain James Holmes seventy-five Dollars, part of the cash he claims as his private property on board the Friendship, lately run ashore in said town, for said Captain Holmes's necessary support, till trial of said vessel can be had, or further order of this Court.

Whereas the Courts of General Sessions of the Peace and Inferior Court of Common Pleas, for the County of Worcester, according to the time appointed by law, should be holden at Worcester, in said County, on the last Tuesday of March instant: And whereas the Courts of General Sessions for the Peace, for the last December term for said County, is adjourned to Monday, the 25th instant, March: And whereas no business of great importance can be transacted at said Courts, and sundry of the Justices and officers of said Courts are members of this Court, which is likely to continue sitting beyond the time appointed for holding said Courts; and it is probable that matters of great importance may require the attendance of all the members of this Court at that time:

Therefore, Resolved, That said Courts be, and hereby are, adjourned unto the second Tuesday in June next, being the time at which the Inferior Court of Common Pleas and Court of General Sessions of the Peace, for said County, are by law appointed to be holden at Worcester aforesaid; and that all pleas, processes, writs, actions, and suits, issued or to be issued, complaints, precepts, recognisances, and all other matters and things returnable, and having, and that should have had day in said Courts, if the same had been holden the said last Tuesday in March, or at the adjournment of December Court, shall be returnable and have day in said Courts, on the said second Tuesday in June next, and shall abide and continue unto that time, and shall then be proceeded, tried, heard, and determined, to all intents and purposes as effectually as if said Courts should have been held on the said last Tuesday of March, or at the time to which the Court held in December last was adjourned.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of the Town of Groton, the sum of twenty-six Pounds five Shillings and seven Pence, in full of their account of Provisions supplied the Colony.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury, to Thomas Windship, the sum of one Pound four Shillings, in full for a Gun lost in the battle of Lexington.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to William Dodge and others, the sum of fifty-seven Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence, in full for Provisions supplied by them to the Eastward settlements.

The Secretary, by order of the major part of the Council, went down with the following Message to the House, viz:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

"As the manufacture of saltpetre in this Colony is, by your encouragement, arrived to a good degree of perfection, and it is probable that what has and may hereafter be done to encourage the same will soon produce a sufficiency for our own use, yet there is another article no less necessary for the making of gunpowder, viz: sulphur, in the manufacturing whereof very little or no progress has yet been made. It is very certain that there are in this Colony good minerals for that purpose. The neglect of the people to enter into that branch of business must be owing to the short time in which a premium is promised to them for the manufacturing of it, or to some other cause yet unknown.

"The importance of this matter ought to engage the most serious attention of this Colony. We therefore most earnestly recommend the same to your further consideration; and that you will take such measures as to you shall appear proper for the obtaining that necessary article."

Signed by fifteen of the Council.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Catharine Alexander, the sum of five Pounds twelve Shillings and four Pence, in full discharge of her account of losses her late Husband sustained at the battle of Bunker's Hill, on the 17th of June last.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Richard Sawtell, Jonas Nagus, and Jonas Wright, the sum of six Pounds twelve Shillings, in full discharge of their accounts for losses sustained at the battle of Charlestown, on the 17th of June last.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Eliphelet Hastings, the sum of nineteen Shillings and six Pence, and to the Selectmen of Waltham, the sum of seventeen Shillings, in full of their accounts for losses sustained at the battle of Charlestown.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Heirs of Amos Wheeler deceased, the sum of three Pounds sixteen Shillings and six Pence, in full for the losses he sustained at the battle of Charlestown, on the 17th of June last.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General for this Colony be directed to procure and deliver to Captain Jeremiah Obrien, two hundred weight of Gunpowder, for the use of the Sloop Mackias Liberty and the Schooner Diligent, he being accountable to this Colony for the same.

Jeremiah Foster, Second Lieutenant in the Company last mentioned, in the room of Moses Atkinson, who has likewise joined the Continental Army.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

Whereas by a former Resolve of this Court, relative to the rank of Officers on the station at Gloucester, some difficulty has arisen, Therefore, Resolved, That the Officers in that department be ranked in the following manner, viz: Daniel Warner, First Captain; Bradbury Saunders, Second Captain; William Pearson, Third Captain; and Daniel Giddins a Fourth Captain.

A Bill for repealing an Act passed by the Great and General Court at their session in February last, entitled "An Act for encouraging the fixing out of Armed Vessels to defend the Sea-Coast of America, and for erecting a Court to try and condemn all Vessels that shall be found infesting the same," having passed the House of Representatives to be engrossed:

Ordered, That Mr. Rawson be of the Committee to consider the Accounts of the Commissaries for the Sea-Coast Forces, in the room of Mr. Ellis, absent.

It is therefore Resolved, That the said Moses Gill, Esq., be, and he hereby is, directed to pay the said sum to the Treasurer of this Colony; and the said Treasurer's Receipt shall be a discharge for the same.

An engrossed Bill entitled "An Act for repealing an Act made and passed by the Great and General Court at their session in February last, for encouraging the fixing out of Armed Vessels to defend the Sea-Coast of America, and for erecting a Court to try and condemn all Vessels that shall be found infesting the same," having passed the House of Representatives to be enacted:

In Council: Read, and concurred, and William Sever, Walter Spooner, John Winthrop, and Jedediah Foster, Esquires, are joined.

Present in Council: Honourable William Sever, Walter Spooner, John Winthrop, Thomas Cushing, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Moses Gill, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Resolved, That the Selectmen of the Town of Boston be directed to use the utmost vigilance and industry to find out every person in that town who is actually infected with the small-pox, and cause them to be collected in some several house or houses, in the most westerly part of the town, and with the greatest diligence and care effectually to cleanse all infected places other than those to which the infected persons shall be removed; and that in case it should so happen that the said distemper should break out anew, that the infected person or persons be removed immediately to the place assigned for those who are now infected; and that the said Selectmen be also directed, from time to time, very particularly to advertise the publick of the state of the small-pox during its continuance there; and that Mr. Pitts, a member of this Court, and one of the Selectmen of Boston, be directed to take a copy of this Resolve, attested by the Secretary, and communicate the same to his brethren, the said Selectmen, as soon as may be.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to confer with his Excellency General Washington at large on the subject of the removal of any or all of the Continental Troops now in this Colony, beg leave to report:

That your Committee waited upon General Washington; and upon conferring with him on the subject above-mentioned, they were informed by his Excellency that, as the British Troops were about leaving the harbour of Boston, he had thought it necessary to order five regiments to the southward, and that as soon as the British Army and Navy were sailed, and had absolutely taken their departure, he should order away the rest of the Continental Troops, excepting three or four regiments, which, together with the Militia inlisted to tarry till the beginning of April, he should leave to take care of the lines, the military stores, and to assist in fortifying the Harbour and Town of Boston; that he had already ordered some works to be thrown up on Fort-Hill, and he supposed the Government would take some effectual measures to fortify Castle-Island, and such other places as would be necessary to secure the town and harbour.

Your Committee mentioned to the General that the several towns through this Government had delivered out their stocks of powder in order to supply the Continental Army, and desired to know whether his Excellency was now able to refund the Colony the quantity of powder they advanced for the Continent. The General answered, that he did not know what quantity the Army had been supplied with, and should be glad the Court would furnish him with an account of the same, in order that he might resolve them upon this head.

Your Committee further inquired of the General, whether he should be willing to spare to this Colony a regiment or two, that consisted of seamen, provided the Colony would supply him with an equal number of other men in their room. He replied he should be ready to make the exchange as soon as the men were produced.

THOMAS CUSHING, per order.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed the 20th instant, to consider what is proper to be done with respect to appointing some person to preach a sermon on the ensuing general election, have attended that service, and beg leave to report, as their opinion, that the ancient method of appointing a Preacher on the day of election, which was by the Council and House of Representatives alternately, be still continued; and that as the House of Representatives made choice of the Preacher in the year 1774, and no choice hath been made since that time, either by the Council or House of Representatives, the choice for the present year lies with the Council. JOHN WINTHROP, per order.

Read, and accepted, and thereupon Resolved, That the choice of a person to preach the Election Sermon for the present year lies with the Council.

Petition of the Justices of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, and the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Bristol, setting forth: That the said Justices, on the second Tuesday of March current, in obedience to a law of this Colony, repaired to Taunton, in the said County of Bristol, in order to open the aforesaid Court of General Sessions of the Peace and Court of Common Pleas, and enter upon, do, and complete the business assigned them to do at said Courts; that upon the approach of the said Justices, with the other officers of said Courts toward the door of the Court-House there, a number of persons, to the amount of fifty at least, (many of whom were armed with clubs and guns, most of whom are known to said Justices,) assembled in a riotous manner, and violently opposed and prevented the entrance of said Justices into said Court-House, and with force and arms assaulted and beat the said Justices, Sheriffs, &c., and using opprobrious, profane, insulting, and menacing language to the said Justices, outrageously drove them and the other officers of said Courts from said Court-House; whereupon the said Justices were obliged to repair to a house other than that provided by said County, to carry on and open the business of said Courts, to the great inconvenience of all concerned, not being able by their authority to raise sufficient force to imprison, repel, or disperse said rioters. Wherefore the said Justices entreat your Honours to devise some means for the effectual prevention of such unjustifiable proceedings for the future, that the Justices of the several Courts in this Colony may proceed without fear or dismay to administer impartial justice through the land.

Read, and committed to the Committee on the state of the Province.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to examine the Commissary's Accounts, beg leave to report: That they have examined the Account of James Sullivan, Esq., and find the same right cast, well vouched, and conformable to the establishment ordered by this Court for the sea-coast service; that provision, and other necessary articles, have been purchased, and cash advanced for sauce money, &c., to the amount of eight hundred and thirty-seven pounds seventeen shillings and three pence two farthings; that there remained on hand the 1st of March, seven thousand four hundred and ninety-six pounds of flour, five thousand three hundred and eighty-four pounds pork, ten thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine pounds of beef, (including wastage) and some large quantity of cord wood; also, that a balance of one hundred and sixty-five pounds two shillings and eight pence two farthings, in cash, appears to be due to this Colony, which sum, together with the articles before mentioned, (on hand,) the said James Sullivan, Esq., be further accountable to this Court therefor.

The Secretary, by order of the major part of the Council, went down with the following Message to the House:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

"The Secretary will herewith lay before you two letters from the Committee of Newburyport, one dated the 24th of February last, and the other the 13th instant; wherein you will observe that the order of the Court of the 8th February last, relative to fixing for the sea, and manning with fifty men each, the Sloop Machias Liberty, and the Schooner Diligent, hath not been fully executed; that it is not in the power of said Committee to do it; and that if said vessels are manned it must be from the eastern part of this Colony. Considering the danger that would attend the suffering said vessels to leave the harbour, in which they now are, with so few men as are enlisted to serve on board, (which are a number little more than sufficient to sail them;) the great delay it would cause to attempt the recruiting and marching men the distance of two hundred miles at this season of the year; that the present appearances of our affairs are materially different from what they were when said order of Court was made, and that there is good reason to believe that one, if not both of the vessels, are unfit, in their construction, for what they are designed; the Council thought it their duty to lay this matter before you, and recommend it to your immediate consideration."

Adjourned to ten o'clock, on Monday morning.

Monday, March 25, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable William Sever, Walter Spooner, John Whetcomb, Joseph Gerrish, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Moses Gill, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Esquires.

In Council: Resolved, That Benjamin Lincoln and Joseph Palmer, Esquires, with such as the honourable House may join, be a Committee to wait on his Excellency General Washington, and request, as this Colony is greatly weakened by the destruction of its fortifications and warlike stores by our enemies, and will be more so on the removal of the Continental Army, as a large proportion of the men and arms therein are from this Government; that he would further consider the exposed state of this Colony, and if it is consistent with the general interest, he would continue here six Regiments of Continental Troops, and two Companies of the Train of Artillery, for the defence thereof, instead of three or four Regiments his Excellency informed this Court he intended to leave.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and concurred, and Mr. Cooper, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Nichols, are joined.

Whereas, by the request of Doctor John Greenleaf, he is excused from being of the Committee to receive Saltpetre:

Therefore, Resolved, That Mr. Samuel Tufts, of Newburyport, be, and he hereby is, appointed to receive all the good and merchantable Saltpetre made within this Colony, which may be brought and delivered to him at Newburyport, before the 1st day of June next, with a certificate from the Selectmen of the town wherein it was made, that said Saltpetre was made in such town, within this Colony; and he is hereby directed to pay the persons so delivering the same seven Shillings per pound.

And that the said Samuel Tufts may be enabled to comply with the above direction,

It is further Resolved, That he be furnished from the Treasury of this Colony with the sum of one thousand Pounds, he to be accountable to this Court for the same, and to deliver the Saltpetre he may so receive to the order of this Court; and the Secretary is directed to send to the said Samuel Tufts an attested copy of the above.

Whereas the Mandamus Counsellors, Commissioners of the Customs, and others, the open and avowed enemies to the rights of their country, and the cause of liberty, have been compelled, by the terror of the American arms, and an apprehension of the resentment of a justly incensed People, to depart the Town of Boston, at any time since the 19th April, 1775, and before the 20th March instant; abandoning not only their Houses and Real Estates, but also, in their hasty and precipitate flight, their personal and other moveable effects, to a very considerable value:

Resolved, That Mr. Brown, Mr. Cooper, Mr. Rawson, Mr. Pitts, and Colonel Sartel, be a Committee to repair to the Town of Boston, and there take, or cause to be taken, just and true accounts of said Houses and Real Estates, personal and other moveable effects, the property of the before-mentioned Mandamus Counsellors, and others; to commit the charge and care of said estates and effects to such suitable persons as they may judge proper; and to make report of their proceedings hereon as soon as may be, that this Court may take such further order thereon as may be necessary and fitting.

In Council: Read and concurred, as taken into a new draft.

Petition of Abijah Burbank, of Sutton, setting forth that your Petitioner is owner of the stream, land, and dam in said Town of Sutton, which was lately viewed by a Committee of the honourable House, in order for the erecting a Powder-Mill; that, in consequence of a late resolve of the General Court for encouraging the building two Powder-Mills

Resolved, That the prayer thereof be granted, and that said Abijah Burbank have liberty to build a Powder-Mill on the stream in his Petition mentioned, on the encouragements of this Court for erecting two other Powder-Mills.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

It being represented that there are many valuable articles on Castle-Island, the property of this Colony, which are now exposed to embezzlement and waste:

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be directed immediately to cause all such articles to be collected, and deposited in some place where they may be kept safe, for the future benefit of this Colony.

And further Resolved, That the Commissary-General, before he shall proceed in this matter, be directed to apply to his Excellency General Washington for his advice relative thereto.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, March 26, 1776.

Petition of Doctor Samuel Cooper, setting forth that he has, among many others, been a great sufferer through the infamous violence and robbery of the British Troops lately driven from Boston; that his house has been plundered, the greatest and most necessary part of his furniture carried away, as well as considerable part of his library; he therefore prays that your Honours may be pleased to grant him a warrant or order for such articles as he may find necessary from out of the goods left by the enemies to their country who have followed the Army, your Petitioner holding himself accountable to your Honours for the same.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and concurred, and Mr. Sullivan, Colonel Orne, and Major Hawley, are joined.

"To His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the United American Colonies :

"MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: When the liberties of America were attacked by the violent hand of oppression; when troops hostile to the rights of humanity invaded this Colony, seized our Capital, and spread havoc and destruction around it; when our virtuous sons were murdered, and our houses destroyed by the troops of Britain; the inhabitants of this and the other American Colonies, impelled by self-preservation and the love of freedom, forgetting their domestick concerns, determined resolutely and unitedly to oppose the sons of tyranny.

"Convinced of the vast importance of having a gentleman of great military accomplishments to discipline, lead, and conduct the forces of the Colonies, it gave us the greatest satisfaction to hear that the honourable Congress of the United Colonies had made choice of a gentleman thus qualified; who, leaving the pleasures of domestick and rural life, was ready to undertake the arduous task. And your nobly declining to accept the pecuniary emoluments annexed to this high office, fully evidenced to us that a warm regard to the sacred rights of humanity, and sincere love to your country, solely influenced you in the acceptance of this important trust.

"From your acknowledged abilities as a soldier, and your virtues in publick and private life, we had the most pleasing hopes; but the fortitude and equanimity so conspicuous in your conduct, the wisdom of your counsels, the mild, yet strict government of the Army, your attention to the civil Constitution of this Colony, the regard you have at all times shown for the lives and health of those under your command, the fatigues you have with cheerfulness endured, the regard you have shown for the preservation of our Metropolis, and the great address with which our military operations have been conducted, have exceeded our most sanguine expectations, and demand the warmest returns of gratitude.

"The Supreme Ruler of the Universe having smiled on our arms, and crowned your labours with remarkable success, we are now, without that effusion of blood we so much wished to avoid, again in the quiet possession of our Capital. The wisdom and prudence of those movements which have obliged the enemy to abandon our Metropolis will ever be remembered by the inhabitants of this Colony. May you still go on, approved by Heaven, revered by all good men, and dreaded by those tyrants who claim their fellow-men as their property. May the United Colonies be defended from slavery by your victorious arms; may they still see their enemies flying before you; and the deliverance of your country being effected, may you, in retirement, enjoy that peace and satisfaction of mind which always attends the good and great; and may future generations, in the peaceful enjoyment of that freedom, the exercise of which your sword shall have established, raise the richest and most lasting monuments to the name of Washington."

Resolved, That all the Accounts exhibited against this Colony, for Powder, Lead, and Flints, delivered to the Minute-men and others, agreeable to a Resolve of this Court, passed January 17, 1776, be, and they hereby are, committed to the Standing Committee on Accounts, and the said Committee are directed to allow such of the said Accounts as shall be authenticated by sufficient vouchers or proper evidence that the said Powder, Lead, and Flints, were expended in battle, or left in Camp for the use of the Army, and no other.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed the 19th instant, to apply to the Selectmen and the several Committees of the Town of Boston for a list of those persons now there remaining, who have appeared to be inimical to the United Colonies of America, have attended that service, and have obtained from the said Selectmen and Committees a list of sundry persons whom they judge to be of that character, with a state of facts and witnesses to support them; which list they beg leave to report.

JOHN WINTHROP, per order.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and Ordered, That Major Hawley, Mr. Sullivan, Colonel Freeman, and Colonel Orne, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to take the said Report, and Papers accompanying it, under consideration, and report what may be proper to be done with the persons named in said Papers.

In Council: Read, and concurred, and Caleb Cushing, James Prescott, and Moses Gill, Esquires, are joined.

Ordered, That Captain Partridge, Captain Goodman, and Colonel Thompson, be of the Committee appointed to consider what is proper to be done with those persons in Boston who have appeared to be inimical to the United Colonies, in the room of Major Hawley, Mr. Sullivan, and Colonel Orne, engaged on other business, and that said Committee sit immediately.

Resolved, That Colonel Davis, Colonel Thatcher, Captain Brown, Major Fuller, Colonel McIntosh, Mr. Dix, and Mr. Hall, be a Committee to procure such a number of Teams as his Excellency General Washington shall judge necessary to transport such Military Stores, Baggage, &c., as he may have occasion to send to Rhode-Island, and that the said Committee wait on his Excellency to know the terms upon which he expects the same to be procured, and that they proceed upon the business immediately.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration a Letter from Tristram Dalton, Esq., of Newburyport, and the Papers accompanying the same, relative to the Brigantine Unity, and her Cargo, now lying in the West-Indies by reason of the death of Captain Michael Corbit, Master of said Brigantine, in the service of this Colony, report by way of Resolve:

Resolved, That John Brown, Moses Gill, and Abraham Watson, Esqrs., be, and they hereby are, empowered and directed to employ some suitable person to proceed immediately to St. Thomas, and dispose of said Brigantine and her Cargo, in such manner as they shall think will be most for the interest of this Colony; and send or bring home the nett proceeds of said Vessel and Cargo in cash, or such articles as he shall think most advantageous to the Colony.

Also, Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, unto Isaac Noyes, one of the mariners belonging to the Brigantine Unity, the sum of twenty-eight Pounds two Shillings and eight Pence, for his wages, and the further sum of two Pounds five Shillings, for his expenses from York to this place, and other services, in full to this date.

General WASHINGTON's Answer to an Address from the General Court of the 27th ultimo, viz:

"GENTLEMEN: I return you my most sincere and hearty thanks for your polite Address; and feel myself called upon by every principle of gratitude to acknowledge the honour you have done me in this testimonial of your approbation of my appointment to the exalted station I now fill; and, what is more pleasing, of my conduct in discharging its important duties.

"When the counsels of the British Nation had formed a plan for enslaving America, and depriving her sons of their most sacred and invaluable privileges, against the clearest remonstrances of the Constitution, of justice, and of truth; and to execute their schemes, had appealed to the sword, I esteemed it my duty to take a part in the contest, and more especially, when called thereto by the unsolicited suffrages of the Representatives of a free People; wishing for no other reward than that arising from a conscientious discharge of the important trust, and that my services might contribute to the establishment of freedom and peace upon a permanent foundation, and merit the applause of my countrymen and every virtuous citizen.

"Your acknowledgment of my attention to the civil Constitution of this Colony, whilst acting in the line of my department, also demand my grateful thanks. A regard to every Provincial institution, where not incompatible with the common interest, I hold a principle of duty and of policy, and shall ever form a part of my conduct. Had I not learned this before, the happy experience of the advantages resulting from a friendly intercourse with your honourable body, their willing and ready concurrence to aid and to counsel whenever called upon in cases of difficulty and emergency, would have taught me the useful lesson.

"That the Metropolis of your Colony is now relieved from the cruel and oppressive invasion of those who were sent to erect the standard of lawless domination and to trample on the rights of humanity, and is again open and free for its rightful possessors, must give pleasure to every virtuous and sympathetic heart; and being effected without the blood of our soldiers and fellow-citizens, must be ascribed to the interposition of that Providence which has manifestly appeared in our behalf through the whole of this important struggle, as well as to the measures pursued for bringing about the happy event. May that Being who is powerful to save, and in whose hands is the fate of Nations, look down with an eye of tender pity and compassion upon the whole of the United Colonies. May He continue to smile upon their Councils and arms, and crown them with success whilst employed in the cause of virtue and of mankind. May this distressed Colony and its Capital, and every part of this wide-extended Continent, through His divine favour, be restored to more than their former lustre and once happy state, and have peace, liberty, and safety, secured upon a solid, permanent, and lasting foundation.

"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Read, and ordered to be entered on the Records of this Court.

John Clap, Jun., Esq., First Major, in the room of Jeremiah Hall, Esq., elected Lieutenant-Colonel.

Resolved, That there be paid to Mr. Michael Hodge, for the use of the Committee of Correspondence, &c., for Newburyport, the sum of nine hundred and fifty Pounds eighteen Shillings and two Pence, in full discharge of their Accounts exhibited to this Court, for fitting out the two Armed Vessels called the Sloop Machias Liberty and Schooner Diligent, commanded by Captain Jeremiah Obrien, which was done by order of this Court.

Further Resolved, That the sum of twenty-one Pounds four Shillings and five Pence, be allowed and paid to Mr. Michael Hodge, for the use of Jackson, Tracy & Tracy, in full discharge of their Account exhibited to this Court, for sundry Supplies which the said Captain Jeremiah Obrien

The Secretary, by order of the major part of the Council, went down to the honourable House, with the following Message, viz :

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives :

"The Council are informed that there are a number of Cannon on Castle-Island, which have been no further injured by our enemies than having been spiked up ; and as they may be immediately wanted for the defence of this Colony, the Council recommend to the honourable House that they take the earliest opportunity to employ some suitable persons to unspike the touchholes ; and that garrison-carriages, and other necessary implements, be provided for them, that they may be fit for use.

"In the name and by order of the Council :

"JAMES OTIS."

Whereas this Court has received information that John Parke, the Deputy Quartermaster-General of the Army of the United Colonies, and Richard Duff, his Clerk, are arrested at the suit of William Thompson, Merchant, in an action of trespass, whereon the said Thompson complains that the said John and Richard broke and entered his dwelling-house, and made an assault on his person, and broke his household furniture in said house very much ; and it being suggested to this Court that the said John and Richard entered said house by order of their superior officers, to quarter soldiers there, and it appearing to said Court that, in the present state of our publick affairs, the producing suits against persons employed in said Army for their entering the houses and enclosures of the inhabitants of this Colony, in support of said Army, would have a tendency more dangerous than the suspending such suits for the present :

It is therefore Resolved, That there shall be no Suit produced or prosecuted, nor any Writ or Precept served on any Officer or private Soldier now in, or that have been in, the Army aforesaid, the last or present campaign, for any entry by them made on Houses or Lands in this Colony, while they were in the service of the said Colonies ; and all Sheriffs, and other officers, are commanded to take notice and govern themselves accordingly, and that they do not execute or return any Writ against such person now in their hands, or that shall hereafter be delivered them, until this Court shall further consider of this matter, and reconsider this Resolve.

Whereas his Excellency General Washington has directed the Surgeon-General of the Continental Army to procure what Medicines may be obtained in the Town of Boston, for the use of said Army ; and as it appears there are Drugs of various kinds left in the Shops and Stores of Sylvester Gardner and William Perkins, late inhabitants of Boston :

Therefore Resolved, That whatever Drugs and Medicines are found in the Stores or Shops of the above-mentioned Sylvester Gardner and William Perkins, (fled from Boston;) be delivered to Doctor Morgan, Surgeon-General of the Continental Army ; and any person or persons who have the care of the said Drugs or Medicines are hereby directed to deliver the same accordingly.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this Colony be, and he hereby is, empowered and directed to inform himself with respect to the number of Cannon now lying at Boston and Castle-Island, which are the property of this Colony ; and that he cause to be cleared out and repaired all those which he judges can be made fit for use.

Ordered, That Captain Witherton and Mr. Whitney be on the Committee appointed to procure Teams to transport the Baggage and Stores of the Army to Rhode-Island.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, April 2, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Samuel Holten, Michael Farley, Jabez Fisher, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Joseph Palmer, Esquires.

On the Petition of William Cushing, Esq., praying for a grant as Justice of the Superior Court :

Resolved, That there be granted to the Petitioner the sum of two hundred Pounds, in consideration of his faithful services in time past, which shall be in full until this time, that Court not having met any time within a year past.

Whereas one John Rich, who was master of the Sloop Success, and sent to this Court by the Committee of Safety of Majorbigwaduce, for supplying the enemy in Boston some time past with Provisions or necessaries for their subsistence ; the facts appearing by the depositions and papers attending said Rich to be true,

Therefore Resolved, That the said Rich be committed to some Jail in this Colony which the Council shall direct, until the further order of this Court, upon failure of his giving bond with sureties agreeable to a former Resolve of this Court.

Ordered, That the said Rich be sent to the Jail at Ipswich.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury, to George Kilbourn, the sum of seven Pounds three Shillings and six Pence, in full of his account for nursing and boarding two Soldiers wounded in the battle of Bunker's Hill.

Petition of the Committee of Correspondence for the County of Worcester, in Convention, setting forth: That your Memorialists, solicitous for the peace and good order of the County, see with concern that the Courts of General Sessions of the Peace and Common Pleas, are ordered to be opened before the new fee-table is established, which the good people of this County are grieved at, esteeming the late fee-table too high and exorbitant ; that the wages of the officers in the Army bear too great a proportion with those of the privates, which your Memorialists humbly conceive to be the reason why the Army is so long in completing, by which means the Colony is put to extraordinary cost in raising levies ; that having but one Register in the County for recording deeds, &c., renders securities precarious, by being more exposed to casualties than if there were a Register's Office kept in each town, which would save great expense of money and time to the inhabitants of the County.

Read, and committed to the Committee on the state of the Province.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to inquire of Monsieur Le Baron de Woodtke, Chevalier del order de St. Jean de Jerusalem et de Malta, relative to the design the Captain, in whose vessel he came, had of going into Boston, &c., report: That from the account the Baron gave of the matter, there was reason to suppose the Frenchman designed to go into Boston with his cargo ; but upon his being heard in his own justification, and the evidence given by Captain Folger, who left the West-Indies but a few days before him, the Committee were of opinion that, on the whole, it was best to give him up his papers, and admit him to sell his cargo. The Committee are further of opinion, that the Honourable James Otis, Esq., before whom the Baron was examined, and by whom he was forwarded to the Council, had great reason to suppose the master had formed a design of going into Boston ; that his Honour's conduct herein merits applause, and that the account of the expenses be laid before the Committee of Accounts for examination and allowance.

Read, and accepted.

Petition of Caleb Green, for and in behalf of John Akin, Joseph Russell, Henry Wait, John Barrow, William Taylor, and Walter Wood, setting forth: That the said John Akin, as Master of the Sloop Greyhound, and the said Russell, Wait, Barrow, Taylor, and Wood, as Mate and Mariners, sailed some time in March last, in the Colony service, for Philadelphia ; that on the 27th or 28th day of March, being on their return from Philadelphia, they were taken by one of the tenders belonging to the King of Great Britain ; that one Wallace, the Captain of the tender, is ready to exchange the said Captain and Mariners for as many prisoners being delivered to him ; and he threatens, unless a speedy exchange is made, to send the said Master and Mariners to Great Britain ; wherefore your Petitioner, for and in behalf of the said Master and Mariners, humbly prays that the honourable Court would order an exchange of prisoners, that thereby the said Master and Mariners may not be put to any further hardship and damage.

Resolved, That Caleb Green, the within petitioner, be allowed to receive of the Prison-keeper of Taunton, six persons who have been taken from the Navy, under the command of one Captain Wallace, now in Newport; the said Caleb giving his bond to the Sheriff of the County of Bristol, to and for the use of this Colony, in the penal sum of one hundred Pounds, conditioned that in case he shall not exchange the prisoners as aforesaid, whom he shall receive for the above John, Joseph, Henry, John, Taylor, and Wood, he will return the prisoners whom he shall receive for the above persons, to the Prison-keeper in said Taunton, within fourteen days from the time he shall receive said prisoners; and the Keeper of said Prison is hereby directed to conform himself according to this order, provided the said Caleb Green shall give security as above directed.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, April 3, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Caleb Cushing, Thomas Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, John Winthrop, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Moses Gill, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Petition of Bartelemi Wasanis, setting forth: That he is an inhabitant of the Island of St. Domingo, from whence he set sail in January last for the Colonies. That your Petitioner had the misfortune, when he approached this coast, to meet with adverse winds and stormy weather, which drove his vessel on shore on Cape-Cod, where he saved the most of his cargo, (being molasses,) which he afterwards sold the most part of to the Commissary-General of the Continental Army, for which your Petitioner must take paper money. Your Honours must be sensible such money will be of no service to your Petitioner in the French West-Indies. Your Petitioner therefore prays your Honours to grant him liberty to purchase some oil, spermaceti candles, lumber, and a small quantity of provisions, for the use of St. Domingo only. Your Honours will require no arguments to convince you that the French must give up trading with the English Colonies, if they are under a necessity to carry away nothing but paper money. Your Petitioner therefore prays your Honours to take his case into consideration, and give him such relief as to you in your wisdom shall seem meet.

Read, and committed to Thomas Cushing and Benjamin White, Esquires, with Mr. Ellis, Captain Batchelder, and Colonel Lovell.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to consider the Petition of Bartelemi Wasanis, have attended that service, and report as their opinion: That his case, as set forth in said petition, being somewhat singular and distressing, the prayer thereof be so far granted that he have liberty to purchase oil, spermaceti candles, lumber, and a small quantity of provisions, not exceeding one thousand Pounds in the whole, (being nearly the nett proceeds of his cargo,) and the same to ship for the sole and only use of the Island of St. Domingo; the said Petitioner to give bond, with one sufficient surety, to the Receiver-General of this Colony, in the penal sum of one thousand Pounds, that said oil, candles, lumber, and provisions, shall be safely landed in said Island, the danger of the seas and enemies only excepted; and upon sufficient certificate being produced to the Receiver-General of this Colony for the time being, that said effects have been landed as aforesaid, excepting only as aforesaid, that then said bond shall be cancelled by such Receiver-General.

JOSEPH PALMER, per order.

Read, and accepted, and thereupon

Resolved, That the prayer of said Petition be so far granted that the Petitioner have liberty to purchase Oil, Spermaceti Candles, Lumber, and a small quantity of Provisions, not exceeding one thousand Pounds in the whole, being the nett proceeds of his cargo, and the same to ship for the sole and only use of the Island of St. Domingo; the said Petitioner giving bond, with one sufficient surety, to the Receiver-General of this Colony, in the penal sum of one thousand Pounds, that said Oil, Candles, Lumber, and Provisions, shall be safely landed in said Island, the danger of the seas and enemies only excepted; and upon sufficient certificate being produced to the Receiver-General of this Colony for the time being, that said effects have been landed as aforesaid, excepting only as aforesaid, that then said bond shall be cancelled by such Receiver-General.

Ordered, That Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., be of the Committee on the state of the Province, in the room of William Sever, Esq., who is absent.

An engrossed Bill, entitled "An Act to prevent the forging Bills of Publick Credit," having passed the House of Representatives to be engrossed,

In Council: Read a second time, and passed a concurrence to be engrossed.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to lay before this Court a sketch of Boston Harbour, and examine and report particularly the number of passages there are for ships into the same, &c., have attended the business assigned them, and report the sketch of the Harbour of Boston herewith, and the following answers to the questions proposed in our commission:

"How many passages are there for ships into the Harbour of Boston, and what distance are they from the Capital?"

Strictly speaking, there are but three: The northmost, (between Pulling-Point and the north end of Deer-Island,) a narrow and very crooked channel, running on the back of Apple-Island, seldom used except by fishing vessels and light coasters; this passage is about four miles from Boston. The next is the ship-channel, which leads from the Light-House through the Narrows, and enters the harbour between the east end of Long-Island and the south point of Deer-Island, (here the passage in at Broad-Sound unites with this,) and is about five miles from Boston. The other leads from the Light-House, south from George's Island, through Nantasket-Road, and runs between Rainsford-Island and Long-Island, and enters the harbour between the west head of Long-Island and the east head of the Moon, so called; this is about the same distance from Boston.

"What is the depth of the water in and the width of the channel at each passage, the height of the land adjoining, and the distance therefrom to the opposite side of the channel?"

As the northern passage is not navigable for the smallest ship of war, the Committee make no further observation relative to it. The next is the ship-channel, which leads through the Narrows, (here the water is about five fathoms deep at low water, width of the channel uncertain, perhaps fifty rods, and the adjoining lands low,) and enters the harbour between Long-Island and Deer-Island, as aforesaid. The width of the channel at the entrance is about three-quarters of a mile.

The adjoining land, on the south side of the channel, viz: Long-Island, is about ninety feet high, and little more than three-quarters of a mile to the opposite side of the channel; depth of water from six to fourteen fathom.

The other passage, viz: between Long-Island and the Moon, so called—width of the channel, about eighty rods; depth of the water, thirteen feet. The adjoining land, viz: the Moon, ninety-four feet high; distance therefrom to the opposite side of the channel, three-eighths of a mile.

"Whether it is necessary to the best good of the Colony and its Capital, that all the passages to the Town of Boston should be open; and what are the advantages and what are the disadvantages which will result from stopping either; and which, if any, ought to be stopped?"

Your Committee are of opinion that it is not necessary to the best good of the Colony, or the Capital thereof, that all the passages thereto should be kept open; for if the passage to the Narrows only is stopped, or the depth of water reduced, there will be sufficient passages left open for all merchant ships; as it hath been affirmed, by persons skilled in military and maritime affairs, that a fleet of ships, with a leading gale of wind and flood tide, pass with so great velocity as to run little or no hazard in passing by a strong fortification, as was experienced at Quebeck, in the course of the last war. If so, it seems to be as necessary to reduce the depth of water in the Narrows, as it is to fortify the Island, or any other places; because it is there only that capital ships of war can pass, and therefore there, above all other places, as it is easiest effected, their efforts to enter the harbour should be effectually obstructed.

"Where can fortifications be erected most easily to resist the enemy in their attempts to enter the Harbour aforesaid?"

On the east end of Long-Island, and on the Island called the Moon, (on the east head thereof,) and on the east head of Pettick's Island, with necessary redoubts.

"Can a communication be kept up between said posts and the main, in case of a siege, and are they commanded by any neighbouring hills?"

Redoubts and block-houses on the eminences of Long-Island, (one of which is the only neighbouring hill that commands the east head thereof,) with proper covered ways from one to the other, will secure a retreat to the Moon, which communicates with Squantum-Neck at low water, almost dry shod. The post on the east head of the Moon, so called, is not commanded by any neighbouring hills. Pettick's Island is so near the town of Hull, that a safe retreat to it is covered by the guns of the proposed fort thereon; besides, they may retreat the length of the Island to the town of Braintree. This point is commanded only by a hill on the same Island, and a garrison there may be supplied with water, and a retreat be secured from it by some redoubts, &c.

"Whether at all times these posts can be supplied with water?"

No doubt but they may, as there appears to be springs of fresh water on all these Islands.

Your Committee beg leave further to suggest, that in case it should be thought proper to reduce the depth of water in the channel at the Narrows, and erect a fortification on the east head of Long-Island, it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the enemy to remove the obstruction in the Narrows, as it is open to the fire from such fortification. That if the Narrows are stopped, the capital ships can have no safe harbour above the Light-House; below it, they cannot ride, save to the westward of George's Island, called Nantasket-Road, which may at all times be commanded by a battery on the east head of Pettick's Island.

That the passage in, by the way of Broad-Sound, so called, is very difficult navigation; but that there is, as your Committee are informed, four fathom of water. It is possible that vessels between the size of frigates and what are called capital ships, although they never have attempted, yet in case the Narrows should be stopped, may in future attempt to pass to the Capital that way; therefore, as the channel is very narrow between what is called the Middle-Ground and Castle-Island, whether it would not be best to reduce the depth of water there also.

That besides these posts above-mentioned, there are many others which may be fortified with small expense, and will promote the general design of securing the harbour aforesaid, and the neighbouring towns.

BENJAMIN LINCOLN, per order.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and Major Hawley, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Nichols, Mr. Phillips, and Colonel Orne, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to consider the same, and the sketch of the Harbour of Boston accompanying, and report what places they apprehend are proper to fortify, without delay.

In Council: Read, and concurred, and John Whetcomb, Benjamin Lincoln, Joseph Palmer, and Moses Gill, Esquires, are joined.

Whereas this Court have received information that considerable parts of the Real and Personal Estates of the Mandamus Counsellors, Commissioners of the Customs, and other open and avowed enemies to the rights and liberties of America, who have departed this Colony since April 19th, 1775, are now in the occupation and possession of persons who have clandestinely taken the same, and others under pretence of gift, sale, or attachment, claim a right to hold and enjoy such Estate and effects, by which practices the publick or individuals may be greatly injured:

For prevention whereof, Resolved, That the Committee appointed to take inventories of, and secure, till the further order of this Court, the Estate and effects of said absconders, in the Town of Boston, be, and hereby are empowered to cause any such person or persons, as they know, and have good cause to suspect have in their occupation, or possession, any Estate, late the property of the aforesaid Mandamus Counsellors, &c., and them to examine thereon, and, if need be, to require answers upon oath, respecting the concealment or conveyance of said effects as the law allows in similar cases with respect to the effects of intestates; and said Committee are also authorized and directed to take into their possession and secure such Estate and effects, as also the Estate and effects of any persons in Great Britain, which, by virtue and powers of attorney, were under the care and direction of said Mandamus Counsellors, &c., until the further order of this Court, any attachment or civil process made or commenced since the 19th of April last notwithstanding.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Eleazer Warner, the sum of two Pounds, in full for the loss he sustained in the battle of Bunker's Hill.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Thursday, April 4, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Caleb Cushing, Thomas Cushing, John Winthrop, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Moses Gill, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Esquires.

In the House of Representatives: Ordered, That the Resolves of Congress, just received, be committed to . . . . . with such as the honourable Board may join, to consider the same and report.

In Council: Read, and concurred, and Joseph Palmer and Samuel Holten, Esquires, are joined.

Ordered, That the Colonels of the late reinforcement to the Continental Army do make up their Rolls, and lodge them for examination and allowance.

The Committee appointed to take under consideration the erecting a Monument to the memory of the Honourable Major-General Joseph Warren, beg leave to report, that they have attended that service, and find that the place where his body was buried is discovered, and that the Lodge of Freemasons in this Colony, whereof he was late Grand Master, are desirous of taking up the said deceased's remains, and, in the usual funeral solemnities of that Society, to decently inter the same, and that his friends are consenting thereto. Wherefore your Committee are of opinion that the said Lodge have leave to put their said intentions into execution, in such a manner as that the Government of this Colony may hereafter have an opportunity to erect a Monument to the memory of that worthy, valiant, and patriotick American.

JAMES SULLIVAN, per order.

Read, and accepted, and the said Lodge has leave to put their intentions as aforesaid into execution accordingly.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury, to Jonathan Crosby, the sum of five Pounds eight Shillings, in full of his account of losses sustained in the battle of Bunker's Hill.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Moses Richardson, the sum of one Pound four Shillings, in full for a Greatecoat lost by him in the battle of Bunker's Hill.

In Council: The Council having been informed by Mr. John Kinney and Mr. Thomas Black, that a small sloop, loaded with English goods, from Boston to Halifax, having on board a certain Jolly Allen, and six or more other Tories, with about twenty women and some children, was cast on shore about a week since at Provincetown, upon the Cape, and that said vessel has the small-pox on board:

Therefore Ordered, That Benjamin Greenleaf and Joseph Palmer, with such as the honourable House may join, be a Committee to consider what is proper to be done relative to this affair, and report.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and concurred, and Mr. Fabian, Colonel Mitchell, and Colonel Freeman, are joined.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Benjamin Ball, the sum of four Pounds nine Shillings, in full for the losses his son met with in the battle of Bunker's Hill.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Friday, April 5, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Caleb Cushing, John Winthrop, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Moses Gill, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Esquire.

In Council: Ordered, That Joseph Palmer, with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to give directions for the fortifying Boston Harbour.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and concurred, and Nathan Cushing, Esq., is joined.

Memorial of William Sever and Thomas Durfee, setting forth: That your Memorialists were, by this honourable Court, with others, appointed of a Committee for building and equipping sundry armed vessels, which were proposed to be rigged sloops; that your Memorialists are of opinion the two vessels they are now building for that purpose are of such size that it will be very inexpedient to rig them as sloops. They therefore request that they may be authorized and directed by your Honours to rig and fix the said vessels as brigantines. Your Memorialists would also represent to your Honours, that they are unable to purchase duck for sails for the said vessels; and if your Honours think proper, they pray that the Commissary-General be directed to supply them with eighteen bolts of duck, out of the Colony stores, for each of the said vessels.

Read, and committed to Moses Gill, Esq., with Mr. Perry and Captain Cutter.

The Committee of both Houses, to whom the foregoing Petition was committed, have considered the same, and are of opinion, that William Sever and Thomas Durfee, Esquires, two of the Committee for building and equipping sundry armed vessels, have leave to rig the two vessels they are now building into brigantines, instead of sloops, as was first intended, brigantines being of more general service, and best answering their intended use. Your Committee are also of an opinion, that it will be expedient for William Sever and Thomas Durfee, Esquires, part of the Committee aforesaid, to receive from Richard Devens, Esq., the Commissary-General of this Colony, thirty-six bolts of duck, which will be necessary for the furnishing said brigantines with sails.

MOSES GILL, per order.

The said Committee likewise to take the most effectual measures for the securing the said sloop, with all the cargo and effects on board; and in case any part thereof has been taken out and distributed, that they collect the whole thereof, and cause the same to be deposited in such manner as that it may be forthcoming at the order of this Court, taking as particular inventory thereof as they conveniently can. BENJAMIN GREENLEAF, per order.

Read, and accepted,

Ordered, That Jedediah Foster and Jabez Fisher, Esq's, be of the Committee to concur and pay Accounts, in the room of Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., excused, and John Taylor, Esq., absent.

Whereas, there hath been exhibited to this Court, by their Committee, a list of persons now residing in the Town of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, who are apprehended to be inimical to the interest of the United Colonies, and of this Colony; and as their being suffered to go at large may be attended with danger to the publick, as well as afford them an opportunity of escaping from justice:

Therefore Resolved, That the Honourable Joseph Palmer and Benjamin White, Esq's, Joseph Greenleaf, Samuel Niles, Thomas Penniman, Theophilus Cushing, and Thomas Crafts, Esquires, Justices of the Peace in and for said County, be, and they or either of them are hereby directed immediately to issue their warrant, directed to the Sheriff of said County, his Under Sheriff, or either of his Deputies, or the Constables of any town within said County, requiring him or them forthwith to apprehend and bring before them, or the major part of them, at such place in said County as they shall appoint, the bodies of all the persons contained in said list, viz: John Lovell, Jun., Samuel Danforth, Timothy Prout, George Lush, Hopstill Capen, Augustus Moore, Thomas Amory, Thomas Edwards, Edward Wentworth, William Clarke, John Field, William Perry, John Erving, Esq., Stephen Greenleaf, Esq., John Timmins, James Perkins, Ralph Inman, Richard Green, Daniel Hubbard, Joseph Turell, Nathaniel Carey, Edward Hutchinson, Doctor Miles Whitworth, John Hunt, tertius, Nathaniel Brindley, Isaac Greenwood, Doctor Isaac Rand, Jun., Doctor James Lloyd, John Hodgson, Doctor Thomas Cast, Samuel Minott, Edward Davis, Downe Cheever, Joseph Laughton, Jeremiah Allen, Samuel Bradstreet, Doctor James Pecker, Samuel Wallis, Richard Billings, Benjamin Phillips, John Haskins, Shubael Hewes, Bar. Wall, John Stevens, William Davies, John Homans, John Magner, John Rice, Simoon Stoddard, Caleb Blanchard, John Bryant, Captain Conner, Shippy Townsend, Thomas Clemens, Joseph Clark, Edmund Gookin, Ambrose Vincent, Moses Pucher, John Howe, Rufus Green, Benjamin Green, Benjamin Green, Jr., William Wait Wallis, Jeremiah Jones Jenkins, Charles Whitworth, Ebenezer Allen, one Blaisdel, Stephen Fullerton, Samuel Gore, Ebenezer Norwood, Richard Madden, John Tufts, John Fillis, Samuel Bulfinch, William Downe Cheever, Jacob Wendell, one Hoffin a Dutchman, John Green, William Parker, Andrew McKean, Thomas Turner, Job Prince, John Gray, William Rodgers, and Thomas Mewse; all of whom are now residing in said Boston; together with many others, in said Boston, which are, or may be complained of, having designs to act, or having acted against the rights of this or the other United Colonies, or of having in any manner aided, abetted, or assisted, the enemies of the United Colonies, or either of them. And the said Justices of the Peace, or the major part of them, are directed, as soon as may be, strictly to examine said persons, and to consider the evidence that may be procured and laid before them in the premises, and that they, without delay, safe secure all such persons, which they may judge have acted, or are acting as enemies, spies, or traitors, to this or the other Colonies, either by taking sufficient bonds, payable to the Treasury of this Colony, for their good behaviour, or appearance at some Court proper to try them, or causing them to be committed to Jail, as the nature and aggravation of their several crimes may admit or not admit of bail, or the apprehension of danger to the publick from their going at large, may require.

CALEB CUSHING, per order.

Read, and accepted.

Petition of the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, setting forth: That the said inhabitants apprehend themselves very insecure in their habitations, being deprived of their arms by the perfidy of General Gage; and as many of the ships of the enemy are in this harbour, and may at any time be brought up to cannonade the town, and again disperse the inhabitants aforesaid, having no sufficient batteries to repel or keep them back, the inhabitants therefore, in duty to themselves, and to save the Continent the expense of again repelling the enemy, and to prevent further depredation, humbly pray your Honours that some proper steps may be immediately taken to prevent the return of the enemy, either by erecting forts at proper passes, sinking hulks in the channels, or otherwise secure said town in such manner as your Honours may think best, that the present inhabitants may continue, and the dispersed may return, without fear of future molestation.

Read, and committed to the Committee on the state of the Colony.

The Committee appointed to consider whether the encouragement already given for erecting Powder-Mills is sufficient, reported: That as the bounty already offered has proved insufficient for the purposes designed, a Committee be forthwith appointed to erect a Powder-Mill in the Town of Sutton, at the expense of this Colony, with all possible expedition, and on the best plan for manufacturing Gunpowder.

AZOR ORNE, per order.

Read, and accepted, and Mr. Edward Putnam, and Mr. Abijah Burbank, of Sutton, are appointed a Committee for the purpose above expressed.

Saturday, April 6, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Caleb Cushing, John Winthrop, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Moses Gill, John Taylor, Benjamin White, Esquires.

In the House of Representatives: The House made choice of Jonathan Brown, as First Major of the Seventh Regiment of Militia in the County of Middlesex, in the room of William Hildreth, who declines serving.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

Whereas the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize, and General Jail Delivery, for the County of Middlesex, according to law should be holden at Concord, in the said County, on the second Tuesday of April current: And whereas several of the Justices and officers of the said Court are members of this Court, which is likely to continue sitting beyond the said time, and it is probable that matters of great importance may require the attendance of all the members of the Court at that time:

Therefore Resolved, That the said Court be, and hereby is, adjourned to the fourth Tuesday of October next, being the time at which the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Jail Delivery for the said County, is by law appointed to be holden at Cambridge, in the County aforesaid, and that all pleas, processes, writs, actions, suits issued or to be issued, complaints, precepts, recognisances, and all other matters and things returnable, and having, and that should have had day in the said Court if the same were holden the said second Tuesday of April current, shall be returnable and have day in the said Court on the said fourth Tuesday of October next, and shall abide and continue unto that time, and shall then be proceeded on, heard, and determined, to all intents and purposes as effectually as if said Court were held on the said second Tuesday of April current.

A Bill for amending an Act passed in November last, entitled "An Act for encouraging the fixing out of Armed Vessels, &c.," having passed the House of Representatives to be engrossed:

In Council: Read a second time, and passed a concurrence to be engrossed.

Ordered, That the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston be directed immediately to take a view of Noddle's Island, and report to this Court what time it will probably take a Regiment, consisting of seven hundred and twenty-eight men, to perform the business of fortifying said Harbour.

Petition of Israel Stoddard and Woodbridge Little, of Pittsfield, setting forth: That in the months of May and June last past, your Petitioners, at different times, were apprehended and conveyed before the Committees of this and several neighbouring towns, on a general suspicion that your Petitioners were not duly attached to the rights and liberties of their country, and with a professed design to obtain from them some assurances that they would adhere to the resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress, or any future General Assembly of this Colony. That your Petitioners, before said Committees, acknowledged that they had dissented from many of their fellow-countrymen with respect to some measures which had been adopted and pursued; but still declared that, in all their conduct, they were willing to conform to the resolutions aforesaid, and to contribute their proportion towards the general support and defence of our constitutional rights and privileges; of all which your Petitioners gave assurances to the declared satisfaction of said Committees. That said Committees, with respect to one of your Petitioners, resolved that he should pay all the costs that said several Committees should judge proper, standing committed until he should comply; though, at the time of the trial of your other Petitioner, said Committees omitted to make such particular resolve, but soon after discovered their determination to be the same respecting each of your Petitioners. That your Petitioners made various objections against such determination, as unprecedented, unwarranted, and arbitrary; but finally agreed that if said Committees would show that, by virtue of any resolve of the General or Provincial Congress, they were authorized and empowered thus to tax us in costs, that we, your Petitioners, would readily respond the same, and that we did not think ourselves holden to do it. Whereupon your Petitioners have been unmolested till of late respecting the payment of the said costs, though it has been a matter of constant complaint and uneasiness in this town. That your Petitioners have ever since carefully obeyed and strictly adhered to the resolutions of the Continental Congress, Provincial Congress, and General Assembly of this Colony, and are still disposed to do the same, though we have the unhappiness to live in that part of the Colony where some of the resolves and orders of the General Court are at least called in question, if not really contemned and disobeyed; and thus to do, we think ourselves holden not only by our afore-mentioned engagement, but by virtue of every consideration which can influence a good member of society to desire to avoid the mischiefs of a state of anarchy and confusion on the one hand, and to obtain the blessings of order and good government on the other. That the Committee of this town, not finding themselves otherwise empowered to tax and recover said costs, have procured it to be inserted, amongst other things, as an article in the warrant of our annual town-meeting for the present year, "to see if the town will direct their said Committee what method to take to recover pay for handling persons that appeared to be inimical to their country for time back and future." Whereupon the town, by their vote, (in which all persons who had a pretence of demands for costs were allowed to act,) have directed their Committee to tax said costs, both back and future; and in case of refusal of payment, to commit the person refusing to Jail, or otherwise confine him as they shall think proper; all which your Petitioners think to be repugnant to the first principles of English liberty, and an unreasonable and illegal exercise of the powers with which towns in this Colony are invested. Your Petitioners cannot but be humbly of opinion, that so long as they make the resolves of the General Congress, and of this honourable Court, the rule of their conduct, and are disposed to support and obey the good and wholesome laws of this Province, they are entitled to protection, and are to be viewed and treated as friends to the general cause of America, and are to be relieved against all arbitrary and illegal attempts of any person or any body of men whatsoever. Your Petitioners, therefore, most humbly pray that this honourable Court would take the premises into their wise consideration, and that they would make such orders and resolves as shall give your Petitioners relief from the affront of the said town order and vote, if your Honours in your wisdom shall judge proper.

On reading and considering the foregoing Petition:

Resolved, That the inhabitants of the Town of Pittsfield have day on the second Wednesday of the first session of the next General Court, or Assembly for this Colony, to show cause in the said Court, if any they have, why the prayer of the said Petition should not be granted; and that, in the mean time, all the proceedings against the said Petitioners, or either of them, on the vote and order of the said Town of Pittsfield, mentioned in the said Petition, so far as the said vote relates to such costs and charges as are therein mentioned, shall be stayed. And for the notifying the inhabitants of the said town of the contents of the said Petition, and this order thereon, that the Petitioner cause the Town Clerk of said Pittsfield to be served with a copy of the said Petition and this Order, attested by the Secretary, as soon as may be.

Read, with the Answer and Papers accompanying it, and Ordered, That the same be committed to Colonel Sartel, Mr. Davis, Captain Washburn, with Thomas Cushing and Benjamin White, Esquires.

In the House of Representatives: Ordered, That Mr. Speaker, Captain Cutter, and Colonel Thatcher, be a Committee, with such as the honourable Board shall join, to consider his Excellency General Washington's Instructions to General Ward, and report.

In Council: Read, and concurred, and James Otis and Caleb Cushing, Esquires, are joined.

Adjourned to ten o'clock, Monday morning.

Resolved, That the said Commissary be, and he is hereby directed, with the assistance of the Soldiers on said station, to build as many Log-Houses with the timber on said Island as will be sufficient for the reception of seventy or eighty men, and the said Commissary is further directed to procure nails and boards sufficient to build Cabins and cover the roofs of said Houses.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Thomas White, the sum of four Pounds sixteen Shillings, in full for two months wages as a Sergeant in the Continental Army, he not being made up in any Muster-Roll for said service.

Petition of Jonathan Lowder, setting forth: That he has been employed as a Gunner at Fort Pownall, under the command of Thomas Goldthwait, Esq., and has done his duty in said office to the acceptance of his commander and other officers, humbly prays your Honours that they would grant him a warrant for his pay due to him on said Goldthwait's Pay-Roll, for the Garrison of Fort Pownall.

Resolved, That Jonathan Lowder have leave to draw his Pay that is made up to him on Captain Goldthwait's Pay-Roll, for his services as a Gunner at Fort Pownall; and the Treasurer of this Colony is ordered to pay the same.

Whereas it is represented that sundry persons have procured, and are now using means to procure, from without this Colony, quantities of Saltpetre, or the materials therefor, partly wrought, with a view to receive from the Treasurer of this Colony the price and premium promised for such as should be manufactured within this Colony: Wherefore, for the prevention of any such fraudulent practices and impositions taking place, it is

Resolved, That all such persons as are or may be appointed by the General Court to receive and pay for Saltpetre manufactured within this Colony, be directed, and they hereby are directed, not to receive and pay for any quantity that may be brought to them respectively for the use of the Colony, until the person or persons bringing the same shall take an oath—which the persons appointed to receive the same as aforesaid are hereby authorized to administer—agreeable to the form following, viz: "You, A B, solemnly swear that the whole quantity of Saltpetre now presented by you was manufactured within this Colony; and that neither the whole nor any part of the materials from which it was extracted were brought from any place without the limits of the Colony. So help you God."

Whereas an order passed this Court, that Caleb Green have liberty to receive six persons out of the Taunton Jail, taken from the Navy, under the command of Captain Wallace, at Newport, in order to redeem the same number of men lately taken by him on their passage from Philadelphia to Dartmouth; and as there were but five in said Jail, for which five he hath received five men taken on their passage aforesaid, one yet remains on board Wallace:

It is therefore Resolved, That Charles Arnold be allowed to receive of the Prison-keeper in Concord, one man, (a sailor, if may be,) giving his bond to the Sheriff of the County of Middlesex, or the Keeper of said Jail, for the use of this Colony, in the penal sum of fifty Pounds, conditioned, that in case he shall not exchange the Prisoner whom he shall receive from Concord Jail for one Joseph Russell, now on board the said Wallace, he shall return the Prisoner to the said Prison-keeper in Concord, within fourteen days from the time he shall receive him, the said Prisoner; and the Keeper of said Prison is hereby directed to conform himself according to this order, provided the said Arnold shall give security as above directed.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Roger Deuch, and others, the sum of fifty-two Pounds eighteen Shillings and seven Pence, in full of their Account for taking care of the Sick in Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment.

Petition of John Kenney, setting forth: That one Captain Atkins, of Truro, in the County of Barnstable, was employed by the Committee of said town, to escort the Prisoners taken in the Friendship, Captain Holmes, master, and had a sum of money delivered him by said Committee to bear the charges thereof; and that the said Captain Atkins employed your Petitioner to cart their baggage to Plymouth, and encouraged your Petitioner he should be paid for the same out of the money put into his hands by said Committee; notwithstanding, the said Atkins now refuses to pay a farthing; and your Petitioner is informed that there is an order of Court for the said baggage to be delivered up to the Prisoners; your Petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honours would allow him a reasonable reward for his services, or order Mr. Bartlett, in whose hands the goods were left, not to deliver them to the owners till they pay the charge of transportation.

Resolved, That the Committee of Truro be directed to pay John Kenney so much of his Account petitioned for as shall be thought just by said Committee, out of the Money found on board the Friendship, and lodge their Account with the Judge of Admiralty of Plymouth, for allowance.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, April 9, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Moses Gill, and Benjamin White, Esquires.

Ordered, That Mr. Starkweather be excused from any further attendance on the Committee appointed to examine the Rolls of the Minute-men and Sea-Coast Men; and that Mr. Hobart, Colonel Coffin, and Captain Hayden, be on the Committee in the room of Mr. Starkweather, Mr. Turner, and Mr. Rawson.

Ordered, That Colonel Godfrey be of the Committee on his Excellency General Washington's Instructions to General Ward, in the room of Mr. Speaker, excused.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State, to Richard Thissell, the sum of four Pounds four Shillings, in full discharge of what his Son lost at the battle of Bunker's Hill.

Deposition of Dr. John Warren, who testifies and says: That on or about the 29th day of March last past, went into the Work-House of the Town of Boston, lately improved as an Hospital by the British troops stationed in said town, and upon examining into the state of a large quantity of Medicine there by them left, (particularly in one room, supposed to have been by them used as a medicinal store-room,) he found a great variety of medicinal articles lying upon the floor, some of which were contained and secured in papers, whilst others were scattered upon the floor loose. Amongst these medicines observed small quantities of what he supposed was white and yellow arsenick intermixed; and then received information from Dr. Samuel Scott, that he had taken up a large quantity of said arsenick, from over and amongst the medicine, and had collected it chiefly in large lumps, and secured it in a vessel. Upon receiving this information, desired him to let him view the arsenick; with which he complied, and judge it to amount to about the quantity of twelve or fourteen pounds. Being much surprised by this extraordinary intelligence, he more minutely examined the medicine on the floor, and found them to be chiefly capital articles, and those most generally in great demand; and judging them to be rendered entirely unfit for use, he advised Dr. Scott to let them remain, and by no means meddle with them, as he thought the utmost hazard would attend the using them. They were accordingly suffered to remain, and no account was taken of them.

Read, and Ordered, That the above Deposition be committed to Samuel Holten, Esq., with Mr. Whiting and Mr. Freeman.

The Committee appointed to consider what Fortifications are necessary to be made for the security of the Harbour of Boston, beg leave to report: That the Forts upon the Heights of Dorchester-Neck have not one cannon left. It is thought that there ought to be field-pieces or small cannon in both of them. The works upon the point of Dorchester, next the Castle, are planned too large for present use; but it is supposed that three small batteries erected there, of three or four cannon each, may greatly annoy the enemy's ships in their passage up the channel to Boston, and will also secure the communication between said point and Castle-Island; upon which Island it is thought by some Engineers that there ought to be six or eight cannon, upon the highest point of it, pointed in such manner as most effectually to rake the channel, and prevent ships of the enemy from coming up. Upon Fort-Hill, in Boston, is a fort laid out, upon which are four pieces of cannon, mounted; two others are brought to the foot of the Hill. The fort appears to be well constructed, and eight or ten pieces of heavy cannon are thought sufficient for it. The enemy's works at the Hay Market Fortification and the Brick Kilns ought to be demolished as soon as possible, and the pickets, timber, plank, platforms, &c., saved for our own use. The platforms may be saved whole, and floated to any of the Islands or Dorchester-Point, for our use. Many cannon, &c., are said to be upon wharves, in stores, &c., in Boston; which ought to be collected, examined, and proved. There are Barracks belonging to the Continent, which may be appraised and taken for Colonial use.

The 8th instant, a boat belonging to the enemy chased two of our boats up nearly to Noddle's Island, in full daylight; and there is reason to suspect that they have been up in the night very near to the Town of Boston. This conduct seems to demand an immediate water guard by night.

It is also thought by some of the Engineers that hulks ought to be immediately sunk in the channel; and they may be raised again when the fortifications are finished. It is likewise thought best that there should be two or three pieces of cannon, with a proper breastwork, immediately placed upon the south end of Noddle's Island, before the lower works are finished. This, with two or three armed vessels within the harbour, will probably intimidate the enemy, otherwise they will grow bold and impudent.

From the consideration of the premises, it is moved that this representation be laid before the Committee upon the state of the Colony, and that they be desired to consider whether the publick may not be greatly served by the appointment of an officer to direct and superintend the demolition of the works to be demolished, and preserve the materials that may be useful to us; also to direct and superintend the erecting such works, in such manner, as may be ordered; and also to collect, examine, and prove, such cannon, &c., as may from time to time be discovered, and to make weekly returns to this Court of his doings in these premises: Provided that nothing be done herein which may interfere with the orders given to the Continental General for the time being, commanding upon this department.

Read, and committed to the Committee on the state of the Colony.

Whereas it is apprehended that some of the inhabitants of this Colony may be induced, from a regard to their own interest, to employ their vessels the ensuing season in the business of fishing; and in order to avoid the inconveniences they may be exposed to by an act of Parliament, prohibiting all manner of trade and commerce with the United Colonies, and declaring forfeited all such vessels and cargoes, &c., as shall be taken belonging to the same, may make over the property of their vessels to some inhabitants of Nova-Scotia: To the intent, therefore, that no inhabitant of this Colony may unwarily go into such a method of conduct,

It is Resolved, That if any inhabitant of this Colony shall, upon any pretence whatever, transfer his property in any vessel to an inhabitant of the Province of Nova-Scotia, he will thereby violate a Resolve of the Congress prohibiting all intercourse with the inhabitants of that Province, and of course may expect to be obliged to submit to the pains and penalties due to such an offence.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, April 10, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Moses Gill, Benjamin White, Esquires.

It is Resolved, That all such persons as are, or may be appointed by the General Court, to receive and pay for Saltpetre, manufactured within this Colony, be directed, and they hereby are directed, not to receive and pay for any quantity that may be brought to them respectively for the use of the Colony, until the person or persons bringing the same shall take an oath, which the person or persons appointed to receive the same as aforesaid are hereby authorized to administer, agreeably to the form following, viz:

"You, A B, do solemnly swear that no part of the Saltpetre now presented by you, was extracted from materials in any measure wrought in any place from without this Colony; but that the process of the manufacture of the whole thereof was begun, carried on, and finished within the limits of this Colony. So help you God."

In the House of Representatives: The House made choice of Captain Benjamin Gage, as First Major of the Fourth Regiment of Militia, in the County of Essex, in the room of Major Perley, who declines.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

In the House of Representatives: The House made choice (by ballot) of James Converse, as Colonel of the Fourth Regiment of Militia, in the County of Worcester, in the room of Joseph Gilbert, deceased; and also of Stephen Rice, as Lieutenant-Colonel of the same Regiment, in the room of Joseph Gilbert, first appointed to that office, who was elected Colonel.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

Petition of John Story, setting forth: That he was appointed by the late Congress as sub-Commissary under Mr. Pigeon, to Colonel Little's Regiment; that he faithfully attended on the said Regiment, and on Mr. Pigeon, from day to day, in order to discharge the trust committed to him, from the middle of June to the 1st of August, as appears by the annexed account and certificate, for which he received no allowance. He therefore prays your Honours would be pleased to order that he be paid the amount of his account for his trouble, and such a sum for his expense as your Honours may think proper.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the said John Story, the sum of five Pounds five Shillings, in full of his Account for serving as sub-Commissary to Colonel Little's Regiment.

Thursday, April 11, 1776:

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Charles Chauncy, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Moses Gill, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Petition of Jacob Martin and Nathaniel Perley, of Ipswich, in the County of Essex, setting forth: That one of your Petitioners was at the Island of St. Peters, (which lies eastward of Cape Breton;) he applied to the commanding officer of said place for powder, who presented him with a small quantity, although the Island's stock was but small; that the commanding officer appeared very friendly to the American cause, and much pleased with their proceedings, upon your Petitioners' giving him an account of some of them. That Monsieur La Beav, the principal merchant in said Island, (by whom the others are much influenced,) promised one of your Petitioners, if he would covenant with him, he would obligate himself to deliver him seventy-five barrels of powder next May, and that if it was not in the place he would send to France for it. That if this honourable Court will permit your Petitioners to go with their vessel to the said Island of St. Peters, or some other French Islands, with a load of lumber, they will oblige themselves, in what penalty this Court shall order, to bring at least as much powder and warlike stores into this Colony as the value of the lumber they may carry out is, (provided their vessel is not lost or taken,) and will give ample security for their performance; also, that they will deliver the same to such persons as this Court shall appoint, at such prices as this Court gives to others. That your Petitioners make no doubt of obtaining the value of their lumber there in powder and warlike stores, which they humbly think will be of considerable advantage to this Colony. Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honours to take this matter under your wise consideration, and, if it shall seem meet, grant them leave to go in their vessel with a load of lumber to the said Island of St. Peters, or some other French Islands, for the purpose aforementioned.

Read, and committed to Mr. Story and Colonel Orne, with Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of the Town of Athol, the sum of sixteen Pounds eight Shillings three Pence half-Penny, in full of their Account for Provisions supplied the Army.

Resolved, That the Sheriff of the County of Barnstable be, and he hereby is, directed and fully authorized and empowered, immediately to take into his possession all such India Tea and English Goods as were brought into Barnstable in a vessel lately arrived there, belonging to one Solomon Davis, and commanded by one Prince Gorham; and that he store the same in some convenient place, till the further order of this Court; and that the Sheriff aforesaid cite the said Solomon Davis and Prince Gorham to attend this Court forthwith, to answer their conduct, by serving them with an attested copy of this Resolve.

Petition of William King, of Great Barrington, setting forth: That he being appointed to raise a company last campaign in Colonel John Fellows's Regiment, he effected the same, and was accordingly commissioned by the Congress of this Colony; that Mr. Samuel Brewer was returned to serve as Lieutenant, and Mr. Gamaliel Whiting as Ensign of said company; that previous to the issuing said commissions, viz: on the 6th day of May last, said Mr. Brewer was, by general orders, appointed Adjutant-General of the Army at Roxbury, in which station he continued till he was appointed Major of Brigade, in which last station he continued till the close of the campaign. Mr. Brewer was, however, commissioned Lieutenant, and Mr. Whiting Ensign, of said company, in consequence of the aforementioned return to Congress. General Thomas, who then commanded the Army at Roxbury, being acquainted with the promotion of Mr. Brewer, and judging that a company complete with men ought likewise to be provided with officers, ordered that Mr. Whiting should do duty and be obeyed as Lieutenant, and Mr. Nathaniel Crittenton as Ensign of said company; who did their duty and took their rank accordingly in their company and regiment, and agreeable thereto were commissioned by the Continental Congress. Your Honours' Memorialist therefore has on the Muster-Roll of his company borne Mr. Whiting Lieutenant, and Mr. Crittenton Ensign; but finding he must make oath that the officers borne on said Roll were commissioned by Congress as he had borne them, declined taking the oath; and should Mr. Brewer be borne Lieutenant and Mr. Whiting Ensign on said Muster-Roll, an equal difficulty would accrue in taking the subsequent part of the oath prescribed, viz: "That they did duty accordingly," for Mr. Brewer never did a tour of duty in the company; Mr. Whiting did the duty of Lieutenant, and Mr. Crittenton the duty of Ensign, to the end of the campaign. By reason of the aforesaid difficulties and embarrassments, the Muster-Roll aforesaid is not passed, to the great damage of said company, thirty-three of whom are now in the Continental Army, and in great want of their pay, as are those who have returned home. Your Memorialist begs leave further to observe, that, being under marching orders, will be obliged to leave the said Muster-Roll unsettled, unless some way be provided in which it may be passed.

Resolved, That the Petitioner be directed to bear on his said Muster-Roll the names of the said Gamaliel Whiting as Lieutenant, and Nathaniel Crittenton as Ensign, and that upon the said Petitioner making oath that the said Lieutenant and Ensign have served and done duty agreeable to the return made by the said Muster-Roll, the Committee appointed to examine the Muster-Rolls be, and hereby are, directed to pass said Roll in the same manner as if the said Lieutenant and Ensign had been commissioned to those respective offices, the said Brewer having been commissioned Lieutenant, and the said Whiting Ensign, in anywise notwithstanding.

Voted, That Beating Orders should be sent to the following gentlemen for inlisting the Regiment to be raised to fortify the Town and Harbour of Boston, viz:

In the County of Suffolk: Aaron Guild, Captain; Ebenezer Dean, Jun., Lieutenant; John Ellis, the third, Second Lieutenant.

In the County of Essex: Samuel King, Captain; Silas Marble, First Lieutenant; Benjamin Peabody, Second Lieutenant.

In the County of Middlesex: Abishai Brown, Captain; Elijah Danforth, First Lieutenant; Thomas Richardson, Second Lieutenant.
In the County of Bristol: Zebedee Reading, Captain; Isaac Fisher, First Lieutenant; Abel Babbit, Second Lieutenant.
In the County of Worcester: Jonathan Cavit, Captain; David Bouty, First Lieutenant; Thomas Davidson, Second Lieutenant. Nathaniel White, Captain; Ebenezer Sanderson, First Lieutenant; William Warner, Second Lieutenant.
In the County of Hampshire: Josiah Smith, Captain; Richard Talley, First Lieutenant; Noah Warren, Second Lieutenant.
In the Counties of Plymouth and Barnstable: Nathaniel Winslow, Captain; Joseph Griffith, First Lieutenant; John Gill, Second Lieutenant.

Whereas it is necessary for the common safety that the Ordnance and Stores be removed according to the directions of his Excellency General Washington: And whereas it has been made to appear to this Court that Teams necessary to transport the same cannot be procured in the ordinary way:

Therefore Resolved, That the Selectmen of the several Towns in this Colony be, and they hereby are, ordered to give all possible aid and assistance to Colonel Henry Knox, of the train of Artillery, in removing and conveying said Ordnance and Stores through this Colony, on their way to New-York; and in case the inhabitants of said Colony refuse to supply Teams or other necessary means of conveyance, said Selectmen, or any two of them, in any town in this Colony, are empowered and directed to impress in said town, so many Teams as are necessary for the purposes aforesaid, said Knox paying a reasonable price for the same.

Whereas it is of the greatest importance not only to the inhabitants of Boston, but of this whole Colony, that the Town and Harbour of said Boston should be effectually fortified and secured against any attacks from the enemy; and as the Continental Forces left and stationed in and about said town are not sufficient, in the judgment of this Court, with the variety of other important duties assigned them, to throw up and defend all those works which sound policy would dictate for the purpose aforesaid:

It is therefore Resolved, That there be immediately raised eight Companies, consisting of one Captain, two Lieutenants, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Drummer, one Fifer, and seventy-seven Privates; which Companies shall constitute one Regiment, to be under the field command of one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Major, Field-Officers, Captains, and Subalterns; all of which shall be appointed by this Court and commissioned by the Council; the Non-Commissioned Officers shall be chosen by their respective Companies, and each Officer and Private Soldier shall be holden to serve from the day of their engaging or inlisting in the said service until the 1st day of December next, unless the service should admit of their discharge sooner. And the Officers of the several Regiments and Companies of Militia in the respective Counties in this Colony are hereby directed, without fail, to afford their utmost assistance in the raising of the said Companies with the greatest despatch, as they regard the interest of their country, and the approbation of this Court.

And it is Resolved, That there be allowed and paid to each of the Officers and Soldiers, as wages for every calendar month during their continuance in the said service, the following sums respectively, viz:

Colonel, - - -	£12 0	Sergeant, - - -	£2 8
Lieutenant-Colonel, - - -	9 12	Corporal and Drummer, - - -	2 4
Major, - - -	8 0	Fifer and Private
Captain, - - -	6 0	Soldier, - - -	2 0
First Lieutenant, - - -	4 0
Second Lieutenant, - - -	3 10

And the time of service of each Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier shall be computed from the fourth day next preceding their marching from home to the time of their discharge, and allowing for return home; that is to say, at the rate of one day for every twenty miles travel; also there shall be allowed one penny per mile to each man to compensate his expenses in his travel to the place of rendezvous, and at the same rate to bear his expenses in his return home, his travelling expense to the Camp to be paid by himself, and each man to be compensated at the rate abovesaid upon his arrival at the Camp.

And it is further Resolved, That each Non-Commissioned Officer and Private Soldier shall be equipped and provided with a good effective Fire-arm and Bayonet, a Cartridge Box, Knapsack, and Blanket; and no Non-Commissioned Officer and Private Soldier shall be allowed to pass muster without he is equipped and provided.

And it is further Resolved, That said Regiment shall be allowed and supplied with the following subsistence, viz: One pound of bread per day; half pound of beef and half pound of pork, and if pork cannot be had, one and one-fourth pound of beef, and one day in seven they shall have one and one-fourth pound of salt fish instead of one day's allowance of meat per day, if to be had; one pint of milk, or if milk cannot be had, one gill of rice, per day; one quart of spruce or malt beer, or one pint of cider, per day, if to be had; one gill of peas or beans, or other sauce equivalent, per day; six ounces of butter per week; one pound of good common soap for six men per week; half pint of vinegar per week per man if it can be had.

And there shall be appointed by this Court for said Regiment, one Adjutant, one Chaplain, one Commissary, one Quartermaster, one Surgeon, and one Surgeon's Mate, to be upon the following establishment of pay by the calendar months, viz:

Adjutant, - - -	£5 10	Quartermaster, - - -	£3 0
Chaplain, - - -	6 0	Surgeon, - - -	7 0
Commissary, - - -	4 0	Surgeon's Mate, - - -	4 0

And the Commissary-General is hereby directed, as soon as a Commissary is chosen for the above purpose, to deliver to him a sufficient number of Tents, utensils to cook in, and Intrenching Tools for said Regiment.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed by this Court to purchase Wood and Hay for the Continental Army, be directed to apply to the Quartermaster-General of the Continental Forces, or his Deputy, or under Quartermaster, for a settlement of their Accounts, and for the whole amount of the several sums due to this Colony for Wood and Hay, which the said Committee have purchased and sent to the said Army, and for such sum or sums as are due to them for their services and expenses. And the said Committee are further directed, upon their receiving of the said Quartermaster such sums which are due as aforesaid, to make report thereof to this House, and likewise to pay back the Moneys they received out of the Colony Treasury for the aforesaid purpose of purchasing said articles, to Henry Gardner, Esq., Receiver-General, and take his receipt therefor.

"We, the subscribers, do hereby severally inlist ourselves into the service of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, to serve in a Company whereof . . . . . is Captain, until the 1st day of December next, unless the service should admit of our discharge sooner; and each of us do engage to furnish and carry with us into the service, a good effective fire-arm and bayonet if to be obtained, cartridge-box, knapsack, and blanket; and when formed, we engage to march to the Town of Boston, or such place within this Colony as the General Court of said Colony shall appoint; and do hereby oblige ourselves faithfully to observe and obey all such orders as we shall from time to time receive from our superior officers."

And for further encouragement to said Officers, Seamen, and Marines,

It is further Resolved, That they shall be entitled to one-third of the proceeds of all captures that shall be by them made, and finally condemned, to be distributed in such manner as this Court shall hereafter determine; and the said Vessels shall be armed and mounted with at least twelve carriage-guns, all one size, viz: six-pounders; and with a proper number of swivels and cohorns. Resolved, That the Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers of the Regiment to be raised for the defence of Boston, &c., be paid one month's advance wages.

Petition of John Ashley and others, in the County of Berkshire, setting forth: That from our known attachment to that order and subordination which is necessary for the existence and well-being of society, we are set up by a few unthinking, rash, and designing men, as the butts of popular resentment, and are (as well as your Honours) by them represented as seeking our own private emolument only at the expense of the interest of the people. And although every step by us taken to lay open and manifest the conduct of these incendiaries is, by them, blazed abroad as an evidence of our guilt and rapacity, yet we should hold ourselves inexcusable if, at the present alarming crisis, we should neglect to inform your Honours of some late transactions which have taken place in this country.

The Reverend Thomas Allen, of Pittsfield, for a long time past seems to have been restless in his endeavours to raise the prejudice of the people against the present Constitution of this Colony, and the Legislative and Executive authority of the same; in order to effect which, and prevent the Court of Sessions sitting at Pittsfield, on the last Tuesday of February last, he, with his associates, procured a meeting of divers people of this country, by the appellation of Committee of Inspection, to be called at Pittsfield, on the last Monday of said February; previous to which meeting, and in order properly to prepare the minds of the people of Richmont (who of late had almost unanimously voted to adhere to and support the present Constitution of Government) to fall in with the schemes of said Allen, he, on a Sabbath evening, in said Richmont, delivered a discourse, in the form of a Sermon, to a large number of the inhabitants of said Richmont, and, among other things, informed his auditory that the present Constitution of this Colony, as established in consequence of the advice and recommendation of the Continental Congress, is oppressive, defective, and rotten to the very core; that it ought not, by any means, to be submitted to; that your Honours and the honourable House of Representatives were a number of designing men, who sought after emolument for yourselves, your children, and friends, without any regard to the good of the people, and that you ought to be opposed; and many such like things, which will appear by the depositions herewith sent to your Honours. The people, being accustomed to pay great regard to the sacred character of a priest, and to receive for truth and sound doctrine everything delivered by a clergyman, the aforementioned harangue, together with Mr. Allen's private exhortations and advice, had the desired effect, and the people were inflamed to the degree the preacher designed. The time of the meeting of the aforementioned Committees being come, Mr. Allen (though not a member of the same) appeared as the chief agitator and spokesman, and, after having read a pamphlet called Common Sense, as his text, and made great reflections upon the General Assembly of this Colony, as his doctrine and improvement, he produced a large number of resolves by himself previously compiled, which were put and voted by a majority of the people present; a copy of which resolves, together with the protests of the dissentients, we herewith send to your Honours. The people being inflamed, no Court was suffered to sit, and they immediately took away such commissions from the civil officers of the County on which they could lay their hands, and we are reduced to a state of anarchy and confusion. We would hope the people may soon see the folly of their proceedings, and return to a sense of their duty; but as long as such incendiaries are tolerated, it is hardly to be expected. We hope your Honours will take some wise steps for our relief.

Read, and committed, with the Papers accompanying it, to the Committee on the state of the Colony.

The Treasurer of this Colony having represented to this Court the necessity of his being furnished with one or more Iron Chests, for the better security of Colony property,

Therefore, Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver-General, be, and he hereby is, directed to take into his possession the Iron Chests, together with the Weights and Measures, Steelyards and Scales, which belong to this Colony, and were in the hands of Harrison Gray, the former Treasurer, the said Henry Gardner, Esquire, giving his Receipt for said articles to the Committee appointed by this Court to take into their possession the effects of enemies to the liberties of America in the Town of Boston, said Committee rendering an Account of the same to this Court.

Ordered, That the Committee of this Court appointed to see to the fortifying of the Harbour of Boston, be directed immediately and without fail to procure the removal from Castle-Island all the Cannon and Carriages thereon, which are capable of being made fit for use; and if the removal of the said Cannon and Carriages cannot be effected without incurring an expense to this Government, that the said Committee be, and hereby are, directed to effect the said business, whatever expense may be necessary therefor.

Ordered, That Colonel Lovell be of the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston, in the room of Mr. Sullivan, excused.

Ordered, That Mr. Brown, of Boston, be on the Committee appointed to see to fortifying the Harbour of Boston, in the room of Mr. Cushing, excused.

Resolved, That for the more effectually fortifying and securing the Town and Harbour of Boston, the Committee already appointed for that purpose be, and they hereby are, directed and empowered to purchase a sufficient number of old Ships or Vessels, and cause them to be sunk in the Channel between the Middle-Ground and Castle-Rocks, so called, in said Harbour, for preventing any Vessels of above two hundred tons entering the same; and that the said Committee execute said orders without loss of time, and lay their Accounts before this Court for allowance.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Saturday, April 13, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, John Winthrop, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Benjamin White, Esquires.

ing a Regiment to fortify the Harbour of Boston, and procure a sufficient number of the same, together with the form of Inlistment and Establishment, printed and distributed; and that the Beating Orders be directed to all the Officers proposed for each Company, with the rank which they are proposed to sustain, provided they can raise their Companies.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to David Curtis, the sum of eighteen Shillings, in full for his son's board while wounded.

A Bill entitled "An Act for preventing the forging and altering Bills of Publick Credit and for their depreciation, and for making them a tender in all payments," having passed the House of Representatives to be enacted,

Resolved, That the Soldiers belonging to the British Army, with their wives and children, be sent to General Ward, and that Caleb Wheaton and others, who were taken on board the Brig Sally, by Captain John Manly, be sent to this Court for examination, except the women and children; and them (exclusive of the soldiers' wives and children) to be disposed of by the Committee of Correspondence of Marblehead, in that way and manner that shall be the least charge to Government; and that Brigadier Farley be desired, in season, to collect the accounts of the necessary expenses attending the support and maintenance of these and all the other persons taken on board the same vessel, and endeavour to have the same discharged out of the moneys arising on the sales of the cargo and effects found on board the said vessel.

Adjourned to ten o'clock, Monday morning.

Monday, April 15, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Eldad Taylor, James Prescott, Michael Farley, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Benjamin White, Esquires.

The Committee of both Houses on the state of the Colony, beg leave to report: That, in their opinion, it is highly expedient that the cannon on Castle-Island, or such of them at least as are fit for use, or may soon be rendered so, should be immediately removed from thence to the Town of Boston, or other safe and convenient place. And that the Committee appointed to see to the fortifying the Harbour of Boston be directed to apply to General Ward, to order some part of the Army under his command to effect the removal of them accordingly.

BENJAMIN GREENLEAF, per order.

Read, and accepted.

The Committee appointed to consider the Account of Benjamin Mills, reported: That they had attended that service, and, upon examination of the same, found them fairly stated, and well vouched; and that the said Benjamin received of Henry Gardner, Esq., Treasurer for the Colony, the sum of one hundred and ninety-five Pounds, for the purpose of supplying blankets; that the said Benjamin hath supplied one hundred and six blankets, of the value of one hundred and seventeen Pounds nine Shillings; so that there remains due to the Colony aforesaid the sum of seventy-seven Pounds eleven Shillings, as the just balance due from the said Benjamin.

Whereupon, Resolved, That the said Benjamin pay unto the said Henry Gardner, Esq., Treasurer as aforesaid, the aforesaid sum of seventy-seven Pounds eleven Shillings, as the just balance due as aforesaid; whose receipt for the same shall be a discharge in full for the said Benjamin for the sum of one hundred and ninety-five Pounds, by him received as aforesaid.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Benjamin Mills, the sum of three Pounds seventeen Shillings and two Pence, in full for Blankets lost out of those purchased by said Mills for this Colony.

Resolved, That the Depositions of Doctor John Warren, Daniel Scott, and Frederick Ridgely, respecting a quantity of Medicines left in the Workshop of the Town of Boston, lately improved as an Hospital by the British Troops, be published in the Watertown Newspaper, by order of the General Court.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to take into consideration the Commissary's Accounts, beg leave to report: That they have examined the Account of Colonel Beriah Norton, as exhibited up to the 4th of this instant, April, and find the same right cast and well vouched. That four hundred and sixty-seven Pounds fifteen Shillings and eight Pence have been advanced for Provisions and other necessities by the said Colonel Norton, for the sea-coast service. That a balance of eighty-six Pounds fourteen Shillings and five Pence, appears due to said Colonel Norton; and, notwithstanding he has not been able to exhibit at this time a particular account of the disposal of every article, your Committee are of opinion that he should receive his second payment, agreeable to the establishment made for the service aforesaid, he being further accountable.

CHARLES CHAUNCY, per order.

Read, and accepted, and thereupon

Resolved, That the said Colonel Norton receive his second payment, agreeable to the establishment aforesaid, he being further accountable.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Benjamin Mills, Esquire, for the use of Thomas Rogers, in full for a Gun improved by George Mills, in the service the last summer, and not returned to said Rogers, the sum of two Pounds four Shillings, in full of said Gun.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, April 16, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Jabez Fisher, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to John Taylor, Esquire, Captain John Greenleaf, and Mr. James Noble Shannon, the sum of one thousand two hundred Pounds, to be by them applied for the purchasing of Ammunition, Salt, Corn, &c., to be distributed to the several Committees in the eastern parts of the County of Lincoln, for supplying the inhabitants thereof.

Ordered, That Captain Edmund Sawyer, of Newbury, be joined to Mr. Tufts, of Newburyport, in the business of inspecting, receiving, and paying for Saltpetre.

Ordered, That Mr. Partridge and Mr. Pitts be of the Committee on the Instructions of his Excellency General Washington to the Honourable General Ward, in the room of Brigadier Godfrey and Mr. Cutter, absent. And the Committee are enjoined to sit forthwith.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Lieutenant Andrew Gilman, the sum of twenty-three Pounds eight Shillings, in full for his wages and billeting to this day, and that he be discharged from the service of this Colony.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Colonel Josiah Whitney, the sum of two hundred and nineteen Pounds sixteen Shillings and one Penny, in full of his abstract of the pay due to the Officers and Soldiers in his Regiment, from the time of their engaging to the day they marched to Camp.

Whereas his Excellency General Washington has given it in orders to General Ward to comply with the requisitions of the Council or General Court, respecting the forces under his command, so far as are consistent with his particular orders:

Therefore Resolved, As the opinion of this Court, that all Colonel Glover's Regiment, now at Beverly, excepting one hundred and sixty men, including the proper officers, be removed to Boston, to assist in fortifying said Town and Harbour; and that one hundred and sixty men, including the proper officers, are sufficient to be kept on Bunker's Hill, to be employed in levelling the lower lines of that work next Prospect and Winter Hills, and to guard the works there, as well as the Town of Charlestown.

And it is further Resolved, That a Beacon be erected at Cape-Anne, on the Height of Governour's Hill, so called; another at Marblehead, on the height of the land there; one at Boston, on the usual place, and another on the height of the Blue-Hills, in Stoughton, near Milton; and that the Selectmen, or any two of them, in any of the towns where such Beacon is situated, with any two or more of the commissioned officers nearest to said Beacon, shall have the care of them; and when an enemy's fleet is discovered, shall fire three alarm guns; and where there are bells in said towns where said Beacons are, shall cause them to be set ringing and the Beacon to be fired, with all expedition.

And it is further Resolved, That not more than one quarter part of the stores of Powder ought to be kept at Boston, until the Harbour is well fortified; and that the other three-quarters ought to be kept in the Stores or Magazines at Charlestown, Cambridge, and Watertown.

Petition of Beulah Ball, of Spencer, Widow, setting forth: That she is appointed Administratrix on the estate of her late husband, John Ball, deceased; that said deceased's personal estate is not sufficient to pay his just debts; that it would be greatly injurious to the interest of the Real Estate to have it sold in parcels; that the buildings are considerably out of repair; that your Petitioner has six young children, whose respective parts would be much more profitable to them by having the place sold and their shares put to interest, than it could be by having their shares in land, after such a part is sold as will be necessary in order to pay the debts. For which reason your Petitioner humbly prays that she may have leave of this honourable Court to sell the aforementioned deceased's Real Estate.

In the House of Representatives: Resolved, That the prayer thereof be so far granted that she is hereby empowered to sell the whole of said Real Estate, and give a good sufficient Deed or Deeds thereof; she observing the rules and directions of the law for the sale of Real Estate by Executors and Administrations, and first giving security to the Judge of Probate for the County of Worcester that she will pay to Margaret Houghton, who was the widow of the father of the deceased, in lieu of her dower in said Estate, agreeably to their agreement, nine Pounds twelve Shillings annually, during her natural life; and that the said Beulah, widow of the deceased, shall have the interest of one-third of the remainder during her natural life; and after her decease, the principal shall be paid to the heirs of said deceased, or their legal representatives, and that the remaining two-thirds be applied for the payment of such debts of the deceased as the Personal Estate will not be sufficient to discharge, after proper allowance and charges of settlement of the Estate; and, after the debts and charges are paid, the remainder shall be put into the hands of the guardians of the children of the deceased, to be by them put to interest for the benefit of their said wards, in just proportion, according to the law of inheritance.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

— Wednesday, April 17, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Thomas Cushing, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Mendon, the sum of thirty-eight Pounds four Shillings and four Pence, in full of his account for Provisions, and transporting the same to Head-Quarters, in April last, for the use of the Army.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Oliver Watson, the sum of six Pounds eight Shillings and three Pence, for the use of Jeremiah Whittemore, in full for Provisions, and transporting the same for the use of the Forces who marched on the 19th of April last.

Resolved, That the Selectmen and Committee of Safety, &c., for the Town of Truro, be, and they hereby are, directed to deliver to Captain James Holmes, late master of the Ship Friendship, stranded on the shore of Cape-Cod, the 29th day of February last, the remainder of his private property that is yet in the hands of the said Selectmen and Committee of Safety of said Town of Truro.

Major Cross came up with a message from the honourable House, desiring the Board to send down the Resolve respecting granting Supplies to the Eastern parts of the County of Lincoln, if not acted upon by the Board.

Colonel Prescott went down with a message from the Board, to inform the honourable House that said Resolve was concurred by the Board, and consented to by the major part of the Council.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to fortify the Town and Harbour of Boston be, and they hereby are, directed to deliver into the hands of Jonathan Jackson, of Newburyport, six pieces of Cannon, from nine to twelve-pounders, said Cannon to be improved for the defence of said Newburyport, until the further order of this Court, provided said Cannon can be spared, and are not wanted for the defence of the Town and Harbour of Boston.

Petition of a number of Indian proprietors of Gayhead, in Dukes County, setting forth: That whereas one Elisha Amos, an Indian man of Tisbury, upwards of twenty years ago prevailed with a number of Indians then living at Gayhead to dispose of their rights—some to a small, others to a larger tract of land in said Gayhead, (minutes of which conveyance will accompany this;) and notwithstanding he was unable to prevail with but a very small proportion of the Indians then alive, to convey any part of their rights to him, yet presumed to enclose a large tract of the most valuable part of said Gayhead, as we apprehend about two hundred acres, and built a house upon the same, and prohibited all the Indians, even those who had not conveyed any part of their rights to him, from making any improvements within said enclosure. Soon after guardians were appointed in Dukes County, and the said Elisha then agreed to allow unto the said guardians a certain sum for the Indians, for such part of said enclosure as he acknowledged he had not purchased, and accordingly paid the same for some few years; but for some reason the guardians, after a little time, were discontinued, and the said Elisha ever after refused to pay any sum whatever, but continued to improve the whole during his life; and at his death, by his will, gave the same to one of his kinsmen, Henry Amos, and he improved the same, and then by deed of sale conveyed the same to two of his relations, (viz: Joseph and Israel Amos,) said deed not being approbated according to law, who improved the same by their tenants until about two years ago, when the tenant who had improved it for some time was about to remove from the Island, and a controversy arose who should improve it. As divers persons had contracted for it, the guardians put an end to it by taking it into their hands, and hiring it out; and the last year is now almost expired; and the guardians, apprehending that their power is ended, by reason of their not being appointed by the present Court, will not, as we are informed, do anything further with it, whereby it will either remain in the hands of the present occupier, or be liable to be entered upon by any person disposed thereto. Some of us who had not disposed of our rights were at first determined, as soon as the present possessor's time was expired, to have entered upon it, but have been advised to the contrary; and although we are sensible the General Court have much publick business of the greatest importance to transact, would have discouraged us from troubling them with this matter at this time, could we think of any method to obtain our just right; but as we cannot, we hope your Honours will excuse us, and afford us such assistance as to you shall seem meet, as the General Court is the Indians' guardian, &c.

Read, and committed to Walter Spooner, with Colonel Norton and Mr. Bryant.

The Committee of both Houses on the above Petition, report, as their opinion, that there be now appointed by this Court three Guardians, to take the care of the Indians and their Estates for the benefit of the Indian inhabitants that belong to that part of the Island of Martha's Vineyard known by the name of Gayhead.

WALTER SPOONER, per order.

Read, and accepted.

A Letter from the Committee of Safety, &c., for the Town of Rowley, respecting Jonathan Stickney, Jun., with a number of Depositions accompanying the same.

In the House of Representatives: Read, and committed to . . . . ., with such as the honourable Board may join.

In Council: Read, and concurred, and Caleb Cushing, Esquire, is joined.

In the House of Representatives: The House made choice of Simeon Sampson as Captain of the Armed Brigantine building at Kingston, for the service of this Colony.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

A Letter from the Committee of Correspondence, &c., of Salem, respecting one Hugh Mulkoys supplying the enemy with Provisions, &c. Read, and committed to Eldad Taylor, Esquire, with Captain Stone and Mr. Rawson.

Major Bliss came up with a message from the honourable House, desiring that the Board would desist from making out any Commissions, either civil or military, for the present.

Colonel Norton came up with a message from the honourable House, informing the Board that the House proposed to come to the choice of Guardians for the Gayhead Indians at five o'clock, to-morrow afternoon, if agreeable to the honourable Board.

Jedediah Foster, Esq., went down with a message to the honourable House, to inform them that the Board agreed to the foregoing proposal of the honourable House.

The Committee appointed to examine the Accounts of Amos Singletary, Esq., reported that they had attended that service, and found the same fairly stated and well vouched; that the said Amos hath furnished the said Colony with three hundred and seventeen blankets, of the value of one hundred and ninety-four Pounds seven Shillings and ten Pence, and that he hath received of Henry Gardner, Esq., as Treasurer for said Colony, the sum of three hundred and eighty Pounds fourteen Shillings, for the purpose aforesaid; so that there remains due to the Colony aforesaid, a balance of one hundred and ninety-four Pounds six Shillings and two Pence.

"You are hereby ordered and directed to receive into your custody, Jonathan Stickney, Jun., who has been apprehended by the Committee of Inspection, Correspondence, and Safety, of the Town of Rowley, and sent to the General Court, for having, in the most open and daring manner, endeavoured, according to the utmost of his abilities, to encourage and introduce discontent, sedition, and a spirit of disobedience to all lawful authority among the people, by frequently clamouring in the most impudent, insulting, and abusive language, against the American Congress, the General Court of this Colony, and others who are and have been exerting themselves to save the country from misery and ruin; all which is made fully to appear: You are therefore him safely to keep in close confinement, in a room by himself, and that he be not allowed the use of pen, ink, or paper, and not suffer him to converse with any person whatsoever, unless in your hearing, till the further order of the General Court, or he to be otherwise discharged by due course of law.

The Secretary, by order of the major part of the Council, went down to the honourable House, with the following Message, viz:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives :

"You yesterday desired the Council, by a verbal message, that they would desist from making out any commissions, either civil or military, for the present. You cannot but be sensible of the exposed state of the Colony to the depredations of our merciless enemies, who would, we have the fullest reason to believe, with eagerness, avail themselves of an opportunity to wreak their vengeance upon this Colony, and, if possible, to do something to excite in the minds of the people sentiments of their valour, very different from what can be entertained of them at present, by those who have heard of their late precipitate flight from Boston, and other instances of their shameful conduct. You must also be sensible that, in order to prevent such mischiefs, it is of the highest importance that our Militia should, without loss of time, be put upon the best footing possible for making a defence, which is far from being the case at present, as a considerable part thereof is still destitute of officers. The Council can conceive of no sufficient reason why they should delay, under these circumstances, to make out commissions to persons duly appointed to offices; but if you will suggest any, we shall consider them with due attention, as we are greatly concerned both for the safety and reputation of the Colony.

"In the name and by order of the major part of the Council :

"JAMES OTIS, President."

In the House of Representatives: Ordered, That Major Hawley, Colonel Brooks, and Major Fuller, be a Committee to wait on a majority of the honourable Council with the following Message, viz:

"May it please your Honours:

"The House having with due attention considered your message of the 18th instant, beg leave to observe that, when they presumed to send a verbal message to your Honours, desiring you to desist from making out any commissions, civil or military, they were sensible that a considerable part of our Militia are still destitute of officers, and were very sufficiently possessed of the importance of putting them, without loss of time, on the best footing, in order to defend this Colony, exposed to the merciless depredations of our enemies, who may avail themselves of our situation to wreak their vengeance and retrieve their reputation, lost by their late precipitate flight; but at the same time, when they consider the absurdity of issuing commissions in the present style, under our present situation, they supposed themselves fully justified in not troubling your Honours with reasons they supposed obvious to every one; but as your Honours cannot conceive any reasons sufficient to delay issuing commissions, and are pleased to assure us that you will consider, with due attention, such as we may suggest, we beg leave to mention to your Honours, that the absurdity of issuing commissions in the present style is so apparent, and the tendency it has to keep up ideas wholly inconsistent with our conduct and safety, has given the good people of this Colony such uneasiness as rendered it necessary to make provision for altering the commissions already issued, and for a different style for future commissions. We had therefore provided and have under consideration a bill for that purpose, which we presumed would meet your Honours' approbation, when regularly laid before you, and appears to be calculated to promote both the safety and reputation of the Colony; and as the bill is now before the honourable Board, they will be able to judge of our sentiments and conduct in the provisions therein made."

The Committee appointed to examine Captain Solomon Davis and Prince Gorham, have attended that service; and having made inquiry of the Sheriff of the County of Barnstable, who was directed and fully authorized and empowered, by a resolve of this Court of the 11th instant, to take into his possession all such India Tea and English Goods as were brought in a vessel therein referred to; and being informed by the said Sheriff that he had made all due search and inquiry after such goods, but found none; neither was he able to conclude that any such goods were brought in the said vessel: Wherefore your Committee are of opinion, that the said Captain Davis and Gorham be discharged from any further attendance.

BENJAMIN GREENLEAF, per order.

In Council: Read, and accepted.

In the House of Representatives: Ordered, That Colonel Grout, Major Goodman, and Mr. Bent, with Benjamin Chadbourn and Joseph Gerrish, Esquires, be a Committee to examine Caleb Wheaton and others, lately taken prisoners on board the Brig Sally, by Captain Manly.

In the House of Representatives: Ordered, That . . . . ., with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to prepare Instructions to the Committee appointed to go to Pittsfield, &c.

In Council: Read, and concurred, and Eldad Taylor, Esq., is joined.

Resolved, That for the more expeditiously making the Fortifications necessary for the defence of the Town and Port of Boston, part of the forces of this Colony, lately raised for the defence of its sea-coasts, shall, without any delay, march to the said Town of Boston: that is to say, Captain Daniel Giddens, and the whole of the Company under his command, now doing duty at Gloucester, and Captain Daniel Ward, and a detachment of the Company under his command, to the number of fifty men, including himself, now doing duty at Salem; and that on their arrival at Boston they shall be under the field command of Colonel Josiah Whitney, and be employed in the service, as the Committee of this Court for the fortifying the Town and Harbour of Boston shall order. And that the said Company and Detachment, from the time of their march from their present posts to Boston aforesaid, and during their stay there, shall be on the same establishment of pay and subsistence as has been lately made by this Court for the Regiment now raising, to be commanded by the said Colonel Whitney; and that the Commissary for the Companies now posted at Gloucester supply the said Captain Giddens, and the Company under his command, with sufficient Rations, for their march to Boston, computing at the rate of one day for twenty miles travel. And that the Commissary for the Forces stationed at Salem supply the said Captain Ward, and the aforesaid Detachment, with sufficient Rations for their march to Boston, computing at the rate aforesaid. And that the honourable Council be empowered forthwith to make their orders to the above-named Captains, respectively, for the marching the said Company and Detachment to Boston aforesaid, and all other orders necessary for carrying this Resolve into execution.

Petition of Nathaniel Barber, setting forth: That he had had the honour of laying before you the state of the North Battery in this Town; since which he found two pieces of Cannon, (twelve-pounders,) have been taken from that dismantled Fortress; and on inquiry, find Mr. Nathaniel Barber, blacksmith, has taken them by order of Commissary Devens, and Assistant Quartermaster-General Frazer. Thought it my duty to give you this information. Likewise to acquaint your Honours, that at a meeting of the Committee of Inspection, held at Boston, the 9th instant, he was appointed to receive certificates of goods landed in this town, and to grant permissions to take on board merchandise to be exported, taking securities for their not being carried to the enemies of America. In the first part of this business he has acted, but has not as yet granted any permissions, and thinks he cannot till the further directions of the honourable Court. As many vessels from different parts are daily expected, he humbly hopes such directions will immediately be issued; and as he has tarried in town upon expense, humbly craves the favour of your Honours that he may be appointed, promising faithfully to observe such rules and directions as you shall please to order. And as there is such an appointment in Philadelphia, hopes your Honours will take into consideration as soon as possible, as it will be of great service to this devoted town. It will expedite business, which, under the present circumstances of the town, ought not to be retarded.

Read, and committed to Colonel Norton, Colonel Williams, and Mr. Nye, with James Otis and Caleb Cushing, Esquires.

In the House of Representatives: The House made choice (by ballot) of the following gentlemen to be Field-Officers for the First Regiment of Militia, in the County of York, viz: Ebenezer Sawyer, Colonel; Edward Grow, Lieutenant-Colonel; John Littlefield, First Major; John Nowell, Second Major.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, April 23, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, William Sever, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Thomas Cushing, Benjamin Chadbourne, Joseph Gerrish, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Michael Farley, and Benjamin White, Esquires.

Whereas a Resolve passed this Court the 12th of April current, empowering and directing the Committee appointed to fortify the Harbour of Boston, to sink Ships in the channel, between the Middle-Ground and Castle-Rocks, so called, for preventing any vessel of more than two hundred tons from passing to Boston: And it is found that Castle-Island is in a direct line between our Fortifications on Dorchester Point and that part of the channel the water in which is to be reduced; and that our enemies may remove any obstructions we may lodge therein without being exposed to the fire from any of our Batteries:

It is therefore Resolved, That the Committee aforesaid be, and they hereby are, empowered and directed to repair and raise such Fortifications on Castle-Island as may be found necessary.

And as covering will be wanted for the men employed on that Island, it is further

Resolved, That the Resolve of the 18th instant, empowering the said Committee to purchase and remove to Noddle's Island eight hundred feet of the Continental Barracks, be so far reconsidered as that the said Committee have liberty to remove so many feet of the said eight hundred to Castle-Island, and there rebuild them for the purpose aforesaid, as they shall judge necessary.

And whereas the design of raising a Regiment of men, and calling in a number of the Sea-Coast Companies, all to be under the command of Colonel Josiah Whitney, is to fortify the Harbour of Boston: And as this Court have appointed a Committee to see their orders relative to such Fortification carried into execution:

It is therefore Resolved, That the said Colonel Josiah Whitney be, and he hereby is, instructed to follow such directions as he may from time to time receive, from said Committee, in all things whatsoever which pertains to fortifying the Harbour aforesaid.

Whereas sundry persons of this Colony have joined our unnatural enemies, who have, in a hostile manner, been endeavouring to enslave the United Colonies, and others have absconded and removed out of this Colony, with intent to aid the despotick measures of our enemies; and divers of both sorts have left Estates, both Real and Personal, much of which have been already wasted, and more is liable to waste:

Therefore Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection, in each and every Town and Plantation in this Colony, where there is any Real or Personal Estate in their respective Towns, belonging to any person or persons that, in their opinion, have fled to Boston in the late time of distress, to secure themselves, or that have joined the unnatural enemies of the United Colonies, or that have withdrawn themselves out of this Colony to aid the despotick measures of our enemies, that they immediately take into possession all such Estates, and, according to their best discretion and judgment, for the use of this Colony, order and lease out such Real Estate to such person or persons, and for such sum and sums of money as they shall think proper, for the space of one year; and that they return to this Court a true Inventory of such Personal Estate as they shall receive into their possession belonging to each such person; and also an account to whom they shall let the said Estate, and the amount of the rent they shall agree to be paid for the same, any former order or resolve of the Congress of this Colony, or of the General Court, to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, always, That nothing in the foregoing Resolve shall be construed to extend to such Estates as aforesaid, whether Real or Personal, as are now held and possessed by persons friendly to this Colony, by virtue of any written conveyance bearing date and actually executed on or before the 22d day of May, 1775.

And whereas sundry persons in this Colony did not actually join our unnatural enemies, nor remove out of this Colony, but have discovered a strong attachment to them, and been aiding and assisting them in their wicked designs all in their power, and have approved of their measures:

It is therefore further Resolved, That the Committee aforesaid be directed to return to this Court, at or before the second Tuesday of their next session, the names of all persons who have in any manner acted against or opposed the rights or liberties of this country, or who have signed or voted any address to General Gage, approving his errand to this Colony, or his administration since the dissolution of the General Court at Salem, in 1774, or to Governor Hutchinson, after the arrival of General Gage, or to General Howe; or who have signed and promoted any Association for joining or assisting the enemies of this Continent; and of such as have fled from this Colony to or with the British Army, Fleet, or elsewhere, together with their respective crimes and evidences, or depositions which may be procured to prove the same, unless such person or persons shall have given ample satisfaction to the publick of their sincere contrition, thorough reformation, and firm attachment to the rights and interests of this and the other United Colonies of America; and it is recommended to the Justices of the Peace in the several Counties, to aid and assist such Committees in taking such depositions as may be procured in the premises.

Resolved, That the whole of the Stores lately imported into Dartmouth, in the Sloop Sally, belonging to this Colony, be stored there under the care of Captain Gamaliel Church and Lemuel Williams, and by them to be kept until removed by the Commissary-General of this Colony, or the order of this Court.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to examine Caleb Wheaton, Caleb Wheaton, Jun., and Joseph Wheaton, prisoners, taken in the Brigantine bound from Boston to Halifax, and sent to this Court by the Committee of Marblehead, have attended that service. It appearing to your Committee that the first named, Caleb Wheaton, having, while in Boston, been an Associator, and in other instances not friendly to American liberty, are of the opinion that the said Caleb Wheaton give bond to the Treasurer of this Colony for the sum of three hundred Pounds, with sufficient surety for his future good behaviour, or be confined in some Jail within this Colony until he shall find such surety; or if the said Wheaton shall think proper, and shall procure his passage for himself and family to Nova-Scotia, he may have liberty to remove there on his own expense, provided he will give his promise in writing, not to bear arms against the United Colonies. And that the said Caleb Wheaton, Jun., and Joseph Wheaton, upon their giving their written paroles not to bear arms against the United Colonies, nor any way to aid or assist the enemies of said Colonies, and they paying the expense of being brought before this Court, may be discharged.

As it is the wisdom of every community to encourage the growth and manufacture of those commodities which tend to the publick good, especially such articles as are necessary for defence in time of war; and as the furnishing a Navy is of the last importance, both to the present and future security of these United Colonies, and as this cannot be done without large quantities of the necessary article of Hemp, which may be produced to great advantage among us; and whereas the honourable Continental Congress have recommended that encouragement be given for the culture and growth of Hemp; therefore, for the encouragement of those who will undertake to cultivate so important a commodity at this time,

It is Resolved, That there shall be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, for every pound of good merchantable Hemp, water-rotted and well dressed, which shall be of the growth of this Colony, after the date hereof, a bounty of two Pence upon the pound, to continue for the space of three years from the date hereof; the quantity and quality of the Hemp to be certified to the Treasury of this Colony, under the hand of the major part of the Selectmen of the Town in which it was raised, who shall be empowered to administer an oath to the person producing the commodity, in the form following, viz:

Which oath shall be reduced to writing before it is administered, the quantity of Hemp being expressed in words, and not in figures; and the person taking the same shall subscribe his name thereto; after which, the surveyor shall endorse and subscribe his Certificate, in the form following, viz:

" . . . . ss. The . . . . day of . . . . A. D. . . . . surveyed the quantity of Hemp within-mentioned, and found it to be good and merchantable, and entitled to a premium agreeable to a resolve of the General Court."

It is earnestly recommended to all those whose situation will admit of it, by every method in their power, to promote the raising of Flax, the doing of which will be considered not only as acting a wise and prudent part with regard to themselves and families, in this time of scarcity, but as highly meriting the approbation of the publick.

Memorial of the President and Fellows of Harvard College, in Cambridge, setting forth: That immediately after the commencement of the present war in defence of American liberties, on the 19th day of April, 1775, all the Buildings and Appurtenances of said College were entered, and ever since have been occupied, by the Army, then suddenly assembled and formed, as Barracks, and for other necessary purposes; that said Buildings, with their Appurtenances, are greatly defaced and damaged by the Army, so that the repairs must amount to a considerable sum if put into the same good order as when occupied by the Students; that the Rents of said Buildings, by which many great and necessary expenses of the Society were defrayed, have wholly ceased for the year past; that not only the aforesaid Rents, but likewise one year's income of Charlestown Ferry, granted by the General Assembly of the Colony to the College soon after it was founded, has been cut off by this war, the said Ferry being in possession of the enemy; that we cannot doubt but that the honourable Continental Congress will consider it as a debt of justice to make good these losses which the College has sustained for the accommodation of the Continental Army, and by the British Troops; that since, by the signal smiles of Heaven on our military operations, the enemy's Fleet and Troops are driven from the Capital, and the Continental Forces are now removed from Cambridge; and since it is necessary that the Students of the College should return as soon as possible to their proper seat,—for these and other reasons, we think it proper to apply ourselves to this honourable Court, rather than more directly to the honourable Congress of the United Colonies, that the College Buildings may be repaired, the Students there reinstated, and this Literary Society compensated for the great losses it has sustained. We therefore beg leave to commend the aforesaid circumstances of the College under our care to the consideration of your Honours, that all necessary provision may be made for restoring and reimbursing this Society, as in your wisdom shall seem best, and that you would order accordingly.

Resolved, That Mr. Watson, Colonel Thatcher, and Major Fuller, be a Committee to estimate the damages sustained by Harvard College for the accommodation of the Continental Army, and by means of the British Forces; and that said Committee be empowered to make such repairs immediately as may be necessary for the comfortable accommodation of the members of said College, and report to this Court; and that said members have leave to take possession of these Buildings, and the Appurtenances thereunto belonging, as soon as those repairs are made.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Grafton, the sum of twenty-one Pounds fifteen Shillings and four and a half Pence, in full of their Account for Provisions supplied the Army in April last.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Bradford, the sum of thirty-four Pounds six Shillings and eight Pence, in full of their Account for Provisions supplied the Army.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Fitchburgh, the sum of fourteen Pounds eleven Shillings and two Pence, in full discharge of their Account for Provisions supplied the Army.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Holliston, the sum of fifty-eight Pounds nine Shillings, in full of their Account for boarding men at Roxbury and Cambridge, in the service of this Colony.

The Committee of both Houses, appointed to examine Caleb Wheaton, Caleb Wheaton, Jun., and Joseph Wheaton, Prisoners taken in the Brig bound from Boston to Halifax, and sent to this Court by the Committee of Marblehead, have attended that service, and report: That it appearing to your Committee that the said Caleb Wheaton having, while in Boston, been an Associator, and in other instances unfriendly to American liberty, are of opinion that the said Caleb Wheaton, Caleb Wheaton, Jun., and Joseph Wheaton, jointly and severally, give bond to the Treasurer of this Colony in the penal sum of five hundred Pounds, the condition whereof to be that they and every one of them will be of good behaviour, and will not correspond with any of the enemies of America, or take up arms against the United American Colonies; and that they subscribe and make solemn oath before a Justice of the Peace within this Colony that they will faithfully observe and fulfil the conditions before-mentioned; and that they pay such cost and charge as hath arisen by their being brought before the General Court; and in default of their complying with the foregoing, that they be committed to close confinement until the further order of the General Court.

CALEB CUSHING, per order.

Read, and accepted.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Abner Rawson, the sum of twenty-one Pounds sixteen Shillings and one Penny, for the use of the Committee of Supplies of the Town of Uxbridge, in full of their Account of Provisions supplied the Army.

Resolved, That the Officers of Militia who were called in last February to join the Continental Army at Dorchester and Roxbury, for a few days, be directed to make up their Muster-Rolls in the same manner as the Militia who have been called in at other times.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Methuen, the sum of sixteen Pounds two Shillings and four Pence, in full of their Account of Provisions supplied the Army.

Whereas a certain John Hill, lately taken prisoner by Commodore Manly in a vessel bound from Boston to Halifax, and brought into Portsmouth, was examined before the Council, and no evidence then appearing against him, he was discharged and set at liberty: And whereas it hath since been made to appear to this Court that the said Hill, at the time he was taken as aforesaid, had in his possession Chests, Trunks, and Packages of Goods and Merchandise, to the value of three hundred Pounds sterling, supposed to have been stolen from the distressed inhabitants of the Town of Boston, and was an assistant to Crean Brush in his late unwarrantable and high-handed thefts and robberies:

Therefore Resolved, That the said Hill be immediately apprehended wherever to be found, and brought before this Court for examination touching the premises; and all Sheriffs, Constables, and other Executive Officers, and all the good People of this Colony, are hereby directed and empowered to apprehend the said Hill wherever he may be found, and bring him forthwith before this Court, in order that he may be dealt with for his aforesaid high-handed crimes, as to law and justice appertains.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Captain Abel Kimball, the sum of eight Pounds seventeen Shillings, for the use of his Company, in full for their services for taking care of a Brigantine brought into Gloucester.

The Secretary, by order of the major part of the Council, went down with the following Message to the honourable House, viz:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

"We earnestly recommend to your consideration, the propriety and even necessity of raising a number of men, perhaps one Regiment, sufficient to fortify, and effectually secure the Town of Hull, Pettick's Island, and Long-Island, by which the Towns of Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree, Milton, and Dorchester, with the adjoining Towns, will be secured, and the enemy obliged to leave the Road of Nantasket, and all the internal part of the Harbour of Boston. This will so far open the trade to the Town of Boston as to admit wood, &c., to come in by water, at a much less risk than at present, and will prevent the necessity of keeping any Troops at Hingham, or any other Towns within the Harbour of Boston.

"In the name and by order of the major part of the Council:

"JAMES OTIS, President."

The Committee of both Houses on the Petition of Major Barber, beg leave to report, that said Barber's Petition be so far granted as that he may be appointed to give permits to all vessels coming in and going out of the Port of Boston, agreeable to the Resolves of the Continental Congress.

JAMES OTIS, per order.

And the said Captain Stone is directed to pay the said sum of seventy-five Pounds fourteen Shillings and six Pence, to the Treasurer of this Colony, taking duplicate Receipts therefor, one of which, together with the three Warrants, to be lodged with the Secretary of the Colony.

Whereas by a Resolve of this Court, of the 9th of November last, the Sheriff of the County of Suffolk, and other officers in that County, were authorized and empowered to commit any person or persons to the Jail in the County of Plymouth whom they might legally commit to the Jail in the County of Suffolk, as the Town of Boston, in which the County Jail is, was then in the possession of the enemies of the United Colonies, as by the same Resolve will more fully appear: And whereas the enemies aforesaid have fled from the said Town of Boston, and the inhabitants have again taken possession thereof, and the difficulties of imprisoning persons there is now removed:

It is therefore Resolved, That the Resolve aforesaid, so far as it relates to the Sheriffs, or other persons belonging to the County of Suffolk, imprisoning any person in the Jail in the County of Plymouth, be, and hereby is, declared null and void, and shall be of no further force or effect; and that the Sheriff of the County of Suffolk be, and he hereby is, fully authorized and empowered to remove from the Jail in the County of Plymouth to the Jail in the Town of Boston, all and every person and persons that were by him or others, officers in the County of Suffolk, committed to said Plymouth Jail, in pursuance and by virtue of the Resolve aforesaid.

Whereas the honourable the Continental Congress have recommended to this and the other United Colonies the manufacturing of Salt, and have caused to be transmitted to this Court a Pamphlet, setting forth the particular mode practised in other parts, which discovers the probability of its being carried into effect in this Colony:

Therefore it is Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of the several Sea-Port Towns in this Colony, to use their utmost endeavours to proceed in the manufacturing of Salt in their several towns.

And that they may have all the information given them in this matter that this Court can, at present, furnish them with,

It is further Resolved, That the number of one hundred and fifty of said Pamphlets be printed, and sent to the several Sea-Port Towns in this Colony; and that Mr. Story be appointed to get them printed and dispersed accordingly.

Petition of John Stevens, setting forth: That he has been a long time confined in Jail, upon suspicion of being a spy of the enemy, of which he is entirely innocent; and upon that suspicion he is now confined in Jail, and never could obtain a hearing, neither before a Court-Martial or any other authority; therefore begs leave to be brought before your Honours, that, by word, he may give your Honours full satisfaction that he is innocent. He is under great necessity; having lost his shirts, he has not been able to shirt himself for seven weeks past; therefore begs leave for a speedy hearing.

Read, and Ordered, That the Justices appointed to examine the enemies of the United Colonies, in Boston, be empowered to examine the above-named John Stevens, and dispose of him according to his demerits.

Whereas it is represented that sundry persons have procured, and are now using means to procure, from without this Colony, quantities of Saltpetre, or the materials therefor, partly wrought, with a view to receive from the Treasury of this Colony the price and premium promised for such as should be manufactured within this Colony: Wherefore, for the prevention of any such fraudulent practices and impositions taking place,

It is Resolved, That all persons, who are, or may be, appointed by the General Court, to receive and pay for Saltpetre manufactured within this Colony, be directed, and they hereby are directed, not to receive and pay for any quantity of Saltpetre, that may be brought to them respectively, for the use of the Colony, until the person or persons bringing the same shall take an oath agreeable to the form hereto annexed, or otherwise shall produce a Certificate from the Justice of the Peace, that the manufacturer has taken a like oath before him; in which case the person presenting the Saltpetre shall make oath before the receiver of it, that he took it into his possession in presence of the said Justice, and that the whole thereof is the same Saltpetre referred to in such Certificate; which Certificate shall be lodged with the person receiving the Saltpetre, who is hereby authorized to administer an oath accordingly.

Form of the Oath.

"You, A B, do solemnly swear, that the whole process of the manufacture of the Saltpetre now presented by you, was begun, carried on, and finished within the limits of this Colony; and that no foreign Saltpetre is mixed therewith. So help you God."

Whereas the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Jail Delivery, according to law should be holden at Barnstable, within and for the County of Barnstable and Dukes County, on the Wednesday next preceding the third Tuesday of May next: And whereas the Small-Pox is prevalent in said Town of Barnstable, and other circumstances of this Colony are such as that said Courts cannot conveniently be held there at the time aforesaid:

Therefore Resolved, That the said Courts be, and they hereby are, adjourned to Wednesday, the 16th day of October next, then to be held at the Court-House in Barnstable aforesaid, and that all appeals, pleas, processes, writs, actions, suits issued or to be issued, complaints, precepts, recognisances, and all other matters and things returnable and having, and that should have had day in the said Court if the said Court had been held on the day by law appointed as aforesaid, and shall be returnable and have day on the said 16th day of October next, and shall abide and continue unto that time, and shall be proceeded upon, heard, and determined, to all intents and purposes as effectually as if said Courts were held on the day by law appointed as aforesaid.

Whereas the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Jail Delivery, according to law should be holden at Plymouth on the third Tuesday of May next: And whereas the circumstances of this Colony are such as that said Courts cannot conveniently be held there at the time aforesaid:

Therefore Resolved, That the said Courts be, and they hereby are, adjourned to Tuesday, the 22d day of October next, then to be held at the Court-House in Plymouth aforesaid, and that all appeals, pleas, processes, writs, actions, suits issued or to be issued, complaints, precepts, recognisances, and all other matters and things returnable and having and that should have had day by law as aforesaid, shall be returnable and have day on the said 22d day of October next, and shall abide and continue until that time, and shall be proceeded on, heard, and determined, to all intents and purposes as effectually as if said Courts were held on the day by law appointed as aforesaid.

Resolved, That for the further encouragement to Seamen to enlist into the Colony sea service, one month's advance wages be paid to the said Seamen at the time of their passing muster; and also that their wages be paid at the end of every three months, or as soon afterwards as they shall arrive in some Port of this Colony.

Resolved, That the Officers of said Vessels be, and hereby are, allowed to enlist men out of the Companies raised for the defence of the Sea-Coasts; and the Officers of said Companies be directed to permit any of their men to enlist into the Colony and Continental sea service only, and to enlist others to supply vacancies occasioned thereby, as soon as may be.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to build and fix out Armed Vessels, or any one of them, muster the men raised for the Armed Vessels of this Colony, and pay them their advance wages, and receive out of the Treasury a sum agreeable to an abstract to be returned for that purpose.

Resolved, That such men as shall be enlisted for the sea-service of this Colony, and are not able to furnish themselves with Arms, agreeable to a former resolve of this Court, be furnished with the same by this Colony, and that twelve Shillings be deducted from the wages of each man so furnished.

Resolved, That the Uniform of the Officers be green and white, and that they furnish themselves accordingly; and the Colours be a white Flag, with a green Pine tree, and an inscription: "Appeal to Heaven."

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, William Sever, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Thomas Cushing, Benjamin Chadbourn, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Moses Gill, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Whereas in consequence of a Resolve of the General Court, of the 25th instant, one John Hill was apprehended and sent to this Court by the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Marblehead:

Ordered, That Benjamin Chadbourn, Esq., with Mr. Cushing and Mr. Sullivan, be a Committee to examine said Hill, and report thereon.

Whereas John Hill, a prisoner now before this Court, is justly suspected to have been assisting Creeen Brush in robbing the inhabitants of the Town of Boston of their goods and merchandise:

It is therefore Resolved, That the said John Hill be sent, under a proper guard, to Boston Jail, there to be confined as a prisoner until he shall be examined by the seven Justices of the Peace of the County of Suffolk, or the major part of them, who are appointed to try Associators and abettors of the Ministerial Army; which Justices are empowered to examine the said Hill, and deal with him in the same manner as if he had remained in Boston after the said Fleet and Army had gone away.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, William Sever, Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, Benjamin Chadbourn, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Michael Farley, Samuel Holten, Esquires.

Whereas the plan of Military Discipline published by Timothy Pickering, Esq., appears to this Court to be well adapted to the use and practice of a Militia, as it contains all motions in the Manual Exercise that are necessary and useful, and is not, like the Sixty-Fourth, Norfolk, and others, clogged with many superfluous motions, which only serve to burden the memory and perplex the learner; and as it also contains many useful manœuvres, &c., not published in the Sixty-Fourth:

Therefore it is Resolved, That the aforesaid plan of Exercise published by Timothy Pickering, Esq., shall for the future be used and practised by the Militia of this Colony; and all Officers thereof are hereby directed and enjoined to learn the same, and to instruct and exercise the Soldiers under their command respectively agreeable to the said plan in all their publick Trainings and Musters accordingly.

A Bill entitled "An Act for raising a Regiment of Horse in the County of Worcester," having passed the House of Representatives to be engrossed:

In Council: Read a second time, and passed a concurrence to be engrossed.

Whereas the power given to the Committee for fortifying the Town and Harbour of Boston, by a Resolve of this Court passed this House the 24th instant, empowering the said Committee to draw on the Commissary-General for Intrenching Tools and Provisions for one hundred men, or as many of them as they should employ, is insufficient to answer the end it was intended for:

Therefore Resolved, That the Committee for fortifying the Town and Harbour of Boston be, and they hereby are, further empowered to draw on the Commissary-General for as many Intrenching Tools, and other stores, and as much Provision as will be necessary, to supply all the men that they are empowered by this Court to employ for the purpose aforesaid; and the said Commissary is hereby directed to conduct himself accordingly.

Also Resolved, That the said Committee be, and hereby are, empowered and directed to consult Colonel Gridley, or such other Engineer as they shall think proper, relative to fortifying the said Town and Harbour.

Whereas a Committee has been appointed by this Court to go to the County of Berkshire to take under consideration the difficulties subsisting there, and report to the General Court:

Resolved, That said Committee be directed to refrain from going to said County till the further order of this Court.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen of Templeton, the sum of eighteen Pounds nine Shillings and three Pence, in full of their Account for Provisions supplied the Army.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Elisha Cranson, the sum of three Pounds nine Shillings, for the use of the Selectmen of Ashfield, in full of their Account for Provisions supplied the Army.

Whereas it is represented to this Court that a navigable Canal may, without much difficulty, be cut through the Isthmus which separates Buzzard's Bay and Barnstable's Bay, whereby the hazardous navigation around Cape-Cod, both on account of the shoals and enemy, may be prevented, and a safe communication between this Colony and the Southern Colonies be so far secured:

Resolved, That James Bowdoin and William Sever, Esquires, with Colonel Freeman, Brigadier Godfrey, and Mr. Cushing, or the major part of them, be a Committee to repair to the Town of Sandwich, and view the premises, and report whether the cutting a Canal as aforesaid be practicable or not; and they are hereby authorized to employ any necessary Surveyors and Assistant for that purpose.

A Bill entitled "An Act for regulating the Fees and Allowances of the several Officers within this Colony," having passed the House of Representatives to be enacted:

Whereas no person or persons in this Colony has as yet made it appear to this Court that he or they have entitled him or themselves to the Premiums offered by this Court in and by their Resolve of the 14th day of February last, for erecting such Powder-Mills as are described in the said Resolve, &c.; and as this Court are of opinion that it would be expedient and conducive to the publick safety that there should be at least two Powder-Mills in this Colony besides the Powder-Mill at Andover, and the two that are erecting at the cost of the Colony:

It is therefore Resolved, That the term of nine months, from the 15th of February last, be allowed for erecting the Powder-Mills in said Resolve described; and that such person or persons as shall, in all respects other than by the time limited in the said Resolve, comply with the terms and conditions thereof within the said nine months, shall be entitled to the said Premiums.

Whereas by a Resolve of this Court of the 1st of April last, the Commissary-General was directed to clear out and repair all such Cannon now lying at Boston and Castle-Island, which he judges may be made fit for use: And whereas it is of great importance to this Colony that the most speedy and effectual measures be immediately taken to carry into execution the Resolve before-mentioned:

Resolved, That Lemuel Robinson, Esq., be appointed, with the Commissary-General, for the purposes in said Resolve mentioned; and they are directed to procure all such of said Cannon as they shall judge fit for use to be repaired in the most expeditious manner.

Whereas by reason of the removal of the Continental Army from this Colony, it is become necessary that Guards should be kept at some parts of the Sea-Coasts near Boston:

It is therefore Resolved, That one new Company of men, to consist of one hundred men, inclusive of Officers, be immediately raised for the defence of the Sea-Coasts of this Colony, on the same establishment of pay and subsistence which was granted by the Resolve above-mentioned; the said Company to be constituted in manner following, viz: one Captain, two Lieutenants, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Drummer, one Fifer, and eighty-seven Privates; and that the said Company shall be posted and do duty in such manner, and in such divisions or parties, as the honourable Council shall order; who are hereby empowered to distribute the said Company at Dorchester, Weymouth, Braintree, and Hingham, until the further order of this Court. Whereas by a Resolve which passed the honourable House of Representatives the 31st of October last, and was concurred by the Board the 1st day of November, 1775, the Commissary-General was directed to pay for all such Fire-Arms, manufactured in this Colony, and finished as in said Resolve expressed, and delivered to the Commissary's store in Watertown on or before the 1st of June next, the sum of three Pounds for each Fire-Arm; and for the convenience of such manufacturers, it was also resolved that the several persons whose names are in said Resolve mentioned, be respectively empowered to receive for the Colony at the price, and during the time aforesaid, all Fire-Arms which should be offered them for sale, manufactured as aforesaid: And whereas the Commissary-General has not obtained the number of Fire-Arms which he has been directed to procure for the use of this Colony: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this Colony, and the several persons mentioned in the Resolve above referred to, be authorized and empowered to receive and pay for each Fire-Arm manufactured and finished as before-mentioned, that shall be delivered them, until the 1st day of October next, the sum of three Pounds; and are hereby directed to apply to the Council for a warrant or warrants upon the Treasurer of this Colony for such sum or sums as they may judge necessary for the purpose.

Whereas the time fixed by this Court for receiving and paying for Saltpetre manufactured in this Colony, at the rate of seven Shillings a pound, expires on the 1st of June; and lest there should be a neglect in continuing the manufacture of that important article:

It is Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony the sum of five Shillings (inclusive of three Shillings before engaged) a pound, for every pound of good and merchantable Saltpetre that shall be manufactured in this Colony, from and after the 1st day of June next, until the 1st day of October next, and delivered to such persons as the General Court shall appoint to receive the same; and Mr. Story is appointed to cause this Resolve to be printed in the several Newspapers.

Whereas a Company of men, stationed at Gloucester, under the command of Captain Daniel Giddings, were ordered by a Resolve of this Court to march to Boston, to assist in fortifying that Town and Harbour; and whereas it appears to this Court that the men stationed at Gloucester are not more than sufficient to guard and defend that place:

Therefore Resolved, That the Resolve for ordering the Company of men aforesaid to march to Boston, be, and hereby is, declared null and void, and that the Company aforesaid remain in the station they were fixed at Gloucester aforesaid, till the further order of this Court.

Resolved, That the Committee for fortifying the Town and Harbour of Boston, be, and they hereby are, empowered to hire, in behalf of this Colony, a further number of men, not exceeding two hundred, if they find them necessary, on the best terms they can be procured; and said men to be employed in fortifying said Harbour with the utmost expedition, and them, or any part of them, to dismiss as soon as the safety of the Town and Harbour of Boston will permit, or by order of the General Court.

And each of the Company shall be equipped and provided with the same kind of warlike accoutrements, and shall have the same allowance of provisions, as is provided and established for the Regiment last raised for fortifying the Town and Harbour of Boston; and shall be holden to continue in the service of this Colony from the time of their enlistment to the 2d day of May next, if the service shall require.

In the House of Representatives: Ordered, That the following Letter be signed by the President of the Council, and be forwarded to the Indian Chiefs of the Penobscot Tribe, viz:

"To our Brethren the INDIAN Chiefs of the Penobscot Tribe:

"FRIENDS AND GOOD BROTHERS, Greeting: This letter is to acquaint you that we received your favour by Lieutenant Gilman, dated at Penobscot River, the 22d of November, 1775, by which you have acquainted us that you made choice of Mr. Jonathan Lowder for your Truckmaster, and finding that Mr. Preble was appointed, you were not contented, and that you want to know how the alteration came to be made. You say you have heard that it was altered by means of two young Indians that came here. In answer to this, we tell you that we are sorry that you are not contented with Mr. Preble, and have so many complaints against him. This alteration in the Truckmaster happened by a very great mistake, as both these men were to keep at Penobscot; but we trust you will excuse it, as we were then very much troubled with the white people of Old England, which we have since drove out of our Colony. You tell us that when you agree to a thing, you mean to stand to it. We mean to stand to all the promises we have made to you. You may depend on it, that all we have promised you will be done by us. Captain Lane is obliged to go to New-York, and he cannot come to you this summer; but we have ordered Lieutenant Gilman to keep at Penobscot with you. You desire us to mind nobody but the heads of your tribes. We desire you for the time to come, to sign all the letters you send us with your mark, that we may not be deceived.

"Dear Brothers: We have the pleasure to tell you that, by the help of God, we have drove the wicked people of Old England out of our Colony, and we trust and believe we shall be able to keep them out. We have built forts in almost all our towns that are near the water. We are also building a great many ships of war, with which we intend to drive away all their ships. We have heard that our enemy intends to go to Canada this summer. If they do, we trust you will help us to drive them away, if we should want you.

"Your letter came so late that a great many of our Court were gone home before we read it; therefore we shall order the further consideration of it to the next General Court, which will be in June. They will find you a Truckmaster that you will be contented with, who will trade with you and supply you with such things as you will want, if they can be bought.

Wednesday, May 8, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, John Winthrop, Thomas Cushing, Benjamin Chadbourn, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Benjamin Lincoln, Michael Farley, Joseph Palmer, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Moses Gill, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Whereas, William Wood, Robert Ayles, and others, who were taken in bringing supplies to the enemy of the United Colonies, have obtained leave from this Court to proceed to Great Britain on their parole; but the said Wood, Ayle, and others, having delayed their voyage, and being now on board a Schooner in the Harbour of Gloucester, with design to proceed on the voyage aforesaid; and as a powerful Fleet and Army are now on our coast, and their having information of the present circumstances and movements of this Colony may be of dangerous tendency,

It is therefore Resolved, That the Committee of said Gloucester be, and they hereby are, empowered and directed to haul up and strip said Schooner, and detain the said Wood and Ayle, and all other persons designing to go to England in said Schooner, until the further order of the General Court.

Resolved, That the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston be a Committee of War, whose business it shall be, until the first meeting of the next General Court, to direct the Commissary-General of this Colony respecting taking in and delivering out the warlike Stores of this Colony to and from the publick Magazines, as the exigences thereof may require; and, also, to appoint agents, and in all respects provide for and give such instructions to the Commanders of the Armed Vessels that are or may be fitted out on account of this Colony, from time to time, and at all times, in all respects, as to them shall appear necessary for the defence and interest of this Colony, or the United Colonies, and not contrary to the Resolves of the Continental Congress, or any Law or Resolve of the General Court. And the said Committee are further empowered to direct the Commissary-General of this Colony to procure all such warlike Stores as they may find necessary for the defence and security of this Colony. And the Council are hereby empowered to grant Warrants to the said Committee, on the Treasurer of this Colony, for such sum or sums of money as the Committee aforesaid may have occasion for; and that said Committee be accountable for the expenditures of the money so received.

Resolved, That there be allowed to the Officers and Soldiers of the Militia of this Colony, that were called in at the request of his Excellency General Washington, when the Continental Army took possession of the Heights of Dorchester, Rations, in such proportion as are allowed in the said Continental Army, from the time of the said Militia marching from their places of abode until their return to their respective homes; and the Officers of said Militia are directed to make up their Rolls accordingly.

Whereas Captain White, in Colonel Whitney's Regiment, who had Beating Orders, has declined the service; and others who have received Beating Orders, may do the same; and the General Court being about to rise:

Resolved, That the honourable Council be empowered to issue Orders to some meet persons for raising a Company, instead of the said White, or any other person or persons who may resign their Orders for raising Soldiers for the said Regiment, and make Commissions for such persons as may receive such new Orders, if they shall judge them proper persons therefor.

A Bill entitled "An Act in addition to an Act for fixing out Armed Vessels for the defence of America," having had two several readings, passed to be enacted.

A Bill entitled "An Act in addition to an Act to supply the Treasury with fifty thousand Pounds," having had two several readings, passed to be enacted.

Whereas the Commissary-General of this Colony was directed by a late Resolve of this Court to procure ten Cannon for the defence of the Town of Falmouth; and whereas the same has not yet been provided for that purpose,

Therefore Resolved, That the said Commissary be, and he hereby is, directed to deliver to Samuel Freeman, Esq., or his order, ten Cannon, of the sizes mentioned in said Resolve, or as near the size thereof as can be, out of the Cannon now in the Town of Boston, as soon as they are put in repair, provided the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston are of opinion that the same can be spared consistent with the general interest and safety of the Colony.

Resolved, That upon Peter Coffin, Esq., of Gloucester, making application to the Commissary-General of this Colony, the said Commissary be directed to deliver to the said Coffin, two Cannon, of eighteen-pounders, provided the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston judge that it may be done, and thirty Balls fit for the same; and, also, sixty nine-pound Balls, and take his receipt for the same.

Whereas by an Act for regulating the Militia passed by this Court, in their session in January last, it was provided that sundry Intrenching Tools, as by the said Act it is expressed, should be procured by the Selectmen in the Colony; and whereas there is the greatest reason to expect that a formidable Fleet and Army will soon invade this Colony; and it being absolutely necessary to the preservation of the lives, liberty, and property of the good people thereof, that the Militia should be put in the best posture of defence:

It is therefore Resolved, That the Selectmen of the several Towns in this Colony be, and they hereby are, directed and strictly enjoined, as they regard the lives of this people, to provide all Intrenching Tools, as by the Act aforesaid is directed, without the least delay, and that returns of the same be made by said Selectmen to the General Court, on the 3d day of the next session thereof.

And it is Ordered, That the foregoing Resolve be published by the Secretary in the Boston, Watertown, and Worcester Newspapers, as soon as may be.

Adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Thursday, May 9, 1776.

Present in Council: Honourable James Otis, Walter Spooner, Caleb Cushing, John Winthrop, Benjamin Chadbourn, Thomas Cushing, John Whetcomb, Jedediah Foster, James Prescott, Eldad Taylor, Michael Farley, Samuel Holten, Jabez Fisher, Benjamin White, Esquires.

Resolved, That Thomas Crane, Esq., be, and he hereby is, appointed to carry on the manufacturing of Gunpowder in the Colony Mill at Stoughton, until the further order of the General Court; and the said Crane is hereby empowered and directed to employ, in behalf of this Colony, so many suitable persons as are necessary in order to carry on the same.

And it is also Resolved, That the said Thomas Crane, Esq., be, and he hereby is, appointed to receive so much Saltpetre at such convenient place near said Mill as he shall appoint as can be manufactured therein, giving the same therefor as the Commissary-General is authorized to give at Watertown; for which purpose, the Commissary-General is directed to deliver to said Crane, the sum of three hundred Pounds; he, the said Crane, giving his receipt therefor, and being accountable to the General Court for the same.

And it is further Resolved, That the said Thomas Crane, Esq., is directed to establish lines at a convenient distance from the said Mill, by setting up posts, and extending rails from one of them to the other, entirely round said Mill, and to set proper guards at the same, who shall be empowered to fire upon any person who shall attempt, after being three times forbid by such guards, to enter the said lines.

And it is also Resolved, That the Commissary-General shall, from time to time, until the further order of the General Court, deliver to the said Crane, or order, so much Saltpetre as he shall want to employ said Mill, over and above what he shall purchase as aforesaid, provided there shall be more than sufficient to employ the Powder-Mill built by Samuel Phillips, Jr., at Andover.

And it is also Resolved, That Mr. Vose, one of the Committee appointed by the General Court to purchase Sulphur, be directed to supply the said Crane, with so much Sulphur as he shall require to keep the Mill aforesaid in constant employ, said Crane to be accountable to the General Court for the same.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Rev. Mr. Gordon, for his attendance three months, and necessary expense, the sum of six Pounds; and also to the Rev. Mr. Thatcher, for his attendance five months, from the 5th of December to the 8th of May, and for his horse-hire and necessary expenses, the sum of fifteen Pounds.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to fortify Boston Harbour be, and hereby are, empowered to purchase of the Continent, take down and transport to such places as they think proper, and there erect, any quantity of Barracks they may judge necessary for the use of this Colony, not exceeding two thousand feet.

Resolved, That the Committee aforesaid prepare and lay before the Council an Account of such sums as are necessary for paying Labourers and Carpenters they have or may employ agreeable to the order of Court; and the Council are hereby empowered to give them Warrants on the Treasury for the same, the said Committee to be accountable to the General Court for the same.

Resolved, That the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston be, and hereby are, empowered and directed immediately to procure and prepare with everything necessary, such a number of Fire-Ships and Rafts as they may judge proper to annoy the enemy's ships, if they should again return to Boston Harbour; and the said Committee are also directed without delay to sink the Hulks before ordered by this Court, in such place and in such manner as the said Committee shall think best.

Also Resolved, That said Committee, after they shall have completed the Fortresses which this Court have ordered to be made on Dorchester-Neck, Castle-Island, and Noddle's Island, be empowered to remove the Block-House upon Boston-Neck to Governour's Island, and place two or three Cannon and cast up Works there, if the said Committee shall, on good advisement, judge that the enemy may be thereby prevented from landing and taking possession of the high ground on the said Island. And the said Committee are directed to apply to General Ward, or such other person as may have the care and disposition of the Boats belonging to the United Colonies, for such and so many of the said Boats as they shall judge necessary for the use of this Colony, in carrying on and defending the Fortresses which they have been directed and empowered to erect for the defence of the Town and Harbour of Boston. And the said Committee are hereby empowered to engage, in behalf of this Colony, to return and deliver such Boats as they may receive for the use aforesaid; or in default thereof to make satisfaction to the United Colonies for such of them as shall not be returned upon demand, to the person or persons who shall have right to require the same in behalf of the said Colonies.

Whereas it has been usual in time of war to keep one or more Vessels to cruise as spies, and give intelligence of the approach of an enemy, and great advantages have accrued from the same: And whereas the great dependance which this Colony has on the Militia thereof for defence, renders it absolutely necessary that timely advice should be given of the advance of an enemy:

It is therefore Resolved, That Mr. Speaker, Captain Batchelder, and Mr. Hall, be, and they hereby are, appointed a Committee, to hire or purchase, and fit out, at the expense of this Colony, two swift-sailing Vessels, not exceeding forty tons each, to cruise on the coast of America, and give intelligence of the movements of the enemy; and lay their accounts for fixing out said Vessels before the General Court for allowance. And when the said Vessels shall be ready to sail, the Committee of War is hereby empowered and directed to man, arm, victual, and give orders for their proceeding; which orders the said Masters of said Vessels shall be obliged to observe and obey.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he hereby is, directed to deliver to Captain Josiah Batchelder, Jun., or order, two large Cannon that were left in the Town of Boston, for the use of the Town of Beverley, until the further order of the General Court, provided the Committee of War judge that it may be done consistent with the general interest and safety of the Colony.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to John Story, sub-Commissary to Colonel Little's Regiment, the sum of five Pounds five Shillings, in full of his services.

Whereas in a contract made by this Court with Samuel Phillips, Jun., for manufacturing Gunpowder for the use of the Colony, it was provided that the said Phillips keep a sufficient guard for his Mill: And whereas it is necessary that the said guard should be invested with authority in order to answer the purpose for which it is ordered:

It is therefore Resolved, That the said Phillips cause to be placed round the said Mill, and every building belonging thereto that shall contain any Gunpowder, a pole or line, at the distance of one rod at least; and if any person shall enter within such bounds as have been herein mentioned, at any time between sun-setting and sun-rising, and refuse or neglect to depart therefrom after having been three times called upon and audibly, by any person that may be on guard by consent of the said Phillips, in such case it shall be lawful for the said guard to fire on any person so neglecting or refusing.

Resolved, That there be delivered out of the Commissary's Store at Falmouth, one barrel of Gunpowder, and that Brigadier Thompson be a Committee to receive the same for said Harpswell and Brunswick, he being accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolved, That the Commissary, appointed the 29th of March, 1776, of the forces stationed at Dartmouth for the defence of the Sea-Coast, be, and he hereby is, empowered and directed by this Court, to supply the Company stationed as aforesaid, with Barracks, Wood, and utensils to cook in, and their allowances of provisions and money, according to the establishment made by this Court on the 27th of December last, for the forces stationed on the Sea-Coast.

Resolved, That the three Regiments granted by this Court, and to be raised under the command of Colonels Marshall, Whitney, and Crafts, when raised shall, until the meeting of the next General Court, be under the direction of the Committee of War, who are hereby empowered and directed to put them, as occasion may require, under the command of the General of the Continental Forces stationed within this Colony, and at any time when they shall think proper, to resume the same again.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed this day to hire, or purchase and fit out, at the expense of this Colony, two swift-sailing Vessels, not exceeding forty tons each, to cruise on the Coast of America, and give intelligence of the movements of the enemy, be, and they hereby are, fully authorized and empowered to man, arm, and victual, the said two Vessels fit for the sea; and that when they are ready, the Committee of War give such orders to the several Masters, for their proceeding, as they shall judge proper, anything in the resolve appointing the Committee aforesaid to the contrary notwithstanding; and that the said Committee receive out of the Treasury of this Colony the sum of three hundred Pounds, for the purposes aforesaid; each of the said Committee to be accountable to the General Court for the sum they shall respectively receive.

Resolved, That Colonel Orne and others, who are a Committee appointed to purchase a quantity of Powder lately imported into Newburyport, be, and they hereby are, empowered to impress said Powder, and secure it for the use of this Colony, provided that the importers of said Powder, or others who have or may have the disposal thereof, have not sold it, or refuse to sell it on the terms on which said Committee are authorized to purchase the same; and the said Committee are directed to assure the owners of the said Powder that the General Court will be ready to hear any reasons that may be offered why they should have a higher price for the same than has been offered by this Court.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he hereby is, directed, as soon as possible, to purchase for the use of this Colony, besides what he has already procured, five hundred Pick-Axes, two hundred and fifty Spades, five hundred Shovels, sixty Crows, fifty Wheelbarrows, four hundred barrels of Pork, one hundred barrels of Beef, two hundred barrels of Peas or Beans, and three hundred Nar-row-Axes.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Eunice Whitcomb, Administratrix of the estate of Joshua Whitcomb, deceased, the sum of four Pounds seven Shillings, in full of his losses in the battle of Charlestown.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Timothy Walker, Esq., the sum of thirty Shillings, for the use of Benjamin Gleason, in full of his losses at the battle of Bunker's Hill, on the 17th of June last.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Zachariah Weston, the sum of one Pound twelve Shillings, in full for his losses at Lexington.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Ephraim Chamberlain, the sum of one Pound ten Shillings, in full for his losses at the battle of Charlestown.

Whereas it appears to this Court that the appointment of the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston a Committee of War, is likely to involve said Committee in more business than they can attend to:

It is therefore Resolved, That the Vote appointing the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston a Committee of War, is hereby reconsidered, and that General Azor Orne, the Honourable James Sullivan, Esq., Colonel Abram Watson, and Daniel Cheever, Esq., with such as the honourable Board shall join, be, and hereby are, appointed a Committee of War, until the next meeting of the General Court, vested with all the powers which the said Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston were vested with as a Committee of War, the major part of whom to be a quorum.

Whereas it has been represented to this Court that divers Officers and Soldiers, who served in the Army raised by this Colony before the 1st day of August last, and for whose service Muster-Rolls have been made up to that time, have received clothing, advance wages, and warlike accoutrements, to the amount of a greater sum than their wages were, by which a balance is become due to the Colony:

Therefore Resolved, That the Receiver-General be, and hereby is, directed to prepare a list of the names of all Officers and Soldiers from whom there is any balance due to this Colony on the Muster-Rolls made up for services in the Colony Army before the first day of August last, with the sum of such balance, and the particular Regiments and Companies to which said Officers and Soldiers respectively belonged, and lay the same before the General Court, that proper order may be taken thereon.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to Thomas Crain and Daniel Vose, Esquires, the sum of three hundred Pounds, to enable them to pay and discharge the debts they have already contracted for labour and materials in building a Powder-Mill at Stoughton, for the Colony's use, and further to enable them to complete the same, they to be accountable to the General Court therefor.

Whereas a Resolve passed this Court on the 26th day of April last, for raising a new Company, to consist of one hundred men, inclusive of officers, to be immediately raised for the defence of the Sea-Coast of this Colony, on the same establishment of pay and subsistence that was granted to the Companies under the command of Captain William Crother and Captain Elisha Nye, stationed at Falmouth and Elizabethtown, and were, by said Resolve, to be posted and do duty in such manner and in such divisions or parties as the honourable Council should order, who were empowered to distribute the said Companies at Dorchester, Weymouth, Braintree, and Hingham, until the further order of this Court; and whereas this Court, since the passing said Resolve, have raised a new Regiment of men for the defence of the Sea-Coasts near Boston, to be under the command of Colonel Marshall, whereby it is rendered unnecessary to raise said Company for the defence of this Colony; and whereas no officers are appointed for the said one hundred men:

Therefore Resolved, That the said Resolve, passed on the 26th day of April last, for raising said Company of one hundred men, be reconsidered, and every part and clause thereof be rendered null and void.

Resolved, That Mr. Samuel Phillips, Jun., be, and hereby is, directed and empowered, as soon as may be, to deliver to the Selectmen, or their order, of all such Towns as are situated within twenty miles of any sea-port, and have lent Powder for the Colony's use, and have not been paid therefor, the respective quantities they have so supplied; they producing proper receipts of the same being received for the use of the Colony, and giving their receipts for the same.

Whereas some doubts may arise about the appointment of a Clerk of the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Jail Delivery, out of Term time,

It is therefore Resolved, That the Justices of said Court, or any three of them, be, and they hereby are, authorized and empowered, out of Term time, to appoint a Clerk to said Court, which Clerk, when so appointed, and being duly sworn to the faithful discharge of said office, by either of the said Justices, shall have all the powers to a Clerk of said Court belonging, any law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

In Council: Read, and concurred.

Resolved, That four Companies that have been doing duty in Dorchester, Braintree, Weymouth, and Hingham, be immediately officered by the Council, and filled up on the same establishment as the other Companies on the Sea-Coast are, and stationed and employed as the Committee of War shall direct.

Resolved, That Mr. Zebediah Abbot, of Andover, be, and he hereby is, appointed one of the Committee for receiving and examining the article of Saltpetre; and that the said Abbot receive out of the Colony Treasury the sum of five hundred Pounds, to enable him to pay for what Saltpetre he shall receive; he to be accountable to the General Court for the same.

Resolved, That the Council be, and hereby are, empowered to appoint Mustermasters for Colonel Whitney's, Colonel Marshall's, and Colonel Craft's Regiment.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Honourable Benjamin Greenleaf, and Stephen Cross, Esquires, Mr. Daniel Hopkins, and Captain Daniel Vose, the Committee appointed to purchase Sulphur for this Colony, the sum of two hundred Pounds; said Committee to be accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the several persons after-named, the sum set against each person's name, to be in full for losses each person sustained in the battle on Bunker's Hill, on the 17th of June, as by the Account herewith annexed, viz:

The Congress taking the same into consideration,

Resolved, That Colonel Allan McDonald be admitted to his parole on the following conditions: That he does not go without the limits of the Town of Halifax; that he does not, directly or indirectly, while a prisoner, correspond with any person or persons who are, or may be, in opposition to American measures, or by any manner or means convey to them intelligence of any sort; that he take no draft, nor procure them to be taken by any one else, of any place or places in which he may be while upon his parole, that shall now, or may hereafter give information to our enemies, which can be injurious to us or the common cause of America; but that, without equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation, he pay the most exact and faithful attention to the intent and meaning of these conditions, according to the rules and regulations of war; and that he every day appear, between the hours of ten and twelve o'clock, to the Officer of the Guard.

Mr. Thomas Harvey, one of the Members from Perquimans County, and Mr. William Dickson, one of the Members from Duplin County, appeared, subscribed the Test, and took their seats in Congress.

On motion, Ordered, That the nomination and appointment of Military Officers to the Regiments directly to be raised in this Province, be considered to-morrow.

Resolved, That Messrs. John Campbell, William Thompson, James Coor, Matthew Locke, Thomas Person, John Spicer, and Solomon Shepherd, be a Committee to take into consideration a Letter from the Committee of Carteret County.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Friday, April 12, 1776.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

The Committee to inquire into the cost of sundry Merchandises deemed useful to the service of this Province, as per invoice exhibited by Mr. John Wright Stanly, and to agree with him for the same, reported as follows, viz:

Your Committee have examined the invoices of sundry goods imported by John Wright Stanly, the cost of which appears to amount to the sum of three thousand one hundred and sixty-two pieces of eight, (pieces eight Shillings and eight Pence,) and two rials, charged at St. Eustatia, on which an advance of seventy-five per centum for risk and charges appear reasonable, as they were bought in barter; also sundry other goods by invoice produced, amounting to three thousand nine hundred and thirty-four pieces of eight, (pieces eight Shillings and eight Pence,) four rials, and four stivers, bought with ready money, on which an advance of eighty-seven and a half per centum for risk and charges, and twenty per centum for the risk, trouble, and commission, Mr. Stanly had in the adventure.

Your Committee are further of opinion the five hundred pounds of Gunpowder offered by Mr. Stanly, at eight Shillings per pound, is, at this time, a reasonable price; which several sums amount in the whole to four thousand eight hundred and forty-eight Pounds one Shilling one Penny and three Farthings, Proclamation money, which your Committee are of opinion may be allowed and paid to Mr. Stanly for the said goods, on account and for the use of the publick, on delivery of said goods at Newbern, in good order, to such person or persons as the Congress shall appoint to receive them.

Humbly submitted to the House.

The Congress taking the same into consideration, and the said Report being read, concurred therewith.

The Congress having agreed with Mr. John Wright Stanly, on account of the publick, for sundry goods and merchandises, as per invoice exhibited,

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay to John Wright Stanly the sum of four thousand eight hundred and forty-eight Pounds one Shilling one Penny and three Farthings, Proclamation money, for sundry goods and merchandises purchased of him on account and for the use of this Province, he first producing a receipt from John Green and David Barron, that all and every article contained in said invoice are bona fide and actually delivered into their possession, in good and merchantable order, and that the Treasurers be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

On motion, Resolved, that Mr. John Green and Mr. David Barron, of Newbern, be requested to receive and take into their possession, from Mr. John Wright Stanly, sundry goods and merchandises, as per invoice exhibited, amounting to four thousand eight hundred and forty-eight Pounds one Shilling one Penny three Farthings, at the risk and on account of the publick, till further orders.

Mr. Harnett, Chairman, from the Committee to take into consideration the Petition of Joseph Wood and co-partners, praying an order to dispose of the Effects of his Excellency Josiah Martin, Esquire, &c., reported as follows, to wit:

Your Committee having inquired into the several allegations set forth in the said Petition, do report as follows: That the said Joseph Wood and partners, with the permission of the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, did, on the 5th day of January last past, load on board the Sloop Joseph, William Raddon, Master, sundry goods and merchandises, on their own account, to the value of six hundred and seventy Pounds three Shillings and seven Pence; on the account of William Todd, one hundred and ninety Pounds; of Joseph Wood, Jun., ten Pounds; of William Raddon, nine Pounds eighteen Shillings, prime cost in Philadelphia; all which were consigned to the said Joseph Wood, Jun., and bound to Georgia; that in his passage the said Sloop and cargo were taken by an armed vessel called the General Gage, George Sybels, Master, and carried into Cape Fear, where Josiah Martin, Esq., late Governour of this Province, bore the chief command; and the officers under the command of the said Josiah Martin did violently seize the said Sloop and cargo, and apply them to the use of the enemies of America, whereby the said Joseph and partners lost one thousand five hundred Pounds, current money of Pennsylvania, over and above the profits they might reasonably have made.

The House taking the same into consideration, concurred therewith.

Resolved, That the inlisting of the Continental or Provincial Regular soldiers into the service of any armed vessel or privateer, is highly improper, and greatly injurious to the service; and that all those who have presumed to enlist any soldiers, knowing they belong to such service, have acted in a manner contrary to the interest of this Colony, and have been guilty of a breach of the Continental Rules and Regulations, and are hereby ordered to return the soldiers so enlisted to the several corps to which they belong; and that if the officer or officers belonging to such armed vessels or Privateers do not immediately restore the soldiers so enlisted by them to the officer or officers of their respective corps, that then, and in that case, they will be considered as unworthy of any command under this Congress, and deemed enemies to American liberty: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to such soldiers as had served six months from the time of their enlistment.

The Select Committee to take into consideration the usurpations and violences attempted and committed by the King and Parliament of Britain against America, and the further measures to be taken for frustrating the same, and for the better defence of this Province, reported as follows, to wit:

It appears to your Committee, that, pursuant to the plan concerted by the British Ministry for subjugating America, the King and Parliament of Great Britain have usurped a power over the persons and properties of the People, unlimited and uncontrolled; and, disregarding their humble petitions for peace, liberty, and safety, have made divers Legislative acts, denouncing war, famine, and every species of calamity, against the Continent in general. The British Fleets and Armies have been, and still are, daily employed in destroying the People, and committing the most horrid devastations on the country. That Governours in different Colonies have declared protection to slaves, who should imbrue their hands in the blood of their masters. That the ships belonging to America are declared prizes of war, and many of them have been violently seized and confiscated. In consequence of all which, multitudes of the People have been destroyed, or, from easy circumstances, reduced to the most lamentable distress.

And whereas the moderation hitherto manifested by the United Colonies, and their sincere desire to be reconciled to the mother country on constitutional principles, have procured no mitigation of the aforesaid wrongs and usurpations, and no hopes remain of obtaining redress by those means alone which have been hitherto tried, your Committee are of opinion that the House should enter into the following Resolve, to wit:

Resolved, That the Delegates for this Colony in the Continental Congress be empowered to concur with the Delegates of the other Colonies in declaring Independency, and forming foreign alliances, reserving to this Colony the sole and exclusive right of forming a Constitution and Laws for this Colony, and of appointing Delegates from time to time, (under the direction of a general representation thereof,) to meet the Delegates of the other Colonies, for such purposes as shall be hereafter pointed out.

The Congress taking the same into consideration, unanimously concurred therewith.

The Order of the Day being read, for taking into consideration the nomination and appointment of Military Officers, Ordered, That the same be deferred till to-morrow.

Mr. Needham Bryan, one of the Members of Johnston County, Mr. Joseph Williams, Mr. Joseph Winston, and Mr. Charles Gordon, three of the Members of Surry County, appeared and took their seats.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Saturday, April 13, 1776.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

Ordered, That Colonel John Hogan, of the Regiment of Militia for the County of Orange, have leave to resign his command.

Resolved, That if any Commissioner or Commissioners appointed by the King, according to Act of Parliament, to come over from Great Britain to America, shall arrive in this Province, under any pretext whatever, unless such Commissioner or Commissioners shall produce a commission to treat with the Continental Congress, that the person or persons of such Commissioner or Commissioners shall be required to return immediately on board the vessel in which he or they arrive; and in case of refusal, or if such Commissioner or Commissioners shall at any time after be found on shore within this Province, the person or persons of such Commissioners be seized, and immediately sent to the said Congress.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Congress be given to Colonel Richard Caswell, and the brave Officers and Soldiers under his command, for the very essential service by them rendered this country at the battle of Moore's Creek.

On motion, Resolved, The Congress resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, to take under consideration the augmentation of the Troops already voted to be raised by this Province.

The Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole accordingly, and chose John Campbell, Esq., Chairman; and after some time spent therein, came to a Resolution thereon. Then, on motion, Mr. President resumed the Chair, and Mr. Chairman reported as follows, to wit:

Resolved, That the Troops voted by the Congress, as necessary to the defence of this Province, shall be divided into six Battalions, (including the two Battalions voted by the last Congress,) each Battalion to be commanded by one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Major; and to consist of eight Companies, each Company to consist of one Captain, two Lieutenants, one Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, two Drummers, one Fifer, and seventy-six rank and file; also one Quartermaster, one Commissary of Stores, one Surgeon, one Adjutant, one Quartermaster-Sergeant, one Drum-Major, one Sergeant-Major, and one Wagonmaster, for each Battalion.

The Congress taking the same into consideration, concurred therewith.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Petition of William Alston, referred by the Congress, reported as follows, to wit:

Your Committee having inquired into the several allegations set forth in the said Petition, together with the defence of the defendant, and every pregnant circumstance relative thereto, do report as follows: They find that about August, 1775, the said William Alston, in behalf of the orphans of Solomon Alston, deceased, in the said Petition mentioned, obtained, under the signature of Josiah Martin, Esq., Governor, &c., of North-Carolina, a writ of Ne Exeat Regno, against John Henderson (who intermarried with Sarah, widow of the said Solomon) for mal-practices in his administration of the said deceased's estate, which said writ of Ne Exeat Regno your Committee find to be unduly and ineffectually executed; and further, they find that the sum of one thousand six hundred and twenty Pounds, Proclamation money, bequeathed to two of the orphans, to wit: Lemuel and Henry, in the said Petition mentioned, hath been improperly applied by the said Henderson, or at least not according to the express devise of the said Solomon. Your Committee therefore are of opinion (exploding altogether the proceedings on the writ of Ne Exeat Regno) that the said Henderson be held to sufficient security for his not removing any part of the said deceased's estate out of the Province, or in default thereof, that the whole of said estate be put and placed in the hands and possession of the other two executors of the said Solomon, to wit: Joseph John Williams and William Alston, for the use and emolument of the orphans, to wit: Charity, Lemuel, and Henry. Your Committee further conceive that the intention of the testator, respecting the tuition of his children, is in some measure defeated by the intermarriage of his widow with the said Henderson; we therefore submit to the consideration of the House, whether it may not be expedient to place the said orphans under the care of some other person, so that their education and bringing up may be suitable to their rank and fortune.

The House taking the same into consideration, concurred therewith.

The Returning Officer having certified that Mr. Eaton Haynes was duly elected one of the Delegates for the County of Northampton, in the room and stead of Mr. Samuel Lockhart, whose seat was vacated by his having a command in the Minute service, appeared and took his seat.

Mr. Ambrose Ramsay, of Chatham, one of the Delegates, Mr. Samuel Spencer, for Anson County, and Mr. John Childs, for the same County, appeared, subscribed the Test, and took their seats in Congress.

On motion, Ordered, That Alexander McDonald (son of Allan McDonald) be permitted to his parole, under the same restrictions as those already enlarged.

On motion, Ordered, That Mr. John Hunt be appointed an Assistant Clerk to this Congress.

Resolved, That Mr. President, Mr. Nash, Mr. Harnett, Mr. Thomas Jones, Mr. Green Hill, Mr. Burke, Mr. Allen Jones, Mr. Locke, Mr. Blount, Mr. Rand, Mr. John Johnston, Mr. Ashe, Mr. Kinchen, Mr. Spencer, Mr. Haywood, Mr. Richardson, Mr. Bradford, Mr. Ramsay, and Mr. Thomas Person, be a Committee to prepare a temporary Civil Constitution.

Mr. Abraham Shepherd, one of the Delegates for Dobbs County, appeared and took his seat.

The Order of the Day being read, for taking into consideration the nomination and appointment of Military Officers: Ordered, That the same be deferred till Monday next.

The Congress adjourned till Monday morning, nine o'clock.

Monday, April 15, 1776.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

Resolved, That the Minute-men and Militia Battalions and Troops under the command of Colonel Caswell remain in their present station until Saturday next, and afterwards have leave to march, under their respective Officers, into their several Counties, and then have leave to disband; the Congress relying on the gallantry and publick spirit of those brave Officers and Soldiers, so far as to rest satisfied that they will not avail themselves of this permission, if there be any immediate danger of an attack on that part of the Colony where they are now stationed.

Pursuant to a Resolve of the 11th instant, Mr. President presented the thanks of the Congress to Colonel Richard Caswell, and the brave Officers and Soldiers under his command, for the very essential service by them rendered this Colony at the late battle of Moore's Creek.

The Committee to whom was referred the consideration of a Letter from the Committee of Beaufort, in Carteret County, are of opinion that the situation of that Town, and the Inlets adjacent, are such, that it appears absolutely necessary that a considerable military force should be stationed at or near the said town, to prevent our enemies from landing there, supplying themselves with provisions, and committing hostilities and depredations in that part of the Province; and that until further provision is made for the defence of that County, the Company of fifty men, now raised by the Committee of said County, be continued for that purpose, so long as the said Committee shall judge it necessary.

The Committee are also of opinion that the turpentine now lying at Beaufort, belonging to William Gibbs, should be landed at his expense, and for his use, at some secure place where it may not fall into the hands of the enemy.

All which is submitted to Congress.

Ordered, That the said Report lie for consideration.

Mr. Lawrence Baker, one of the Delegates for Hertford County, appeared, subscribed the Test, and took his seat in Congress.

William Hooper and John Penn, Esquires, Delegates of the Continental Congress and Members of this House, appeared, subscribed the Test, and took their seats.

Resolved, That Mr. Hooper, Mr. Penn, Mr. Harnett, Mr. Ashe, Mr. Thomas Jones, Mr. Burke, and Mr. Spencer, be a Committee to take into consideration the most practicable and expeditious method of supplying the Province with Arms, Ammunition, Warlike Stores, and Sulphur; and also the expediency of erecting Works for the making of Saltpetre, Gunpowder, and purifying Sulphur.

On motion, Ordered, That the House take into consideration the state of the Sea-Coast, to-morrow morning.

Ordered, That Mr. Hooper and Mr. Penn be added to the Committee to prepare a temporary Civil Constitution.

Resolved, That Jethro Sumner, Esq., be appointed Colonel, William Alston, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel, and Samuel Lockhart, Esq., Major, of the Third Regiment; Thomas Palk, Esq., Colonel, James Thackston, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel, and William Davidson, Esq., Major, of the Fourth Regiment; Edward Buncombe, Esq., Colonel, Henry Irwin, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel, and Levi Dawson, Esq., Major, of the Fifth Regiment; Alexander Lillington, Esq., Colonel, William Taylor, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Gideon Lamb, Major, of the Sixth Regiment; and Robert Washington, Adjutant of the Third Regiment; William Williams, Adjutant of the Fourth Regiment; Henry Darnell, Adjutant of the Fifth Regiment; and Bennet Crafton, Adjutant of the Sixth Regiment.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Tuesday, April 16, 1776.

1. That they receive into their possession all such Arms as have been taken from the Tories, and keep them safely till they shall be demanded by persons hereafter to be appointed by this Congress for that purpose; and that they have power to give discharges upon such receipts to all persons entitled to them.

2. That they purchase all Fire-Arms which are good and sufficient, and fit for immediate use; and also such as may be repaired, and put in such order as to be made useful. Provided, that no guns fit for immediate use may be purchased from any Militiaman, whereby he may be able

Resolved, also, That the said Commissioners shall receive from those who now hold them in possession, all Swords, Dirks, Pistols, and all other implements of war, which have been taken from the Tories; and that they purchase as many Bayonets as can be procured which are already made.

Resolved, also, That if Armourers cannot be found in each County, sufficient for repairing such Arms, that they be sent into such publick Armory as shall be established hereafter by this Congress.

Resolved, That the said Commissioners shall be allowed a genteel and generous compensation for their service, in proportion to the fidelity and despatch with which they shall execute this trust.

Resolved, That the Colonels of the Continental Troops shall receive from the said Commissioners such Arms as they may collect, as soon as they are fitted for use, and shall deliver them out to the Recruits; and as soon as their respective Regiments are armed, the surplus in their hands to be delivered over to the Commissary of Stores, hereafter to be appointed.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the defenceless state of the Sea-Coast of this Province, do report, and humbly submit to the consideration of the Congress, the following as their opinion, viz: That the sea-coast from the Virginia line to Occacock-Inlet, as also the coast from Occacock to Bogue-Inlet, and from that Inlet to the South-Carolina line, is totally defenceless, and all the sea-banks covered with cattle, sheep, and hogs, and the few inhabitants living on the banks are chiefly persons whose estates consist in live stock, and exposed to the ravages of the small armed vessels and tenders; and that if the armed vessels and tenders are prevented from getting supplies of fresh provisions from the sea-coast, it will be impossible for the war to be of long continuance in this Province, as the seamen and soldiers will be afflicted with the scurvy and other diseases, arising from the constant use of salt provisions, and therefore be under the necessity of quitting the coast, and by that means save to the back inhabitants of this Province the very great trouble and heavy expense of frequently coming down to the assistance of their brethren on the sea-board.

Your Committee further submit to the consideration of the Congress the necessity there is of raising another Regiment, and stationing six Companies out of the same, on the sea-coast for its defence, in the following manner, viz: two Companies from the Virginia line to Occacock-Inlet, two Companies between Occacock-Inlet and Bogue-Inlet, and two Companies between Bogue-Inlet and the South-Carolina line; and that it be recommended to the Continental Congress to take the said Regiment into Continental pay, first fully assuring the Congress of the necessity of such a measure.

Ordered, That the said Report lie for consideration till to-morrow.

Ordered, That Mr. Hooper and Mr. Penn be added to the Committee of Secrecy, War, and Intelligence.

Mr. Spicer, Mr. Hunt, and Mr. Tignal Jones, have leave to absent themselves for a few days.

Ordered, That Mr. Rochester, Mr. Dickson, Mr. Lawrence Baker, Mr. William Williams, Mr. Thomas Harvey, and Mr. Benajah Doty, be added to the Committee of Claims and Military Accounts.

Ordered, That Mr. Thomas Person, Mr. Kinchen, Mr. Thomas Jones, Mr. Whitmell Hill, Mr. Locke, Mr. Cumming, Mr. William Williams, and Mr. Thomas Benbury, be a Committee to prepare a number of Resolves to expedite the business for emitting Money.

The Recruiting Officer having certified that Mr. Charles W. Jacobs was duly elected a Delegate for the County of Bertie, pursuant to a Resolve issued from this Congress the 10th instant, the said Mr. Jacobs appeared and took his seat.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Saturday, April 20, 1776.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

The Committee to draw up Instructions and Orders for the Recruiting Officers, reported as follows:

1. They are to enlist none but able-bodied men, fit for service, capable of marching well, and such whose attachment to American liberties they have no cause to suspect. Young, hearty, robust men, whose birth, family connexions, and property, bind them to the interest of their country, and well practised in the use of fire-arms, are much to be preferred.

2. They are as much as possible to have regard to moral character, particularly sobriety.

3. They are not to enlist any imported servant, nor, without the leave of his master, any apprentice.

4. They are to be careful in enlisting such men for Sergeants and Corporals, whose ability, activity and diligence make them fit for that appointment; they are also to appoint a Fifer and Drummer.

5. They are to exert themselves to complete their companies, and punctually to report to their Colonels.

6. That the soldiers be allowed one shilling per day each for their subsistence till they join their Regiment.

7. They are to take notice that the Colonel of their Battalion, or some Field-Officer appointed by him, are to inspect their men, and to reject such as are not fit for service.

8. They are to furnish the subaltern officers of their Companies with a copy of their instructions.

9. They are to enlist their men according to the following form, viz:

10. "I have this day voluntarily enlisted myself as a soldier in the American Continental Army, and do bind myself to conform in all instances to such rules and regulations as are, or shall be, established for the government of the said Army; as witness my hand, &c."

11. That they enlist no soldier under five feet four inches high, able-bodied men, healthy, strong-made, and well-limbed, not deaf, or subject to fits, or ulcers on their legs, or ruptures.

12. That they pay to each soldier they shall enlist forty Shillings bounty, and three Pounds advance; and that every recruit take the following oath: "I ——— do swear, that I will be faithful and true to the United Colonies; that I will serve the same, to the utmost of my power, in defence of the just rights of America, against all enemies whatsoever; that I will, to the utmost of my abilities, obey the lawful commands of my superior officers, agreeable to the ordinances of the Congress, and the articles of war to which I have subscribed, and lay down my arms peaceably, when required so to do by the Continental Congress. So help me God."

That to every Captain in such service should be allowed ten shillings, Lieutenants seven shillings and six pence, and to every Cornet five shillings per day. That two shillings and six pence for every day's service should be allowed to every Light-Horseman who shall hereafter enter into the regular service, (exclusive of the horse,) and to every Captain the same pay as a Major of Foot; to every Lieutenant the same pay as a Captain of Foot; and to every Cornet the same pay as a Lieutenant of Foot.

The House taking the same into consideration, concurred therewith.

Ordered, That Mr. Abraham Sheppard, Mr. William Johnston, Mr. Samuel Spencer, and Mr. Thomas Wiggins, have leave of absence.

Ordered, That the same be deferred till Monday next.

On motion, Mr. President resumed the Chair, and Mr. Chairman reported as follows, to wit:

Your Committee beg leave to report, that it is their opinion that Mr. Eaton Haynes, Mr. John Geddy, Mr. David Jeffers, and Mr. Henry Mason, be employed to proceed, at the expense of this Province, to Warwick and Petersburgh, in the Province of Virginia, and there to consult with — Rubsamer, and observe the process by him made use of in manufacturing Saltpetre, and obtain from him instructions and information how the process may be most beneficially conducted in this Province; and, after having themselves made the experiment successfully in the presence of the said Rubsamer, and having obtained a certificate from him of that fact, to return to this Province; and that they be empowered to promise, in behalf of this Colony, that they will make the said Rubsamer a handsome gratuity for the extraordinary trouble he may take to further the purposes of the said Commissioners.

It is further the opinion of this Committee, that buildings be erected, and all the materials, implements, and utensils, necessary for the manufacturing Saltpetre, be procured, and that a manufactory be established in the County of Halifax, which shall be under the superintendence, direction and management of the said Commissioners; and that the said Commissioners shall have power to draw upon the Treasury of this Province for a sum of money not exceeding six hundred Pounds, to be applied to pay the expense of providing such works and materials as shall be necessary for the above purpose, and that they employ under them such labourers and assistants as may be necessary to conduct the process most expeditiously and beneficially; and that the said Commissioners shall be allowed the sum of one shilling for every pound of Saltpetre which they shall make and deliver within two years into the hands of the Commissioners hereafter appointed to receive the same, for the benefit of the publick; and that the said Commissioners shall give bond, in the sum of twelve hundred Pounds, to the President of this Congress, for the due and faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them, and for the due application of the said moneys which may be paid them out of the Treasury.

It is further the opinion of this Committee, that a Powder-Mill be erected in the County of Halifax, and that Wylie Jones, Benjamin McCulloch and Josiah Sumner, Esquires, be appointed to erect the same, and prepare all utensils, implements and materials, for the manufacturing Gunpowder; and that they receive from the Directors of the Saltpetre Manufactory such quantities of Saltpetre, from time to time, as they shall have made, prepared, and refined for use, and also shall use their best endeavours to procure Sulphur wherever it may be found, and to purify such of it as may be crude and unfit for present use. And that the said Wylie Jones, Benjamin McCulloch, and Josiah Sumner, be empowered to draw upon the Colony Treasurers for a sum of money, not exceeding five hundred Pounds, to disburse the expense of constructing such works, and providing such articles as shall be necessary to carry on the said work; and that they give bond for the due application of the said moneys, and the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them, and that the said bond be to the President of this Congress, and his successors, in the penal sum of one thousand Pounds, and that the said Directors of the Powder-Mill shall be allowed the sum of one shilling for every pound of Gunpowder manufactured by them, and delivered within two years into the hands of persons hereafter to be appointed by this Congress to receive the same for the publick use.

It is further the opinion of this Committee, that a work be established in the Province of North-Carolina, for the purpose of making common Salt, and that Waigststill Avery, William Thompson, Richard Blackledge, and Robert Williams, be Commissioners to erect works necessary for that purpose, and to carry on the process, and obtain all possible information relative to the same; and that they be empowered to draw upon the Treasury for a sum not exceeding two thousand Pounds, to pay the expenses of erecting such works, and providing all materials, implements and utensils proper to be made use of; and that such works be fixed in such part of the sea-coast where they will be best secured from the annoyance of the enemy, and tend to furnish the Colony with the greatest quantity of that necessary article; and that the said Directors give bond, with sufficient security, for the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them, and the due application of all such moneys which may be advanced them; and that over and above their reasonable expenses, be allowed the sum of four pence (for the space of two years from the last day of August next) for every bushel of Salt manufactured by them, and delivered to such persons as shall be directed to receive the same, for the publick use; and that the said Commissioners, after fixing upon a proper place on the sea-coast for the manufacturing of common Salt, do purchase the same of the proprietor or proprietors thereof, for and in behalf of the publick of this Province, upon the most reasonable terms, and give a draft for the same on either of the Treasurers of this Province, who shall be allowed the same in the settlement of his accounts with the publick; and that the conveyance for the same shall be taken in the name of the President and his successors of this Congress, for and in behalf of the publick of this Province, and that said conveyance shall be taken in fee simple.

It is further the opinion of this Committee, that John Devane, Richard Herring, and James White, in the District of Wilmington; John Cowper, James Coor, and James Glasgow, in the District of Newbern; Luke Sumner, William Hunter, and Jacob Hunter, in the District of Edenton; Joseph John Williams, Christopher Dudley, and James Ransom, in the District of Halifax; William Johnston, Thomas Burke, and Ambrose Ramsey, in the District of Hillsborough; James McCoy, David Nisbit, and William Alexander, in the District of Salisbury, be empowered immediately to direct the establishing of publick Manufactories in their respective Districts, of good and sufficient Muskets and Bayonets, of the following description, to wit: Each Firelock to be made of three-fourths of an inch bore, and of a good substance at the breach, the barrel to be three feet eight inches in length, a good lock, the bayonet to be eighteen inches in the blade, with a steel ramrod, the upper end of the upper loop to be trumpet mouthed; and that for that purpose they collect from the different parts of their respective Districts all Gunsmiths, and other mechanicks, who have been accustomed to make, or assist in making Muskets, or who may, in their opinion, be useful in carrying on such Manufactory, and that they be together employed in the respective District Manufactories so established; and that they be furnished, at the expense of this Colony, with tools, implements and utensils, and materials for carrying on the said work; and that the said Commissioners respectively shall contract with the mechanicks in such manner as they may think proper, provided that for each Gun and Bayonet complete, the publick shall not pay a sum exceeding five Pounds; and that the said Commissioners in each District shall have liberty to draw upon the Treasury for a sum of money not exceeding one thousand Pounds for each District, to be expended in erecting such Manufactories, procuring tools, implements and materials, and paying the mechanicks employed for their respective services; and that the said Commissioners shall give bond to the President and his successors, with sufficient security, for the faithful discharge of their trust, and that they will justly account for all sums of money which may be intrusted to them for the purposes aforesaid; and that the said Commissioners shall deliver to such person or persons as shall be empowered by this Congress to receive the same, all such Muskets and Bayonets as shall be complete for use.

Your Committee further report, that as to the contents of a letter from Henry Gifford to General Moore, referred to this Committee, they are of opinion that Mr. Thomas Person, Mr. Martin Pfifer, and Mr. Ambrose Ramsay, be empowered and directed immediately to repair to John Wilcox's Furnace and Iron-Works, on Deep River, and to agree with the said John Wilcox, in behalf of this Province, on the lowest terms they can, for the hire of the said Furnace and Iron-Works for the space of two years, or to purchase and repair the Iron-Works in Guilford County, for casting pieces of Ordnance, Shot, and other warlike implements, for the use of this Province, of such sizes and denominations as the commanding officer of the troops shall from time to time direct; and that said Commissioners agree with some person or persons, and direct the said work, and collect from the different parts of the adjacent country persons skilled in putting the said Furnace in proper plight, and working at the same, and likewise horses, wagons, carts, and barrows, together with all conveniences for smelting of metal, and wood-cutters, colliers, and all other workers necessary for carrying on the work of the said Furnace, and employ them for the purpose aforesaid; and that the said Commissioners procure, at the expense of this Colony, all such provisions, tools, furniture, and materials, as shall be found necessary for completing the said purpose; and that for discharging the expense thereof, the said Commissioners be empowered to draw on the Colony Treasurers, or either of them, for any sum, not exceeding five thousand Pounds, and that they give bond to the President of this Congress, for and in the name of this Province, in the penal sum of ten thousand Pounds, for the due application of, and accounting for the money they shall so draw for the purpose aforesaid, and the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them.

And as by the above Resolves several set of Commissioners have been appointed to superintend and to carry into execution the several purposes and manufactories mentioned therein, and as several Commissioners therein mentioned may remove out of the Province, die, or decline:

It is therefore Resolved, That where any of the said Commissioners may remove himself out of this Province, die, or decline to act, in every such case the survivor or survivors of such set of Commissioners where such an incident may happen, shall have full power to nominate and appoint a person, whom they shall conceive a proper person, to fill up such deficiency, who shall enter into bond as is above directed.

And as to Lieutenant-Colonel James Martin, your Committee report, that the said Lieutenant-Colonel James Martin, contrary to law, hath issued his warrant to an officer to tie several of his men, and to levy on their estates the sum of ten Pounds and costs, without hearing any excuse, or admitting them to a trial by a Court-Martial.

That the unhappy families and connexions of those whom we have in our power, be assured, that every indulgence which humanity and compassion can give, consistent with the duty which we owe to the inhabitants of these Colonies, engaged in a contention for the rights of America and of mankind, shall be extended to those whom we have in our power; but that much will depend upon the future good behaviour of those who still remain in the Province, as to the mode of treatment which our Prisoners shall experience, and their being suffered to return to their respective habitations, families, and friends, when peace is restored to us; and that this Declaration be translated into Erse.

Mr. Hawkins has leave of absence from the Congress.

The Order of the Day being read, for taking into consideration certain Resolutions proposed as a foundation for a temporary Civil Constitution,

Ordered, The same be deferred till to-morrow morning.

Pursuant to a former Resolution, the following Declaration was laid before this Congress, and approved:

DECLARATION.

Impelled by a regard to our own safety, and the preservation of those rights and privileges which God and the Constitution have made unalienably ours, and which the power of Great Britain, with unremitting vengeance, injustice, and cruelty, is labouring to subvert, we have been induced to measures which it is the object of this Declaration to explain to those who may be interested in them or their consequences.

To other Provinces, at a distance from their own places of residence, without that circle where their personal and family influence may be excited to the prejudice of the Continent, and of this Province in particular, we have deemed it absolutely necessary for the publick safety to remove a body of men, whose residence fortune has cast in the very bowels of our country, and who, in common with ourselves, have shared the blessings which a mild and liberal Provincial system of laws, a benign climate, an increasing trade, that poured riches into the lap of our honest industry, the countenance and protection of their honest neighbours held forth to them with the most liberal hand. This misguided people, disregarding the duty which they owe to that country under the just and equal laws of which they have enjoyed protection, procured ample means of subsistence for themselves and their families, and possessed of a considerable property amongst us, were equally bound, by every tie, divine and human, to defend and maintain the cause of liberty, which, in common with ourselves, all virtuous men on this Continent, at the hazard of everything dear to them, are labouring at this day to defend. Those men, confederating with our unnatural enemies, and taking advantage of their residence amongst us, and that confidence which such a relation necessarily created, have raised their hands against us, and endeavoured to imbrue them in the best blood of our fellow-citizens. God in his Providence hath hitherto defeated their wicked machinations, and after their having experienced a shameful defeat, hath put into our possession many of the principals of them, who, from the wickedness of their own hearts, and from the seduction of others, meant to have consigned this once flourishing Colony to the most abject slavery and oppression.

Those people, though subdued, still retain principles inimical to us; and are prompt, as soon as they shall be favoured by their situation, or the assistance of troops expected every day to invade this Colony, with a probability of succeeding, to attempt to carry their wishes into execution, and, co-operating with a merciless Administration, drench this Province in blood and slaughter.

These have been our motives for exercising a severity, which regard to the common safety, and that first principle of nature, self-preservation, prompted. Justice demanded it at our hands; and in the anguish of our hearts we lament the sad necessity which the frailties of our fellow-beings have allotted to our share; still we wish the reformation of those who, in this unhappy contest, are severed from us, and from those endearing ties which nature and social connexions have formed for them, and who still remain amongst us to lament the folly and wickedness of those whom we have removed from amongst them. To these we administer this consolation, that they may rest assured that no wanton acts of cruelty, no severity, shall be exercised to the prisoners; no restraints shall be imposed upon them, but what shall be necessary to prevent their using their liberty to the injury of the friends of America.

We have their security in contemplation, not to make them miserable. In our power, their errors claim our pity, their situation disarms our resentment. We shall hail their reformation with increasing pleasure, and receive them to us with open arms. Then sincere contrition and repentance shall atone for their past conduct. Members of the same political body with ourselves, we feel the convulsion which such a severance occasions; and shall bless the day which shall restore them to us friends to liberty, to the cause of America, the cause of God and mankind.

We war not with the helpless females which they left behind them; we sympathize in their sorrow, and wish to pour the balm of pity into the wounds which a separation from husbands, fathers, and the dearest relations, have made. They are the rightful pensioners upon the charity and bounty of those who have aught to spare from their own necessities to the relief of their indigent fellow-creatures; to such we recommend them.

May the humanity and compassion which mark the cause we are engaged in, influence them to such a conduct as may call forth our utmost tenderness to their friends whom we have in our power. Much depends upon the future demeanour of the friends of the Insurgents who are left among us, as to the treatment our prisoners may experience. Let them consider these as hostages for their own good behaviour; and by their own merits make kind offices to their friends a tribute of duty as well as humanity from us, who have them in our power.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Tuesday, April 30, 1776.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

The Committee appointed to settle the Salvage of such Vessels as were lately taken, and what the captors may be entitled to, reported as follows, viz:

That it appears to your Committee, that a certain schooner, called the Polly, of which one Silas Henry is now master, was bound on a voyage from Edenton, in this Province, to the Island of Madeira, loaded with Indian corn, staves, and heading, and that the said schooner had proceeded to the Swash, near Occacock Island, on her way to the said Island of Madeira; and that on Sunday, the 14th of this instant, (April), about four o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, an armed sloop, called the Lilly, commanded by a certain John Goodrich, a tender fitted out by Lord Dunmore for the purpose of taking all the vessels at Occacock

Bar; that the said John Goodrich hailed the schooner Polly, and ordered the master to come on board the said tender, and bring his papers; that Silas Henry, the master, and James Buchanan, one half owner of the schooner Polly and her cargo, went on board the tender Lilly, and delivered the papers to Captain John Goodrich, who received and examined the same, and who told Mr. James Buchanan that the schooner was a prize, and kept the papers; and that Lieutenant John Wright, master of the armed sloop Fincastle, came over Occacock Bar the evening of the said 14th day of this instant, (April), and about eight o'clock the same evening a boat with armed men sent from the Fincastle boarded the schooner Polly, and plundered the said schooner of all the live-stock, disarmed the men, and left a prize-master and four armed men on board the schooner Polly, who remained there for the term of fifty-eight or fifty-nine hours; and that on the 17th of this instant, (April), a number of armed men in five whale-boats, boarded the tender commanded by John Goodrich, took her, and retook the schooner Polly, and carried the tender and schooner up to Newbern. Your Committee therefore humbly submit to the consideration of the Congress the following as their opinion: That the captors are entitled, by a resolve of the Continental Congress of the 25th of November last, to one-third part of the schooner Polly and her cargo, in lieu of salvage; and that the said vessel and cargo, consisting of Indian corn, staves, and heading, should be sold at publick auction, first giving thirty days publick notice; and that after the sale thereof, and all necessary charges deducted, the distribution thereof shall be made as followeth, viz: One-third part to the captors, and the other two-thirds to Messieurs James Buchanan and Archibald Campbell, who appear to your Committee to have owned the said schooner Polly and her cargo.

The House, taking the said Report into consideration, concurred therewith.

Resolved, That Thomas Sitgreaves be appointed to sell at publick auction for ready money, the Schooner Polly and her cargo, first giving thirty days notice in the Carolina Gazette; and that distribution of the money arising from the sale thereof (after deducting all necessary charges) be made in the following manner, viz: One-third part thereof to the captors, in lieu of salvage; and the other two-thirds to Messieurs James Buchanan and Archibald Campbell, who appear to have owned the said Schooner Polly and her cargo.

Resolved, That Joseph Hughs, late of Rowan County, have a safe conduct to come and reside in the County of Mecklenburgh, with such of his family and property as he shall think proper to remove, he giving security to behave himself well, and not to give assistance or counsel, directly or indirectly, to the enemies of America.

Resolved, That Mr. George Miller, Mr. Currie, and Mr. Campbell, be a Committee to examine the property of John Hamilton & Co., in a vessel called the William, and her cargo, ordered to be seized at Newbern, and make report thereon.

Ordered, That Mr. Samuel Ashe and Mr. Caswell be added to the Committee to report the most practicable and expeditious method of procuring and purifying Sulphur for the use of the Powder-Mill directed to be erected in this Province, and also the method of supplying the same with Lead, and the mode of purifying the same:

The Committee for taking under consideration such Petitions as may be exhibited by persons who shall appear objects of charity, reported that they had taken in consideration the Petition of Robert Willis, viz:

It appears to your Committee that the said Robert Willis is a Sergeant in Captain Armstrong's Company of the Continental Army in this Province; that in the late expedition to Ninety-Six, in South-Carolina, he took cold by the inclemency of the season, whereby he hath been reduced to a very weak and languishing state of health, and that the said Robert Willis is very poor and indigent. Your Committee therefore recommend him as an object of publick charity, and are of opinion that, during his present infirmity, he ought to be allowed from this Province for his support at the rate of twenty Pounds a year, to be paid quarterly, in lieu of his pay.

And as to the case of one William Wommock, referred to this Committee, it appears to your Committee that the said William Wommock was a Sergeant in the Orange Militia in the late expedition against the Tories; that on his march he was unfortunately shot with a bullet through one of his feet, and thereby rendered unfit for that service; that it does not appear to your Committee that he is at present in a state of poverty and want, nor does it appear to your Committee whether his wound be likely to be cured or not, or what expenses have been incurred to effect his cure. Your Committee therefore recommend that proper persons be appointed to inspect the said William Wommock, and to make report to the Congress.

The House, considering the same, concurred therewith.

Ordered, That Mr. Simpson and Mr. James Saunders be appointed to examine into the circumstances of the said William Wommock, and report to the next Congress accordingly.

And every Officer or Soldier who shall offend against this resolve, shall forfeit and pay ten Pounds for every such offence to the person injured, and be moreover liable to the action or actions of the party grieved, to be recovered before any jurisdiction which shall have cognizance thereof; and every Horse, Wagon, or thing, so pressed, shall be valued by three indifferent persons, upon oath, and certificate thereof given by such valuers to the owner or possessor from whom the same shall be pressed, in order that if the same shall not be restored to such owner or possessor, he may be allowed the valuation by the publick.

Resolved, That the Deputy Commissary-General of Military and other Stores, deliver out, in equal proportions, all the Osnaburghs, Dutch Stripes, Romals, Check, &c., purchased for the use of the Continental Troops raised in this Province, to the Colonels of the respective Regiments, taking their receipts for the same.

The Committee appointed to examine the Invoices and Papers laid before the House by Mr. John W. Stanly, report that they have examined the said Invoices and Papers, whereby it appears to your Committee that Mr. Stanly hath charged the publick twenty per cent. on one thousand six hundred and sixty Pounds three Shillings and seven Pence, amounting to three hundred and thirty-two Pounds, for risk and trouble on the importation of sundry Goods and Merchandises in the said Invoices mentioned, when in fact the risk was Messieurs Isaac Vanbibber and Company's, and a commission charged by Mr. Stanly to them for sales of the said goods; and the allowance of twenty per cent. by the Congress was intended to be made to the adventurer, and of course ought to go to the credit of Vanbibber & Co., which, when so applied, and a proper state of the accounts between Mr. Stanly and Messieurs Vanbibber & Co. is adverted to, it will be found that a balance of forty-three Pounds fourteen Shillings and seven Pence is due from Mr. Stanly to Messieurs Vanbibber & Co., after the sum expressed in a note passed by Mr. McKim to Mr. Stanly is deducted, and that he ought in justice to pay them the same.

The House taking the same into consideration,

Resolved, That the said Report be concurred with, and that Mr. James Green, in whose hands the said Note was lodged, deliver up the same to Mr. McKim.

The Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, eight o'clock.

Whereas it appears to this Congress that the conduct of Felix Kenan, Sheriff of Duplin County, hath been inimical to the liberties of America, and thereby rendered himself truly unworthy to execute any longer the trust and confidence reposed in him by his appointment as Sheriff; and whereas the said Felix hath received considerable sums of publick money, and hath not accounted for the same,

Resolved, That the said Felix Kenan be, and hereby is, suspended from the office of Sheriff of the said County of Duplin.

Resolved further, That the said Felix Kenan do, within one month after the passing hereof, return an exact account, on oath, of all such publick Moneys as he shall have collected from the inhabitants of the said County, and pay the same into the hands of the publick Treasurer of the Southern District of this Province.

Resolved, That the Commissary of Stores deliver out to the Commissioners of the Armed Vessels belonging to this Province, in the Districts of Edenton, Newbern, and Wilmington, such Stores as the said Commissioners shall apply for, necessary for fitting the said Vessels; and also six bolts of Osnaburghs, and thirty-six pieces of Checks or striped Linen, for clothing the Seamen belonging to the said Vessels.

Resolved, That the Commissary of Stores be empowered to purchase coarse Linens, and other necessary clothing for the Army; and that he be allowed and paid for the same, with all necessary expenses, by the Treasurers, or either of them, when passed by the Executive power of Government.

Whereas it appears, by the Report of the Committee of Accounts, that there is at this time in the hands of Matthew Locke, Esquire, the sum of two thousand nine hundred and eighty-six Pounds thirteen Shillings and nine Pence half-Penny, belonging to the publick:

It is therefore Resolved, That the said Matthew Locke do pay unto such of the Soldiers who enlisted with Colonel Alexander Martin, in the Second Regiment, and who actually served the full time of their enlistment, or at least six months thereof, and now discharged, the sum of forty Shillings each, as a bounty, the same never having been paid them; and that Mr. Locke also pay off all arrears to those Soldiers, and who are now in the Counties of Rowan, Surry, Guilford, and Anson; and that the Soldiers now in actual service with Colonel Martin, at Cape-Fear, be paid their bounty money and arrears by the Paymaster-General, and the balance remaining be paid by the said Matthew Locke to the Militia Officers and Soldiers in Rowan County.

Then, on motion, Mr. President resumed the Chair, and Mr. Chairman reported as follows, to wit:

Resolved, That this Congress choose by ballot one person, and each District two persons, who shall serve as a Council of Safety for this Colony from the end of this session until the meeting of the next Congress; and that no person holding any Military office, from which he receives or expects profit, nor any person holding a lucrative office under any Military Commanders in particular, or the Army in general, shall be capable to act as a member of the said Council, Officers and Commanders of the Militia only excepted.

Resolved, That from the end of this present session, for and during the time aforesaid, the said Council of Safety, or a majority of them, shall be vested with full power and authority to do and execute all acts and things necessary for the defence and protection of the people of this Colony; provided that their power shall not extend to alter, suspend, or abrogate any Resolution of this or any former Congress, or to emit any Bills of Credit, or levy any Taxes on the people, or impose any Duties or Imposts on Goods or Merchandise to be imported or exported, or give orders to draw on the Continental Treasury, or to erect any Office or Offices, Courts or jurisdictions, or to try, adjudge, or condemn, any person or persons, for any offence, civil or criminal, except where expressly permitted by resolve of this Congress.

A Letter received from John Hancock, Esq., dated the 15th instant, was read, and is in the words following, viz:

“Philadelphia, March 15, 1776.

“GENTLEMEN: As it is now apparent that our enemies mean to prosecute this cruel and unjust war with unrelenting fury, and as every intelligence assures us that they mean to bend their force against your Colony, I would not do you the injustice to suppose there will be any occasion to use arguments to stimulate you to exert your most strenuous endeavours to expedite the raising and arming the Battalions ordered to be raised in your Colony for its defence. Enclosed I send you the commissions for the Field-Officers.

If any of them are provided for in Canada, they are to continue there, and others will be elected in their room. Such of them as are in Canada, and unprovided for, have orders immediately to repair to their respective Regiments.

"Lest our enemies should come upon you before the Continental Troops can be in readiness to receive them, or in case they should come with superior force, the Congress have thought proper to empower the Continental commander at New-York to call to his assistance the Militia of your Colony and that of Connecticut and New-Jersey, agreeable to the enclosed resolves; and I have it in command to request you to hold your Militia in readiness to march in such numbers and at such times as he may desire.

"The Congress have ordered five tons of powder for the use of the Troops employed in your defence, which will be forwarded with the utmost expedition.

"I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"The Honourable the Convention of New-York.

"The Colonel of the Third Battalion is not appointed, for reasons that will be mentioned by your Delegates, to whose letter I beg leave to refer you."

"IN CONGRESS, March 15, 1776.—Resolved, That the Governour of Connecticut, the Conventions or Councils, or Committees of Safety of New-York and New-Jersey, be requested to hold their Militia in readiness to march in such numbers, and at such times, for the defence of New-York, as the Continental Commander at New-York shall desire; and that the pay of the Militia called to the defence of New-York be the same as that of the Continental Troops raised and employed in the Middle Department, to commence from the time they begin their march.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

"Transmitted to the honourable Convention of New-York, by order of Congress.

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"To the Convention or Committee of Safety, New-York."

A Letter from John Chatfield, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Easthampton, was read, in the words following, to wit:

"Easthampton, March 11, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: On Wednesday, the 6th instant, the ship Sally, that belonged to Mr. Samuel Franklin, of New-York, and taken by the men-of-war at New-York and sent for Boston, was driven on shore in a gale of wind at Montauk. The Committee of Easthampton ordered the commander, viz: Charles Smith, mate of the Asia man-of-war, and Mr. Young, of Philadelphia, Mr. Elder, and Mr. McDermott, who say they were passengers on board the ship, and that they were bound to Boston to procure a passage home to England; also Mr. Woolcomb, who was mate of a transport lately taken at Amboy, and served as mate of this ship, and ten seamen that belong to the Asia;—all which persons we send to New-York, under a guard commanded by Lieutenant John Foster, in the Minute service. We also send you by Lieutenant Foster, all the letters and papers* that we could procure from on board her.

* MARCH 18, 1776.—Letters taken from on board of the Ship SALLY. (She formerly belonged to SAMUEL FRANKLIN, and was taken by the Men-of-War at NEW-YORK, and sent from BOSTON.) She was driven ashore in a gale, at MONTAUK, on the 6th day of MARCH, and her crew, passengers, and papers, seized by the Committee of EASTHAMPTON, and sent to NEW-YORK.

By HYDE PARKER, Jun., Esq., Captain of His Majesty's Ship PHENIX:

You are hereby required and directed to proceed to Boston, with the ship Sally, under your command, calling at Rhode-Island, where you are to apply to the commanding officer of his Majesty's ships for convoy and a pilot. Should you be so unfortunate as to meet with any of the Rebel cruisers, and find no possibility of escaping, it is my positive directions that you do throw overboard all arms and ammunition, to prevent their falling into the hands of the Rebels. Should there be any ship in sight that you suppose to be a man-of-war, you are to do your utmost to disable the ship, by cutting her gears and lowering her lower yards down, in order to prevent the Rebels from carrying her off.

Upon your arrival at Boston you are to report yourself to Admiral Shuldham, or the Commander-in-Chief for the time being. You are also during your passage to use your utmost endeavours to keep company with the Harriet transport, and the Frances sloop.

Given under my hand, on board his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, off the Narrows of Gravesend Bay, this 29th of February, 1776.

H. PARKER.

To Mr. Smith, Commander of the Ship Sally.

"We have employed a number of men to endeavour to save as much of the sails, rigging, &c., as possible; her cargo, being salt, is all lost, and expect to save very little of the ship, as she lies upon rocks, with the surf continually breaking upon her.

"We are, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,
"JOHN CHATFIELD, Chairman.

"Signed by order and in behalf of the Committee of Easthampton."

The Examinations of the Prisoners, taken before the Committee of Easthampton, were read, and are in the words following, to wit:

"The examination of Mr. John Young, who saith: That he was born in Philadelphia; had been in New-York about a week; took a passage in the ship Sally for Boston, in order to get a passage to London; and there were only ten muskets put on board the ship Sally; and that Captain Smith hove a number of guns overboard after the ship got on shore, but do not know how many.

"The examination of Mr. William Elder, who saith: He was born in Scotland, and came into this country about the 1st of May last, and that he has no recommendations to Rhode-Island or Boston; and that he was on board the Asia about three weeks.

"The examination of Mr. William McDermott, who saith: He was born in Ireland; has been in America about five years; has been a Lieutenant in the Forty-Seventh Regiment; had sold his commission about eighteen months ago, and that he was bound to Rhode-Island or Boston, to get a passage home.

"The examination of Joseph Wolcomb, who saith: He was born in England; has been in this country about four years; came last mate of a transport taken at Amboy, and had been on board the Asia about a fortnight.

"Thomas Lambo, William Hatch, Robert Craw, William Philips, Rowland Walter, Hugh Hall, and Patrick Pendergrass, all say that they belong to the ship Asia, Captain Vandeput.

"The above examinations were taken before the Committee of Easthampton.

"Attest: JOHN CHATFIELD, Chairman."

A number of Letters, taken from on board of the ship Sally, (some from Governour Tryon, Captain Parker, and others, to General Howe, and other persons at Boston;) and transmitted by the said Committee with the Prisoners taken from on board of the said ship, were filed.

Die Lunæ, 4to ho. P. M., March 18, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Joseph Hallett, Esquire, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Hallett, Captain Rutgers, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Scott, Mr. Sands.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Morris Graham.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Gelston.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

NEW-YORK, January 29, 1776.

DEAR JOHN: With very great regret and astonishment I have learnt your hasty and abrupt behaviour in leaving me, and going on board the Phoenix ship-of-war, without giving me the least notice of such intention. I came here in great haste with Mr. Morgan, in hopes to have found you here before you went on board, but am disappointed. However, I now become supplicant to you, my dear son, and to request you will come on shore, and give me an opportunity of a conversation; and I hereby pledge my honour that, after what arguments I may use to you cannot prevail with you to return to Philadelphia, to your country, and good friends, you shall be at liberty to go where you please; but, dear John, consider what you are about. You don't want understanding, if it was a little set to rights. If you will now return, all things may yet be well. I promise you my forgiveness, and never more to upbraid you with this rash step. As we have taken great pains that your proceedings may not be known in Philadelphia, all matters may be accommodated there.

I therefore request, as you value a father's blessing and your own happiness and reputation, that you will give me an interview at the house you lodged in on Thursday last, to-morrow afternoon. I know you will be permitted to come on shore. Pray don't bring my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

I am, your affectionate father,

JAMES YOUNG.

To Mr. John Young, on board His Majesty's Ship Phoenix.

Mr. John De Lancey came to the Committee, to complain of the treatment he had received of Captain De Witt, and informed that a party are gone to levy a fine, by distress, on

NEW-YORK, February 3, 1776.

DEAR FRIEND: Smother your surprise when I inform you that I shall not set foot aboard the Phenix more, (at least not at present,) as fortune has rendered it out of my power; I say out of my power, because it undoubtedly is so, if you took me to have the least humanity. For on my arrival at New-York, I found, to my inexpressible grief and surprise, my brother had left it on information that my mother's life was despaired of; and not only that, but Mrs. Morgan, it was feared, would miscarry, she being far gone with child before I left Philadelphia. You have often heard me say I was the favourite of the family; this is indeed but too true; for I find, a day or two after my departure, the whole family were thrown into the utmost confusion; diligent inquiry was immediately made for me, and it was not long before our design was discovered. Then it was my family's affection for me was so conspicuous; sorrow and surprise sat heavily on all their countenances. The innocent amusements that were wont to divert them, took their flight, and nothing was seen but melancholy and discontent. It would be vain for me to endeavour to paint their grief in its true colours, as I am well convinced I cannot figure it to myself. What I have urged in consequence of leaving his Majesty's ship will, I flatter myself, be of sufficient reason to convince you that my respect for my family has been the occasion of it, and not the change of sentiments, as some may urge. But it is almost impossible for you to coincide with them in opinion. Look back into my past conduct, and tell me if ever you remember my deviating in the least from what I always expressed on the present struggle; indeed, it would be impertinent for me ever to suppose you harbour such an idea.

It gives me the greatest pain to find your father has behaved in such an extraordinary manner towards you, as he has refused to pay anything of your contracting whatsoever. I beg therefore of you to examine what things are in your possession, which I have taken on my own account; as it would be inconsistent with your generosity to imagine the whole charge must be put on me. Don't forget to send all my things that are out of the portmanteau and in it, as soon as possible, (if there should be any.) I believe the gaiters and stock are the only things which are not in. Dear John, don't imagine that what I have said concerning your father, &c., springs from a desire of having these things. No, God forbid I should be so servile a being. I only mention it that you may either pay for them, or persuade your father so to do. Do be so kind as to let me have one of those plain dark-spotted stockings, and you will oblige, your most affectionate friend,

BENJAMIN BAYNTON.

To Mr. John Young, on board His Majesty's Ship Phenix.

P. S. If you have any regard for me at all, do read or give a copy of my apology to the Governour; likewise to all the officers. I have sent the things you desired me, but have not paid for them, as your guinea is too light.

NEW-YORK, January 30, 1776, 8 o'clock, P. M.

MY DEAR SON: I cannot but express my grief and surprise that you should refuse one an interview on shore after my solicitating letter, and pledge of my honour, that if I did not convince your judgment that you were wrong in your present proceeding, (also a promise of my pardon,) you should be at liberty to go where you please. In place of complying, you assure me that Captain Parker will give me a safe conduct if I will come on board there, which I make not the least doubt of, and would trust his word for more than my own safety. But what can I expect by such an interview but tears and sorrows, when you positively declare, that though my letter of last night had so melted you that you could scarcely read it, yet it had not power even to stagger your resolution: that you could never think of setting foot on American shores? I cannot help pitying your delusion, and that you are wrong persuaded by Mr. Baynton, who acknowledged, in his letter to Mr. Morgan, that he would have taken this step three months sooner, could he have persuaded you to have accompanied him. Oh, John, I am sorry for you and for myself, who looked upon you as my future staff in the decline of life. I shall still pray the Supreme Being to bless you; but, at the same time, that you may never prosper as an enemy to your native country. You mention a letter you had just finished, explaining your whole conduct, which I have not received. I left your very affectionate sister in deep sorrow and tears, as is your disconsolate and affectionate father,

JAMES YOUNG.

To Mr. John Young, on board His Majesty's Ship Phenix.

I set off for Philadelphia, to-morrow, at eleven o'clock. Adieu.

All persons that I have conversed with on the subject of your elopement, think, with myself, that it is quite a quixotick frolick of youth, and, as such, I would overlook it if you immediately return.

A Journal of the most important occurrences of my life, beginning in my nineteenth year, when I first commenced a citizen of the world.

Having long abhorred the new form of Government erecting in America, on the ruins of the Constitution of my country, and disdaining to submit to it, on the 24th of January, 1776, I set off, in company with my friend, Mr. Baynton, from Philadelphia, the place of our birth, for New-York, where two British men-of-war then lay. Having previously procured a few clothes and other necessities, and hired horses, we mounted, about seven in the morning, with our portmanteaus behind us, and about twenty pounds in our pockets; with all which, we arrived safe the following evening at Paulus's Hook Ferry, on the North river, opposite New-York, where we were obliged to leave our horses, the horse-boats having been all pressed to transport the Jersey Troops, who were then returning from disarming the Royalists on Long-Island. We got to Hall's Tavern, in New-York, about eight o'clock in the evening, where we passed the night; the next morning, after breakfast, we went to the Fly-Market Ferry, and desired one of the watermen to put us on board the Asia; but he refused taking us, unless we obtained a permit from the Committee. We accordingly went to the house of the Chairman, who was not at home. After this disappointment, we sauntered down upon one of the wharves, rather with a view to pass away the time till the his goods. Mr. De Lancey engaged to state his complaint in writing, and deliver it in to-morrow morning.

Ordered, That all proceedings against Mr. John De Lan-

Chairman should return, than anything else. While we were in this situation, a well dressed man came down to us, and asked us if we wanted to go on board the Governour's ship. (who lay opposite, moored astern of the Phenix;) we told him that we had a little business with the Governour, and would be very glad to go, had we but an opportunity. He then informed us that he was himself going on board, and that we might go with him. He immediately hailed the ship, and a boat being sent to us, we stepped in, with joyful hearts, and were in a few minutes on board. This gentleman, to whom we were so much obliged, was Major Rogers, who was then a prisoner in New-York on parole. He was so obliging as to present us to the Governour, who treated us with the greatest hospitality and politeness. We dined with him that day, and in the evening went on board the Phenix.

JOHN YOUNG.

PHENIX, NEW-YORK, March 2, 1776.

SIR: The little acquaintance I had the pleasure of having with you at Milford, when I was in the Weasel, with my friend Baynes and Phelps, induces me to think I do not offend when I take the liberty of recommending the bearer, Mr. Young, to your acquaintance, a gentleman of one of the best families and fortunes in Philadelphia. He has recommendations from Governour Tryon to General Howe. He goes a volunteer; has no knowledge of any person in the Navy or Army. Beg, therefore, sir, you will render him what services you can, as we are all convinced he is a man of excellent sentiments, and have every reason to think he will be an honour to any regiment he may belong to. If I can serve you or your friends here in any manner, be assured I will with the utmost pleasure. I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM ROSS.

PHENIX, NEW-YORK, March, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I wrote to you, by Clark, a letter that should have been sent by Mr. Young, the gentleman who, I hope, will arrive safe with this. Do him every service in your power, and introduce him to the Army officers of your acquaintance. He is so excellent a young man, that it is not in my power to find words to do him justice in a character. If you have seen Clark, he has informed you of him. He is of one of the best families and fortunes in Philadelphia; is going to General Howe a volunteer, a stranger to Navy and Army.

If I can render you any service in this part of the damn'd country, command me.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM ROSS.

To Mr. Mosely, Master of His Majesty's Ship Chatham, Boston.

I am sure you will do anything in your power for so valuable a stranger.

PHENIX, NEW-YORK, March 2, 1776.

DEAR PULTNEY: Paper is too dear at New-York, so that if I thought you were in the least altered, unless for the better, since I saw you, damn me if I would waste a sheet on you; but, my friend and old shipmate, I have too good an opinion of you ever to suppose so. Therefore, let me assure you, no man of your acquaintance can be happier at the certainty of your promotion than I am. I am glad to have the opportunity of sending by the bearer, Mr. Young, a gentleman of the first family and fortune in Philadelphia. He is going a volunteer to General Howe; beg you will show him every civility in your power, during the time of his stay in Rhode-Island. I am sure you will be pleased with his acquaintance. Let us hear from you when you can. Letters from Portsmouth last month; all well. George Baynes and little Lass well at Havant. Chloe then in town. Jack M——l, as usual. The Weasel sailed to Africa. Warren behaved worse than ever. Young commands the Alderney sloop, at North-Yarmouth.

I am, dear Pultney, your most obliged and humble servant,

WILLIAM ROSS.

To George Ann. Pultney, Esquire, Lieutenant of His Majesty's Ship Glasgow, Rhode-Island.

SHIP DUTCHESS OF GORDON, February 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The bearer, Mr. John Young, a gentleman of property and character in the Colony of Pennsylvania, puts himself under your protection. His loyalty to his Sovereign induced him to fly from persecution, and enter himself a volunteer under your banner, in the expectation that so laudable a conduct will meet with your approbation, and entitle him to a commission in his Majesty's Army, when opportunity offers to distinguish himself. I have seen him several times, and verily believe he will do honour to my introduction of him to you.

I am, dear sir, yours sincerely,

WILLIAM TRYON.

To Major-General Howe.

PHENIX, NEW-YORK, March 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: This will be delivered to you by John Young, a young gentleman of fortune from Philadelphia, as I am informed. His errand to Boston is to offer himself a volunteer to General Howe. During six weeks' residence on board the Phenix, his behaviour was such as to entitle him to every civility I could show him, and from his request take the liberty of presenting him to you.

The sloop Frances is loaded with naval stores and tobacco, &c., &c. In the article of tobacco she has a great deal more than is cleared out from the Custom-House. I therefore presume that becomes forfeited to the captors by the acts of trade. Should this be the case, I beg you will be pleased to allow your Secretary to sell it as our agent. There is also a strong suspicion that the ship loaded with salt, has wines and other merchandise under the salt. The owners of both these vessels are good subjects to the King, and I have assured them they will be treated with as much lenity as the times will admit of.

Since I had the honour of writing to you on the 23d of last month, I cey for not attending in his Beat on fatigue, be stayed, until further order of this Committee.

To Captain De Witt, and the other Officers of his Beat.

find General Lee is ordered to Canada, to take command of the Army in that country; and a General Schuyler to have command at this place. Lee has pulled down the north curtain of the fort, and is now intrenching what is called the Bowling Green. The Privateers, it is said, have certainly sailed from Philadelphia.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your most obedient servant,

A. PARKER.

To Molineux Shulldham, Esq., Rear-Admiral of the White, Boston.

BLOOMINGDALE, January 22, 1776.

From what motive can any person who is so pre-eminently distinguished for the goodness of their disposition, cause so much painful anxiety to an affectionate friend, as you do, my dear Oliver, I am at a loss to conceive. It wants not many days of half a year since you last did me the favour of writing a line, and you are convinced, my son, how very essential it is to my happiness to hear from you; and that, in these times of possible danger, the mind of an anxious and tender friend is busy in assigning such reasons for your total silence as must needs be distressing. For God's sake, my dear Oliver, remove my anxiety, if it is happily in your power. All your family lament your silence. I hope you enjoy as much health as they all do, exclusive of your father, who has been for ten days past confined to his room with the gout. The pain of it is in general better sustained, as 'tis said to be instrumental in carrying off other disorders.

One ought in all things to have superior fortitude in these times. I think they appear very threatening; but you are not to expect any intelligence from me, though I should imagine every person free to write on public transactions. Mr. Washington's colleague, Colonel Lee, is expected to-day in New-York. It is imagined he is going to Philadelphia, which I believe is a right conjecture. He seems so fond of writing, that I could wish he had turned author, as the most harmless profession, though mischief has often happened from the pen as well as the sword. I wish the latter was never to be drawn in America, and that the re-establishment of public tranquillity would be proclaimed. Till that blest period arrives, I shall not know a moment's peace. It is no small diminution of my happiness that Government does not permit any more packets for New-York. That of September was the last. It is very unfortunate for me to be deprived of the comfort which I usually received from the letters of my dear children and worthy friends. There is not in America an individual so much hurt by the unhappy affairs in America as I am. If I had the desirable happiness of being near you, I could easily, my dear Oliver, convince you of the truth of my assertion. I fear my numerous letters are rather unacceptable to you, or you would give me some encouragement to follow my inclination of expatiating largely on many subjects. That of my extreme tenderness for you is too near my heart to be silent, when I know of a conveyance; and must again repeat my earnest entreaties for a letter the earliest opportunity. If you love me I shall expect your indulgence. Consider, my dear Oliver, it is your affectionate mother that thus solicits, and that she is deprived of too many comforts in the evening of her life.

I was unhappy last week to hear that a Jersey Battalion was gone to Long-Island, as your dear brother resides there; but it was only to disarm a County, not near him. These things will happen at such a period. How I wish for peace.

Our septennial Assembly is now dissolved, and will be re-elected next month. I hear four of our Delegates are candidates for this city, and that Oliver De Lancey will offer himself for the Borough of Westchester. So I presume he has done with the Navy. If you hear from England, pray let me know, for, next to hearing from you, it is my great object, and I see no prospect of any direct conveyance from there. I have now only to add my most earnest request that you will take all imaginable care of yourself. Consider how nearly I concern myself in your health and happiness; and there are many others who are almost as tenderly attached to you, and are ever anxious for your safety. I need not point out to you to fortify your mind with pious philosophy, as I have every reason to be convinced that you act from the best principles; and may you walk before God with a perfect heart, and enjoy perfect happiness.

Adieu, my dearest Oliver, and preserve in remembrance the tenderness of your affectionate mother and friend,

P. DE LANCEY.

To Captain De Lancey, of the Seventeenth Regiment of Light Dragoons, Boston.

Your father, brothers, and sisters, most heartily salute you. Charlotte was near going to England, but the vessel was too crowded. You will doubtless hear the Quebeck intelligence. Pray write to me. Mrs. Jones's kind love to you. I hope you are warm and comfortable.

ASIA, NEW-YORK, February 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have the pleasure to inform you that I have uncommon success considering my situation; the which I have fully laid before his Excellency General Howe. Lee and his ragamuffins have so changed the face only of affairs here, that I have not been able to see Mr. Mensie; but expect to have that pleasure soon. I have directed Mr. Mensie to move my family to Long-Island with his own. I understand they are all to be turned off the farms they now possess, if their persons are not injured. I would willingly compound with the loss of what moveables we left behind us. Governor Tryon has promised to recommend Mr. Thomas Lysten as my Ensign; he is brother-in-law to Mr. Mensie. Any interest you can make for him will be gratefully acknowledged by him and your humble servant. I have got near forty recruits, and I make no doubt I shall have upwards of one hundred before I can have an answer from Boston. Arms and ammunition, cash and clothing, will be much wanted. Since I wrote his Excellency, I understand Lee goes to command in Canada. I make no doubt you have heard the disaster the Rebels have met with before Quebeck; and Schuyler comes to take the command here. Please acquaint his Excellency therewith, though I make no doubt Governor Tryon, who has greater opportunities of getting intelligence, will give his Excellency the fullest information, though I think it my duty to do my utmost in every respect for the good of the service.

Colonel Lott came into the Committee, and returned Elias Brevoort, Esquire, to be Captain of the Company of Militia of Foot, in Beat No. 26, in the Third Regiment,

Pork, flour, and beef, might be had here, if we had some cruisers to scour the channel between Long-Island, the main, and Hudson's River. I am afraid the Rebels will destroy all the provisions along the sea-coast before either cruisers or troops arrive. The friends to Government are much harassed at present; and many of the poorer sort are forced into their service for want of other employment whereby to support themselves and families. I am afraid I have encroached on your time, and therefore shall add no more.

I am, dear sir, your most obliged, humble servant,

ALEXANDER GRANT.

For Captain Robert McKensie, Secretary to General Howe, Boston.

P. S. Upon being ordered on board here, I waited on Captain Parker, but found he had no instructions about me. I have bespoke a fine parcel of Newtown pippins, for his Excellency and other friends at Boston. I wish the Rebels may not destroy them. I have no where to put them in my present situation.

ASIA, NEW-YORK, February 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The alteration here since I left this place last, has impeded my business much, though I have got between thirty and forty fine recruits. If we had a convenient vessel, I make no doubt I could get as many as she would contain in a few weeks. I have not had an opportunity of seeing any of the people you sent messages to by me. I shall take the first opportunity of acquainting Mrs. McDonald of your intended favour; though I am apprehensive she will be puzzled to find any person that dare accept of her bill. I have acquainted his Excellency with my own state, as well as the state of publick affairs, as far as comes within my prescribed circle. Arms, ammunition, cash, clothing, and provisions, would at present be very acceptable to the recruits. Lachlan McDonald went along with General Clinton, with eighteen recruits. The Glasgow packet got into the Hook several days after us, but did not come up to town. The opportunity by which this goes to you, is so suddenly ordered for that service, that I am obliged to be more concise than I would incline. My best respects to you, Major Skene, and other acquaintances; and I am, with respect, dear sir, your much obliged humble servant,

ALEXANDER GRANT.

For Major John Small, of the Royal Highland Emigrants, Boston.

I had the honour of answering your Excellency's letter by the way of New-Orleans, the 12th of June last; since which time we have had a prodigious number of Sacks and Renards, and several other nations who inhabit the banks of the Mississippi and the Bay. The oldest inhabitant never remembers to have seen such numbers. In one week there were not less than five hundred. They attacked a party of the Indians in this country on their summer hunt in the prairies; killed and took prisoners, men, women and children, sixty; in consequence of which they have been obliged to fly down the Mississippi, being no longer able to maintain their ground against such powerful enemies. I have recommended to them to settle on the English side of the Mississippi, believing they might be of service to the new settlers, by furnishing them with meat. I also wrote to the Superintendent, recommending them to his protection, as a quiet people, well attached to the English. I hope your Excellency will approve of my conduct with regard to these unhappy people. The inhabitants are extremely alarmed at the thoughts of changing their old neighbours, the Illinois, for some of the other nations. The Sacks and Renards told me in council that it was their intention to settle here as soon as they had accomplished their design of driving out of the country all the Illinois and Peoria Indians, which I believe to be done; so that perhaps next spring they may take possession. I wish they may be as quiet neighbours as the Illinois, although I greatly fear otherwise, as these people are, when the weakest, always civil, and when strongest, always surely the reverse. I shall do all in my power to give them a favourable opinion of us. I expect every moment a party of one hundred and fifty; some of the inhabitants saw them last night near the village. Your Excellency must not be surprised that such large parties, and so frequent, should greatly increase the expenses in the Indian Department; and also augment the consumption of provisions; notwithstanding I shall do all in my power to satisfy them with little, at all times a difficult task, and frequently impossible. I send this by the way of New-Orleans; no opportunity offering by any other mode. There has not come here any one from Fort-Pitt since the Shawanee war ended. By the last boats from New-Orleans there came a report that the Ohio was again shut up, and a number of families in consequence detained at Fort-Pitt.

I have the honour to be, with all possible respect, your Excellency's most obedient, and most humble servant,

HUGH LORD.

To His Excellency the Honourable Lieutenant-General Gage, Captain General and Commander-in-Chief of all His Majesty's Forces in North-America, at Boston.

NEW-YORK, February 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: You will excuse my troubling you with the enclosed bill,* which I beg you will receive in a sterling bill of exchange, if to be had, and remit it to Mr. Benson Fearon, Merchant, in London, advising me of it by the first opportunity. I must not omit mentioning to you, that the first bill was remitted to Mr. Harry Lloyd, who never acknowledged the receipt of it; and therefore it probably miscarried. Your negotiating this matter will lay me under a great obligation; but in return, you know, if I can render you any service this way, you have only to command me. I have not had one line from you since the affair at Lexington; nor from Sukey since she left us. Mrs. Foxcroft and my little girls are well. She joins me in sincere regards to you and family.

I am yours, as ever,

JOHN FOXCROFT.

To Tuñil Hulbart, in Boston.

P. S. Should be glad to hear how your office accounts stand. If whereof Colonel Lott is Colonel; the said Elias Brevoort having been elected in the stead of John Gregg, who is disqualified, and confined in the Barrack Guard-House for conduct inimical to his country.

* The bill referred to in this letter was taken out by Captain Ache, who was permitted by the Congress, as appears by his certificate.

Mr. Lloyd has received the money, he will receive an order to pay it to you by this opportunity. If he does, I must beg of you to remit it as above.

J. F.

ASIA, NEW-YORK, February 21, 1776.

MY DEAR MAJOR: You may easily imagine how much I am disappointed in the Fifer's not being yet arrived. I should have come around at the time Mr. Grant did, had it not been for the promise I made Colonel Leslie, not to come without his permission. Mr. Grant tells me you informed him that you expected me at Boston; upon which authority I should have come around now, had I not been afraid of missing a passage to Europe, in case the ship that relieves us should now be on her way here; and if she is not, I am not sure of a passage from Boston to this place again, in case the Colonel does not think proper to do anything for me, as I am much afraid he will not, as I am credibly informed he could easily have procured a Company in the Royal Americans for me, and that you had proposed it to him, but that he declined doing anything in the matter; and so it dropped. Cruel, unnatural uncle! Where is all that goodness of heart Colonel Leslie's friends boast he is possessed of, and that I have so often heard you, my dear Major, talk of. I believe he either left it in Europe, or Captain Stewart has deprived him of it, as I cannot help imagining him the author of all the unjust reports which, I am well assured, he has always taken such pains to trumpet into the Colonel's ears against me.

I am surprised the Colonel did not even deign to write me per the Phenix. Common civility, especially from the polite Colonel, would have induced him to answer a stranger; but a nephew is not worth bestowing so much time upon. But, indeed, he has a very good reason—"I am not the penitent," he says. I wish I knew how to convince him; but that I despair to do. As matters are now come to the worst they can arrive at with me, I will be plain and honest with you as to my intentions. If the Colonel and you will assure me of a Company in the Royal Americans, I will come round to Boston by the first opportunity; if not, I shall go home in the Asia. I should have gone home in the Sampson; but after I had secured a passage, Colonel Dalrymple, who freighted half of the ship, would not allow of it; for which civility the Colonel and I must settle accounts the first time we meet. I should not have permitted him to depart without a turn or two on Governour's Island, only I was afraid of offending Captain Vandeput, who has been a second father to me. However, we may probably meet some other time. If we do not soon, I shall make it my business to throw myself in his way. But enough of this.

I have now, my dear Major, told you my intention, which I beg you will inform the Colonel of, and let me know his determination by the first opportunity, as I am determined to go home, and know from my father's own mouth what I am to trust to, unless the Colonel promotes me in the Army. If home-bound, it will be necessary the Colonel send me some cash. I received a letter from Mrs. Hoosfall, who informs me you proposed making me a Lieutenant in the Seventy-First, and hopes, by the conveyance she sent it, I will have a certainty of it. Write fully Colonel Leslie's mind—you are well acquainted with it. Let me know if there is a single grain of affection in it for me. What you tell me shall never go farther. The ship is now under sail. I have no more time but to assure you that I am your obliged friend and humble servant,

ROSEHILL.

To Major Small, Boston.

HALIFAX, August 29, 1775.

DEAR SIR: As the very disagreeable situation of the quarrel between Great Britain and the Colonies makes us very anxious about the security of the little property we have on your side the Atlantic, and though we are well convinced of your honour from all our friends, yet we hope you will not charge us with an unbecoming boldness in begging the favour of you to make us a remittance for the last year's invoices, being really distressed by the dishonouring of some bills from America to a considerable amount, as well as desirous of being relieved from the anxiety we cannot but feel for the state of your property in such unsettled times.

Praying your speedy and favourable attention to this request, and assuring you how happy we shall be in the continuance of your correspondence when the times wear a more favourable aspect, we are, with esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient and assured servants,

CHRISTOPHER RAWSON &amp; SONS.

To Mr. John Greenlow, Merchant, Boston, New-England.

NEW-YORK, January 24, 1776.

SIR: I take this favourable opportunity to acquaint you that I am in good health, bless God! and hope this will find you in the same. I am now in confinement in the City-Hall, of the city of New-York, but hope to be soon released therefrom; and as soon as that happens, I shall pay you a visit, if nothing extraordinary happens. The bearer hereof is a gentleman, and a friend of mine; therefore let him be yours, and you will find him worthy your acquaintance. He is a man of sense and education, and courage; if you can serve him in any respect, please do it, and it will oblige me.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PETER GANTER.

To Mr. William Cunningham, Boston. Per favour of Mr. William Elder.

ASIA, NOW LYING AT NEW-YORK, }
February 21, 1776. }

DEAR BROTHER: I take this opportunity to write to you, hoping these few lines will find you in as good a state of health as I enjoy at present, (thanks be to God for it!) But, dear brother, I think it is a little cold of you not to send me a letter, as you had the fairest opportunity; for I should have sent to you before, but it is a nice point to get a letter anywhere since the port has been stopped up. We did expect to have Ordered, That his Commission issue. And it was issued accordingly.

A Return from Colonel Jacobus Swartwout was read and filed. He thereby returns the Officers of a Company of the Chatham round here to relieve us; but we hear the Preston has gone home, and we expect she will stay in her room. But still, as the ship is coming out, I dare say we shall have some one here to relieve us. And, dear brother, I shall be very glad to hear if you have got a letter from our father, and whether you have heard from our brother James, or no. I should be very glad to hear from him; and if you have, do not forget to let me know in the return of your letter. I should be very glad to have an answer from you, to know how you are, and in what situation you are; for we have been pretty easy here; but since this General Lee has been here with his troops, we have been a little restless; but still stop their trade. They have likewise taken between seventy and eighty pieces of cannon out of the North Battery, and fortified the town very strong against us; but still that does not give us the least concern, for it lies to our mercy at any time. So, dear brother, do not forget to let me hear from you, and how affairs go on at present at Boston.

So no more at present, from your ever loving brother till death,

SAMUEL TULK.

To John Tulk, on board of His Majesty's ship the Lively, at Boston.

NEW-YORK, December 17, 1775.

SIR: Herewith you have the certificate for pay of the vessels; which be so good as to get signed, and forward the first and second to Mr. Blackburn, and send the third here, per first conveyance. Those sent per Mr. Nixon; he was obliged to destroy.

I am, with great respect, for Mr. Pinny White, sir, your most obedient servant,

JOHN SICKLES.

To Henry Lloyd, Esq., Boston.

Direct to Mr. White, as usual.

NEW-YORK, February 29, 1776.

DEAR JACK: Notwithstanding my having acquainted you, in my former letters, of my intention to stay in America till May, yet, as things have turned out, I dare say you will be somewhat surprised to see this dated from a place which many things will have concurred to make you conclude has long before this been just in the same situation with Charlestown, near Boston, and Norfolk, in Virginia. Though I must confess that I look upon this town, in particular, to be in a galloping consumption, and though most of the inhabitants have forsaken it, yet I have not been able to prevail upon myself to follow their example, as I must, in going to the country, lose the benefit of a master with whom I am eagerly studying some things which are as satisfactory at present as they will be necessary hereafter. I am now transacting some business, which, if I can get settled according to my mind, will oblige me to return to Jamaica by the way of London; and it depends upon this business whether I see you very soon, if in London, or persist in my former intention of staying here till May. My time is short; so you must excuse this unsatisfactory method of writing to one who should know all my actions, and reasons why.

My complaint still continues to give me uneasiness, though my appearance is healthy in the highest degree, my appetite keen, and am lustier than ever I was. I wrote you on the 25th of December. I don't remember the subject, nor have I time at present to look at the copy. I received, sometime ago, a letter from Mr. Sterling. He is the only person in Jamaica from whom I have heard since my arrival in this country. I pray remember me to everybody.

I am, dear brother, yours, sincerely,

JAMES CAMPBELL.

To Mr. John Campbell. To the care of William Innes, Esq., Merchant, London.

ASIA, February 7, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I suppose, by this time, you have heard of my situation; but, thank God, I have escaped that villanous treachery in attempting to make a prisoner of me for bringing intelligence on board the King's ships, which I now dare to say they were not far out. Captain Vandeput has treated me very kindly, and has recommended me to General Clinton, who sails on a secret expedition to-morrow, on board the Mercury, I believe for Virginia, but is kept a profound secret. He has got a number of recruits on board the transport. I shall embrace this opportunity of going with him, as I make no doubt, from what Captain Vandeput told me, I shall meet with success. It distressed me beyond expression that I had it not in my power to bid you farewell; but when you consider my situation, I need not make an apology, as I am persuaded it will be the last letter I shall have the pleasure of writing to you. I think it my duty to return my sincere thanks for the many civilities and kind friendship you have shown me since I had the honour of your acquaintance. As I have not time to write to my friends in Ireland, I shall be much obliged to you to acquaint them with my intentions. I need not dwell any further on that subject, as I make no doubt you will do all that is in your power for my interest, and take the earliest opportunity. It grieves me beyond expression to be under the necessity of applying to you at this present time; but having no other friend with whom I may take this liberty, induces me to be troublesome. My situation here is so distressing, that I am unable to make it appear; though I thank God I have a fine prospect of doing well. I have not got a second shirt nor stockings; in short, I have not got a second bit of clothes of any kind to put on, except what I have on; therefore shall be much obliged to you to let me have some little of your old clothes. I should not make this application, but believe me, dear sir, to be under the greatest distress; so I hope you will give me some little things. I have not one shilling to buy me anything. I should not make these bold requests, but imagine father will pay you for your expense. Excuse me for this liberty of mentioning your being paid again; but do assure you I look on it as charity, not as any interest. I hope you will excuse haste and trouble.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM McDERMOTT.

To John Kelly.

Minute-men, raised for his Regiment, and which Lord Stirling has requested may be sent to this City, to wit: William Clarke, Captain; Gilbert Strong, First Lieutenant; and Abraham Hyat, Second Lieutenant.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen. And they were issued accordingly.

Mr. Oliver Templeton applied for liberty to go on board the Ship Phoenix, to obtain leave of Captain Parker for the vessel loaded by order of the Continental Congress to go to sea.

An oath was administered to Mr. Templeton, in the words following:

"You do solemnly swear on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that you will not give any intelligence or information whatever to any person or persons on board of the ships-of-war in this harbour, or on board of Governour Tryon's ship, or the Packet, or any of them, relative to any Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony; and that you will not carry on board any or either of the said vessels, or deliver to any person on board of or belonging to the said vessels, any letter or paper writing, until you shall have read the same, and know that it does not contain any information relative to the said Fortifications, or any of them. So help you God."

Ordered, That Mr. Oliver Templeton be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board his Majesty's Ship Phoenix with the Port-Master, and to return, he having been previously sworn that he will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

The Account of Christopher Duyckinck and his Company, for going to Nassau-Island, and tarrying sundry days, by order of the Provincial Congress, to attempt to take a pilot, was brought into the Committee and read: it amounts to forty-four Pounds one Shilling and six Pence, only.

Ordered, That it be submitted to the Auditors, or Pay-Table Board.

The Committee took into consideration the case of John Young, brought from Easthampton, now a prisoner at the Barracks, and the Letters and Examinations relating to him. And thereupon made the following order, to wit:

Ordered, That John Young, a native, and the son of a gentleman of Philadelphia, who, contrary to the will of his father, has entered as a volunteer into the Ministerial service, and is now in custody in the Barracks of this City, be safely conveyed to Philadelphia, together with certified copies of the several Letters of recommendation found upon him in his passage to Boston; and the Right Honourable the Earl of Stirling is hereby requested to supply such Guard, and furnish such other necessary means for the safe conveyance of the said John Young to Philadelphia, so as his Lordship shall think proper.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee at Philadelphia was read and approved; and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The unhappy excursions of the son of any gentleman friendly to the general interests of America, give us great pain. Upon the subject of Mr. Young, we thought the best thing we could do would be to secure his conveyance to your Committee, not doubting that the good sense of the parent, co-operating with filial piety, will bring the young gentleman to a proper sense of his duty. We enclose the papers necessary to elucidate his case; and are, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

To the General Committee of Association.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted; and the Secretaries prepare and enclose therein copies of the sundry Letters and papers brought from Easthampton, which relate to the said John Young.

A long Letter from Jacamah Allen, bearing date on the 16th instant, was read and filed. He thereby informs that eighty-two of the Guns beyond King's Bridge are cleared and unspiked; that he will be able to complete the whole in three weeks from the date thereof, and he thereby offers his services to guard those Guns for one-half of what David Barclay gets.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. v.

A Letter from Abraham Lent, Esquire, Colonel of the Orangetown Regiment, bearing date the 17th instant, was read and filed. He thereby informs that he has received the Resolution and Order of the Provincial Congress of the 13th instant, for sending a number of men from his Regiment to New-York. He thereby proposes to send a Captain and set of Officers for a Minute Company, and requests an explanation of the Order, which he appears to have misunderstood.

A draft of an Answer to Colonel Lent was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 18, 1776.

SIR: We received yours of yesterday, and have only to observe, that only a Lieutenant's party was to be taken from your Regiment. And as for your Minute-men, we would remind you that there can be no such thing unless a Company is regularly formed; therefore advise you to send down with all convenient speed the thirty-five men wrote for, with a First Lieutenant and Ensign, with Non-Commissioned Officers in the same proportion.

We are, respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

Colonel Abraham Lent, Orange.

Mr. Paulling, one of the Members, informed the Committee that several of the Members from Westchester County, conceiving that they were directed to purchase Pork for a Magazine, were purchasing quantities for that purpose; that Colonel Gilbert Drake, by a late Order of the Congress, was also purchasing the whole quantity directed to be stored in that County, whereby there is danger that the said article of Provisions may be purchased at an exorbitant price. Thereupon, the Committee came to the determination in the words following, to wit:

Whereas different appointments have been made by the Provincial Congress for the purchase of barrelled Pork for the publick service, in Westchester County,

It is therefore Ordered, That no person employed in that service pay more for that article of Provision than four Pounds per barrel, subject to the expense of the sellers for cartage to the place of delivery in the County.

Captain Wynkoop attended the Committee, and informed that, in pursuance of the directions of the Provincial Congress, given to him on . . . . . last, he had called on Major Douglass, and delivered to him a copy of General Schuyler's letter of the — instant, relating to the service on the Lakes; that Major Douglass declined giving him any definitive answer on that subject; and intimated, that if he did undertake that service he would not be able to attend it sooner than two months hence.

Thereupon a draft of a Letter to Major Douglass was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 18, 1776.

SIR: A gentleman engaged in the publick service should always be ready to determine upon any question of service submitted to his option. Mr. Wynkoop, we are informed, communicated to you the copy of a letter from Major-General Schuyler, from which it appears that the Continental Congress has reserved for you the office of Commodore on the Lakes, and designated Captain Wynkoop for service under you in that department. The General has recommended Mr. Wynkoop to that command, in case of your refusal. Lest you should have forgotten the contents of the General's letter, we enclose you a copy of it. We request your immediate answer. If you accept of the appointment, we expect you will stand ready at a minute's notice for the execution of duty whenever the service requires it.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

By order of the Committee of Safety.

To Major Douglass.

A long Letter from Colonel Isaac Nicoll, at the Fortifications in the Highlands, dated the 15th instant, was read and filed. Amongst other things, he therein complains of many inconveniences at the Post for want of a Commissary of Provisions and Barrack furniture, and encloses an account of Ammunition supplied by the Commissioners to Captain Samuel Raymond, and not returned; which Account is in the words following, to wit:

"Captain Samuel Raymond,
 "To ammunition delivered,
 "January, 1776, By the Commissioners, and not returned:
 "Powder, . . . . . pounds, 16
 "Musket-Balls, . . . . . pounds, 29
 "Do. Cartridge Paper, . . . . . quires, 2
 "WILLIAM BEDLOW,
 "JONATHAN LAWRENCE, } Commissioners.

"Fort Constitution, March 8, 1776."

Ordered, That the said Report and Letter remain over for consideration, inquiry, and answer.

A Return of Captain Benjamin Egbert's Company, from Beat No. 2, of the City of New-York, who had been on fatigue yesterday at the Fortifications, was brought into the Committee, and filed.

Die Martis, A. M., March 19, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Joseph Hallett, Esq., Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Hallett, Major Stoutenburgh, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Scott.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Gelston, Mr. Hobart.

FOR TRYON.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Morris Graham, General Petrus Ten Broeck.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

Captain Blauvelt, from Orangetown, attending, requested the sense of the Committee whether the thirty-five men ordered to this City, out of Colonel Lent's Regiment, may not come down under the command of a Captain and Ensign.

The Committee are of opinion that the thirty-five privates ordered from Orangetown may be commanded by Captain Blauvelt and his Ensign.

John Griffiths attending, was admitted. He requested a permit to go on board the Packet, and to return. Whereupon a permit was given him in the words following, to wit:

Ordered, That Mr. John Griffiths be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board the Packet with the Port-Master, and to return, he having been sworn that he will not give or convey any intelligence on board said ship, or either of the Ships-of-War, or the Governour's ship, relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

Captain Mercier applied to the Committee of Safety for an Order to take twenty-five Water-casks from the Stores, for the use of a Vessel, purchased by the Marine Committee, for an Armed Vessel.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Captain William Mercier have leave to take immediately twenty-five such Water-casks as he shall choose, of those now in store or yard near Warren's Wharf, at the Hudson River; the same being for publick use for one of the Colony Armed Vessels.

Captain Mercier further informed the Committee that the Blacksmiths, Carpenters, and other Mechanics, who are, and have been, employed in making the Carriages for Cannon, are much in want of cash; that three hundred Pounds will be sufficient to pay them, in part, for the present.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to William Mercier the sum of three hundred Pounds, on account, towards paying and discharging the Accounts and Debts become due for making Gun-Carriages; and that the Treasurer take Captain William Mercier's receipt for the same.

The Chairman and Captain Rutgers informed the Committee that, in pursuance of the direction of the Provincial Congress, of the — day of March, instant, they had purchased a Sloop, to be made an Armed Vessel, for the defence of the Trade of this and the neighbouring Colonies; that they had agreed to pay the sum of four hundred and thirty Pounds for the said Sloop.

Ordered, That the Treasurer pay to Captain Anthony Rutgers the sum of four hundred and thirty Pounds, to pay for the said Vessel; and that the Treasurer take Mr. Rutgers's receipt for the same.

Colonel Hyer, Major Malcom, and Captain Wool, of the Dr.

Second Battalion, or Regiment, of the City of New-York, came into the Committee. They informed that they were authorized by the said Battalion to offer their service as a Regiment, to be taken into constant pay as Minute-men. After some conversation on that matter, the Committee informed those gentlemen that they would take that matter into consideration, and give them an answer as soon as conveniently they can determine.

Abraham Lott, Esquire, Agent Victualler, and Thomas Horsefield, the Brewer at Brooklyn Ferry, at the door, were admitted. They stated difficulties attending the sending on board Beer to the ships-of-war, under the attendance of and with the Port-Master only; as it happens at times that his other necessary engagements in his duty, and going to the ships in the Harbour, will not permit him to go at the hours they want his attendance. Mr. Lott and Mr. Horsefield withdrew.

The Committee having considered of the said application, are of opinion, and determine not to make any alteration in the mode fixed for supplying the ships, or either of them.

Mr. Horsefield was called in, and informed of the determination of the Committee.

John Murray, at the door, was admitted. He requested a permission to send Bread on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon. After having fully heard Mr. Murray, the Committee consent that Mr. Murray shall have a permit delivered to the Port-Master to send five hundred weight of Bread on board of the said ship; but that he shall not have any further permit until he produces an account of the Provisions and Stores on board of the said ship, for ship's use.

A Return from Asahel Berry, the Officer of the Port-Guard, at the North River, during last night, and therein said to be made to the Captain of the Main Guard at the Lower Barracks, was delivered to the Chairman, and read.

The Prisoners therein mentioned, except James Coffin, being brought to the door by a Guard, David Ketch and William Douglass were brought in and examined. Two witnesses, with respect to them, were called in and examined. It appears that David Ketch flashed his Gun several times at some of the Sentinels.

Ordered, That the Gun be examined whether it is loaded, as the witnesses suppose; and that application be made to a Magistrate to bind over the said David Ketch, and take sureties for his keeping the peace, and being of good behaviour.

And Ordered, That the runaway Negro therein mentioned be sent to Bridewell, and that the Overseer thereof receive and advertise him. That the free Negro be discharged; and that, until these matters are done and further order given, the said Prisoners (except the free Negro) be returned to the Guard-House.

Application being made for a permit to send Letters on board of the Packet, Ordered, That Mr. Scott and Colonel Morris Graham be a Committee to examine all Letters designed to be sent on board of the Packet, before they are sealed, and to retain them until they are sent on board by the Port-Master. That those gentlemen, on their honour, keep secret the contents of every Letter they may so examine, unless, in their opinion, it should so far concern the publick that they should think it their duty to communicate the contents to the Committee of Safety.

And Ordered, That the Inhabitants, as occasion may require, be informed of this Order.

The case of Mr. John Delancey, and his complaint against Mr. John De Witt, Captain of the Militia in the Beat where Mr. Delancey resides, was sent in to the Committee. For the want of time to take the same into consideration, it is deferred for the present.

A Letter from Lord Stirling, relating to the Artillery immediately necessary to be fitted for use, was read. A state of the whole Artillery on the Island, and of what is necessary to complete them to a certain degree; and also a separate Return of the Cannon, down to Six-Pounders, inclusive, and of what is necessary to complete them to a certain degree, received in Lord Stirling's said Letter, were respectively read.

Ordered, That the Bearer be discharged from the door, and that the said Letter be taken into consideration this afternoon.

4to ho. P. M., Die Martis, March 19, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Mr. Joseph Hallett, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Colonel McDougall, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Sands, Major Stoutenburgh.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Gelston.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. John Moore.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Morris Graham, Colonel Petrus Ten Broeck.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

The Chairman laid before the Committee a Letter from Mr. Moses Ogden, of Newark, requesting an advance of one hundred Pounds, to pay for Coal to cast the Shot which Mr. Hallett had agreed with him for by order of the Provincial Congress.

Thereupon, a draft of a Letter to Mr. Moses Ogden was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 19, 1776.

SIR: Your letter on the subject of shot, for which a verbal contract only now subsists, I laid before the Committee of Safety. They have it much at heart to be immediately supplied with that article, and are therefore extremely ready to enable you, by a reasonable advance of cash, to execute your part of the contract; but they wish it should be reduced to writing, that nothing may be left to doubtful construction. I am directed by the Committee to request your immediate attendance on them for the purpose of carrying a contract of so much importance into immediate and effectual execution.

I am, sir, your very humble servant.

To Mr. Moses Ogden, at Newark.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Colonel McDougall informed the Committee that the wife of Captain John Lamb, of the Artillery, (now Major John Lamb, in Canada), has a letter of attorney from her husband to receive part of his pay; that she has a family to maintain, and is in want of money; and Colonel McDougall requests to know whether the Committee will authorize him, from time to time, to advance her some money, in part of her husband's pay.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel McDougall be, and he is hereby, authorized to advance to Mrs. Lamb, the wife of Major John Lamb, such sum per month as she is, by a power of attorney from her said husband, empowered to receive, as part of his pay; and that Colonel McDougall take her receipt for such sums as he shall, from time to time, advance to her, and see that the same be deducted out of Major Lamb's pay.

A Return of Barrack necessities now wanting for Lieutenant-Colonel Matthias Ward's Battalion of Militia, from Essex County, New-Jersey, was brought in, read, and filed, as follows: Eight Rooms want three Dishes in each Room, twenty-four; eight Rooms want nine Spoons in each Room, seventy-two.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to the Quartermaster of Lieutenant-Colonel Matthias Ward's Regiment of Militia from New-Jersey, twenty-four Dishes and seventy-two Spoons, for the use of his Troops, or Militia, placed in eight rooms in this City.

Colonel Lott came into the Committee half an hour past five o'clock.

The Committee took into consideration the proposal of Colonel Hyer, and the other officers of the Second Battalion of the City of New-York, made to the Committee this morning; and thereupon came to the determination in the words following, to wit:

"The Committee of Safety, taking into consideration the application of Colonel Hyer, respecting the Second Battalion of Independent Companies of the Militia of this City, are willing to engage the said Battalion as Minute-men, on immediate pay, to continue two months, upon the following terms, viz:

"The Battalion to consist of at least seven Companies, each Company to consist of eighty-six men, including Sergeants, Corporals, Drum and Fife, besides Officers; to have one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, one Major, one Adjutant, and one Quartermaster. The pay to be the same as the Continental Troops, with an allowance of eight Shillings per week for their rations and Barrack furniture. The officers to receive pay in proportion to the number of men in their respective Companies: that is to say, that, according to the whole number of men, as many officers shall receive pay as, conformable to the rules of discipline and service, shall be a sufficient body of officers for such a command as the number of men shall amount to."

Ordered, That a certified copy of the above be delivered to Major Stoutenburgh, to be proposed to the said Second Battalion.

A Letter from Governour Tryon to the Inhabitants of this Colony, at the request of a Member, was brought from Hugh Gaine to the Committee, and read.

Ordered, That the Secretaries keep an exact copy thereof, and return the original to Hugh Gaine with all possible despatch.

A copy thereof was taken and filed. [See 1385.]

Mr. Hobart, Mr. Thomas Smith, and Mr. Ray, came into the Committee, at half an hour past six o'clock.

The Committee took into consideration the Proposal of Jacamah Allen, contained in his Letter, to guard the Cannon at King's Bridge for half the money Mr. David Barclay now gets for that service.

Ordered, That Jacamah Allen take the charge of guarding those Guns in future, while a Guard for them shall be wanted, and on the conditions he has offered.

The Petition of Josiah Robertson, Johannes Tack, and forty-nine others of the inhabitants of Marbletown, in Ulster County, subscribers thereto, was read and filed. They pray that they may be imbodyed into a Company of Grenadiers, in Colonel Levi Pauling's Regiment, in Ulster County; that having obtained the approbation of the Commanding Officer of the Regiment and of the Committee of the Township, and of the Officers of the Militia in Marbletown, they had elected Charles W. Broadhead for Captain, Jacob De Lameter for First Lieutenant, Moses M. Cantine for Second Lieutenant, and Jacob Chambers for Ensign.

A Letter from Colonel Levi Pauling, Chairman of the Committee at Marbletown, requesting that the Officers might be commissioned, was also read.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen respectively.

The Committee then took into consideration the Letter of Lord Stirling, and Returns of Artillery Stores wanting, which were received at noon. The same were again read, and are as follow:

"New-York, March 18, 1776.

"SIR: It is of the utmost importance to the safety of this City and Province that all the artillery we are to rely on be completed in every article. It was but lately that I could obtain a complete state of all the artillery on this Island. It was then so near the adjournment of your Congress that I did not care to introduce to it a matter so long in detail. I now enclose to you a return (No. 1.) of the whole artillery, and the articles wanting to equip and complete them to one hundred rounds, by which you will observe that all the cannon below six-pounders are in want of every article, and would take up more time than we can spare at present to complete them. I have therefore made out another return (No. 2.) of all the cannon down to six-pounders, inclusive, and these, if the work be properly distributed, may soon be equipped with every necessary; and I must request that the Committee of Safety will, as soon as possible, take measures to have all necessities provided; and you may be assured that I will lend every assistance in my power for forwarding the work.

"As I have no copies of these returns, I should be glad to have them sent back to me when you have taken copies of them."

"I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

"STIRLING.

"To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety of New-York."

Lord Stirling sent to the Committee of Safety a copy of sundry Resolutions of the Continental Congress; which were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"IN CONGRESS, March 14, 1776.—Resolved, That eight thousand Men be ordered for the defence of the Colony of New-York.

"That Orders issue to Colonel Irvine immediately to march with his Battalion to New-York, and put himself under the command of the Officer commanding there.

"That Colonel Dayton be likewise ordered with his Battalion to march to New-York, and join the forces there.

"That Colonel Shee and Colonel Magaw be also ordered to march with their Battalions to New-York.

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Assemblies, Conventions, and Councils, or Committees of Safety, of the United Colonies, immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed within their respective Colonies who are notoriously disaffected to the cause of America, or who have not associated, and refuse to associate, to defend by arms these United Colonies against the hostile attempts of the British Fleets and Armies; and to apply the Arms taken from such persons, in each respective Colony, in the first place, to the arming the Continental Troops raised in said Colony; in the next place, to the arming such Troops as are raised by the Colony for its own defence; and the residue to be applied to the arming the Association. That the Arms when taken be appraised by indifferent persons, and such as are applied to the arming the Continental Troops be paid for by Congress, and the residue by the respective Assemblies, Conventions, or Councils, or Committees of Safety.

"March 15, 1776.—Resolved, That Captain Nelson, with his Company of Riflemen, be directed immediately to repair to New-York.

"Resolved, That the Governour of Connecticut, the Conventions and Councils of Safety of New-York and New-Jersey, be requested to hold their Militia in readiness to march in such numbers, and at such times, for the defence of New-York, as the Continental commander at New-York shall desire; and that the pay of the Militia called for the defence of New-York be the same as that of the Continental Troops raised and employed in the Middle Department, to commence from the time they begin their march.

"Resolved, That Lord Stirling be directed to order the Troops destined for Canada to proceed on their march, agreeable to their former orders.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.

"By order of the Congress:

"JOHN HANCOCK, President."

[Copy of Governour Tryon's Letter:]

"To the Inhabitants of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

"Notwithstanding prejudice, delusion, and faction, have hitherto among too many usurped the seat of reason and reflection, and every exhortation I have offered to the inhabitants of this Province (in whose affection I have been taught to be happy) has been reviled and treated with neglect; yet, as my wishes for their prosperity and feelings for their calamities, cannot easily be suppressed, even towards the disobedient, I cannot but repeat my endeavours to recall those who have revolted from their allegiance to a sense of their duty, and to comfort those who have been the objects of oppression for their zealous attachment to our happy Constitution and their steady obedience to the sovereignty of the British Empire. It is in the clemency and authority of Great Britain only, under God, that we can look for happiness, peace, and protection; and I have it in command from the King to encourage, by every means in my power, the expectation in his Majesty's well-disposed subjects in this Government, of every assistance and protection the state of Great Britain will enable his Majesty to afford them; and to cherish every appearance of a disposition on their part to withstand the tyranny and misrule which accompany the acts of those who have but too well hitherto succeeded in the total subversion of legal Government.

"Under such assurances, therefore, I exhort all the friends to good order and our justly admired Constitution, still to preserve that constancy of mind which is inherent in the breasts of virtuous and loyal citizens; and I trust a very few months will relieve them from their present oppressed, injured, and insulted condition.

"England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, have united to place their whole strength, power, and confidence, in his Majesty's hands. The numerous addresses from all parts of the King's dominions in Europe, speak the loyalty and zeal with which his subjects there engage to support his Majesty in asserting and maintaining the just sovereignty of the British Empire over all its members.

"The British state moves not by sudden and violent sallies, nor wantonly oppresses; she has lenity for her basis, and is distinguished for moderation and forbearance; but when her just indignation is roused, the experience of other nations can testify her weight and force. It cannot be sufficiently lamented, that the conduct of this country has called for so severe a rod; may a timely and dutiful submission avert its stroke. I have the satisfaction to inform you that a door is still open to such honest, but deluded people, as will avail themselves of the justice and benevolence which the supreme Legislature has held out to them, of being restored to the King's grace and peace, and that proper steps have been taken for passing a commission for that purpose, under the Great Seal of Great Britain, in conformity to a provision in a late act of Parliament; the Commissioners thereby to be appointed having also power to inquire into the state and condition of the Colonies, for effecting a restoration of the publick tranquillity.

"WILLIAM TRYON.

Present: Joseph Hallett, Esq., Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Hallett, Captain Rutgers, Mr. Sands, Major Stoutenburgh.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Gelston.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR DUTCHESS.—General P. Ten Broeck.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

Mr. Elias Nixen, the Port-Master, attending, produced a list of supplies wanted for the use of the Swallow Packet:

Thereupon Ordered, That the Port-Master be, and he is hereby, permitted to convey on board the Swallow Packet, for the use of the said Packet, the following supplies, viz: Eight barrels of Bread, four barrels of Flour, five barrels of Pork, five barrels of Beef, two hundred Scupper Nails, three pounds of twenty-penny Nails, one quarter of fresh Beef.

Abel Hetfield, attending, requested permission to go on board the Asia ship-of-war, to get his Clothes, which he had left on board when taken in his Boat coming from New-Jersey, loaded with Iron, and which was seized by Captain Vandeput:

Thereupon Ordered, That Abel Hetfield be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board the Asia ship-of-war, with the Port-Master, and to return; he having been sworn that he will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

The Answer of the Second Battalion, with some remarks on the Proposals of the Committee, and some new Proposals, were read.

The Committee gave such answers on that subject as they thought proper, to Major Stoutenburgh, and informed him, in substance, that it was their opinion that the Regiment ought not to be paid for any greater number of Officers than Men; that it was best for them to fill their Companies; that if all the Privates cannot be supplied with Arms immediately, that they can, notwithstanding, be employed in the Fortifications.

Mr. Nicholas Low had, on the 26th day of February last, obtained from the Provincial Congress a Permit to ship Flaxseed and Lumber on board of the Ship Polly, Thomas Kennedy Master, to be exported to Cork, in Ireland, in return for Military Stores imported, to the amount of eight hundred and ninety-six Pounds and nine Pence, which he brought back and returned to the Committee of Safety. Mr. Low informed the Committee that he had laded the said Flaxseed and Lumber, but that, through the stoppage of the Ports by the Ships-of-War, he cannot get the said Vessel and Cargo out of Port: and therefore requested that he might have a permit to export to the amount of the sum above-mentioned, in Provisions, to the West-Indies, in lieu of the said Flaxseed and Lumber, on condition that the same shall not be exported:

"Ordered, That Mr. Nicholas Low be permitted to export Provisions to the West-Indies to the amount of eight hundred and ninety-six Pounds and nine Pence, in lieu of the said Flaxseed and Lumber, on condition that the said Flaxseed and Lumber shall not be exported.

"To the General Committee of the City of New-York, and to Mr. Ray and Colonel Hyer, their sub-Committee, and to Captain Mercier."

Captain Dennis attending, informed the Committee that he had purchased about ten tons of Bar-Iron in New-Jersey, and had it brought to this city last evening, and requested permission to export the same, and twenty barrels of Flour, to Norwich, in Connecticut:

"Ordered, That Jeremiah Harris be permitted to lade on board his Vessel the said Bar-Iron, and twenty barrels of Flour, and convey the same to Norwich, in Connecticut.

"To Messrs. Ray and Hyer, and to be delivered to Captain Mercier."

Captain Amos Hutchins attending, informed the Committee that he had forty-six of his men in this city; that Mr. Sears, as Deputy Adjutant-General, had mustered them, and that they are on duty; that he expects the residue of his Company hourly; that he is in want of at least one hundred and fifty Pounds, to discharge the pay due to his men, and to enable them to supply themselves with necessities:

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Captain Amos Hutchins, on Continental account, and on account, in part, of the pay of the Company under his command, the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, on account, and take Captain Hutchins's receipt for the same.

Mr. John Moore delivered to the Chairman a Memorandum that Colonel Peter Bellinger had appointed the place of rendezvous for his Regiment (which is the Fourth Regiment of Tryon County) by the Church at Kingsland, at the South side of the river. N. B. Colonel Bellinger's place of rendezvous.

The said Memorandum contained a list of Officers for the whole Fourth Regiment of Tryon County; but many of the former Commissions not being returned, and blank Commissions having been delivered to Mr. Moore for that Regiment:

Ordered, That Mr. Moore keep the blank Commissions for the Fourth Regiment in Tryon County, until he goes home, and see them delivered to the persons duly elected, and a proper Return of all the Officers made, with all possible despatch, to the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony.

A Letter from Colonel Curtenius, with a long account of the articles he has been ordered to purchase for the Troops, was read and filed. Colonel Curtenius thereby informs that he stands in need of a large sum of money to enable him to complete his orders.

A Letter from John James Boyd, of Richmond County, was read. He therein says that any accusation against him to the Provincial Congress was without foundation and unjust, and that he is a steady and warm friend to his country.

Die Jovis, P. M., March 21, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present: FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Mr. Sands, Captain Rutgers, Colonel McDougall, Captain Denning.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR ORANGE.—Colonel Allison.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel M. Graham.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

Mr. Joseph Hallett being necessarily absent, Colonel Morris Graham was unanimously chosen Chairman pro. tem.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Thompson was received and read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, March 21, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Please to pay to Lieutenant George Tudor, of the Third Pennsylvania Battalion, the sum of forty Pounds, Pennsylvania currency, for the use of the wagoners who are on their way to the camp at Cambridge with powder.

"WILLIAM THOMPSON, Brigadier-General.

"To the Honourable Committee of Safety for New-York."

Thereupon Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay to Lieutenant George Tudor forty Pounds, Pennsylvania currency, amounting to forty-two Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence, New-York currency, agreeable to the request of Brigadier-General Thompson, and that Mr. Livingston take a receipt for the same, on Continental account.

N. B. The above order was written on General Thompson's Note, to be delivered to the Treasurer.

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony was read, and is in the following words, viz:

"Philadelphia, March 1, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: We laid before Congress your representation in favour of Mr. St. Clair, which met with their approbation, as you will observe by the resolution which we have the honour to enclose.

"General Lee informed Congress, by letter, that he had imposed a Test upon the inhabitants of our Colony, in order to ascertain their political principles. However salutary such a measure might be, when grounded on a legal and constitutional basis, we were much alarmed that it should owe its authority to any military officer, however distinguished for his zeal, his rank, his accomplishments, and services. We considered it as one of the most solemn and important acts of legislation, and a high encroachment upon your rights as the Representatives of a free people. We could not, therefore, be silent upon so momentous a point, though we were not favoured with your sentiments or instructions, nor informed of what, or whether anything had passed between you and the General respecting the disaffected inhabitants. We took up the subject on general principles. There can be no liberty where the military is not subordinate to the civil power in everything not immediately connected with their operations. Your House, the natural and proper tribunal for all civil matters within the circle of your own jurisdiction, was assembled, and Congress itself within the General's reach, ready to enforce every reasonable proposition for the publick safety. To one or other he ought to have applied. A similar effort in Rhode-Island had passed over unnoticed; reiterated precedents must become dangerous; we therefore conceived it to be our unquestionable duty to assert the independence and superiority of the civil power, and to call the attention of Congress to this unwarrantable invasion of its rights by one of their officers. A resolution passed in consequence, on the 8th of March, that no oath, by way of test, be imposed upon, exacted, or required of any inhabitant of these Colonies by any military officer; and it was ordered to be immediately published. We flatter ourselves that our conduct on this occasion will meet with your approbation.

"This will be presented by Brigadier-General Thompson, who, for the present, will command in your capital, General Schuyler's residence at Albany being deemed indispensable. General Thompson is a gallant officer, and very much respected in this Province; and we doubt not of your endeavours to make his command as agreeable to himself and as salutary to the country as possible; to which nothing can contribute more essentially than harmony and mutual confidence between him and the civil power.

"Congress were much perplexed in appointing the officers to the four New-York Battalions, not knowing whether a former resolution, directing the English Troops, who wintered in Canada, to be formed into two battalions, had been carried into effect. In that case, a provision will be made for such of the gentlemen in that country as are entitled to promotion. However, it was not thought best to expose them to any uncertainty. It is the intention of Congress that if any of them should have been promoted in that department, they shall continue there, and others be appointed for the new battalions; if not, that they shall join those corps.

"A battalion was intended for Colonel Ritzema, but some objections having been suggested, it is left vacant, until he can have an opportunity of being heard, of which you will be pleased to inform him.

"We have the honour to be, with the utmost regard, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,

"JAMES DUANE,

"JOHN JAY,

"JOHN ALSOP,

"LEWIS MORRIS."

"P. S. The following battalions are assigned for the defence of New-York, besides the four you are raising, viz: Pennsylvanians—Wayne's, Irvine's, Shea's, and Magan's; New-Jersey—Lord Stirling's and Dayton's. These troops are raised, but not armed. The want of arms will, it is thought, be in a great degree remedied by executing the resolution of Congress of the 14th instant, a copy of which goes with these despatches. It is directed to be kept as secret as the nature of the service will admit.

"For your immediate defence, the General in your department is authorized to apply to the Governour of Connecticut, your Convention, and the Committee of Safety of New-Jersey, for so many of the Militia as he may judge necessary, who are to be paid by the Continent at five dollars a month for each private. A resolution passed the 8th instant for supplying you with five tons of gunpowder, and it was ordered to be immediately forwarded by the Committee of Secrecy. We took it for granted that it had been sent forward accordingly, till Mr. Lewis's letter to Mr. Alsop led to an examination, when the Chairman of that Committee reported that it had been detained for want of carriages. A copy of the order for the powder is enclosed. We shall be glad to know how far the battalions of last year were completed, as our Colony is reflected upon for a greater deficiency than we believe to be consistent with truth. It has also been represented that recruiting for the present service goes on very slowly, which, considering your danger and distresses, we scarce think credible.

"Honourable Provincial Convention, New-York."

"In Congress, March 6, 1776.

"Resolved, That the Secret Committee be directed to send to New-York five tons of Powder, for the use of the Continental Troops there.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

"In Congress, March 11, 1776.

"A Letter from the Convention of New-York, of the 7th instant, enclosing an application from Patrick Sinclair for leave to return to Europe. The Congress, taking into consideration the said Letter and application,

"Resolved, That Mr. Patrick Sinclair be allowed to return to Europe.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

"In Congress, March 14, 1776.

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Assemblies, Conventions, and Councils or Committees of Safety of the United Colonies, immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed, within their respective Colonies, who are notoriously disaffected to the cause of America, or who have not associated, and refuse to associate, to defend, by Arms, these Colonies, against the hostile attempts of the British Fleets and Armies; and to apply the Arms taken from such persons, in each respective Colony, in the first place to the arming the Continental Troops raised in said Colony, in the next to the arming such Troops as are raised by the Colony for its own defence, and the residue to be applied to the arming the Associators; that the Arms when taken be appraised by indifferent persons, and such as are applied to the arming Continental Troops be paid for by Congress, and the residue by the respective Assemblies, Conventions, or Councils or Committees of Safety.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

Whereas, Mr. Benjamin Curtis was, on the first day of March instant, appointed a Surgeon for one of the Regiments raising in this Colony, and has been since constantly employed in the care of the Sick of the First Regiment, and other Continental Troops in this Colony, and not designated to any particular Regiment: And whereas Colonel McDougall now requests that the said Benjamin Curtis may be appointed Surgeon to the First Regiment of the said Troops:

Ordered, That Doctor Benjamin Curtis be, and is hereby appointed Surgeon to the First Regiment of Continental Troops raised or raising in this Colony, whereof Alexander McDougall, Esq., is Colonel, his pay to commence and continue from the 1st instant.

A Certificate of Doctor John Jones and Doctor Bard, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"We, whose names are underwritten, do hereby certify that we have examined Isaac Ledyard, respecting his knowledge in Physick and Surgery, and find him well qualified for the office of First Mate of a Regiment.

"Witness our hands, this 21st day of March, 1776.

"SAMUEL BARD, M. D.

"JOHN JONES, M. D."

Ordered, That the said Isaac Ledyard be, and he is hereby, appointed Surgeon's Mate to the First Regiment of Continental Troops now raising in this Colony, whereof Alexander McDougall, Esq., is Colonel.

A-permit from the Honourable Nicholas Cooke, Esquire, Governour of the Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, under the seal of the said Colony, dated the 11th instant, was read. He thereby permits Jonathan Car- penter, Master of the Sloop Diana, to proceed to the Colony of New-York, in ballast, and return with a lading of Provisions, Bar-Iron, and other articles, under the direction of the Committee of Inspection of the City, Town, or County, where he shall lade. Sufficient bond having been given that the said Jonathan Carpenter shall, in all things, conform himself to the Continental Association,

Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York, or their sub-Committee of Inspection, be, and hereby are, at liberty to permit Mr. Jonathan Carpenter to export such quantities of Flour, or Provisions of any kind, (except Beef and Pork,) and such quantities of Bar-Iron, as they may think proper to spare, or to suffer to be exported.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Captain William Mercier the sum of five hundred Pounds, on account, towards enabling him to fit out the Vessel lately purchased by order of the Provincial Congress, and ordered to be fitted out and armed by the Marine Committee.

Joseph Lindsly, Captain of a Company of Artificers from New-Jersey, applied for Barrack necessities:

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to Captain Joseph Lindsly, for his Company of Artificers from New-Jersey, two iron Pots, eight straw Beds, two Trammels, two Pails, two Candlesticks, and four large and four small wooden Bowls, and take his receipt for the same.

Captain Joseph Lindsly returned to, and informed the Committee, that Mr. Curtenius could not supply him with any of the articles mentioned in the foregoing order, except wooden Bowls, with which he had supplied Captain Lindsly:

Whereupon it was Ordered, That the Barrackmaster deliver to Captain Lindsly, for the use of his Company of Artificers from New-Jersey, two iron Pots, eight straw Beds, two Trammels, two Pails, and two Candlesticks, and take his receipt for the same.

And Ordered, That the said Company be supplied with the usual allowance of Wood.

A second Letter from William Powell, requesting a permit to go on board the Ship Phoenix, was read and filed.

Ordered, That he be informed that this Committee is well assured Captain Parker will not permit him to pass to sea, and that therefore the Committee will not give him a permit to go on board.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., March 22, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Captain Rutgers dissents.

Ordered, That Philip Livingston, by his Agent, Mr. Abraham Livingston, be permitted to export Wheat, Flour, and other produce of the United Colonies, (Cattle, Sheep, Hogs, and Poultry, excepted,) to the amount of twenty thousand Dollars, for the service of the United Colonies, pursuant to a permission of the Committee of Secrecy of the Continental Congress of the 8th of January last.

Ordered, That Mr. — Deane, of the Colony of Connecticut, be permitted to load the Brigantine Elizabeth with Wheat and Flour, on Continental account, pursuant to an order of the Continental Congress.

A draft of a Letter to Captain Patrick Sinclair, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 22, 1776.

SIR: On receipt of your late request to go to Britain, the Provincial Congress applied to the honourable Continental Congress for a permission for the purpose. Success having attended the application, we enclose you a copy of the permission, and hope it may come to your hands so early as to enable you to take the benefit of a passage in the packet, if it should be your desire. We presume the Committee of Huntington will accept of your parole, that you will go to Britain on your leaving Suffolk County.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Huntington, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: The honourable the Continental Congress has given permission for Mr. Patrick Sinclair to go to Britain, of which we send you a copy. You will be pleased to deliver him the enclosed, and permit him, on his giving his promised parole that he will immediately proceed to Britain, to come to New-York to take passage, whenever it suits his convenience.

Sarah Seborn, the wife of Frederick Seborn, a private sentinel in the Company whereof Frederick Weisenfels, Esq., was late Captain, now in the Continental service at Quebeck, being in distress, with her family of children, produced a letter of attorney from her husband, duly executed, dated the 8th day of August last, and certified by Captain Weisenfels, enabling her to receive thirty-five Shillings per month of her husband's pay:

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius advance to Sarah Seborn, in part of her said husband's pay, two Pounds thirteen Shillings and four Pence, and take her receipt for the same; and that he inform General Schuyler and the Deputy Paymaster-General thereof.

A Letter from Colonel Isaac Nicoll, at the Fortifications, was received and read, and is in the words following:

"Fort Constitution, March 21, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: There was a question arose yesterday between Colonel Palmer and myself concerning the command of the troops now stationed at Pooplopen Kill. Colonel Palmer is of opinion that, in consequence of a resolve of your honourable House for calling Minute-men out of his Regiment in particular to that station, it was the intent of Congress (as he was one of the Commissioners to superintend the work) that he should have the command of those troops. I am of opinion that, in consequence of the order of the Committee of Safety that placed me here as commanding officer of the Fortifications in the Highlands, the command of the troops at both stations comes within my department. I would therefore beg the favour of your honourable Board to solve the question, and let me know by the bearer, Captain Thomas Moffat, whether I have anything to do with the troops at that station or not, in order that I may know how to make a proper return of the number of men at that station now in the service.

"I have sent two orders by the bearer—one for services done by a Minute Company at this station, and another for sundries with which I stand charged to particular persons, as per account; and as the money is wanting, should be glad to have it by the bearer, Captain Moffat, if possible.

"I am, with respect, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

"ISAAC NICOLL.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York."

Ordered, That the Accounts enclosed in Colonel Nicoll's Letter be delivered to one of the Auditors.

Die Veneris, 4 ho. P. M., March 22, 1776.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cooper.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Morris Graham.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

Gilbert Forbes, of the City of New-York, Gunsmith, at the door, was admitted. He informs that he has lately had a certain William Clarke, a Lockflier by trade, and a useful mechanick, employed in his service; that a person named Winter, from Chester, in Maryland, has lately come here, and insists on taking the said William Clarke to Chester, in Maryland; that he has offered forty Shillings, Proclamation money, per week to the said Clarke; that Clarke having refused to accept of wages, or go with the said Winter, Winter now claims him as a servant, and has threatened to apprehend the said William Clarke, and to commence a suit against the said Gilbert Forbes:

Ordered, That the said Gilbert Forbes be protected in the employment of the said William Clarke, and the said William Clarke be protected in pursuing his trade and occupation for the present; that the said Gilbert Forbes and the said Winter personally appear before this Committee to be heard in the premises; and that in the mean time no suit or other measures contrary to the above directions be pursued by either of the parties, until the further order of this Committee.

(Many unimportant applications to the Committee were not thought worthy of notice on the Minutes.)

Henry Remsen, Esq., came into the Committee, and conferred with them on the propriety of the City Committee calling in the male inhabitants who are out of town, for a short time, to take a tour of duty; on the necessity of either a sale or a loan of a small quantity of Gunpowder to the Militia on Bergen Shore, to enable them to protect Boats, and other Craft, against the Barges of the Ships-of-War; and on sundry other matters.

Colonel Remsen was desired to inform the Committees on Jersey Shore that they shall have the loan of three quarter-casks of Gunpowder, to be delivered to the Committee of Bergen, and the Committee of Acquacknunch.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Colonel Morris Graham, President.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Mr. Rutgers, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Mr. Sands, Major Stoutenburgh.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding, Col. Joseph Drake.

Ordered, That the Port-Master be, and he is hereby, permitted to take with him on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, for the use of Governour Tryon, the following articles, viz: Mrs. Hatch, one boat-load of Wood, one box of Kitchen Furniture, fifty bushels of Corn, and one and a half tons of Hay.

John Bell attending, requested permission to go on board the Packet to procure a passage in her to go to England:

Thereupon Ordered, That John Bell be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board the Packet, in company with the Port-Master, but not to return; he having been sworn that he will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony, or carry any Letters or Papers relative thereto, nor any other Letters or Papers except his own private Papers, or such as shall have been inspected by two members of this Committee.

Gilbert Forbes and — Winter attended the Committee, were called in, and respectively heard. Mr. Winter produced a paper purporting to be a sale of a certain William Jones, but without seal, not signed by the person therein mentioned by the name of William Jones, nor in any manner authenticated, agreeable to any law whatever. The Committee are of opinion that is no evidence whatever, and do not countenance his apprehending Clarke.

David Barclay attended the Committee, and was admitted. He set forth many difficulties he would be reduced to by dismissing him at present from the care and management of the Guard at the Cannon beyond King's Bridge, as he had hired the men of that Guard by the month. He further declared that he did not desire any advantage from the sum reported as reasonable, and agreed to be allowed him per month by the Congress for that Guard, but would be contented with his pay and disbursements.

Ordered, That David Barclay continue his Guard at the Cannon until the expiration of one month from the time he took the care and management of that Guard.

A Return of Militia Officers for Eastchester, in Westchester County, elected in the presence of Daniel Sering and Stephen Sneden, Committee-men, was read and filed. The following Officers are thereby returned as elected on the 9th instant, viz: Thomas Pinckney, Captain; William Pinckney, First Lieutenant; John Sneden, Second Lieutenant; and William Reed, Ensign.

A Return of Militia Officers elected in the presence of Frederick Van Cortlandt and Thomas Emans, Committee-men, in the Precinct of the Yonkers, was read and filed. The following Officers are thereby returned as elected on the 18th instant, to wit: John Warner, Captain; Jacob Post, First Lieutenant; Samuel Lawrence, Second Lieutenant; and Isaac Post, Ensign.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for the Officers of the two Companies as returned elected and above-mentioned.

And the said Commissions were issued accordingly.

A Letter from Major Douglass as to the service at the Lakes, and which was received yesterday, was read and filed. He says he will proceed to the Lakes when he receives the command of the Continental Congress, or the General, if his health will permit; and, in the mean time, will serve his country; and desires the Committee would assist and forward Mr. Wynkoop.

A draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony relative to the command on the Lakes, and recommending Captain Wynkoop, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On the 16th instant, the Provincial Congress (then about to adjourn) received a letter from Major-General Schuyler respecting Major Douglass and Captain Wynkoop, of which we enclose a copy, (No. 1.) The Provincial Congress immediately sent for Captain Wynkoop, read the General's letter to him, delivered him a copy, desired him to call on Major Douglass with it, and return an answer the speediest possible.

On the 18th, Captain Wynkoop informed the Committee of Safety that he had called on Major Douglass, (who is in Colonel Ward's Regiment, in King's County,) and delivered him a copy of the General's letter; that Major Douglass had intimated that he was now in service; that it would be at least two months before he could attend at the Lakes, if his health would then permit. The Committee thereupon wrote to Major Douglass, and on the 21st received his answer, of which we enclose you copies, (Nos. 2 and 3.)

The season is so far advanced, that the service must suffer if the vessels on the Lakes are not immediately employed. We have prevailed on Captain Wynkoop, by this reason only, to engage seamen, and proceed to the General, with all possible despatch. We beg leave, through you, to inform Congress that Captain Wynkoop was bred a mariner; has frequently been master of mercantile vessels; and served with reputation during the last war both in the land and marine departments; we think him an officer of merit, and we have heard his conduct in the last campaign highly applauded.

We have promised to recommend Mr. Wynkoop to Congress for the command of the vessels on the Lakes. This we do with the greatest cheerfulness, as we think him equal to the command and worthy of the trust; and, from General Schuyler's letter, we are induced to believe it would not be disagreeable to him.

We do not wish to impose Captain Wynkoop's services on Congress in this command, if it is not perfectly agreeable to them; and should the Congress think proper to order Major Douglass, or any other gentleman, to go up to take that command, we pray their determination may be speedy, that the service may not suffer, as Captain Wynkoop will not continue in that service under Major Douglass.

We are, gentlemen, &c.

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

The Letter from John Chatfield, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Easthampton, received and read yesterday, was again read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Easthampton, March 22, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: This day, about ten o'clock in the forenoon, our guard stationed at Montauk saw twenty sail of square-rigged vessels (five of them appeared to be large) and two sloops, bearing about south-southeast from the point of Montauk, about nine or ten miles to sea, the wind south-southeast, the weather something thick and hazy, steering about northeast by north, and sailed to the eastward of Block-Island, and suppose, by the course they steered, that they were going into Rhode-Island. This, gentlemen, is all the information we can give you concerning them, as about one o'clock they disappeared behind Block-Island, and they saw them no more.

"As we are a frontier, at the east end of Long-Island, and are destitute of men to defend us, and have but little ammunition, should be very glad if the honourable House would use their endeavours that we may have some assistance.

"We are, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

"Signed by order of the Committee of Easthampton.

"JOHN CHATFIELD, Chairman."

The Committee, taking into consideration the defenceless state of Suffolk County,

Resolved, That one thousand pounds of Gunpowder and four thousand pounds of Lead, be immediately depatched by a boat to Huntington, for the use of the inhabitants of Suffolk County, to be charged to the County, and the County to be accountable for the same. That a Letter be written to Brigadier-General Woodhull, informing him of the supply of Ammunition sent to his County; and that Mr. Tredwell have the management of forwarding the said Ammunition.

And Resolved, That Brigadier-General Woodhull be, and he is hereby, authorized to make such disposition of the Militia of his Brigade, on any sudden invasion when he may find it necessary, as he from time to time shall think best, without delaying for directions from the Provincial Congress, Committee of Safety, or the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Forces in this Colony, or from the County Committee.

Ordered, That Mr. Norwood, the Colony Commissary of Stores, deliver to Thomas Tredwell, Esq., or his order, one thousand pounds of Gunpowder and four thousand pounds of Lead, for the use of the inhabitants of Suffolk County, and that Mr. Norwood take Mr. Tredwell's receipt for the same.

A draft of a Letter to Brigadier-General Woodhull, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: We have by this conveyance sent to Huntington one thousand pounds of gunpowder, and four thousand pounds of lead, for the use of the inhabitants of your County, to be charged to the County, to be accountable. We must add that ammunition is so scarce that it is not probable you will soon receive any further supply.

By a resolution of the Committee of Safety, you are authorized to make such dispositions of the Militia of your brigade, on any sudden invasion, as you, from time to time, shall think best, without delaying for directions from the Provincial Congress, Committee of Safety, or of the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental forces in this Colony, or from the County Committee.

We are, respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

To Brigadier-General Woodhull.

Ordered, That the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Mr. Norwood, the Commissary of the Military Stores of this Colony, do not deliver out any Powder, Ball, or Flints, belonging to the Colony, without the order of the Congress, or Committee of Safety of this Colony for the time being, except in time of invasion, and when neither the Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony are convened.

Ordered, further, That the said Commissary make a return to this Committee of the Powder, Ball, and Flints, he has delivered; particularly specifying by whose order, and to whom delivered; and also of the quantity of Powder, Ball, and Flint, he shall have in store belonging to this Colony, after the order of this day, for supplying the County of Suffolk, be completed.

A Letter from the Committee of Safety at Philadelphia, was read. They thereby inform us that they have sent Captain Charles Alexander and Lieutenant John Hennessey, two officers of the armed-boats in that Province, for the purpose of recruiting Seamen for the Naval service of that Province, and recommend them to this Committee for assistance.

A Letter from James Duane, Esq., at Continental Congress, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, March 21, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Mr. Carpenter Wharton, is Commissary for the Pennsylvania Troops. He supplies them by contract at seven pence per ration, Philadelphia currency. He will probably make the same offer for the rest of the Army in the Middle Department, and unless others will be equally reasonable, must be entitled to a preference, it being the intention of Congress to have their Armies supplied in the easiest terms. He supports a very fair character in this place, and is well connected.

"I have the honour to be, with the utmost regard, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"JAMES DUANE.

"Honourable Convention of New-York."

Mr. Wharton delivered to a Member (who brought it into the Committee) the following Resolve, to wit:

"IN CONGRESS, March 16, 1776.—Resolved, That Carpenter Wharton, Commissary, continue, agreeable to his contract, to supply with Rations the Pennsylvania Battalions serving in New-York.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary."

It appearing necessary that this Committee should know how many Officers and men are at the Fortifications erecting at Hell-gate:

Ordered, That Colonel Lott and Colonel Brasher be a Committee to go to Horne's Hook, and muster all the Troops there, both Officers and Privates, and return an exact List of those Troops, specifying the names of the Officers and of the men in their respective Companies there, in actual service; and that the said Committee see every man whose name they shall take down or report.

Ordered, That the Port-Master be, and he is hereby permitted to put on board the Packet one barrel of Ale, and on board of the Dutchess of Gordon five hundred weight of Bread.

James Cooper, a Boatman, and George Allisony, a Sawyer, going on board of the Packet with the Port-Master with Wood, were severally duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists not to give any intelligence to any person on board of the said Packet, Governour Tryon's Ship, or the Ships-of-War in the Harbour, relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of the City or Colony, and that they will not carry on board any Letters or Paper writings whatsoever:

Ordered, That they be admitted to go on board with the Port-Master.

Mr. James Campbell, Merchant, from Canada, was admitted. He was duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists not to communicate any intelligence to any person or persons on board of the Packet, or of Governour Tryon's Ship, the Dutchess of Gordon, or either of the Ships-of-War in this Harbour, with respect to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony, and that he will not carry on board, nor deliver to any person on board of either of those vessels, any letters or writings relative thereto, and that he will not carry on board any other letters or papers whatsoever, except his own private papers, or such as shall be first inspected by order of this Committee:

Thereupon Ordered, That Mr. James Campbell be, and he is hereby permitted to go on board the Packet, (with the Port-Master,) not to return; he having been duly sworn that he will not communicate any intelligence with respect to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony, or carry any Letters or Papers which contain any intelligence relative thereto.

Captain Johannes Jacobus Blauvelt attending, informed the Committee, that he was come down with a party of Minute-men from Orangetown; that his and his Lieutenant's Commissions are for the Militia; and prayed that a Commission be made out for him as a Minute Captain, and another for his Lieutenant as an Ensign of the same nature, his Lieutenant having agreed to accept of Ensign's pay.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to Johannes Jacobus Blauvelt as Captain, and Jacobus Smith as Ensign, of the Orangetown Company of Minute-men.

And they were issued accordingly.

A permit from Nicholas Cooke, Esquire, Governour of the Colony of Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, under the seal of the said Colony, bearing date the 9th day of March, instant, was read. He thereby permits Upton Fraser, Master of the Sloop Greenwich, to proceed to the Colony of New-York in ballast only, and there take on board a lading of Provisions and other articles, under the direction of the Committee of Inspection of the City, Town, or County, where he shall lade, and to return to that Colony.

Sufficient bond having been given that he, the said Isaac Upton, shall in all things conform himself to the Continental Association,

Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York, or their sub-Committee of Inspection, be permitted, and hereby are permitted, to give permission to Isaac Upton, Master of the Sloop Greenwich, to take on board a lading of Flour, Bread, or any other Provisions whatsoever, (Beef and Pork excepted,) and any quantity of pig Iron that they may think proper, and export the same to Rhode-Island, under such directions or restrictions, and in such manner as they may think proper.

To the General Committee of the City of New-York, and to Mr. Ray and Colonel Hyer their sub-Committee, and to Captain William Mercier.

The Committee, finding that a sufficient quantity of Lead cannot be purchased for the use of the publick and the necessary defence of this Colony,

Ordered, That Mr. Samuel Prince be, and he is hereby, authorized to employ proper Mechanicks for that purpose, and to take the Leads out of the window-cases of the City-Hall of this City, and also out of the Exchange of this City of New-York; to keep an account of the weight of Lead taken out of each Building, separately, that the weight of Lead taken out of each may be known; and that Mr. Prince cause the said Lead to be delivered to Mr. Curtenius, or his order.

Mr. Prince informed the Committee that Mr. John Meyer, the keeper of the City-Hall, refused to open the doors of the different apartments in the Hall, unless he should be ordered by this Committee:

Thereupon, it was Ordered, That Mr. John Meyer be, and he is hereby, directed and required to open the doors of all the rooms and apartments in the City-Hall of the City of New-York, that Mr. Samuel Prince may be enabled to take the Leaden Weights out of the window-casements, pursuant to an order of this Committee of this day.

The Committee adjourned till four o'clock this afternoon.

Die Lunæ, 4 ho. P. M., March 25, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esq., Chairman pro tem.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Prince, Colonel McDougall.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR ALBANY.—Colonel P. R. Livingston.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson, Colonel M. Graham.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Leffertse.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

Ordered, That Mr. Norwood deliver to Colonel McDougall, or his order, one quarter-cask of Gunpowder, to be forwarded to Cornelius Atherton, for the purpose of proving the Musket-barrels the said Atherton hath made by contract with Colonel McDougall and Colonel Curtenius; the price of the said Gunpowder to be deducted out of the first payment to be made on the said contract.

John McDonald, the person lately sent by the Provincial Congress (pursuant to an order of Continental Congress) to explore the Lead-Mines at New-Canaan, returned. His Report, with several Letters relating thereto, were read and filed.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay to John McDonald the sum of eighteen Dollars, for his services in going to explore a Lead-Mine at New-Canaan, pursuant to an order of Continental Congress, and take his receipt for the same on Continental account.

Resolved, That the Captains and inferior Officers and Mariners of the Armed Vessels now fitted out, or to be fitted out by this Colony, for the protection of its trade, against the depredations of the enemy, be subject to, and governed by the Articles of War made by the Continental Congress for the government of the Navy of the United Colonies; and that Captain Smith, of the Sloop Schuyler, and Captain Rogers, be each of them served with a copy of this Resolution.

A Letter from Colonel Hay, dated the 24th instant, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Haverstraw, March 24, 1776.

“SIR: In compliance with the resolution of Congress of the 13th instant, ordering sixty-five privates to be drafted out of my regiment and sent to New-York, I have called the regiment together for the purpose.

“Lieutenant-Colonel Cooper, of the Minute Regiment, attended, and insisted on drafting every fourth man to complete his regiment. This created great uneasiness in my regiment, and rendered it impossible for me to send down the detachment required, without greatly distressing the inhabitants, which made it necessary for me to postpone the business until Wednesday next, which day the regiment is again ordered to attend.

“I am of opinion that the publick service will be greatly promoted if the Committee of Safety would order to New-York the Minute Regiment, or sixty-five of that corps, instead of the detachment from my regiment. The publick by this means will be furnished with the young men, well accoutred.

“I should be happy to have the sentiments of the Committee of Safety on this subject by the bearer hereof. If the Committee of Safety should agree in opinion with me, be pleased to forward their order to Colonel Cooper by the bearer of this, so that I may have it by Wednesday next.

“I am, sir, with great esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

“A. HAWKES HAY.”

An Answer to Colonel Hay was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 25, 1776.

SIR: In answer to yours of yesterday, we would just inform you, that we shall give orders to Colonel Cooper, who is now in town, to send down a company of Minute-men, in lieu of those ordered by the Congress to be drafted out of your regiment. At the same time, as the enemy have quit-Boston, and we know not how soon they will be here, we would urge it upon you with the greatest earnestness to use your utmost endeavours to have your regiment in all possible readiness to march upon the shortest notice.

We are, respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

To Colonel A. Hawkes Hay.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Lieutenant-Colonel Cuyper, of the Orange County Regiment of Minute-men, send down to New-York, as soon as possible, one full Company of the Orange County Regiment of Minute-men, completely armed, accoutred, and appointed in the best manner, and each with his Blanket. That this Company be sent down to New-York instead of the Company which Colonel Hay was desired to despatch from his Regiment.

A Letter from the Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County was received and read, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Dutchess County Committee, March 19, 1776.

“SIR: The following recruiting officers, viz: Captain Swartwout, Captain Barker, and Captain Pierce, came before this Committee and informed us that they were under great difficulties with respect to raising men in this County, by reason of the reduction of the wages of the soldiers, and that many of the young men in this County that were disposed to go into the service, had enlisted in the Connecticut Regiments, as their pay is there still kept up to the former establishment, viz: five pounds three shillings and four pence bounty, and five pounds three shillings and four pence per month, and a month's pay and the bounty advanced immediately upon inlisting. They likewise informed us that they labour under another difficulty, from this circumstance, that the time of inlistment is not limited, but left indefinite in the instructions.

“From this information, and from our own observations of the dissatisfaction throughout the country, caused by the late establishment of the soldiers' pay, this Committee are of opinion the companies cannot be filled in this County without an augmentation of wages.

“You will please to favour us with the sentiments of Congress respecting these matters as soon as possible, as the officers wait for our answer.

“We are, sir, your humble servants.

“By order of the Committee.

“EGBERT BENSON, Chairman.”

Draft of an Answer to the Letter from the Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County was read, approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are this day favoured with your letter of the 19th instant, stating the difficulties of the recruiting officers in your County. We apprehend their difficulties arise from mistake. The pay, clothing, and bounty, allowed to the Continental troops now raising in this Colony, are the same as allowed in Connecticut, Jersey, &c. It is the Continental establishment for all troops raised for service in the Middle Colonies, and for all Continental forces whatever, that we know of, except those raised for the service in Canada. The troops raised for the Canadian service only have five pounds three shillings and four pence per month, one month's pay advanced, but to be discounted. And we conceive that the arduous service they undertake, and the high prices that must be there paid for every necessary, render their pay and service not the most eligible. The allowances and regulations published in this Colony are in the very words of the Continental Congress. It is not in our power to change the terms given to the troops, in any one article.

We hope the gentlemen in your County may succeed in raising their companies, as we have some time ago refused several gentlemen who offered their service, with full companies, out of respect to your County Committee's recommendations that your County might have an opportunity of employing their proportion of officers and men. But if any of them cannot raise their men, we ought to be informed of it as soon as possible, as the Continental Congress has more than once directed inquiries whether the troops are raised, or how near being completed.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of Dutchess County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and transmitted.

A Letter from John Barnes, of Charlotte Precinct, in Dutchess County, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Charlotte Precinct, Dutchess County, March 22, 1776.

"SIR: In consequence of a variety of accidents the enclosed alterations have taken place in the four companies of Militia in this Precinct. I have therefore to beg you will be pleased to return me the several commissions here specified as soon as possible, lest the service may be impeded by delay, as some individuals are so obstinate as to refuse training until their Captains produce their commissions. I am also sorry to observe that the late nomination of Bernard Doughty and Dirck Doty as Captains, (though conformable to the rules prescribed,) were, I am persuaded, chosen under an undue influence, and done merely to render the service of their companies useless and contemptible. Of course it cannot be expected the inferior officers named, (who are good men,) together with a number of men belonging to these two companies, (who would otherwise be imbodyed,) will obey orders. For these reasons I have not troubled you with their names. These several circumstances were debated yesterday in the County Committee then sitting, and Captain Doughty examined thereupon; yet still we found it impossible to set aside his election. Captain Doty, though not examined in person, we found exactly in the same predicament; upon the whole, therefore, it was proposed that their commissions only should be written for, and, when received, that Colonel Sutherland be requested to see that every part of their duty as Captains be strictly attended to. By this mode of proceeding, it is expected they will bring on their own dissolution, and thereby create a new election, when it may reasonably be expected a better one will succeed.

"I am, respectfully, sir, your very humble servant,

"JOHN BARNES.

"To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esquire.

"Stoutenburgh's, late William Gay, declined: Joseph Hagerman, Captain; John Hagerman, First Lieutenant; Jonathan Holmes, Second Lieutenant.

"Gidney's, late De la Verne, preferred: Frederick Stritt, Captain; William Woodworth, First Lieutenant; Daniel Hamill, Second Lieutenant; David Ostrom, Ensign.

"Christopher Tobias, late Jacob Tobias, deceased: Bernard Doughty, Captain.

"Sharpstone's, late Isaac Bloom, on Minute service: Dirck Doty, Captain."

Die Martis, 10 ho. A. M., March 26, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esq., Chairman pro tem.
FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Mr. Sands.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR ALBANY.—Colonel P. R. Livingston.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Leffertse.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel Graham, Mr. Everson.

Whereas the allowance made by the Continental Congress for the Frocks of the Troops to be raised in this Colony, appears to be insufficient, owing to the great scarcity of the proper stuff to make them of; and whereas it is necessary for encouraging the raising the said Troops expeditiously, that they should be clothed in Uniform,

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that, as well for the reputation as the security of this Colony, the Troops should be raised without delay, and that all encouragement should be given for that purpose.

Therefore Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius be, and he is hereby directed to provide Frocks for the Troops raising for the defence of this Colony, of the most proper Cloth he may be able to procure, and on the most reasonable terms in his power.

Mr. Peter Vandervoort attending, requested permission to export twenty barrels of Flour, for the use of some persons employed in erecting a fortification at New-London.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter Vandervoort be, and he is hereby, permitted to export twenty barrels of Flour, for the use of those who are erecting a fortification at New-London.

Ordered, That Mr. Tredwell and Mr. Moore be a Committee to consider of, and report a plan for disarming the Tories, pursuant to the Resolution of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That the Colonels, or Commanding Officers of the respective Corps of Minute-men now in service at New-York or the places adjacent, do permit the Recruiting Officers of the several Regiments now raising in this Colony for Continental service, to enlist any men they can out of the said Minute Regiments; and that the said Recruiting Officers be permitted to take such men as they may so enlist into their respective corps of Continental Troops immediately.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Thompson was received, read, and is as follows, viz:

"New-York, March 26, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I must request you would furnish me with the sum of three hundred Dollars, which I at present stand in need of for the publick service. Major Scull, who waits on you with this, will give the proper receipt.

"I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

"WILLIAM THOMPSON, Brigadier-General."

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Brigadier-General Thompson, the sum of three hundred Dollars, and take a receipt for the same, on Continental account.

Ordered, That Captain Post be, and he is hereby, directed to furnish the Barrackmaster with as many Tables, Benches, and other necessary articles, for the use of the Troops in this City, as the Barrack shall, from time to time, require or stand in need of.

A Letter from Mr. Isaac Sears, with General Lee's orders to him for his expedition to Queen's County, were severally read. Mr. Sears desires that the Bills he drew while employed on that expedition, may be paid.

Ordered, That the said papers be filed.

Ordered, That five hundred weight of Gunpowder be sent to the Committee of Orange County; and that the Committees of the Counties of Ulster and Dutchess be authorized, and they are hereby authorized, to receive each one thousand weight of the ton of Gunpowder lodged in Fort Constitution, belonging to this Colony; and that the respective Counties above-mentioned be charged with the said Powder; and that the said Powder be disposed of by the respective Committees of the said Counties, in the best manner to prevent the attacks or ravages of any enemy who might attempt to proceed up Hudson's River.

And Ordered, That the Committee of each of the said Counties respectively, give such directions for the disposition of the said Gunpowder that it may not be wasted, or expended, but in the defence of the country, lest those Counties might be distressed before any other possible supply can be afforded to them.

And Ordered, That Mr. Richard Norwood, Commissary, deliver to Theunis Cuyper, Esq., five hundred weight of Gunpowder, for the County Committee of Orange County, and that Mr. Norwood take Mr. Cuyper's receipt for the same.

A draft of an Answer to Colonel Nicoll's Letter, of the 21st instant, which was received on the 22d, was read, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 26, 1776.

SIR: Yours, of the the 21st instant, came safe to hand, and we are of opinion that Mr. Palmer's being appointed one of the Commissioners does by no means supersede or interfere with your appointment as commander of the troops at the posts; and that you should still continue to command all the troops at the different Fortifications in the Highlands, according to your original appointment, until you shall be relieved by some Continental officer, or until the further order of a Committee of Safety, or Congress, of this Colony; but the Commissioners undoubtedly have power to direct that the troops be set to work in such numbers and in such parts of the Fortifications as they may think proper, to carry on the works. We have no reason to doubt but you will so command the troops as will render them most useful for that purpose.

The accounts you sent down could not be audited for want of proper vouchers; but that you may have the money as soon as possible we shall order the Commissioners to audit and pay them.

We are, sir, with respect, your very humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Die Martis, 4to ho. P. M., March 26, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esq., Chairman pro. tem.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Mr. Sands.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR ALBANY.—Colonel P. R. Livingston.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cooper.

FOR CUMBERLAND.—Colonel William Williams.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Leffertse.

FOR ULSTER.—Mr. Cantine.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Colonel M. Graham, Mr. Everson.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

Ordered, That Captain Charles Alexander and Lieutenant John Hennessey be at liberty to inlist the Mariners lately brought from the east end of Nassau-Island, and now confined in the Jail of this City, and take them to Philadelphia; and that the said Mariners be discharged from confinement on the request of those gentlemen.

The Committee of Safety, having called and examined the gentlemen inlisting Mariners for the three vessels on the Lake, by order of Continental Congress, and the Captains of the Armed Vessels fitting out by order of this Colony for the defence of the trade between Sandy-Hook and the Capes of Delaware, are informed that there are but few Mariners in this city, and not more, if so many, as will be sufficient for the necessary purposes above-mentioned. The Committee are therefore of opinion that they cannot, with justice to the Colony or to the publick service to the northward, consent that Captain Alexander and Lieutenant Hennessey inlist, or take away any other Mariners than those above-mentioned.

Thomas Hockley, of Philadelphia, Merchant, and John Warder, of the same place, Merchant, (being two of the people called Quakers,) attending, were admitted. Matthias Aspin, of Philadelphia, and William Horner, of Virginia, also attending, were admitted.

The said Thomas Hockley and John Warder were respectively duly affirmed; and the said Matthias Aspin and William Horner were respectively duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists, not to give any information or intelligence whatsoever to any person or persons whomsoever on board of the Packet, the ship in which Governour Tryon resides, the Ships Asia or Phenix, or on board of any other vessel in this Colony, under the care or direction of, or connected with any person on board of either of the vessels above-mentioned, relative to any Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony, or any other of the United Colonies; nor relative to the American Fleet, or any armed vessels fitted out by any Colony or place; and not to carry on board of either of the said vessels, nor deliver to any person belonging to either of them, any papers or writings whatever relative thereto; nor any other papers or writings but such as shall have been first shown to this Committee, and permitted to be taken on board.

Thereupon permits were given to the said four persons respectively, to go on board of the Packet with the Port-Master.

The Committee took into consideration Mr. Duane's Letter, received yesterday by Commissary Wharton.

Thereupon a draft of a Letter to the Continental Congress, on the subject of the contract for victualling the Troops, was read, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 26, 1776.

SIR: In the month of February last, the Provincial Congress of this Colony received, amongst other things, resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress, dated the 17th instant, under the hands of the President and Secretary, "That the sum of thirty-five thousand Dollars be advanced to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, for the support of the Troops employed for the defence of that Colony; that it be recommended to the Convention or Committee of Safety of New-York, to contract with proper persons for supplying the said Troops with the Rations allowed by Congress, and Fuel, and other necessities, on the most reasonable terms in their power"

To prevent trouble, we enclose an exact copy of the said two resolutions, marked No. 1.

The Provincial Congress appointed a Committee to receive proposals of contracts for supplying the said troops; which Committee caused the rations, and other necessities to be supplied, to be published in the New-York newspapers; and, agreeable to their advertisements, received all proposals offered for that purpose, sealed up, to prevent collusion as far as possible. After every care and precaution taken, the Provincial Congress, on the 15th of March, accepted of the proposals of Mr. Abraham Livingston, for supplying the said troops, his being the most reasonable that were offered; and on the 16th, the contract was perfected and executed by five gentlemen from different Counties, on behalf of the Provincial Congress, pursuant to the resolution above-mentioned, and by Mr. Abraham Livingston.

We enclose you a copy of the contract, (No. 2,) and therefore need not repeat its contents.

Mr. Livingston has, by bond, given sufficient sureties, in the sum of thirty thousand pounds, to perform his contract; and the Provincial Congress have agreed to advance him five thousand pounds, and to pay him five thousand pounds at the expiration of every month, if the support of the troops by him supplied shall amount to that sum.

In pursuance of those agreements, Mr. Livingston has purchased provisions to a very large amount. The Provincial Congress were induced to make the said contract, not only because it was the most reasonable terms then in their power, but, considering the risk and expense of transportation, should any force obstruct the navigation between this city and King's County, or between the city and the Highlands, the contract would be highly advantageous to the Continent.

Yesterday we saw a resolution of Congress, that Carpenter Wharton, Commissary, continue, agreeable to his contract, to supply with rations the Pennsylvania Battalions serving in New-York; and were favoured with a letter from Mr. Duane, recommending him as contractor for the regiments raised in this Colony, on the same terms he is allowed for the Pennsylvania Battalions. We are sorry that it is now out of our power to contract with that gentleman, even should he be willing to supply the troops raised here on the same terms he does the others.

The Provincial Congress of New-York were not only directed "to contract for the troops employed for the defence of that Colony," but the method directed appeared the most eligible, as the larger the contract offered, the more reasonable terms were to be expected, and could be afforded.

Should Congress determine to supersede what has been done in this Colony, as far forth as it relates to the Pennsylvania Battalions, we will endeavour to make the best terms we can with Mr. Livingston as to that part of his contract, and are inclined to believe he will not take any unreasonable advantages of the gentlemen bound to him in the contract, or of the publick.

Whatever further directions Congress may think proper in their wisdom to give in the premises, we would wish to receive with all convenient speed.

We have the honour to be, most respectfully, your most obedient, humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Mr. Nicholas Low returned to the Committee of Safety, with an order of this Committee, dated the 21st instant, permitting him to export Provisions and Lumber to the West-Indies, to the amount of eight hundred and ninety-six Pounds and nine Pence, in return for Military Stores imported into the Colony of New-York, and formerly sold and delivered to the Committee of Safety of the Colony. Mr. Low requests that Mr. Joseph Lewis may have permission on his behalf, to export the value of two hundred Pounds, in Provisions, Lumber, or any other kind of produce of this Colony, from Suffolk County, in this Colony, to the West-Indies; and that the said sum of two hundred Pounds be deducted from Mr. Low's said permit.

This request appearing to the Committee to be reasonable, and agreeable to the Resolutions and practice of the Continental Congress,

And Ordered, That such Committees make proper returns thereof to this Committee of Safety, or the Provincial Congress, to enable them to make return to the honourable Continental Congress, of the quantity and value of such Exports, agreeable to a Resolution of the Continental Congress, dated the 26th day of December last past, in such cases provided.

And Ordered; That the General Committee of the City and County of New-York, or their sub-Committee for Exports, deduct the sum of two hundred Pounds from Mr. Low's said permission to export, and permit him to export on his said order of the 21st day of March instant, only the amount or value of six hundred and ninety-six Pounds and nine Pence, and no more.

Colonel Brewer, the Barrackmaster-General, sent in to the Committee of Safety a memorandum, which was read and filed. Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Congress of this Colony, advance to Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, the sum of five thousand Pounds, on account, and take a receipt for the same.

Mr. Abraham Livingston attended, and delivered to the Committee a Bond from Philip Livingston and John Alsop, Esquires, and himself, in the sum of thirty thousand Pounds, conditioned for fulfilling his contract for victualling the Troops in this Colony.

The said Bond was read and filed; and Mr. Abraham Livingston requested an order on the Treasurer for five thousand Pounds, pursuant to the agreement of the Provincial Congress, on the 15th day of March instant, and the 22d power given by the Provincial Congress to the Committee of Safety:

Ordered, therefore, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Abraham Livingston, as contractor for victualling the Continental Troops in this Colony, the sum of five thousand Pounds, on account, in that department, Mr. Abraham Livingston to be accountable, and to give his receipt to the Treasurer for the same.

Ordered, That Captain Charles Alexander and Lieutenant John Hennessey be at liberty to enlist William Craig, a prisoner, now confined in the Jail of this City, and take him with them to Philadelphia; and that the said William Craig be discharged from confinement on the request of those gentlemen.

Ordered, That John McDonald immediately proceed to Orange County, and apply to Thomas Smith, Esq., for information relative to a Lead-Mine, (formerly mentioned by Mr. Smith in Congress as very valuable,) in some part of the said County; and that Mr. McDonald take Mr. Smith's advice and direction relative to the same.

And Ordered, That the said John McDonald (after having explored such Mine or Mines in Orange County as Mr. Smith, or such other person or persons as Mr. Smith shall recommend him to for advice and assistance, shall point out to him) proceed to the Little-Nine-Partners, in Dutchess County, and there apply to Colonel Morris Graham and Jonathan Landon, Esq., and take their advice and direction relative to Lead-Mines in Dutchess County; that Mr. McDonald carefully explore such Mines in Dutchess County as he may be advised to explore by Colonel Graham and Mr. Landon, and to report the state and quality of all such Mines, both in Orange and Dutchess County, as he shall or may explore, to this Committee, with all convenient speed.

A Letter from Christian Jacobson, Chairman of the Committee of Richmond County, was read. They thereby return the names of persons for Field-Officers, and inform the Committee that they have divided the County into four Districts; that they will speedily hold elections for Captains and Subalterns, and return their names to be commissioned.

Ordered, That Mr. Bancker write a Letter to the Committee of Richmond County, requesting him to transmit the names of such persons for Field-Officers as they may be assured will serve when they return a list of Captains and Subalterns.

Mr. Joseph Bull attended, and delivered in his Bond, executed to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, in the sum of two thousand Pounds, with a condition that, he will cause Isaac Gidney to be delivered a prisoner in Westchester Jail; and that the said Joseph Bull will procure good and sufficient security, in the sum of three thousand Pounds, to the said obligee, that the said Isaac Gidney will remain a prisoner in the said Jail during the pleasure of this Committee of Safety, or some future Committee of Safety or Congress. Ordered, That Commissions issue for the Officers of the said Company without delay.

And they were issued accordingly.

The Committee took into consideration the Resolutions of the Continental Congress for disarming disaffected persons. The same having been under consideration at different times, the Committee came to a unanimous determination, in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 27, 1776.

Whereas the Continental Congress, on the 14th instant, did "recommend it to the several Assemblies, Conventions, and Councils or Committees of Safety of the United Colonies, immediately to cause all persons to be disarmed within their respective Colonies who are notoriously disaffected to the cause of America, or who have not associated, and refuse to associate to defend by arms these United Colonies against the hostile attempts of the British Fleets and Armies, and to apply the Arms taken from such persons in each respective Colony, in the first place to the arming the Contimental Troops raised in said Colony, in the next to the arming such troops as are raised by the Colony for its own defence, and the residue to be applied to the arming the Associators; that the Arms when taken be appraised by indifferent persons, and such as are applied to the arming Continental Troops be paid for by Congress, and the residue by the respective Assemblies, Conventions, or Councils or Committees of Safety:" And whereas the necessity of having the Continental Troops, and other inhabitants of these Colonies who are disposed and willing to defend the rights of their country, immediately armed, renders it highly expedient that the said Resolution should be carried into immediate execution:

Therefore Resolved, That it be recommended to the Committees of the several Cities, Counties, Manors, Townships, Precincts, and Districts in this Colony, forthwith to cause to be disarmed all persons within their respective Districts who are known to be disaffected to the cause of America: and, also, all such persons as shall refuse to sign the following Association, to wit:

"We, the subscribers, inhabitants of . . . . . in the County of . . . . . and Colony of New-York, do voluntarily and solemnly engage and associate, under all the ties held sacred among mankind, at the risk of our lives and fortunes, to defend, by arms, the United American Colonies against the hostile attempts of the British Fleets and Armies, until the present unhappy controversy between the two countries shall be settled."

And that it be recommended to the said Committees to use all possible prudence and moderation in carrying the said resolve into execution; and that in such Districts where the Committees find it absolutely necessary to call in an armed force, they are hereby empowered to order any part of the Minute-men, or common Militia of their Districts, to their assistance, that they and the Field-Officers of the forces shall judge necessary; and that the Arms so taken be appraised by indifferent persons appointed by said Committees; and that an account be made of their number, the persons they belong to, and their appraised value; and that each one be marked with the initial letters of the person's name from whom they were taken; and that the Arms, together with the account of them, be delivered to the Chairman of the Committee of the District in which they were so taken, or to such person or persons as shall be appointed by the said Committee for that purpose, he or they giving a receipt for the same; which accounts from the several Districts are to be forthwith transmitted to the Chairman of, and to be laid before, the County Committee, who are hereby directed to transmit an account of the number of Arms so taken, and how many of them are fit for immediate service, to the Committee of Safety, or Provincial Congress of this Colony, that they may be enabled to make further order therein; and in those Counties where there are skilful artificers for the purpose, that the said Committee do cause the said Arms to be fitted up with bayonets, steel rammers, and other necessary repairs, without delay, at the publick expense; and where there are no such artificers, the Committees are to send said Arms to the Committee of Safety, or Provincial Congress, as soon as collected.

Ordered, That a copy of these Resolutions be transmitted to the Chairman of the Committee of each County in the Colony, who is hereby directed to furnish the Chairman of the Committees of the several Towns, Precincts, and Districts in the County, with copies thereof without delay.

their Letter, and appointing persons to purchase Provisions, were respectively read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"Suffolk County, March 27, 1776.

"SIR: Whereas the east end of Long-Island is in a very defenceless situation, and much exposed to the ravages of the Ministerial Army, which are now distressing these Colonies; and as they have now quitted the Town of Boston, we are very apprehensive they may attempt to get possession of this part of the Island, which they may easily effect under our present defenceless situation, and which would be of great importance to them:

"We therefore think it necessary that a number of troops should be stationed there, which, we presume, you, in your wisdom, will think a proper measure; if so, we depend you will apply to the commanding officer of New-York for that purpose. And as a quantity of provisions will be absolutely necessary for the support of such troops; and as a supply may now be had in the County, and laid up as a magazine for that purpose, and as little or no loss will probably attend the laying up of such a store, therefore we hope you will direct that a suitable quantity may be purchased, and deposited in such place or places in this County as you shall think proper; otherwise we are apprehensive that such provisions will soon be exported from this County.

"We are, gentlemen, with respect, your most obedient, humble servants.

"Signed by order of the Committee:

"WILLIAM SMITH, Chairman.

"In Suffolk County Committee, March 27, 1776.

"Resolved, That an express be sent to the Committee of Safety at New-York, to take their Resolve upon the expediency of purchasing Provisions in this County for the use of the Troops that may be ordered or stationed in the County; and that Jesse Brush, Samuel Phillips, Phineas Fanning, Malby Gelston, and Burnet Miller, be a sub-Committee to put the Resolve of the Committee of Safety respecting the same into immediate execution.

Colonel Ephraim Martin, from Essex County, in New-Jersey, delivered in a Return of the following Barrack necessities wanting for his Regiment of Militia; and which he says he cannot obtain by purchase or otherwise, but by order of this Committee to Colonel Curtenius:

A long Letter from Messrs. Palmer and Livingston, two of the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands, on the subject of Provisions, Rum for Fatigue-men, and other matters, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fort Montgomery, March 28, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Fourteen days ago we began at this post with carpenters and masons, and have our buildings now in a fine way. Our storehouse is completed, and a barrack of eighty by twenty feet will, in a few days, be so far finished as to receive one hundred and sixty men; our bake-house, also, almost finished, and a quantity of fascines made, so that we shall soon begin to erect the Battery. We have now here about one hundred and forty men, and expect one company more in two or three days. The greater part have been at this post about six days, quartered in vessels. But the dissatisfaction of the soldiers, with respect to their provision, is so great that they will soon refuse their duty as labourers, and even now do not half the labour that might reasonably be expected from the numbers we have here. As they have nothing more of the usual species of provision allowed a soldier than pork and bread—this, added to their uncomfortable situation on board the sloops, makes them very uneasy and mutinous. We have used our utmost endeavours, with the influence of their officers, to quiet them, by telling them they will soon be better provided for. But we see no likelihood of that, as repeated applications have been lately made to the Commissary at Albany, and the Deputy-Commissary, (Mr. Phelps), now at Fort Constitution, and all to no purpose. We are therefore under the necessity of applying to you, and beg that you will immediately give such orders to the contractors and Deputy-Commissary, that this post may be supplied with every species allowed to make the full rations to each soldier; and if it cannot sooner be done in that way, your order to us to supply the troops here will be sufficient, as every necessary wanting is to be had in great plenty.

"We beg you will not pass over this application unnoticed; for in case the soldiers are not better provided for, they will not labour; and when that is the case, it cannot be expected that we can carry on the work.

"Captain Andrew Billings we have sent with this, who will be able fully to state the deplorable situation of the troops here, if the Committee will call on him, which we beg they may do; and if he returns without a remedy, it will then be out of our power to give them any kind of satisfaction. The soldiers know the errand Captain Billings goes on; and the expectation of relief on his return, keeps them from mutinying, and, we have reason to think, from quitting the post in a body, at least the greater part of them.

"Sentiments of humanity as well as sound policy constrain us to add, that, in a plentiful country, it is cruel not to provide well for those men that step forth to defend the rights of their country. Our common enemies, the Tories, take the advantage of it, and secretly retard the recruiting companies filling, which, for that and other reasons, goes on slowly. We are sensible that the above application to your body is not strictly proper; yet as necessity has and must warrant many things which have imposed themselves on you, we make the present application, with full confidence that some immediate relief may be had in the premises.

"We would beg leave to add that rum is an article very much wanting for the fatigue parties. If a supply of that could immediately be sent up, it would have a very good effect. In case a sufficiency cannot be provided, if we have orders, a plenty of cider and beer can be had, which would answer perhaps as well.

"We send, enclosed, a copy of an affidavit, which proves the assiduity of our enemies, and the necessity of a watchful eye on all their motions.

"In consequence of the resolves of the Provincial Congress, of the — instant, to which we beg to refer, we have called chiefly Continental Troops to this post, thinking they are most to be depended upon. These troops, we think, are and ought to be under our sole directions, as to the work that is to be done. As to what little military parade that is at present necessary, we conceive the eldest Captain here abundantly sufficient, the present body being merely a working party.

"We are, gentlemen, with much esteem, your very humble servants,

"GILBERT LIVINGSTON,
"THOMAS PALMER.

"To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

Die Sabbati, 10 ho. A. M., March 30, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esq., Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel Lott, Mr. Prince, Major Stoutenburgh, Mr. Helme.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Leffertse.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

Colonel McDougall informed the Committee that Colonel Trumbull, the Commissary-General, stood in great need of some place to store Provisions in. Colonel McDougall further informed the Committee that the cellars of the Hospital are well calculated for the purpose.

Ordered, That Colonel Trumbull, Commissary of Provisions, be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered to take possession of the Cellars of the Hospital in this City, and make use of the same, for the purpose of storing Provisions and other articles in his department.

A Certificate of Dr. Jones was read, in the words following:

"New-York, March 28, 1776.

"This is to certify that Mr. Gerard G. Beekman is, by my advice, going to Bristol, in Pennsylvania, in order to drink the mineral waters of that place for the benefit of his health, which, for some time past, has been sensibly impaired."

Mr. Beekman requested a passport, that he might be permitted to go to Bristol and return, unmolested. Thereupon, the following Certificate was given Mr. Beekman:

"It is hereby certified, that Mr. Gerard G. Beekman is permitted to go to Bristol, for the benefit of his health; that he is a friend to the cause of American liberty. It is therefore recommended to all the friends of liberty, to suffer him to pass unmolested."

Ordered, That Mr. Joshua Potts be permitted to go on board of the Packet, with the Port-Master, to procure a passage to England, he having been sworn that he will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York, or their sub-Committee, be, and they are hereby, authorized to permit Paul Pincknam to lade on board the Sloop Royal County such Provisions as he may want, (Beef and Pork excepted,) and take the same to Falmouth, in the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay.

Captain Andrew Billings, of Dutchess County, attended, and was admitted. He informed that his Company is nearly completed, and (except a few men at work or on duty in one of the Minute Regiments now at New-York) are now on duty at the Fortifications in the Highlands; that many of his men have been inlisted a considerable time; and that he stands in great need of cash to pay his men, that they may be enabled to purchase necessaries.

Ordered, That Captain Billings, and the Privates and Non-Commissioned Officers of his Company, be considered as part of the four Regiments raising in this Colony for Continental service; and that Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Captain Andrew Billings the sum of three hundred Pounds on account, to be by him applied towards the pay of his Company as above-mentioned; and that the said Treasurer take Captain Billings's receipt for the same.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius, Commissary of the Provincial Congress, deliver to Captain Andrew Billings, for his Company, in the Continental Troops raising in this Colony, the following articles, viz: 30 wooden Bowls, 86 wooden Spoons, 86 Frocks, 86 pair of Shoes, 86 Hats, 14 Iron Pots, 86 Canteens, 4 Canteens for Officers, 86 pair of yarn homespun men's Hose, and Blankets for 86 Soldiers, 4 Officers, and 1 Drum and Fife; and that he also deliver to Captain Billings the like quantity or number of each article (except Blankets and Hose) for Captain Jacobus Rosekrans's Company; and that Mr. Curtenius take Captain Billings's receipt for the same.

A Letter from Captain John Grenell to Thomas Tredwell, Esq., dated the 27th March, resigning his Warrant as Captain of Artillery in the Continental service, and declining the service, was read and filed.

Major Sebastian Beauman having signified his willingness to render any services in his power for the defence of the liberties of this country; this Committee, reposing especial confidence in his patriotism, valour, conduct, and fidelity, think him well qualified to command an Artillery Company in the Continental service.

Resolved and Ordered, That Sebastian Beauman, Esq., be, and is hereby, appointed Captain of the Continental Company of Artillery ordered to be raised in this Colony; which Company Mr. Beauman is hereby authorized and requested to inlist with all possible despatch.

A draft of a Letter to the Commissioners erecting the Fortifications near Poeplopen, in answer to theirs of the 28th, was read, and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are favoured with your letter of the 28th instant. In answer thereto, we inform you that Mr. Abraham Livingston has some days ago contracted to supply the troops at the posts in the Highlands with the rations allowed by Congress. Mr. Livingston has a vessel with necessaries, and a Commissary, ready to go up to the Highlands; and you may assure the troops that they will be supplied with every part of the rations allowed by Congress, that can reasonably be procured, as soon as wind and weather will permit. This supply has some days ago been attended to, and no unavoidable delay will be made.

Rum for fatigue parties, in our opinion, cannot easily be obtained at present; besides, the price is exorbitant. The Commissary will furnish the troops with a quart of spruce beer per man per day, or the molasses allowed by Congress. If you find it necessary to make a further allowance of beer or cider, you are hereby authorized to procure and allow the fatigue-men one quart of small-beer or cider per man per day. But we beg leave, in this matter, to recommend frugality as much as is consistent with the good of the service, as an extra allowance to fatigue-men is not by order of Continental Congress, and may therefore be a Colony charge.

We approve of your calling in the Continental troops as fast as possible. Colonel Nicoll was appointed to command at the Fortifications in the Highlands, in pursuance of an intention of Continental Congress that a gentleman of that rank should command there. We doubt not but you will receive his aid by commanding and inspiring the men at the works, as he is answerable for their defence in case of an attack. We have not heard any objections to Colonel

Nicoll's conduct, as an officer or a gentleman; therefore we cannot, without injustice, abridge his appointment. The Continental Congress having thought that those posts should be commanded by an officer of that rank, we do not allow ourselves to have any conceptions on that subject, holding it our duty, in this instance, to obey, and not to dictate.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

The Committee considering of the best method to preserve the Stock on Staten-Island if a fleet should arrive and attempt depredations, are of opinion that it should be removed to Jersey, on any appearance of an enemy.*

Ordered, That Mr. Bancker get two good Scows built, to have them in readiness to remove Stock or Jersey Troops to that Island.

Thereupon, a draft of a Letter to the Committee of Richmond County was read, and approved of, in the words following:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, March 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Ministerial Army and Navy having been obliged to desert Boston, and much in want of fresh provisions, we are under great apprehensions they may come this way, and make, or attempt to make, depredations on the stock in your Island, before the necessary aids could be sent to you.

We are anxious for the preservation of the stock of your Island. The best method we can devise is, for the owners to procure places for their stock in Jersey. We therefore earnestly recommend to you to advise or direct the inhabitants of your County to provide proper places in New-Jersey for the reception of their live stock, and, on the approach of an enemy, or any proper notification of danger, to give directions to remove all the live stock in the said County, (horses, working-oxen, milch-cows, and such as are within a month of calving, excepted,) to such places as they shall have so provided.

Humanity, as well as our duty to our constituents, and our desire to prevent every inconvenience or loss to them, as far as in our power, induced us to wish that you would not suffer this matter to be neglected. We assure you that we have the best information that if the preservation of your stock is not attended to by the proprietors, the Continental forces, on the approach of real danger, will prevent the Ministerial Troops from having any benefit of it. We have authorized Mr. Bancker, one of your Deputies, to get two good scows built, for assisting to remove stock when necessary.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants. By order.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of Richmond County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

* Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of Richmond County, without delay, to provide convenient and safe places in New-Jersey for the reception of Live Stock; and that the Committee of that County, upon the approach of the enemy, or any proper notification of danger from this Committee, the Provincial Congress, or from any other quarter, do, without delay, order and cause to be removed all the Live Stock in said County, excepting Horses, working Oxen, new-milch Cows, and such as are within a month of calving, to such places as shall have been provided as above; or in cases where no such places have been provided, to some place or places of security in New-Jersey; and the said Committee are hereby directed, if they shall think it necessary, to desire the assistance of their neighbours in New-Jersey, to carry this Resolution into execution. And it is further recommended to the said Committee, for the more expeditious transportation, as well of such Stock, as of such Continental Troops or Militia as may, upon an alarm or invasion, be sent to the assistance of the inhabitants, to cause to be built, without delay, two such flat-bottomed Boats or Scows, as they shall judge most convenient for that purpose, and to employ Richard Lawrence and Joshua Mercereau, or such other person or persons as they can agree with, to build the same in the best manner, and at the most reasonable rate.

IN COMMITTEE OF SAFETY, March 27, 1776.—Resolved, That it be recommended to the Committee of Richmond County immediately to direct that the proprietors of the Stock in that County do, without delay, procure proper places in New-Jersey, to move all the Sheep and horned Cattle, of young and old, (except milch Cows, already calved, and those within a month of calving;) to the end that no time be lost in transporting the said Stock whenever the enemy shall appear; and in default of the proprietors procuring such places, this Committee do hereby notify the inhabitants of that County that they will request the Militia of Jersey to remove the said Stock whenever the enemy's Fleet appears to enter Sandy-Hook.

And Ordered, that the said Committee do immediately cause to be built two large flat-bottomed Scows, one by Richard Lawrence, the other by Joshua Mercereau, Esquires, at the most reasonable rate, that the Stock may the more readily be removed.

A Certificate, or Passport, was given to Henry Hegeman, a Drover employed by Mr. Abraham Livingston, the Contractor for the Troops, to procure Cattle and live Stock; a copy whereof is filed.

And similar Passports were also given to several employed by Mr. Abraham Livingston as Drovers.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esquire, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel Lott, Major Stoutenburgh, Mr. Prince, Colonel McDougall.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

Ordered, That Messieurs James Campbell, Joseph Potts, and John Lloyd, be permitted to go on board Governor Tryon's Ship, and the Packet, with the Port-Master, to inquire whether they can procure a passage to England, with permission to return on shore if they should not be able to procure a passage, or if the said Packet should be likely to sail soon; they having been sworn that they will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Stephen Rapalye be permitted to go on board His Majesty's Ship Phoenix, with the Port-Master, to demand his Schooner lately seized by order of Captain Parker; he having been sworn that he will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

The Committee took into consideration the Resolution of the Provincial Congress, empowering them to contract for five thousand stand of Arms. Thereupon a draft of an advertisement was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

The Provincial Congress of this Colony having empowered this Committee to contract for a number of Muskets, (to be manufactured in the Colony,) publick notice is hereby given that this Committee are ready to receive proposals from, and treat with, any person or persons who are willing to engage in manufacturing good Muskets, or the Locks, Barrels, or any necessary parts thereof; and request all persons who choose to engage, to be speedy in their proposals.

Ordered, That the foregoing be published in all the publick Newspapers in this Colony.

Colonel McDougall informed the Committee that the men enlisted in his Regiment stood in need of some cash to purchase necessities, and that a large sum is due to his Regiment.

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Colonel McDougall, on account, in part of pay for his Regiment, the sum of one thousand Pounds, and take a receipt for the same, on account.

A Letter from General Thompson was read and filed, in the words following, viz:

"New-York, March 30, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: A number of troops are arrived, and more are hourly expected, who must be quartered in the City; and as I understand that many of the inhabitants who have quitted the town have left part of their furniture in their houses, I must request that you will give such directions as you may judge best for securing the property of those people, whose houses are, or shall be occupied as Barracks for the Troops; and you will much oblige, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

"WILLIAM THOMPSON.

"Newburgh, March 20, 1776.

"A true state of the Regiment of Militia in the County of ULSTER, whereof JONATHAN HASBROUCK is Colonel, consisting of eleven Companies.

"My whole Regiment consists of six hundred and eight men, officers included. Likewise four hundred and fifty firelocks; two hundred and ninety-three swords; one hundred and eighty-eight cartridge-boxes; thirty-two pounds of powder; one hundred and twenty pounds of lead.

"A true state of my Regiment, after the fourth man were selected as Minute-men, according to the resolves of your honourable House. Given under my hand the day and date above-mentioned.

"J. HASBROUCK, Colonel."

A Letter from Brigadier General Heath was received and read, in the words following, to wit:

"City of New-York, April 1, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: I find myself necessitated to request of you two thousand and twenty-five Dollars and five-ninths of a Dollar, for Continental purposes.

"I am, gentlemen, with esteem, your most humble servant,

"WILLIAM HEATH, Brigadier-General.

"To Committee of Safety, New-York."

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Brigadier-General Heath the sum of two thousand and twenty-five Dollars and five-ninths of a Dollar, for Continental purposes, and take a receipt for the same on Continental account.

A Letter from John Haring, Esquire, dated Orangetown, March 28, 1776, enclosing Colonel Lent's Commission and Resignation, was read and filed.

"Orangetown, March 28, 1776.

"SIR: Colonel Lent was with me the evening before last, and appeared to be much out of humour on account of the late behaviour of part of his Regiment. He says that his orders have been treated with contempt, and himself slandered, by those from whom he expected assistance.

"The Colonel has, for a number of years last past, been a Militia officer, and I believe we never had one who was more punctual in obeying and performing the orders of his superiors, and he consequently expected that those under his command should also obey him; but by experience he finds that he cannot get the orders of Congress (which from time to time issue) properly expedited; and he is apprehensive that if he continues in office any longer, he will be censured by his superiors, as well as blamed by his inferiors.

"The Orangetown Regiment is chiefly composed of such as know but little of the English language, and nothing of military affairs; wherefore I must impute their backwardness and delays to ignorance and ill-founded jealousies of being imposed upon by their commanders, and not to disaffection.

"The commission of the Colonel, together with his resignation, you have enclosed. He brought the commission to me, and would not be prevailed upon to take it home again, so that I thought it my duty to send it to you by the first opportunity.

"The command of the above-said Regiment now devolves upon Lieutenant-Colonel Blauvelt. I am fearful that Lent's resignation will be followed by others; but I shall do all that is in my power to prevent it.

"I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

"JOHN HARING.

"To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

The said Resignation was also read.

"To all to whom these presents shall come, or may concern:

"Whereas I, the subscriber, have some time since been commissioned by the honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, to be Colonel of the Regiment of Militia Foot in Orangetown, and whereas I have been much blamed and slandered (by some officers, and others in said Regiment) for giving orders in pursuance of a late resolve and order of said Congress, I have thought proper to resign my said commission, and accordingly do resign the same, choosing rather to serve as a private, than command people who are prejudiced against me.

"Given under my hand the 26th day of March, A. D. 1776.

"ABRAHAM LENT."

A Letter from Governour Trumbull, dated 22d March, 1776, enclosing Mr. Hopkins's Report on the Lead-Mines at New-Canaan, was read and filed.

"Lebanon, March 22, 1776.

"SIR: Eliphelet Dyer and William Williams, Esquires, are authorized and empowered by the Governour and Council appointed to assist him in the recess of the General Assembly, to move your body to grant this Colony, for its use, the loan of such a number and sizes of cannon as you can spare without detriment; which, if granted, the return of them, or their value, shall be secured.

"The reason of this application is, that we have undertaken to set the furnace at Salisbury in blast, to cast cannon, &c., for use, at this important crisis of publick affairs; that the hearth is laying; ore, coal, and every other necessary preparing; workmen provided for every part or the business; and hope to begin to cast cannon in all next month, or early in May. They can with greater ease be transported to New-York, and used where needed, than brought here. In the mean time, fearing our necessity of cannon for use, before this work can be effected, and apprehending that a great number of various sizes may be spared from your Colony, without injury to the common service, do therefore hope for a compliance with our motion.

"This Colony have been exploring Lead-Mines. One at Middletown is open, fifty or sixty tons of ore raised, a smelting furnace built there, and expect thirty or forty tons of lead to be run out soon. A Committee appointed by our Assembly in October last to explore and examine a Lead-Mine at New-Canaan in your Colony, made report at our session in December last; copy thereof is enclosed. If worthy your attention, and ore raised there, the furnace at Middletown may serve for smelting what is raised in both places. Any service we can render your Colony in that, or any other instance, will be done with pleasure.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

"JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

"To the Honourable Nathaniel Woodhull, Esquire."

Ordered, That Mr. Norwood, the Commissary of Colony Military Stores, deliver to Colonel McDougall, or his order, three thousand two hundred Flints, for the use of his Regiment.

The Committee being applied to for an order to obtain Rum for the men on fatigue parties at Horne's Hook, Ordered, That Mr. Abraham Livingston, in pursuance of the resolution, or order, of the Provincial Congress, of the 20th day of February last, henceforth continue to issue (until further order) a gill of Rum per day for each of the men of the Minute Regiments at Horne's Hook, when on fatigue.

And Ordered, That the Commanding Officer at Horne's Hook, for the time being, from time to time, deliver to Mr. Abraham Livingston exact lists of the men on fatigue at that post; and that the Commanding Officer, and each of the other Officers, take especial care that no Rum be issued but to men on fatigue.

Ordered, That the Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony be, and he is hereby, authorized to advance to the Auditors, or Committee of the Pay-Table, or their order, any such sum or sums, from time to time, as they may think proper, and keep a separate account or memorandum thereof, until they include the same in some audited accounts, so as that the said moneys may then appear in the general accounts.

A Return of the Captains and Subalterns of the four Companies of Militia in Richmond County, signed by Christian Jacobson, Chairman of the Committee, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Commissions issue agreeable to the said Return; likewise that the Field-Officers' Commissions issue, agreeable to the Return received and read March 27th ultimo.

A Letter from Henry Wisner, Esq., dated Goshen, 28th March, 1776, was read and filed.

"Goshen, March 28, 1776.

"DEAR SIR: Some days ago my son received a letter from you, desiring him to inform you what quantity of powder we had then made, what quantity we could make per week, and what quantity of materials we had by us. But as we had at that time but just begun, he could only have given a partial answer; and, therefore, omitted giving an answer till we had made further trial, and to which I now have to inform you that we had made before the 12th of this instant, only two hundred weight; the first week after that time we made eight hundred weight; the second week we made eleven hundred weight; and I believe this week we shall make out twelve hundred; so that I believe by Saturday night we shall have some better than three thousand weight. We have tried the quality of it by shooting with a gun. Several of our gunners have tried it, and all say it is of the best quality. As to materials, we have saltpetre enough to work about two weeks only; we have had a promise of ten tons, to be sent from Philadelphia, which was sent as far as Bordentown several months ago, and was to have been sent forward to our works. I wrote twice to the Congress about it, though the last letter they cannot have received. I hope they will soon send it. As to sulphur, I cannot say what quantity we have; part of it is at New-Windsor. I wish more of it might be had; believe we have not got much.

"I have made application to the Committee of our County for liberty to build a Mill in our County, on the encouragement given by your honourable Board. I believe I shall succeed; if so, I make no doubt but will build one to make a ton a week, and more if necessary. I shall be glad of your assistance in procuring materials. I wish you would direct what we shall do with the powder as fast as it is fit for being sent off.

"As powder is an article that will take a considerable time to dry, especially at this time of year, so that we shall have in the drying-house at least two thousand weight all the time, in that case, query, whether there will not be danger of some Tory setting fire to it in the night, by firing the house? If so, query, whether it would not be right to keep a guard? As the powder all belongs to the publick, query, whether the expense ought not to be borne by the publick? I should be glad of an answer by the first opportunity.

"I am, with the greatest regard and esteem, your assured friend and humble servant,

"HENRY WISNER.

"To the President of the Provincial Congress, or Chairman of the Committee of Safety at New-York.

"P. S. If you should think proper to order a guard, I believe four men would be sufficient for the purpose. I hope you will excuse this scrawl; I should have copied, but have only three half-sheets more of paper, and do not know where to get the next."

A draft of an Answer to the Letter of Henry Wisner, Esquire, was read and approved.

Ordered, The same be engrossed, and transmitted.

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 1, 1776.

SIR: Yours of 28th ultimo, in answer to a letter wrote to your son by the Provincial Congress, is come to hand. It gives the Committee of Safety great pleasure that you have so fair a prospect of manufacturing the article of gunpowder, and doubt not but you will meet with every encouragement which, with the approbation of your country, must be very pleasing.

We think that, as fast as your powder is cured, it be put up properly and conveyed to Fort Constitution, where it will be safe, you taking a receipt from the Commissioners at that fort for the different parcels you deliver them. In answer to that part of your letter relating to a guard, if it be necessary, your application must be made to the Commander of the Continental forces for that purpose, as you observe the powder is the property of the Continent.

We are, &c. By order.

Henry Wisner, Esq.

The Committee of Safety being informed that Commissaries are appointed for all the Continental Troops ordered to this City, who are fully supplied with, and have provided large quantities of Provisions, and that Mr. Abraham Livingston, the Contractor, has also laid up considerable quantities of Provisions, are of opinion that a large magazine in Westchester will not be absolutely necessary,

Therefore, Ordered, That Colonel Gilbert Drake, and the other Members of Westchester County, do not purchase any more Provisions until further order; and that they return with all convenient speed to this Committee an account of all the Provisions they have purchased, and in what stores they are placed.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Heath was received and read.

He therein mentions that a Sloop is arrived from Albany, with a number of women and children and baggage, taken at St. John's, and sent here by General Schuyler, in their way to New-Brunswick; that the Captain was fearful of going to Brunswick lest his vessel might be detained by the Ships-of-War in his return; and he requests the Committee to take the management of obtaining a pass from Captain Vandeput for the Sloop to go to Brunswick and return, which, he doubts not, will be readily granted, as it will obtain every convenience for the Prisoners.

Ordered, That a Member wait on the General and inform him that there are Boats here from Brunswick, who will readily receive the Prisoners and Baggage, and carry them to Brunswick; and that he request the General to order the Prisoners and Baggage to be sent by those Boats.

Captain William Jackson, from Ulster County, attending, sent in a Memorandum, subscribed with his name, which was read and filed.* He therein mentions that he has inlisted seventy-three men in the Continental service.

Ordered, That Captain Jackson inform the General that he has so many men ready for service.

Captain Abraham Riker made a Return of the names and dates of inlistment of the men in his Company, whereby it appears that he has inlisted only thirty-one men. The Return is filed.

A draft of a Letter to the Chairman of each County Committee where any Troops are inlisting, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: We earnestly request you to send us the names of the officers recruiting in your County for the Continental service; and that you cause returns to be made to us immediately of the number of men already inlisted for each Company. We further request you to direct the able-bodied men that are or shall be raised at the time of your receipt hereof, to be sent to the City of New-York, under a proper officer or officers, according to their number; and so, from time to time, till the Companies are full, except such troops as are or shall be ordered to the Fortifications in the Highlands.

We are, respectfully, sir, your humble servants.

Ordered, That a number of Copies be engrossed and signed, and one sent to the Chairman of each Committee.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

The Honourable Hugh Wallace, Esq., being requested by some of the inhabitants to go on board the Ships-of-War in this Harbour, to use his influence with the Commanders relative to their Vessels seized by the Ships-of-War,

Ordered, That the Honourable Hugh Wallace, Esquire, be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board his Majesty's Ships-of-War in this Harbour.

Ordered, That the Port-Master be permitted to take with him on board the Governour's Ship, for the use of the said Ship, one box Candles; one Span, for a main yard; two gallons Lamp Oil; fifty-six pounds Rosin; two gallons Paint Oil; three kegs Lampblack; one Cat-block; one keg Sugar; two kegs Bread; one pair Slings; one small case of Wine; one small box of Clothes; and one box Books, for Mr. Barrow; six quarters of Beef, for the Phenix; eight quarters Beef, and one Mutton, for the Asia; one quarter Veal, and one of Pork for the Governour.

Whereas Barracks are necessary for the Troops now arrived and daily arriving in this City, and cannot be obtained without placing them in Houses much to the injury of the inhabitants remaining in the City, as well as with great detriment to the service; and whereas it appears to

*To the Honourable the Provincial Congress of NEW-YORK: GENTLEMEN: I make a return of the men that have inlisted in the Continental service for the defence of the Colony, whereof the amount is seventy-three, which are inlisted by me. WILLIAM JACKSON. April 1, 1776.

IN COMMITTEE OF SAFETY, April 1, 1776.—Ordered That Captain Jackson make the within Report to the commanding officer of this Post.

the Committee of Safety that the Hospital in this City is a proper situation for Troops, and that a number of Troops must necessarily be posted there for the defence of the works there, and of the City in general:

Therefore Ordered, That the Governours of the Hospital be requested to give directions to have the Hospital put in a proper state for the reception of Troops.

And, in case the said Governours have not cash,

Ordered, That Mr. John Stagg repair the Hearths in the Hospital, where wanted, at Continental expense, and make them fit for the reception of Continental Troops, as soon as the Governours of the Hospital shall have given directions on the subject.

Whereas the present Guard of the First Regiment of the City of New-York, where the Records of the Colony are deposited, has, by experience, been found a very expensive Colony charge; and although the Committee are of opinion that the Guards hitherto employed in that service have great merit, and are worthy of the highest confidence; yet they conceive themselves bound in duty to the good people of this Colony to prevent every expense that can be saved: And whereas the Committee are fully informed that Captain Alexander Hamilton's Company of Artillery, raised for this Colony, now consists of so many men as that they may safely and easily perform that duty:

Therefore Ordered, That Captain Hamilton be directed to place, and keep a proper Guard of his Company at the Records, until further order; and that one of the Secretaries deliver a copy of this order to Colonel Lasher.

Whereas some proper place is wanted and absolutely necessary to be procured wherein to place Gunpowder, as it is thought imprudent and unsafe to keep all the Powder that is, or may be in the City, in any one place, and it is suggested to the Committee of Safety that the upper part of Mr. Henry Cuyler's Sugar-House will be a proper place for that purpose,

Therefore Ordered, That whoever has the present care and direction of the said Sugar-House be directed to place the utensils and materials therein in such proper or convenient places in the said Sugar-House, as may allow the upper part thereof to be used as a Magazine; that Colonel McDougall be authorized, and is hereby authorized, to see this order carried into execution; and thereupon the upper part of the said building be used as a Magazine for such purposes as the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Troops for the time being shall at any time direct.

A draft of a Letter to the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, requesting them to recommend sending speedy supplies to this market, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: As the ships-of-war in our harbour are daily committing acts of piracy and depredation on the vessels and property of the inhabitants of the United Colonies, we apprehend orders will soon issue for stopping all further supplies to them. As such an event will also stop the intercourse by water between your Colony and us, we think it advisable that you immediately recommend to all persons supplying this Colony with any kind of necessaries, to be as speedy as possible in sending their articles to this market, especially hay and fuel, as a great number of horses are daily expected from the eastward.

We are, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Samuel Tucker, Esquire, President of the Provincial Congress, New-Jersey.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Die Martis, 4to ho. P. M., April 2, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Mr. William Paulding, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Sands, Captain Denning, Colonel McDougall, Major Stoutenburgh, Mr. John Van Cortlandt.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Lawrence.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Heath was read, and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

“City of New-York, April 2, 1776.

“SIR: I have an immediate call for two thousand four hundred musket cartridges. If you have them I shall take it as a favour if you will deliver that number to Major De Hart, the bearer hereof.

“I am, sir, with respect, your most humble servant,

“W. HEATH.

“To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York.”

An Order was thereon made in hæc verba :

Mr. RICHARD NORWOOD :

SIR: Deliver, on receipt hereof, to Major De Hart, two thousand four hundred musket cartridges, on Continental account, to be replaced, and take his receipt for the same.

Captain William Jackson attended the Committee yesterday, and informed that he had seventy-three men inlisted, and ready for service, and requested directions where to proceed with his Company.

Ordered, That Captain Jackson repair to Fort Constitution with his Company, and there put himself under the direction of Colonel Nicoll, the commanding officer there.

It was suggested to the Committee that it would greatly encourage the inlistment of Troops in the Regiment raising in this City, if those already inlisted could be uniformed with Frocks, and that it would be necessary to direct Mr. Curtenius not to deliver out any Frocks until the further order of this Committee.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius do not deliver out any Frocks for the Troops raising in this Colony until the further order of this Committee, the order of the 31st ultimo to the contrary notwithstanding.

Colonel Lott and Colonel Brasher came into the Committee.

The Committee of Safety were informed by sundry of the Members that there is a considerable quantity of Bar Iron in this City. Mr. Cuyper also informed that forty tons might be brought from Haverstraw; and it was suggested, that, by allowing a free exportation thereof, the manufacturers of Iron will be induced to bring Iron to market.

Therefore Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York, or their sub-Committee of Inspection, be at liberty to give permissions for the exportation of Bar Iron at any time when they may think proper.

The Letter from Colonel Isaac Nicoll, received yesterday, which is an exact copy of his Letter formerly received, dated the 15th of March, was read and filed, requesting supplies.

Thereupon Ordered, That Mr. John Berrien immediately purchase on Continental account, and forward to Colonel Isaac Nicoll, at the most northwardly Fortification in the Highlands, as Barrack necessities, for the use of the Troops at the Garrison there, Wooden Bowls, Wooden Spoons, Iron Pots, and other necessary Barrack Furniture, for three complete full Companies of Minute-men, or Continental Troops there.

A draft of an Answer to the Letter of Colonel Nicoll was read, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 2, 1776.

SIR: We acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th of March. In answer thereto we inform you that Mr. Abraham Livingston has contracted to supply all the troops at the posts in the Highlands with the rations allowed by Congress, and fuel and straw. A sloop with necessities is gone up the river for the purpose, with a Commissary on board; and we hope your troops will be rendered as comfortable as their situation will admit. We have directed Mr. Berrien to send you, by the first conveyance, barrack necessities for three full companies. The account of ammunition delivered to Captain Raymond is by us delivered to the auditors at the pay-table, and will be settled with him.

The publick arms in the garrison have always been intended to be preserved and kept in order, but not be delivered out for any use unless in case of some attack or invasion. In such case they are to be put into the hands of any troops there who are destitute of arms.

We are, respectfully, sir, your humble servants.

P. S. Please, sir, to send down by some convenient opportunity to the Committee, a particular account of the articles charged for a Court-Martial, expresses, &c., with proper vouchers.

Die Mercurii, A. M., April 3, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulling, Esquire, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel Brasher, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Sands, Major Stoutenburgh, Colonel Lott, Captain Denning.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell, Mr. Strong.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Lawrence.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulling.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

A Letter from General Heath was received and read. He thereby requests three or four Guides for particular purposes. A Member was sent to procure them, and take them to the General.

Ordered, That Mr. Sands and Mr. Strong be a Committee to wait on General Heath, with a copy of the Letter from William Smith, Chairman of the Committee of Suffolk County, dated March 27, 1776, to confer with General Heath on the subject of the said Letter, and report to this Committee with all convenient speed.

Ordered, That Mr. John Murray be permitted to go on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon with the Port-Master, and to return, he having been duly sworn that he will not convey any intelligence relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony.

The Committee being informed by Mr. Lawrence, one of the members of this Committee from Richmond County, that the County is already supplied with fourteen good Flatts, or Scows, which are fully sufficient for the removal of the Stock of that Island, and that any more Scows will be an unnecessary expense at present,

Therefore Ordered, That the building of the two Scows, or Flatts, which Mr. Bancker was empowered to have made, be delayed for the present, and that neither of them be built until further order of the Provincial Congress, or of this Committee.

The Committee were informed the Brigantine Elizabeth, John Palmer, Master, is ready to sail, and that a Certificate is requested as protection for her in case she should meet with any of the Colony cruisers.

Thereupon a Certificate was given in the words following, to wit :

It is hereby certified that the Brigantine Elizabeth, Captain John Palmer, Master, is laded on Continental account, at the Port of New-York, by permission and direction of the Continental Congress. The said brigantine and master are hereby recommended to the favour, aid, and protection, of all friends to American liberty; and all friends to these Colonies are requested to protect her on her voyage, or in port.

A Return, made by Captain John Davis, of Suffolk County, of the number of men inlisted in his Company, was read and filed. He therein says he has inlisted about seventy men, and expects that he will soon complete the whole.

A Return, by Benjamin Marvin, First Lieutenant of Captain Griffin's Company, was read and filed. He therein mentions that the Officers of that Company have inlisted seventy-five men.

The Committee of Safety, considering the defenceless state of this Colony, think it necessary to furnish the Counties of Albany and Tryon with such quantities of Ammunition as can be spared for that purpose:

Therefore Resolved and Ordered, That Mr. Richard Norwood deliver to John Moore, Esquire, two thousand five hundred weight of Gunpowder, for the Counties of Albany and Tryon, in the following proportions, to wit: Five hundred pounds for the County of Tryon, and two thousand pounds of Gunpowder for the City and County of Albany. That the respective Counties above-mentioned be charged with the respective quantities of Gunpowder above-mentioned. That the said Gunpowder be disposed of by the respective County Committees of the said Counties, in the most advantageous manner for the defence of the inhabitants; and that the Committees of the said Counties respectively give such particular directions for the preservation of the said Gunpowder, that it may not be wasted or expended but in the defence of the country, lest those Counties may be distressed before any other possible supply can be afforded them.

And Ordered, That the Committee of the City and County of Albany be informed that, by reason of some late losses and misfortunes, they are not to expect any further supply of Gunpowder for several months at the soonest.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell, Mr. Strong.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Mr. John Murray, attending with a Letter from General Heath to this Committee, wherein he informs the Committee that Mr. Murray had applied to him for his approbation of the permit granted to Mr. Murray this morning to go on board the Governour's Ship; that, by the said permit, it appears that Mr. Murray is restricted only relative to the Fortifications, and that he (the General) cannot, consistent with his duty, consent to his going on board unless under greater restrictions:

Thereupon a permission was given to Mr. Murray, in the words following, to wit:

"John Murray, of this City, Merchant, attending, requested permission to go on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, wherein Governour Tryon resides, with the Port-Master, and to return; thereupon the said John Murray was solemnly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that he will not communicate any information or intelligence whatever to any person or persons on board any of the Ships-of-War, the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, the Packet, or any other vessel in this Colony, under the care or direction of, or in connection with any person on board either of the vessels above-mentioned, relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony, nor carry on board, or deliver to any person belonging to any of the said ships or vessels, any papers or writings relative thereto; and that he will not communicate any intelligence, of any kind, or enter into any conversation on any subject whatever, with any person on board of either of the said vessels, but what relates to his own private business."

Ordered, That the said John Murray be, and he is hereby, permitted to go on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, with the Port-Master, and to return.

Michael Conner, of the City of Philadelphia, Merchant, agent for the Owners of the Brigantine Mary, bound from St. Christopher's to Cork, in Ireland, laden with rum, lately seized and now detained by Captain Parker, of his Majesty's Ship Phoenix, applied to the Committee for a permission to go on board of the said Ship Phoenix, to demand the said Brigantine and Cargo; thereupon the said Michael Conner was duly and solemnly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, that he will not communicate any information or intelligence whatever, to any person or persons on board of any of the Ships-of-War, the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, the Packet, or any other vessels in this Colony, relative to the Fortifications erecting for the defence of this City and Colony, nor carry on board, or deliver to any person belonging to any of said ships or vessels, any papers or writings relative thereto; and that he will not communicate any intelligence, of any kind, or enter into any conversation on any subject whatever with any person on board of either of said vessels, but what relates to his own private business.

Ordered, That the said Michael Conner be permitted, and he is hereby permitted, to go on board of the Ship Phoenix, with the Port-Master, and to return.

Mr. Sands, from the Committee appointed to wait on General Heath, and confer with him on the subject-matter of the Letter from the Committee of Suffolk County, dated March 27th, 1776, reported: That General Heath desired them to inform the Committee of Safety, that if the Committee of Safety thought it necessary that the three Companies raised in Suffolk County for the defence of this Colony, in Continental service, should be stationed at the east end of Nassau-Island, he would give the necessary orders; but requested that this Committee would take this matter into consideration, and give him the opinion of the Committee in writing, how and in what manner it will be most proper to dispose of the said troops to prevent depredations by the Ministerial Navy and Army.

The Committee, taking into consideration the defenceless state of the easternmost part of Suffolk County, are of opinion, that the three Companies raised in Suffolk County for the defence of this Colony, in Continental service, should be continued in that County until further order; that Brigadier-General Woodhull should be requested, by his orders to Captain Griffin, to station the said three Companies in such numbers, and at such places, as he shall think best, to prevent the landing of any Ministerial Troops, or depredations being committed by them in any part of the said County; that those Troops be so stationed on condition that the County Committee and inhabitants of Suffolk County furnish them with all necessaries whatever, while so stationed in the County, at the allowance of ten and a half pence per man per day, exclusive of such quantities of wood as is allowed by Congress, without any other additional expense, charge, or allowance whatever.

His Worship the Mayor of the City of New-York, attending, and having given his word of honour, in terms similar to the Oath administered to Messrs. Murray and Conner,

Ordered, That he be permitted to go on board the Ships-of-War and the Governour's Ship, with the Port-Master, and to return.

Colonel McDougall informed the Committee of Safety that Cartridges are preparing for the Continental Magazine, but are not yet made; that he stands in need of a number of Cartridges for his Regiment; and requests the loan of a number of Cartridges out of the Provincial Store, which he engages to replace.

Ordered, That Mr. Richard Norwood deliver to Colonel McDougall, for the use of his Regiment, such number of Cartridges as he may want for the use of his Regiment, and take his receipt for the same.

Two Letters, one from Azor Betts, the other from John Blackler, received by post, and requesting their discharges, were read and filed. Thereupon, the following entry, for their discharge, was made, in the words following:

The Letter of Azor Betts, dated the 21st ultimo, requesting his discharge, was received, and read. His Petition to the Provincial Congress, dated the 20th day of February last, with the Certificate of William Elsworth, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Kingston, endorsed thereon, was also again read. The Letter of John Blackler was also read.

Ordered, That the said Azor Betts and John Blackler be respectively discharged from their confinement, on their respectively subscribing the General Association, acknowledging their penitence for their past conduct, and making oath respectively that they will not bear arms against the inhabitants of the American Colonies, or do any other act inimical to the liberties of the United Colonies, or contrary to the resolutions of Congress, during the present controversy between Great Britain and the American Colonies, and paying their expenses while in confinement, if they have any means wherewith to pay the same. Or, instead of such oath, on their respectively giving bond, with two good and sufficient sureties for each, in the penalty of two hundred Pounds, with condition thereto for their future good behaviour, in the terms above-mentioned for their oath.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., April 4, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esq., Chairman pro tem.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Mr. Sands, Mr. Prince, Mr. Van Cortlandt, Mr. Van Zandt, Captain Rutgers, Colonel Brasher, Mr. Roosevelt.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell, Mr. Strong.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Covenhoven.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Lawrence.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR TRYON.—Mr. Moore.

Colonel Mifflin, Quartermaster-General, came into the Committee, and informed the Committee that in the course of eight or ten days at farthest, Troops will arrive in this City, which, with those already here, will amount to twelve thousand men. He requested that proper Houses may be immediately provided for the reception of those Troops. Colonel Mifflin further requested, that Houses, in an airy part of the City, may be immediately prepared for a General Hospital, capable of containing eight hundred sick, and within a mile of the City, and Houses in a proper situation, and about the same distance, to contain four hundred convalescents; that a suitable House or Houses in the City will be necessary for General Washington; that proper Stables will speedily be wanted for one hundred horses, and Sheds or proper places wherein to put wagons. That it will be necessary to fix on a House fit for a Guard-House for a Provost-Guard, and four other separate Houses for Main Guards; that to prevent inebriety and neglect of duty among the soldiery, it will be absolutely necessary to limit the number of Inn-keepers, Dram-shops, and Retailers of strong liquors in this City and its environs, and that the names of the persons licensed to retail, and a description of their respective places of residence in the City, be delivered to him, to the end that none others except one Sutler to each Regiment may be permitted.

Colonel Mifflin further mentioned, that, by inquiry, he has found that the Continental Troops, by the police of this City, must pass at the common ferries, or pay the ferriage if they are transported across either of the rivers by any other means; that however useful this regulation may be in time of peace, he conceives that, in the present situation of affairs, the expense will be enormous to the Continental Army, as it must frequently, if not daily happen, that great numbers of Troops must be transported between the City of New-York and Nassau-Island, and between the said City and Jersey Shore.

Colonel Mifflin, on being asked what means he could propose to remedy ferriages, answered and proposed that he could purchase boats, or have them built for the transportation of Troops, and that the Army could ferry themselves, if that mode was agreeable to the Committee.

Colonel Mifflin further informed the Committee, that the necessary expenditure of wood, which would be made by the Continental Troops, might increase the price to the detriment of the inhabitants, as well as of the Army, unless some method could be fallen on to prevent the same; that he should want not less than forty or fifty cords of wood per day, and was desirous that the Committee should fix the price which they would advise him to offer for wood.

Colonel Mifflin further mentioned that, by experience, he had found in other places that forestalling and engrossing had been very detrimental to the Continental Troops; and that, in some instances, it had been found very necessary to prevent the same by military force or directions; and that he requested the advice of the Committee what might be proper on this head.

The Committee took the matters aforesaid respectively into consideration, and thereupon,

Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York be requested to convene without delay, and, by an appointment of sub-Committees for the purpose, or by such other methods as they shall think proper, to fix on so many Houses for Barracks, for the reception of Troops, as will contain, together with those now in the City, twelve thousand men; that the said General Committee be informed that the Provincial Congress, in the time of their last session, have procured the Dwelling-House, Barn, and Stable, where John Fowler did lately dwell, on the hill beyond fresh water, for Hospitals; and that the said General Committee be requested to fix on other proper Houses for Hospitals, so that the whole may be capable of containing eight hundred men, and also proper Houses for four hundred convalescents; that they be also requested to fix on Stables to contain one hundred Horses belonging to the Army.

And Ordered, That the said General Committee be further requested to appoint one or more sub-Committees, to take the names of all Inn-keepers and Retailers of strong liquors in this City and its environs, with the description of the streets or places of their abode, (distinguishing those who are licensed from those who are not,) and to send such list of Inn-keepers and Retailers of strong liquors to this Committee, with all convenient speed.

Ordered, That Colonel Lott and Mr. Prince be a Committee to inquire for and designate proper Sheds for Wagons in this City, and to report thereon.

The Committee of Safety then took into consideration the great expense that would arise should the Continental Troops, or any persons on their behalf, be subjected to the payment of Ferriage, and are of opinion that any benefit of that kind could not have been an object with or expected by the tenants of the Ferries at the times they respectively took their leases; that therefore it will be no injustice to the tenants of the Ferries that the Continental Troops should pass and repass the rivers without any emolument to the tenants or keepers of the Ferries.

Thereupon Ordered, That Colonel Mifflin be at liberty to hire, purchase, build, or procure as many Ferry-Boats, or craft of any kind, for the use of the Continental Army, as he may think proper, and that the Continental Troops be at liberty to pass and repass the rivers in such Boats without being subject to any Ferriage or Toll; and Colonel Mifflin is requested to give such order that none but Continental Troops, or those employed in some military business or department, may be permitted to pass in the Boats to be provided for the Army.

The Committee then took into consideration Colonel Mifflin's proposal to fix the price of Fire-wood in this City; and thereupon agreed that it ought not, for the present, to be at any higher price than twenty-two Shillings per cord for Oakwood, to be corded by the sworn Inspectors on Carmen's carts in the usual manner; and that Colonel Mifflin may advertise that he will give that price for all the Oakwood which he can purchase in this City before 1st day of May next.

On the subject that there is danger of forestalling and engrossing, which might enhance the markets, to the detriment of the Army, Colonel Mifflin was informed by the Committee of Safety that the By-Laws of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of this City, and the legal modes of punishing forestallers and engrossers, if duly put in execution, will, it is hoped, be a proper check, and prevent any inconveniences of that kind; but that if these should prove insufficient, some remedy may then be provided.

Colonel Mifflin was further informed that the General himself, or some of the military gentlemen, will be the most proper persons to determine in what part or parts of the town the Provost or Main Guards ought to be kept, and which of the Houses in or near these places that are emptied and allotted for the use of the Army, may be most proper for, and with the least injury be, converted into Guard-Houses.

The Committee being informed that it is scarce possible to provide empty Houses or Barracks for the reception of the Troops already arrived in this City; that many of them are now so crowded in small rooms that it is not only inconvenient but dangerous to the health of the Troops; that there is no probability of procuring Barracks, or empty Houses for the Troops speedily expected, as the Officer, whose proper department it is, has requested of this Committee a provision of that kind for twelve thousand men within eight days; the Committee were further informed that there are at present very few, if any, students in the College in this City; that it is a strong edifice, and finished in such manner as to be very little injured by the reception of Troops.

Therefore Ordered, That the Governours of the College in this City be requested to remove the College Library, and every other-matter in that building which might receive injury, and secure the same in such manner as they may think proper, and to have the edifice left only in a proper state for the reception of Troops, within six days from this day, or as much sooner as will be convenient for the Governours of the said College.

The Committee, at the request of a Member, resumed the consideration of having the three Companies of Continental Troops, raised in Suffolk County, stationed there for the present; and thereupon

Resolved, That General Woodhull be requested to see that the three Companies of Continental Troops, raised or raising in Suffolk County, be mustered by some proper person or persons by him to be appointed, and that regular Muster-Rolls be returned to this Committee with all convenient speed.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the Troops above-mentioned, while on their march to the respective stations to which they shall be ordered, will be entitled to the allowance of Continental Troops while on their march to join their Regiments, the Resolution of this Committee yesterday notwithstanding.

The Committee of Safety, conceiving that the number of Continental Troops soon expected in this City, with those now here, will be sufficient to carry on the military works erecting for the defence of this Colony, and for every other necessary purpose, (except in cases of invasion,) and that therefore it will tend to the publick benefit that the yeomanry of the Colony be permitted to remain at home at this season of the year, for the cultivation of their farms:

Therefore Ordered, That Colonel Gilbert Cooper be, and he is hereby, directed to stop the marching of the Haverstraw Minute Company, lately ordered to be recruited, till further order, as their services are not required in this City for the present.

A Letter was received from Colonel Josiah Smith, of the Minute Regiment in Suffolk County, dated the 28th of March, and read, and filed. He thereby informs that the gentleman formerly appointed Adjutant of the Minute Regiment is unwilling to act in that department, and recommends Mr. Ephraim Marvin in his place, and prays that his Commission may be made out, and sent up by the first opportunity.

Ordered, That a Commission be made out for Mr. Ephraim Marvin, as Adjutant of the Minute Regiment in Suffolk.

A Certificate of an election for Officers of a Minute Company in Brooklyn Township, dated March 27th, 1776, signed by Nathaniel Roe and Samuel Thompson, Committee-men; whereby it appears that Selah Strong was chosen Captain, William Clerk, First Lieutenant, Caleb Brewster, Second Lieutenant, Nathaniel Brewster, Ensign, of the said Company.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to the said gentlemen without delay.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Auchmuty informed the Committee of his desire to go into New-Jersey, to visit his family, and requested a permission for that purpose.

Ordered, That the Rev. Dr. Samuel Auchmuty be, and he is hereby, permitted to go into New-Jersey and to return; and it is earnestly recommended to all the friends of American liberty to permit him to pass unmolested.

The Committee were informed that a man on board of one of the Transports which brought General Sullivan's Brigade of Troops from the eastward to this City, is taken with the Small-Pox. That the danger of such disorder spreading at this time, amongst the Troops quartered in and near this City, makes it absolutely necessary that some proper place should be provided for the reception of the person above-mentioned, and of such persons as may be seized with the Small-Pox in future. And it being suggested that the Island, with the buildings thereon, commonly called Little-Barn Island, belonging to Mr. Montresor, is the most suitable and safe place for that purpose:

Therefore Ordered, That Dr. Malachi Treat, and such other person as he shall employ, or such other person as the Commanding Officer of the Continental Troops at New-York shall direct, to attend the sick sent to the said Island, be, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to set apart, and make use of such parts of the House and other Buildings on the said Island, as he or they shall think most proper, and best calculated for the reception of all such persons as now are, or shall be seized with the Small-Pox; and that Doctor Treat take the management and direction of such sick persons as may be placed on that Island, until further order of the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony, or of the Commanding Officer of the Continental Forces at New-York, for the time being.

Mr. Covenhoven informed the Committee that Colonel Hand, with his Regiment of Riflemen, were stationed at New-Utrecht, in King's County, to guard the Shore and to keep a look-out there, and that the service of the King's County Light-Horse employed in that service is now become unnecessary:

Therefore Ordered, That Captain Waddron be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to discharge his Company of Light-Horse from the service of keeping a look-out on the Southern Coast in King's County, until the further order of this Committee, or the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

Many persons attending daily for permission to export Flour and Bar Iron to the neighbouring Colonies, and the Committee being of opinion that this Colony is so well supplied with those articles as to render the restraint lately laid on their exportation unnecessary,

Therefore Ordered, That the General Committee of the City of New-York, or their sub-Committee of Inspection, be at liberty to permit the exportation of Flour and Bar Iron until further order, subject to the restrictions and regulations of the Continental Congress.

Colonel McDougall informed the Committee that he is in want of cash to pay Captain Ledyard's Company their pay and inlisting money, and requested five hundred Pounds for that use. Colonel McDougall further requested that some gentlemen should be appointed and directed to audit the accounts of the publick money which he has received, as he may speedily be sent from this City on duty.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, advance to Colonel McDougall the sum of five hundred Pounds on his receipt, on account, for the subsistence of his Regiment, in Continental service.

And Ordered, That the gentlemen who constitute the Committee of Accounts, or any three or more of them, audit Colonel McDougall's Accounts of all the publick money which he has received, and pass, or certify all such of them as they shall find regular.

The Committee of Safety were informed that his Majesty's Council are summoned to meet on board of the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, and it is supposed with design further to prorogue the General Assembly of this Colony:

Ordered, That the Members of his Majesty's Council of this Colony, and Samuel Bayard, Jun., Esquire, Deputy Secretary, be, and they are hereby, permitted to go on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon, and return.

Ordered, That Mr. John Kelly be permitted, and he is hereby permitted to go on board the Ship Dutchess of Gordon; and return on the same day that his Majesty's Council shall first go on board.

Mr. Nixen, the Port-Master, delivered in an estimate of Stores provided by twelve gentlemen, who are going passengers in the Packet, and informed the Committee that he would not choose to go on board of the Packet with them without a permit from this Committee.

Ordered, That the Port-Master be permitted, and is hereby permitted to go on board of the Packet with the said Stores.

A Letter from General Putnam, dated the 9th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Head-Quarters, New-York, April 9, 1776.

"As the City Records are of the greatest consequence, and it being necessary that particular attention should be paid for their preservation, the General desires the first City battalion of Independents, commanded by Colonel Lasher, will undertake this guard. Captain H. G. Livingston's company of Fusileers will relieve the company of Artillery to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock. The General has no doubt but they will receive the like consideration the Grenadier and Light Infantry companies did.

"ISRAEL PUTNAM,

"To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety."

A Letter from Burnett Miller, Chairman of the Committee of Easthampton, dated the 7th instant, informing that their Guard at Montauk saw a number of Vessels about sunset of the 6th, off Block-Island, and that at nine o'clock of the 7th, saw thirteen Vessels between Fisher's Island and Gardner's Island, and could hear their signal-guns during the day, the weather being too thick and foggy to discern their size; was read and filed.

A Letter from Thomas Wickes, Chairman of Huntington Committee, dated April the 8th, communicating intelligence of a Fleet of thirty square-rigged vessels having been seen in the Sound, was read and filed.

A Letter from Samuel Buel, dated at Huntington, on the 10th instant; (he therein mentions that he left Easthampton on Monday morning, after nine o'clock; that no further discoveries of the Fleet mentioned in the Committee's letter of the 7th, except that a number of ships made a harbour at Fisher's Island on Sunday evening; these, he supposes, were what is called Wallace's Fleet; and that those seen from the east end at sea, on Sunday afternoon, were probably from the West-Indies or Boston, who by their firing were collecting their scattered fleet:) was also read and filed.

A Letter from Colonel A. Hawkes Hay, dated at Haverstraw, on the 4th inst., requesting that the Minute-men from his Regiment choose their Officers, was read and filed.

A Letter from Nathan Fordham, Burnet Miller, and Thomas Youngs, a sub-Committee of Sag-Harbour, dated the 3d instant, representing that they are much exposed to the ravages of the Ministerial Army, and requesting warlike stores for their defence, was read and filed.

A Letter from Jeremiah Clark, dated the 5th instant, with a Certificate of Elihu Marvin annexed, recommending Lieutenant William Roe for Captain, and David Mandevill, Jun., as his First Lieutenant, in the four Battalions to be raised, was read and filed.

A Letter from Colonel Isaac Nicoll, dated at Fort Constitution, on the 2d instant, mentioning that of necessity he had taken a hundred bushels of peas out of Hermanus Cuyler's sloop, for the use of the garrison, for which he had given Captain Cuyler a receipt, and requesting that the Committee of Safety will order the same to be paid for, was read and filed.

A Letter from William McDermott, a Prisoner confined in Jail, praying to be heard before the Committee, was read and filed.

A Letter from John Vernon, also a Prisoner, complaining of ill-health, and want of a suitable allowance in Prison, and praying to be released, was read and filed.

A Letter from Colonel Isaac Nicoll was read, in the words following, viz:

"Fort Constitution, April 8, 1776.

"SIR: I have done everything in my power to have my regiment filled up, so as to make a return agreeable to a letter from the Congress, dated March 4, but find it not possible to fill them with good men, and such as are able to furnish themselves with arms, &c., by reason of their pay being lowered.

"Last Friday, I went to Goshen, in order to meet the officers of the Minute-men and Militia, to know the state of the regiment, (as I had sent orders, and written a number of letters, and all to no purpose,) and by that means missed seeing the Prussian General, Dr. Franklin, and the gentlemen with them. The regiment is not half full, and not one of them has any arms; and arms are not to be had. I am well persuaded that there can be but little dependance put on the Minute-men, upon the plan that they are now raised; for by the time a company is full, their four months is up, which keeps the officers continually recruiting; and the people seem determined against being drafted. Enclosed you have the particulars of the expense of the Court-Martial, and General Lee's orders for holding it.

"I have discharged Captain Raymond's Company of Minute-men, consisting only of thirty-one men, officers included, as there was a great uneasiness among the men, and Captain Jackson's Company of standing forces marches in on Wednesday, which will fill the Barracks.

"I have also enclosed a report of the Committee of Hanover Precinct on John Handley, who is now a prisoner here, and should be glad you would advise me what is to be done with him.

"I am, with esteem, sir, your most humble servant,

"ISAAC NICOLL.

"To William Paulding, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety, New-York."

General Lee's order to secure Ensign Goodgion,* dated the 17th of February last, and enclosed in Colonel Nicoll's Letter, was filed.

General Lee's Letter to Colonel Nicoll,† of the 25th of February last, that he had ordered General Clinton to call a Court-Martial, and enclosed as above, was also filed.

An Account of the expenses of taking and trying William Goodgion,‡ an Ensign in Captain Peter Hill's Company of Ulster County Minute-men, and certified by Colonel Nicoll, amounting to seven Pounds sixteen Shillings and five Pence, was filed.

An Order from the Committee of Hanover Precinct, signed William Cross, Chairman, for the commitment of William Hanley, charged with having inlisted into the King's service, was also filed.

A Letter from Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Com-

* HEAD-QUARTERS, NEW-YORK, February 17, 1776.

SIR: General Lee received yours of the 15th. He desires you would, as soon as possible, secure Ensign Goodgion, and confine him under fixed bayonets; and when you have done this, advise him immediately, and he will order a Court-Martial for his trial.

Your most obedient servant. By order of the General,

WILLIAM PALFREY, Aide-de-Camp.

To Colonel Isaac Nicoll, at Fort Constitution.

† NEW-YORK, February 25, 1776.

SIR: I received the favour of yours, and, in consequence of your report, have ordered General Clinton to call a Court-Martial, of which he is appointed President.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To Colonel Nicoll.

‡ Account of Expenses accrued in taking and prosecuting WILLIAM GOODGION, Ensign in the Company of Minute-men commanded by Captain PETER HILL, of ULSTER County, by order of General LEE, being the expenses of JAMES LATTE, Lieutenant in the same Company, viz:

To horse-hire, and feeding the horse on the way and in New-York ,.....	1 8 0
	£4 1 9

On examining this account, I find ten shillings error in addition, which will make the whole of this account ten shillings less than given in before.

Expenses of the Court-Martial, viz:

Major Howell , two days, at 33½ dollars per month.....	£0 17 9½
Major Logan ,.....Do.....Do.....	0 17 9½

Cash paid Burdine , for going to New-York with the proceedings to General Lee ,.....	£1 0 0

ISAAC NICOLL.

March 16, 1776.

missary-General, dated at Albany, on the 3d instant, repelling some misrepresentations respecting the forwarding of clothing for the Green Mountain Boys, was read and filed.

The Committee of Safety were also informed that Nicholas Bayard, Esq., at whose house the Records are lodged, is very desirous that the Guard be changed for a Guard of citizens.

Therefore Ordered, That Colonel Lasher be requested to relieve the Guard now placed to guard the Records at Mr. Bayard's, by a Guard from his Regiment.

A Letter from William Leary, Town-Major, dated yesterday, was read and filed. He thereby informs that the time of his continuing in pay as Town-Major is expired, and requested to know whether he was to be continued in service. Mr. Leary called on the Committee personally for an answer, and was informed by the Committee that they did not conceive themselves authorized to continue him in pay; and that it also appeared unnecessary, at present, to require his services and continue his pay.

A Certificate from S. Badlam, Captain of Artillery, dated the 8th instant, was read and filed. He thereby certifies that he has examined Joseph Crane as to his knowledge in Gunnery, and, considering his merits and experience, thinks him qualified for a Captain-Lieutenancy.

Therefore Ordered, That the said Joseph Crane, pursuant to the order of the Provincial Congress of the 16th of March last, be Captain-Lieutenant of the Continental Company of Artillery, whereof Sebastian Bearman, Esq., is Captain.

A Return of the Second Regiment of Militia, in the south end of Ulster County, commanded by James McClaughry, containing a state of the Arms, Accoutrements, Powder, and Ball, was read and filed. It is thereby returned that the Regiment has 585 Guns, 28 Bayonets, 495 Swords, 296 Cartouch-Boxes, 55 pounds of Gunpowder, and 191 pounds of Lead.

A Letter from Mr. Adrian Bancker, and Return for Commissions for sundry Officers of Militia in Richmond County, therein named, was read and filed. The Commissions therein requested were issued.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Mr. William Paulding, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel Lott, Mr. Randall, Mr. Imlay, Mr. Sands, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Van Zandt.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Colonel Covenhoven.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson, Colonel M. Graham.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Lawrence.

Peter Dubois, who has attended some days on charges exhibited against him by the Reverend Barnard Page, Ethan Sickles, and others, together with the said witnesses and others, attending, the Committee determined to proceed thereon; and Mr. Dubois, and all the other persons attending thereon, were called in.

Ethan Sickles was first called up near the Chair, and examined. Notes of his examination, taken and read to him in presence of Mr. Dubois, are as follow, viz:

Ethan Sickles, of the City of New-York, being personally examined, says: That on last Thursday morning, he went from Paulus-Hook, with Mr. Peter Dubois and Colonel Smith, and another gentleman, in the stage, and proceeded to Woodbridge; that while Colonel Smith was with them, Mr. Dubois appeared a high Whig; that by the way, they took in Colonel Zedwitz; that Mr. Dubois was continually asking him questions, and, when he found any opportunity, was finding fault, and, from Mr. Dubois's conversation, he thought he was not a Whig. That he heard that Mr. Page and Mr. Dubois got in a warm argument at Philadelphia, and differed in sentiment; that Mr. Dubois said General Gage was a gentleman and a man of honour, and that Mr. Dubois acknowledged the dispute, and what the examinant had heard on that subject, in the presence of the examinant. That on the road homeward, Mr. Dubois frequently spoke against the American Forces, and wherever they stopped, he was speaking to the people he met in that strain; that he said the New-England Forces would deceive us, and that we might depend upon it; that he (the examinant) told Mr. Dubois not to continue his discourse, and told him he was not a friend to his country. That it was mentioned in the stage that the officers who are prisoners at Trenton had run the Congress to one hundred and fifty Pounds expense in one week, and that it was paid; that he (the examinant) spoke disrespectfully of them for having been, in his opinion, so extravagant, for which Mr. Dubois, in return, treated him with all names and abusive language; that his conversation on the whole was intolerable. That he particularly found fault with the oaths that have been administered to people by the General—said it was no sin to break such an oath, and found great fault with the Congress on that subject. That he spoke of some person near him who had refused to bear arms, and had been tarred and feathered; that he called the men who had done it a damned set of rascals, and said he would have satisfaction of them at the risk of his life.

Being asked how he understood Mr. Dubois when he said the New-England men would deceive us, he answered, that he understood him to mean a deceit by treachery.

Theodorus De Forrest being examined, says: That Mr. Dubois run down the American Troops very greatly, and said they had no discipline or order among them—said the New-England Officers had no order among them; that if ever they came to an engagement, the New-England Troops would deceive the other Colonies; that he understood Mr. Dubois meant that they were not true to the cause; that Mr. Dubois embraced the company of the regular officers on every opportunity; that he spoke of an officer near where he lived who had been tarred and feathered—said some of the Committee were amongst those who tarred and feathered the man, and that they were a parcel of rascals.

Mr. Dubois went on his defence: He asked Mr. Sickles whether he was present when he commended or spoke highly of General Gage; was answered, that he mentioned it as what he had heard. Mr. Dubois says he only meant that the New-England Troops never had equal order or discipline of the Pennsylvania Troops and others, and that people would be deceived in their military character, if they came to action; that as to the matter of affecting the company of the officers who are prisoners, he says that they are his old friends and acquaintances, and that he was but a few minutes with them. That the conversation about oaths was general; that he had spoken against oaths administered by compulsion, and had said many people did not conceive themselves bound by such an oath. That as to the persons tarred, he referred to one Goldsmith, who had been Captain of a company; that on Mr. Jackson being elected Captain according to the regulation of the Congress, Goldsmith refused to bear arms in the company, and refused that his son should bear arms, for which he had been tarred and feathered, and that he had execrated such conduct. Mr. Dubois says that Captain Jackson and some of the Committee were at the head of those young men who tarred the said Goldsmith. That when Mr. Page charged him with being a Tory, he had declared he was not; that he was bred in Revolution principles, and disapproved of the acts of Parliament for laying taxes on America; that what he said of General Gage was in answer to illiberal expressions of Mr. Page against General Gage as a rascal and a coward; that what he said of the New-England Troops was speaking of them in a comparative view with the Pennsylvania Troops; says he has signed, and promoted the signing of the General Association of the Colony.

Bernard Page being examined, says: That on last Saturday, or Sunday following, Mr. Dubois came into the room where he (the examinant) was; they fell into conversation on publick matters; in substance Mr. D. gave General Gage the highest character of reputation, honour, integrity, and the like; that he (the examinant) replied, that he did not look on his character in that light, but that he had sacrificed his most honourable engagements and pledges, particularly in the affair of the inhabitants of Boston, touching his promise to permit them to leave the town on delivering up their arms; that Mr. Dubois got into a passion, and declared that General Gage never was impeached with a dishonourable act, and that he was a man of the strictest integrity and impartiality, or other words to that effect; that he (the examinant) answered, that his character was not honoured; that he was rather looked upon as a coward; that Howe and Burgoyne, and the other officers, were esteemed as gentlemen who would fight, but that he did not think General Gage could support his character in that favourable light; that Mr. Dubois told him he was a minister, but that no other man would dare to say so; that Mr. Dubois with warmth declared, "that the majesty of the people of Great Britain would never be so insulted or imposed on by the people here;" (meaning the people of America, as the examinant understood;) and then left the room. That during their stay at a tavern, Mr. Dubois appeared to him to endeavour to know of every strange gentleman who came there, on which side of the question they were, but did not enter into any further conversation there with the examinant. That on Monday, at Bristol, Mr. Dubois, as soon as they stopped, seized an opportunity to speak privately with the prisoners there; that he saw Mr. Dubois conversing with them; that at dinner-time, at Mrs. Still's, at Trenton, Mr. Dubois came into the room, and declared he had been to see some gentlemen who were prisoners there—had been in their room, and been invited to dine with them, but chose to dine with the company who came in the stage with him. In proceeding onward on the way, Mr. Dubois spoke something, in the examinant's opinion, disrespectful of the New-England Troops, viz: in substance, that they fought behind walls, and in secret places, and were afraid to show themselves openly, or words to that effect; that he (the examinant) replied in the negative, and endeavoured to support their character in the instance at Bunker's Hill, in which Mr. D. had thus charged them with this cowardice; that he particularly mentioned having seen Bunker's Hill at different times, and not observed any stone-fence or wall there; that he observed the American Troops there, by every account, had fought manfully, and that the action itself demonstrated that the troops did not deserve any such charge as Mr. Dubois had made against them; that Mr. Dubois replied, in a contemptuous manner, "that the New-England Troops would certainly deceive the rest," meaning, as he (this examinant) apprehended, the other Colonies; that Mr. Dubois repeated to the same effect several times, and once, in particular, said, "they would deceive the people;" that he (the examinant) alleged that the New-England Troops were well disciplined, courageous, possessed of conduct, and that, in general, there were not better troops on the Continent; that Mr. Dubois said he knew what troops were—looked on the New-England Troops in a different light; he spoke well of the Pennsylvania Troops, but said the New-England Troops would deceive the people; that Mr. Dubois got into a violent passion, and endeavoured to browbeat him, and that he (this examinant) endeavoured to support the character of the New-England Troops, and alleged they only took up the sword to support their liberties. That he (the examinant) told Mr. Dubois that he looked on him as very unfavourable to the cause, and to be a Tory, and suspected that he was a spy, and had been abroad to procure Ministerial letters, and had such with or about him, or words to that effect; that he grounded this charge on the whole of Mr. Dubois's conduct. That speaking of a person who was tarred and feathered, Mr. Dubois said if he had been so treated, he would have had vengeance, and would have taken it privately if he could not obtain it publicly; that speaking of oaths that were and had been tendered by Congresses and Committees, he alleged such oaths were of no force, and that he should entirely disregard them, or other words to that effect, but said he would abide by an oath which he mentioned as contained in some statute. That any personal difference which he has had with Mr. Dubois does not influence his testimony as to publick matters.

Mr. Page cross-examined by Mr. Dubois one or two questions.

Mr. Dubois renewed his defence: Declares he does not recollect to have used such expression "as to the majesty of the people of Great Britain," as Mr. Page has mentioned.

Mr. Dubois and the witnesses withdrew.

Ordered, That he be called in, and reprimanded; and that Colonel McDougall deliver the reprimand, and direction to be more careful for the future.

Mr. Dubois being called in at the bar, Colonel McDougall informed him that it is the opinion of the Committee that he has discovered a temper inimical to his country; that such conduct is inconsistent with the philosopher, the soldier, or the good man; and, after summing up the matter given in proof, and their tendency, and a charge to impress a more careful conduct, he was discharged.

A Letter from Lord Stirling, dated this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, April 12, 1776.

“SIR: As I have General Putnam's orders to march with a brigade of troops for Staten-Island, and as I shall be under a necessity of quartering them in the farm-houses there until the season of the year will admit of their being encamped, I shall esteem it a favour of the Committee of Safety if they will, as soon as possible, desire the Committee of Richmond County to give notice thereof to the inhabitants, that they may be prepared to receive the troops in the manner most convenient to themselves; and they may be assured that my best endeavours will be used to render the residence of the troops among them as little burdensome as possible; and this I hope will be the easier effected, as house-room is the only article that will be required; every thing else they may stand in need of will be punctually paid for.

“Colonel Ritzema's Regiment is one of the corps ordered to compose my brigade. On inquiry, I find the companies of which his regiment is to be composed, are not yet fixed or arranged. I must beg the favour of the Committee of Safety to attend to this matter, and fix it as soon as possible.

“I am, sir, your most humble servant,

“STIRLING.

Mr. Abraham Livingston attended the Committee, and requested money, agreeable to the Resolution of Congress, to enable him to comply with his contract for victualling the Troops in this Colony. The Committee are informed that Lord Drummond is in such a state of health that his Physicians advise him to remove to the Island of Bermuda for the preservation of his life; and that he requested permission of this Committee for that purpose.

Therefore Ordered, That Lord Drummond be, and he is hereby, permitted to depart this Colony, and go to the Island of Bermuda; and it is hereby recommended to all friends of America not to interrupt him on his passage, but to let him pass in safety and without molestation.

The Memorial of Samuel Loudon, Printer, with remarks on the subject, were read and filed.

"To the Honourable the Committee of Safety of the Colony of NEW-YORK, the Memorial of SAMUEL LOUDON, of the City of NEW-YORK, Printer, sheweth:

"That some weeks ago, a manuscript, composed by a gentleman at some considerable distance, and sent in order to be printed here, in answer to the celebrated pamphlet entitled Common Sense, was put into my hands by a gentleman of this City, who desired me to print it. As a publication of this nature required mature deliberation, I did not incline, nor did the gentleman require me to comply with his proposal, till I should be convinced that the manuscript was written with decency, or did not express or even imply any disapprobation of the Proceedings of the honourable Continental Congress, or the glorious cause in defence of which Americans are spending their blood and treasure. Being satisfied as to these particulars, I agreed to print the manuscript on my own account. Having made some progress in printing off the sheets, I advertised the publication of the pamphlet in Mr. Gaine's Gazette, not imagining that any offence could justly be taken by my fellow-citizens; but, to my great surprise, I soon found that the advertisement had given disgust to some of the inhabitants, who highly resented it.

"On the evening of the 18th ultimo I received a message to attend on the Committee of Mechanics; I attended accordingly, and was interrogated by Mr. Christopher Duyckinck, the Chairman, who was the author of the manuscript I was printing, and who gave it to me? I told them I did not know the author, and that I got the manuscript from a gentleman of this City, whose name, in my opinion, they had no right to demand. Displeased at this reply, they threatened to burn the pamphlet, blaming me in strong terms for printing it. I expostulated with them on the impropriety of condemning a book before they had read it; proposed to send them the sheets that were printed, for their perusal, and to refer the whole affair to the Committee of Safety, and abide by their determination. They did not, however, think it proper to regard any of my proposals, but sent six of their number to my house, who nailed and sealed up the printed sheets in boxes, except a few, which were drying in an empty house, which they locked, and took the key with them; the following evening they returned the key, and informed me that they had referred the matter to the General Committee of Inspection. Same evening I received a note to wait on that Committee; I attended, and was informed by the Chairman, Colonel Broome, that a complaint had been preferred against me for printing an answer to the pamphlet entitled Common Sense; and the Committee advised me not to persist in publishing it at present, as my personal safety might be endangered. I thanked the Committee, and promised to comply with their advice. This availed nothing for my security; for, some time after ten o'clock, the same night, the before-mentioned Mr. Duyckinck, without any commission from the Committee, attended by a considerable number, to appearance more than forty persons, who rushed into my house; some of them ran up stairs to the Printing-Office (while others guarded the door) and took away the whole impression of said pamphlet, being about fifteen hundred copies, which, at a very moderate calculation, amounts to seventy-five pounds; they carried them to the Commons and there burned them, as I have been informed.

"Your Memorialist conceiving the above-mentioned transactions a violent infraction of the liberty of the Press, and an unjustifiable attack on his private property, prays that the honourable Committee will take such measures, and give directions in the premises as may secure the liberty of the Press, protect private property, prevent such insults for the future, and enable your Memorialist to recover damages adequate to the injuries he has sustained.

"And your Memorialist, &c., SAMUEL LOUDON.

"New-York, March 28, 1776."

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. V.

"I would not anticipate the reflections that will naturally arise in the mind of every candid and dispassionate reader of the plain and impartial narrative I have given in the Memorial to the honourable Committee of Safety, but justice to the publick and myself requires me to subjoin a few remarks.

"As the question concerning American independence hath not, to the best of my knowledge, been decided by the Continental Congress, nor by any legal subordinate Convention, there can be no criminality in publishing the arguments for and against it; and as it is a question of the greatest importance, it should not be decided before the arguments are fully discussed.

"Though a formal answer to the pamphlet entitled Common Sense hath been published in Philadelphia, the printer hath not fallen under the resentment of the Continental Congress, which is a decisive evidence that the Representatives of North-America do not judge him to be a transgressor. My zealous, well-meaning, misguided opponents, would have acted a consistent part had they paid a due deference to the wisdom and good sense of that honourable body of men, whom they have solemnly promised to support, by suspending all proceedings against me till the Philadelphia printer had been called to account and condemned by them.

"The publick will determine whether, by not suffering any other person to publish their sentiments but the author of the above-mentioned Pamphlet, and such as have adopted his way of thinking, many thousands of steady friends to the common cause of America are not deprived of one of their essential privileges—the liberty of declaring their opinion upon a subject of the greatest moment, and in which they are unspeakably more interested than the supposed author of that pamphlet.

"It is at any rate self-evident, that if any set of unauthorized men shall be permitted to assume the power of legislating for their fellow-citizens, and punishing them as they please, our legal Conventions and Committees, with all the precious liberties for which we are contending, will be in effect annihilated, and we will be in a more miserable slavery than would arise from the most successful exertion of all the tyrannick acts of the British Parliament.

"The freedom of the Press is now insulted and infringed by some zealous advocates for liberty. A few more nocturnal assaults upon printers may totally destroy it, and America, in consequence, may fall a sacrifice to a more fatal despotism than that with which we are threatened.

"I have no consciousness of guilt in the affair for which I have been persecuted. It is well known that I have always been a steady friend to the liberties of America; and I am resolved to risk my all in their defence, and cheerfully submit to every determination of the Continental Congress, of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, and the General Committee of this city, that is not contrary to the dictates of religion, justice, and humanity; hoping, at the same time, that the reputation of American Councils will never be contaminated by any determination of such an iniquitous kind. I only claim common justice; and desire that, for the future, all political publications issued from my press be legally and impartially tried by the publickly avowed principles of the Colonies met in Continental Congress. If at any time I shall publish principles opposite to these, under any other predicament than that of common news, let me be treated with all the severity which an enemy to his country deserves.

"SAMUEL LOUDON.

"The following are all the names I have as yet been able to collect of the persons who took away and burnt my pamphlets, viz: Christopher Duyckinck, John Gilbert, Thomas Pratt, John Buchanan, (Tavern-Keeper at the New-Slip), — Brower, (the Carpenter,) — Bicker, (an officer,) Malcom McEuen, (a Pewterer.)"

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be postponed till next week.

— Coffin, of the Island of Nantucket, attending, produced a Certificate, signed by three Justices of the Peace for the County of Barnstable, in Massachusetts Government, permitting him to export from New-York or Connecticut, for the internal use of the inhabitants of the Island of Nantucket, the following articles, viz: 1000 pounds of Hams, 1200 weight of Hog's Lard, 1000 pounds of Cheese, 60 pounds of Feathers, 4000 Staves, 10 barrels of Cider, 40 barrels of Pork, 20 barrels of Flour, 2 gross of Corks, 1000 bunches of Onions, 30 barrels of Apples.

Ordered, That the sub-Committee of the General Committee of the City of New-York be at liberty to permit Captain Coffin to export the whole, or any part of the articles mentioned in the within Certificate, and for the purpose therein mentioned.

The Letter from Robert Treat Paine, Esquire, of the Committee of the Continental Congress, enclosing the Resolution of Congress relative to the erecting Works for the manufacturing Saltpetre, &c., was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Letter and Resolves be taken into consideration on Wednesday next.

A Letter from the Honourable John Hancock, enclosing the Proceedings of the Continental Congress for issuing Letters of Marque, and commissioning private Armed Vessels, was read, as follows :

"Philadelphia, April 10, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: It is necessary, in conducting the warlike operations on the part of America, to meet our enemy on every ground, and to defend ourselves in the best manner we can against all attempts, in whatever shape, to deprive us of either liberty or property. So far are the British Ministry from showing the least relaxation in their barbarous schemes of reducing the American Colonies to slavery, that they have passed an act to seize and confiscate our property wherever found on the high seas. In consequence of this measure, the Congress have come to a resolution of fitting out letters of marque and reprisal. The commissions, instructions, and bond preparatory to which, I have the honour to enclose you; and am, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"In Congress, April 3, 1776.

"By order of Congress :

"JOHN HANCOCK, President."

Lieutenant William Scudder sent into the Committee of Safety an open Letter or Memorial, dated on the 15th instant, which was read and filed.

He thereby informs that he had received a Warrant to enlist men in the Continental service in this Colony, in the Company whereof Henry O'Hara is Captain; that he has enlisted, and has on billet, in New-Jersey, about thirty-five men at his own expense; that Captain O'Hara went to Albany about seven weeks ago, to return in three weeks; since which he has not had any intelligence from him; that his men call daily for money, and will desert if he is not enabled to support them. He therefore prays the Committee to take some method for his relief.

"St. Eustatia, March 2, 1776.

"SIR: I am sorry to relate to you the sad misfortune that I have met with on the high seas. On the 10th day of February, in the latitude 23° 9', longitude 63°, I met with the Portland ship-of-war, of fifty guns; in spite of my endeavours, she brought me to, and took all my people, and sent the sloop to Antigua, with two officers and five men. I had the good fortune to save part of my money, which I have lodged in the hands of Mr. Samuel Cousens. I expect to sail in six or seven days for New-York, in a fast-sailing sloop belonging to Amboy. I have enclosed a bill on Mes-sieurs Curson & Seton, and I intend to bring a copy of the same myself.

"Sir, I still remain yours,

"WILKIE DODGE."

A Letter from Matthew Van Alstyne to his brother Abraham Van Alstyne, of this City, Merchant, dated St. Eustatia, February 24th, 1776, of which the following is an extract:

"I am sorry to inform you of my misfortune of being taken by the Pomone frigate. I had been at Martinico and going to Guadaloupe. I was becalmed under the land when he took me."

Also, another Letter from Captain Matthew Van Alstyne to Abraham Van Alstyne, dated St. Eustatia, February 4th, 1776.

"I am going to St. Christophers, to take charge of Captain Sanders's brig, rather than come home, for the sea is full of all kinds of cruisers. There is not one vessel in ten that escapes, going or coming. On my arrival here I wrote up to my friends at St. Christophers, and related my misfortune of being taken."

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esquire, as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, pay to Mr. Comfort Sands, six hundred and fifty Pounds, for the Sloop Sally, whereof Wilkie Dodge was late Master; and the further sum of five hundred Pounds for the Schooner Polly, Matthew Van Alstyne, Master, which was insured at that price, by Sands, on account of this Colony.

The Committee then proceeded to finish their Resolutions for encouraging the manufacture of Saltpetre in this Colony; and the following Resolutions, reported by Mr. Tredwell, were read, amended, approved of, and agreed to for that purpose, in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 17, 1776.

Whereas the Continental Congress, on the 23d of February last, did recommend it to the several Assemblies, Conventions, and Councils, or Committees of Safety and Committees of Correspondence and Inspection, in the United Colonies, to exert themselves in devising further ways and means for promoting and encouraging the manufacture of Saltpetre, and of introducing that manufacture into private families; and to the several Assemblies and Conventions in the United Colonies that they establish publick works in each and every County, in their respective Colonies, at the expense of such Colonies, for the manufacture of Saltpetre; and appoint Committees of their own Members immediately to set up such manufacture:

And whereas the Provincial Congress of this Colony have authorized the Committee of Safety to carry the above Resolutions of Congress into execution:

Therefore Resolved, That Committees be appointed, agreeable to the said Resolutions, to erect Works for manufacturing of Saltpetre in every considerable Town or Village in the several Counties of New-York, Albany, Suffolk, Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, Westchester, and King's.

And that Isaac Stoutenburgh, Samuel Prince, and Evert Bancker, be a Committee for that purpose in the City and County of New-York;

That Henry Glen, Abraham Yates, Jun., and Leonard Gansevoort, be a Committee for the like purpose in the City and County of Albany;

That Thomas Tredwell, David Gelston, and Ezra L'Homedieu, be a Committee for the like purpose in the County of Suffolk;

That Dirck Wynkoop and Charles De Witt be a Committee for the like purpose in the County of Ulster;

That William Allison and John Herring be a Committee for the like purpose in the County of Orange;

That Peter Ten Broeck and Cornelius Humphries be a Committee for the like purpose in the County of Dutchess;

That Ebenezer Lockwood and Gilbert Drake be a Committee for the like purpose in the County of Westchester;

And that John Vanderbilt, Nicholas Covenhoven, and Rutger Van Brunt, be a Committee for the like purpose in the County of King's.

And the said Committees are hereby severally authorized and empowered, in behalf and on account of this Colony, to contract with proper persons for erecting said Works, and carrying on the said manufacture, under the superintendence and direction of the said Committees.

And the said Committees are hereby directed to report to the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety, from time to time, their proceedings in the premises, and the progress that shall be made in said manufacture.

And to encourage the setting up of private Works, and the manufacture of Saltpetre in private families, (which is the only way of obtaining a speedy and effectual supply of that article,) the Committees hereby appointed in the several Counties, are empowered and authorized to purchase, on the account of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, all well refined Saltpetre, that shall be made in this Colony, and offered to them for sale, before the first day of November next, at the rate of six Shillings per pound. And it is further recommended to the Committees of the several Cities, Counties, Towns, Manors, Precincts, and Districts, in this Colony, in the neighbourhood of any places suspected to contain mines of Sulphur, that they cause diligent search to be made for such mines in their respective Districts, and report their discoveries to the Provincial Congress or the Committee of Safety without delay.

Ordered, That the Secretaries prepare copies of these Resolutions for the Printers in this City, and that the same be printed in all the publick Newspapers in this Colony.

Edward Tylee, being examined, saith: That he has been a prisoner on board the Asia seven months; that he was well treated by Captain Vandeput during the whole time; and that upon the whole he did not receive any ill treatment from any of the ship's company. This examinant further saith, that Lord Roschill informed this examinant, just before he came from on board the Asia, that he (Lord Roschill) had given the information to Captain Vandeput, by the way of Amboy, which occasioned his being taken prisoner. This examinant being examined relative to the Asia firing on the City, said that he was not on board at the time, but was informed, after being on board, that Captain Vandeput gave orders for the first firing, but that he (Captain Vandeput) went down between decks to stop the second firing; that the next morning, the First Lieutenant, Mr. Galbreath, had loaded an eighteen-pounder with grape-shot, to fire on the inhabitants, and that Captain Vandeput jumped out of his cabin, in his shirt, to prevent it.

This examinant further saith: That one John Noble, of this City, came continually on board the Asia with intelligence from this City; that he has frequently heard him give intelligence on board, particularly relative to the troops taking possession of Bedlow's Island; that he (the examinant) heard Noble say he managed and brought about the escape of Captain Harris, when he (said Noble) was on guard; that the said Noble, the week before last, brought on board three rifle guns. That Lawrence Hartwick was another person who continually brought intelligence; that he was one of the persons who attempted to set fire to the furnace with combustibles made on board the ship Asia; gave the information which caused the two boats with iron to be seized. That, with respect to the supply of fresh provisions, they used to have it brought on board by many persons, whom he did not know; they refused to take Continental money for it. That a blockmaker, a tall man with a snuff-coloured coat, brown hair, who said he was a Committee-man, came on board twice, some time in the month of November, to the best of his knowledge, in company with one Lawrence Hartwick; that this examinant gave Hartwick a letter to carry for him to Nathaniel Tylee, in New-York, and that in the presence of the said blockmaker; that the said blockmaker told this examinant, "You know you and I are not of the same way of thinking;" that the said blockmaker and Hartwick broke the said letter open, and showed the same to Captain Vandeput, as Captain Vandeput informed this examinant, upon which this examinant was more closely confined, and suffered considerably thereby. This examinant further saith, that Mr. Bogert, the butcher, one or two nights before the ship Lady Gage was cut out, was on board the Asia; that two or three nights after the cutting out of the said ship, the said Bogert was on board again, and was invited by the gentlemen of the gunroom to go down with them in the gunroom; that this examinant was in the gunroom; that this examinant heard Bogert say that when he (Bogert) was coming from Bedlow's Island he saw Mr. Nixen put off from alongside the Asia, and that he (Bogert) lay down in the boat and let a sailor set upon him to prevent Nixen seeing him; that the officers in the gunroom, on informing Bogert of the expedition in cutting out the Lady Gage, and laughing heartily about it, one of the officers said to Bogert, we told you of our going upon that expedition the other night; that Bogert answered "Yes, you did, but I did not want to hear it." That one Nicolls, of Connecticut, a friend of this examinant, gave Bogert sixteen shillings to purchase necessities with for this examinant; that Bogert brought him off two gallons of rum, and the remainder of the money he kept for near three months, though often solicited to bring him some necessities for the remainder, which he never did till a friend of this deponent came on board to see him, and to whom he gave an order on Mr. Bogert to receive it, and send him some necessities, which he accordingly did.

"New-York, April 17, 1776.

"SIR: By the enclosed resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress, you will observe that they have thought it expedient to open the Ports under several restrictions; and that they have also determined to make reprisals, by seizing of British property. By the resolutions, the Assemblies or Conventions of the Colonies are to appoint the proper officers, who are to take the securities of exporters; as also judges to determine on captures. As the Committee of Safety are incompetent for those purposes, and the trade of the Colony, as well as its reputation, will suffer if the necessary regulations are not made to enable the inhabitants to avail themselves of the benefit of the said resolutions, the Committee of Safety think it absolutely necessary that the Congress of this Colony do meet in this City on the 1st day of May next; they therefore earnestly entreat you to attend on that day, that our constituents may, if they are so disposed, export their produce, and be as early as their neighbours at market. The Committee of Safety would not choose to be chargeable with any loss this Colony might sustain in consequence of any delay in complying with the resolutions of the Continental Congress in making, on our part as a Colony, the proper arrangement.

"We are, sir, your humble servants.

"By order of the Committee of Safety:

"WILLIAM PAULDING, Chairman."

James Smith, Captain of the Armed Sloop called the General Schuyler, and Colonel Alexander McDougall, of the City of New-York, executed their joint and several Bond to the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of the United Colonies, in the sum of five thousand Dollars, with condition thereto that the said James Smith, Commander of the said Sloop, shall not exceed or transgress the powers and authorities which shall be contained in his Commission as Commander of the said Sloop, but shall in all things observe and conduct himself and govern his crew by and according to the same, and certain instructions therewith to be delivered, and such other instructions as may hereafter be given him, and shall make reparation for all damages sustained by any misconduct or unwarrantable proceedings of himself, or the officers or crew of the said Sloop.

Thereupon a Commission was filled up, and delivered to the said James Smith, as Commander of the said Sloop, and his Instructions were also delivered to him.

Thomas Cregier, Commander of the Armed Schooner General Putnam, and Thomas Randall, of the City of New-York, duly executed a similar joint and several Bond to John Hancock, Esq., President as aforesaid, in the sum of five thousand Dollars, with a similar condition thereto as to the conduct and behaviour of the said Thomas Cregier and his officers and crew.

Thereupon a Commission was filled up, and delivered to the said Thomas Cregier, as Commander of the said Armed Schooner General Putnam, and set of Instructions delivered to him.

Captain William Rogers, Commander of the Armed Sloop Montgomery, and Joseph Hallett, of the City of New-York, duly executed a similar joint and several Bond to John Hancock, Esq., President as aforesaid, in the sum of five thousand Dollars, with a condition thereto for the good conduct and behaviour of the said William Rogers, as Commander of the said Armed Sloop Montgomery, and of his officers and crew, in terms similar to the condition of the Bond of the said James Smith and Alexander McDougall.

Thereupon a Commission was filled up, and delivered to the said William Rogers, as Commander of the said Armed Sloop Montgomery, and a set of Instructions delivered to him.

Mr. Richard Norwood, Commissary of Colony Stores, made a return of the Gunpowder purchased of Mr. Nicholas Low, which was read, and filed. It thereby appears that the quantity is one thousand five hundred and three pounds, and the quality thereof, as proved and ascertained by Mr. Jecamiah Allen, is but middling.

A Letter from Colonel Gilbert Drake, dated the 9th instant, was read, and filed. He thereby acknowledges the receipt of the Letter from this Committee, of the 1st instant, and says he will stop buying provisions; and informs that John Thomas, Jun., Ebenezer Lockwood, and himself, have bought about one thousand barrels of pork and six hundred barrels of flour; that the peas ordered from Albany are in store at Peek's Kill Landing, and the pork stored in Cortlandt's Manor, Bedford, and North-Castle.

A Letter from twelve disaffected persons in Queen's County, usually called Tories, was read, and filed. They therein say they have been disarmed, and therefore request they may be excused from being called out when the Militia is called to train or muster.

A Letter from General Washington, on the subject of putting a stop to any intercourse with the Ships-of-War, was read, and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Head-Quarters, April 17, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: There is nothing that could add more to my happiness than to go hand in hand with the civil authority of this or any other Government to which it may be my lot to be ordered; and if, in the prosecution of such measures as shall appear to me to have a manifest tendency to promote the interest of the great American cause, I shall encounter the local convenience of individuals, or even of a whole Colony, I beg it may be believed that I shall do it with reluctance and pain; but in the present important contest the least of two evils must be preferred.

"That a continuance of the intercourse which has hitherto subsisted between the inhabitants of this Colony and the enemy on board the ships-of-war is injurious to the common cause, requires no extraordinary abilities to prove. A moment's reflection not only evinces this truth, but points out the glaring absurdity of such procedure. We are to consider ourselves either in a state of peace or war with Great Britain. If the former, why are our ports shut up, our trade destroyed, our property seized, our towns burnt, and our worthy and valuable citizens led into captivity and suffering the most cruel hardships? If the latter, my imagination is not fertile enough to suggest a reason in support of the intercourse.

"In the weak and defenceless state in which this city was some time ago, political prudence might justify the correspondence that subsisted between the country and the enemy's ships-of-war; but as the largest part of the Continental troops is now here, as many strong works are erected and erecting for the defence of the city and harbour, those motives no longer exist, but are absorbed in others of a more important nature. To tell you, gentlemen, that the advantages of an intercourse of this kind are altogether on the side of the enemy, whilst we derive not the smallest benefit from it, would be telling what must be obvious to every one. It is indeed so glaring, that even the enemy themselves must despise us for suffering it to be continued; for, besides their obtaining supplies of every kind, by which they are enabled to continue in your harbours, it also opens a regular channel of intelligence, by which they are from time to time made acquainted with the number and extent of our works, our strength, and all our movements; by which they are enabled to regulate their own plans to our great disadvantage and injury. For the truth of this, I could produce instances; but as it may be the subject of future discussion, I shall decline it at present. It would, gentlemen, be taking up too much of your time to use further arguments in proof of the necessity of putting an immediate and total stop to all future correspondence with the enemy. It is my incumbent duty to effect this, convinced as I am of the disadvantages resulting from it, and it cannot be thought strange or hard that, under such conviction, I should be anxious to remove an evil which may contribute not a little to the ruin of the great cause we are engaged in, and may, in its effects, prove highly detrimental to this Colony in particular.

"In effecting the salutary purposes above-mentioned, I could wish for the concurrence and support of your honourable body. It will certainly add great weight to the measures adopted, when the civil authority co-operates with the military to carry them into execution. It will also redound much to the honour of the Government and of your Committee in particular, for the world are apt to judge from appearances; and while such correspondence exists, the reputation of the whole Colony will suffer in the eyes of their American brethren.

"It is therefore, gentlemen, that I have taken the liberty to address you on this important subject, relying upon your zeal and attachment to the cause of American liberty for your assistance in putting a stop to this evil, and that you will co-operate with me in such measures as shall be effectual either to prevent any future correspondence with the enemy, or in bringing to condign punishment such persons as may be hardy and wicked enough to carry it on otherwise than by a prescribed mode, if any case can possibly arise to require it.

"I have the honour to be, with the utmost respect, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Ordered, That all the Deputies to the Provincial Congress, now in this City, be summoned to attend this Committee to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock; and that the Continental Delegates now in this City be requested to attend, to take this Letter into consideration.

Die Jovis, A. M., April 18, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esq., Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Randall, Mr. Prince, Mr. Denning, Colonel Lott, Mr. Scott, Col. McDougall, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Smith.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Covenhoven, Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding, Col. Gilbert Drake, Mr. Thomas.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Bancker.

Philip Livingston and Francis Lewis, Esquires, were present by request of the Committee.

On application from the General Committee of the City of New-York,

Ordered, That Alexander Moncrief be, and he is hereby, directed to receive into his custody all such persons as shall be from time to time committed by order of the General Committee of the City and County of New-York, and confine them in the Jail set apart for the confinement of prisoners committed by the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony.

Whereas this Committee is informed that the publick service is greatly impeded by the neglect or refusal of the Gunsmiths to despatch the work put into their hands by the Commissary,

It is therefore Resolved and Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius do immediately apply to the several Gunsmiths in this City, and employ them in fitting up the Guns wanted for the publick service; and if any of the said Gunsmiths shall refuse to be employed in the publick service, or shall neglect to perform the work assigned, in that case the said Colonel Curtenius is hereby ordered and required to report to this Committee such as shall so refuse or neglect to despatch the publick work.

Mr. Adjutant-General Gates attending, was admitted.

1st. He informed the Committee that the General conceives it would tend to the publick convenience and the good government of the Army, and punishment of delinquents, if the Provost-Marshal could be supplied with a room in the Jail for his prisoners; and, also, another room in the Jail, or any other part of that building, for the holding of Courts-Martial, if any such room can be spared in that building; and requests the intervention of this Committee in the premises.

2d. That it is the opinion of the General, that proper persons should be appointed at different stations to make signals upon the approach of any enemy; and that corps of Minute-men, or of Militia, should be appointed immediately, and have their directions to repair immediately on any signal given or alarm made, to particular places or stations assigned to them respectively, to prevent the confusion or irregularity that will necessarily ensue on any such occasion, without such order or regularity.

Ordered, That these matters be taken into consideration.

Whereas many inconveniences may arise by admitting the inhabitants of this Colony to an unrestrained commerce with the Continental Troops stationed in this Colony,

Therefore Resolved and Ordered, That any inhabitant of this Colony do not, on any pretence whatever, receive or purchase from any non-commissioned officer or soldier in the Continental service any Goods, Clothing, or other article whatsoever, unless such non-commissioned officer or soldier shall first produce to such inhabitant a certificate signed by the Commanding Officer of the Regiment or Company to which such non-commissioned officer or soldier belongs, specifying the particular goods or articles which he or they are permitted to dispose of, together with the name or names of the vender or venders; and the several Committees and sub-Committees in the respective Cities, Counties, Towns, Precincts, and Districts, in this Colony, are hereby requested to see that this Resolution be strictly complied with.

Ordered, That this Resolution be published in the Newspapers.

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 18, 1776.

Whereas the Provincial Congress of this Colony, by their order of the 18th of February last, did forbid all communication between the ships-of-war in the Port of New-York, and the ship in which Governour Tryon resides, on the one part, and all the inhabitants of the Colony on the other, except for supplies of necessary provisions for the use of the said ships only, under certain restrictions therein mentioned: And whereas the said Congress, on the 8th of March last, did resolve and order further regulations for furnishing such supplies as aforesaid, upon express proviso, however, that the said supplies were to take place, and be continued on condition that there should be no obstruction given to any boats or vessels bringing provisions, provender, or fire-wood to this city; which obstruction has nevertheless been repeatedly given, and the benefit of such supplies are thereby become forfeited: And whereas the said Congress, by a resolve of the 15th of March last, did, among other things, authorize this Committee to execute, or cause to be executed, orders, resolves, and recommendations, as well of the Continental as of the said Provincial Congress; and, also, to comply as far as this Committee shall think proper with any requisition by the General of the Continental forces, or any or either of them: And whereas his Excellency General Washington has, in writing, signified to this Committee that he conceives any intercourse whatsoever with the enemies on board the said ships is injurious to the common cause, by enabling them, while they are furnished with provisions, to continue in our harbours, and maintain a regular channel of intelligence advancive of their own plans, and to our great disadvantage and injury, and has thereby requested our assistance in putting a stop to this evil, and to co-operate with him in such measures as shall be effectual either to prevent any future correspondence with the enemy, or in bringing to condign punishment such persons as may be hardy and wicked enough to carry it on:

It is therefore Resolved and Ordered, That no inhabitant of this Colony, upon any pretence, or for any purpose whatsoever, either in person or in writing, directly or indirectly, do presume to have or maintain any intercourse whatsoever with any Ship or Vessel belonging to or employed in the service of the King of Great Britain, or of any of his Officers or Ministers, or with any person or persons on board of the same, upon pain of being dealt with in the severest manner, as enemies to the rights and liberties of the United North-American Colonies.

Resolved and Ordered, That his Excellency General Washington be furnished with a copy of this and the foregoing Order and Resolve, and be assured that this Committee will co-operate with him in the execution of the same, and any other measure which may be judged by this Committee to be advancive of the salutary purposes of his requisition.

Resolved and Ordered, That a copy of the two aforegoing Resolves and Orders be immediately published in Handbills, and in all the publick Newspapers of this Colony; and that a copy of these Resolves be enclosed by the Chairman to the General, in the following Letter, to wit:

Committee of Safety, New-York, April 18, 1776.

Your recommendation of yesterday we took into consideration immediately on receipt of it; and thereupon framed the enclosed Resolves and Orders.

We cannot sufficiently thank your Excellency for your most delicate attention to the civil Government of this Colony; and beg leave to give you the strongest assurances that we most eagerly embrace this, as we shall every other opportunity, of co-operating with you in every measure which shall come recommended to us with the argument of publick utility.

We are, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee.

To His Excellency Major-General Washington.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and, together with a copy of the said Resolutions, transmitted to General Washington.

Messieurs Van Zandt and Randall, of the Marine Committee, informed the Committee of Safety that the Pilot-Boat the Hampden, belonging to the Provincial Congress of this Colony, is at Philadelphia, in the Colony of Pennsylvania; that she cannot with safety be brought from thence, and that it is their opinion that the said vessel should be sold.

Mr. Van Zandt further informed the Committee that a small quantity of goods, which arrived in the said Sloop Hampden, and belong to the Colony, are in his custody.

Thereupon Ordered, That the Marine Committee, appointed by the Provincial Congress of this Colony, sell the said Sloop at Philadelphia, and pay the amount of the sales to the Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony.

And Ordered further, That the said Marine Committee do sell and dispose of the said Goods and Merchandise which were imported in the said Sloop, and pay the amount of the sales thereof to the said Treasurer; and that they deliver in to the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety an account of the amount of the sales of the said Sloop and Goods.

A Letter from the Committee of the City of Albany, dated on the 2d instant, was read and filed. The said Committee therein mention that the Officers in that County, recruiting for the four Regiments of Continental Troops raising in this Colony, find great difficulties for want of money; that they have understood that money is allotted for that service; and they request that some money for the said Troops may be sent to them.

Present: William Paulding, Esquire, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Randall, Mr. Smith, Colonel Lott, Colonel McDougall.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Bancker.

Colonel Ritzema, by a Letter to the Chairman, which was read and filed, requests an Order to Mr. Norwood, the Commissary of Colony Stores, for Arms for some of the men of his Regiment who are destitute.

Ordered, That Mr. Richard Norwood, Commissary of Colony Stores, deliver to Colonel Ritzema, or to such Captains in his Regiment as shall have Colonel Ritzema's order, all the Muskets and Fire-Locks fit for use now in the Colony Store, in his custody; and that the said Commissary take a receipt of Colonel Ritzema, or the Captains to whom such Arms are delivered, to the end that the same may be accounted for and paid to the Colony.

A recommendation from Henry Wisner, Esq., was read and filed. He thereby recommends Colonel Isaac Nicoll as a proper person for a Field-Officer in one of the Battalions to be raised in this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. McKesson inform Colonel Nicoll that there are not any directions from Congress for raising another Battalion.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: William Paulding, Esquire, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Colonel Lott, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Smith, Mr. Rutgers, Mr. Randall.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Gilbert Drake, Major Lockwood, Mr. Paulding, Mr. Thomas.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Bancker.

Mr. Abraham De Peyster, one of the sub-Committee of the City of New-York, appointed to procure Houses for Hospitals, together with Mr. John Berrien, another of the Committee of New-York, attended. Mr. De Peyster informed that the Barrackmaster-General had called on him for Houses for an Hospital, and that he requested the advice of this Committee in the premises.

Mr. De Peyster was thereupon advised to endeavour to get or procure empty Houses, near that already engaged for that use.

Mr. Francis Child, the Deputy Sheriff, attending, was admitted. He informed the Committee that Derby Doyle is confined as a prisoner in the Jail, and requested directions what is to be done with him.

As the said Derby Doyle was taken by military order for some correspondence with, and aid given to the Ministerial Army and Navy, and is a prisoner on that account, the particulars whereof are unknown to this Committee, Mr. Child was directed to apply to the General for directions.

Mr. Child further requested, that in fixing on rooms in the Jail for the Provost-Marshal and Courts-Martial, the Sheriff's Jail-rooms, and the room in which he resides, may be reserved.

Benjamin Waldo, late a Mariner and Carpenter on board of the Armed Schooner Schuyler, James Smith Commander, was admitted. He complains in substance:

1st. That Captain Smith having discharged him, and knowing that he had refused to go to sea with him, Captain Smith had prevented him from being employed as a Carpenter on board of the armed vessel commanded by Captain Rodgers.

2d. That Captain Smith had violently beat and abused him very much, without any just provocation.

Ordered, That the Doorkeeper summon Captain Smith to attend at five o'clock, and the complainant to attend at that time.

A Letter from the Committee of Goshen Precinct, in Orange County, sent by Major Hetfield, as the bearer, and covering the accounts of the Blankets and Arms purchased by the said Committee, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Goshen Precinct, April 16, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: In obedience to a request of the honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony of New-York, the Committee of this Precinct hath purchased and delivered unto Captain Daniel Denton, the number of guns and blankets agreeable to the enclosed accounts with the voucher, which is humbly presented, with a request that the bills may be discharged by paying the money unto Major Moses Hetfield.

"The Committee also beg leave to inform your honourable body, that we have a number of good muskets, or firelocks, remaining on our hands, which Captain Denton would not give us his receipt for, because his soldiers did not please to take them. The Committee humbly conceive that it was not the intention of Congress that the private soldiers of any company should have it in their power to reject the arms purchased by the Committees, and adjudged by them fit for the service; and so the guns consequently fall upon the hands of those Committees who have cheerfully complied with the request of Congress. Therefore pray that you would be pleased to discharge the accounts which Major Hetfield will deliver to you of those guns also, and give further directions to this Committee in what manner you would be pleased to have them disposed of.

"I am, in behalf of the Committee, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"JOHN HATHORN,

"Chairman of the Committee for the Precinct of Goshen.

"To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York."

A draft of an Answer to the Committee of Goshen Precinct, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We are favoured with your letter of the 16th instant, by Major Hetfield. We highly approve of your conduct in having so far supplied Captain Denton's Company with blankets and arms.

Please to send the five muskets which were refused, by some safe, careful person, and the first such opportunity, to New-Windsor, that they be sent to us by Captain Jackson, or some other sloop whose Captain may be relied on.

Major Hetfield has informed us that these five arms are good muskets, and that it is his opinion that several more very good arms may be purchased in your Precinct.

We therefore earnestly request you to purchase as many more good arms as you can get at reasonable prices, and transmit them to us as above directed.

We are, respectfully, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

To the Committee of Goshen Precinct, &c.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed, and transmitted.

Colonel Gilbert Drake, one of the Members of Westchester County, brought to the Committee of Safety a Bill of the money emitted by the late Provincial Congress, which is erased and altered; having been issued of the value of five Dollars, it has been attempted to be changed to a Bill of the value of ten Dollars, and the names.

SIR: This Committee having received information that some of the bills of the late emission of money struck by the Congress for the publick service have been counterfeited, and are now passing in your County, you are requested forthwith to call the General Committee of the County together, and take every step in your power to discover the counterfeiter or counterfeiters, and those who have passed the said bills, knowing them to be counterfeit. For this purpose you are to order the persons accused to be brought before you, and to examine on oath the witnesses for and against the accused, and transmit the whole of your proceedings to this Committee, or to the Congress if they are sitting, that they may make further order therein.

If upon the evidence that may be offered, your Committee shall be of opinion that any of the persons accused are guilty, in that case you are forthwith to order them into close custody; and if, upon the whole of the evidence, it should appear to you doubtful whether they are guilty, in that case you are to take good security that the prisoner or prisoners do appear before the Congress at such time and place as they may appoint. But, if after hearing the whole of the evidence, you should be of opinion that the accused are not guilty, you are to discharge them.

We are, &c.

To Thomas Thomas, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Westchester County.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A draft of Instructions to Captain William Rodgers, Commander of the Armed Sloop Montgomery, were reported by Mr. Randall, and read and approved, and are in the words following, to wit:

SIR: As the Armed Sloop Montgomery, whereof you are Commander, is now completely fitted in a warlike manner, our orders are that you repair on board with your officers and men, and proceed to sea, and act against the enemies of the United Colonies, agreeable to your Instructions from the Congress.

You are to cruise along shore on our coasts any where between Sandy-Hook and Cape-May, or from Sandy-Hook to the east end of Long-Island. You are always to keep some inlet under your lee, so that you may secure a retreat from a superior force. Be careful to send such prizes as you may take into some place of safety in the United Colonies. It is very necessary to have a good Pilot on board; and also that you make yourself well acquainted on the coast. You are to assist any of the friends of the United Colonies by every means in your power, and assist to carry them into some place of safety; and where different objects for assistance offer at the same time, you are to give the preference to the vessels and inhabitants of this Colony. You are always, and by every opportunity, to advise the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony of your proceedings.

We wish you success, and remain your friends and humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and delivered to the said William Rogers.

This Committee having taken into consideration the Resolutions and recommendations of the Continental Congress, on the 21st of March last, for promoting the growth of Hemp and Flax, and the increase of Wool, and the erecting and establishing Manufactories in this Colony, agreed upon an essay and recommendations, in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 19, 1776.

The Continental Congress have, by Resolve, on the 21st of March last, recommended it to the several Assemblies, Conventions, and Councils or Committees of Safety, and Committees of Correspondence and Inspection, that they exert their utmost endeavours to promote, among other things, the culture of Hemp, Flax, and Cotton, and the growth of Wool in the United Colonies.

It is therefore most earnestly recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony to attend to the following considerations, which, exclusive of the best regard to the publick good, must engage every Farmer, from a just attention to his own private interest, to the increase of the staples of Hemp, Flax, and Wool.

By the restraints which the Parliament of Great Britain have most tyrannically imposed on our commerce, and the danger thence arising on the exportation of Provisions, the husbandman has no inducement to employ his skill and industry in the produce of those articles, beyond the necessity of home consumption. It is therefore evident that the culture of grain must, under our present circumstances, naturally diminish. This diminution ought, from motives both of private interest and publick utility, to be compensated for by the improvement of our lands, in such a way as will most infallibly be attended with great profit to the landholder. As, by the danger to which our exports are exposed, the usual growth of grain will necessarily be discouraged, it will be laudable economy to devote a larger part of our lands than usual to the culture of Hemp and Flax, and the pasturing of Sheep.

The present great scarcity of Linen and Woollen Goods will be increased to a distressing degree by the continuance of arbitrary Parliamentary restraints on our Trade, and prudent Continental restrictions on our imports; the latter of which would, indeed, necessarily fail, were there no other reasons for it than the want of sufficient exports to support them. From this scarcity we may, in a great measure, be relieved, without loss to the publick, and with manifest profit to the farmer, by improving our lands in such a manner as will furnish both clothing and employment for our inhabitants. Our soil and climate naturally invite us to it; but our necessities, and the prosperity of the husbandman, clearly command it. It is doubtless the most advantageous use to which, in ordinary times, we can apply our lands; but, at this juncture, the advantage will be so highly improved by the enhanced prices of Hemp, Flax, and Wool, that every farmer who neglects to take uncommon pains for the increase of those necessary articles, will be most culpably inattentive to the general weal, and his own private interest. Little, therefore, would need to be said on this head, were we not urged to it by its vast importance. For this reason, this Committee do earnestly recommend it to every farmer in this Colony to exert himself to raise large quantities of Hemp and Flax, and to increase his stock and improve his breed of Sheep. And in order to increase the breed of Sheep, it is earnestly recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony not to kill any Lambs nor any Ewes under four years old, until further order of the Provincial Congress. And lest any farmers or butchers should be so far lost to all sense of publick virtue as to disregard this recommendation concerning the increase of our flocks of Sheep, it is most ardently recommended to the inhabitants of this City totally to abstain from the purchase of Lamb, and of such Ewe mutton as they shall discover to have been, at the time of killing, under four years old; and are requested to report to this Committee, or the Provincial Congress, all such persons as shall attempt to sell or purchase any Lamb or Mutton contrary to this recommendation.

Ordered, That the foregoing Recommendations be forthwith published in all the publick Newspapers in this Colony.

The Committee adjourned to four o'clock, in the afternoon.

Die Veneris, 4to ho. P. M., April 19, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present Mr. William Paulding, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Scott, Mr. Randall, Mr. Smith, Captain Denning, Mr. Beekman, Mr. Rutgers.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Bancker.

Garret Kip and Benjamin Burroughs informed the Committee of Safety that William Winterton, who was lately employed in the Ministerial service on the Pest-Island, is in this City, and may be apprehended.

Thereupon, a Warrant was made to Captain William W. Gilbert, in the words following, to wit:

The Committee of Safety being informed that William Winterton, who was lately employed in the Ministerial service, on the Pest-Island, is now in this City, and may be apprehended:

Ordered, That Captain William W. Gilbert, or any other officer of the Militia in this City, possessed of a copy of this order, do exert himself (with such of his corps or company as he may think proper to command on that service) to apprehend the said William Winterton, and him safely keep, and bring him before the Committee of Safety to be examined.

The Warrant issued to Mr. W. Watkins, as Lieutenant in Captain Van Wyck's Company, in the Regiment whereof Colonel McDougall is Colonel, was returned, and Mr. John Reid is appointed Second Lieutenant in that Company, in his stead, on condition that he enlist thirty men in three weeks.

Major Malcom Morrison having some time since returned his Commission as Major and resigned, and Captain John Schenck being recommended as a proper person to fill that office, and the next in rank in that Regiment, Ordered, That Captain John Schenck be appointed to the vacant Majority in the Regiment of . . . . .

A Letter from Egbert Benson, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Rhinebeck Precinct, Dutchess County, dated the 13th instant, was read and filed.

The said Letter informs that the Committee of the said Precinct had lately committed Mordecai Lester, Esq., and a certain Frederick Klein, to the Jail in Kingston, in Ulster County, as the peace and security of the Precinct rendered the confinement of those persons absolutely necessary; that the Committee at Kingston had requested of that Committee to make provision for the support of the Prisoners they had sent there; that, in pursuance thereof, the Rhinebeck Committee had personally engaged for the support of Doughty, Lester, and Klein.

The residue of the said Letter requested that means may be devised to make the maintenance of these Prisoners a publick charge, and assigned reasons for such request.

On reading the said Letter from Egbert Benson, Esquire, Chairman of Rhinebeck Precinct,

Resolved and Ordered, That the Committee of Kingston, in Ulster County, be requested to furnish to Frederick Kleyn, a prisoner now confined in the Jail at Kingston by order of the Committee of Rhinebeck Precinct, in Dutchess County, such Provisions as he may necessarily stand in need of for his subsistence during his confinement, and that the said Committee transmit an account of the expense to this Committee, or the Provincial Congress of this Colony, for payment.

Ordered further, That the said Committee of Kingston be requested to provide, in the same manner, for Timothy Doughty and Mordecai Lester, other Prisoners in the same Jail, provided it shall appear to the satisfaction of the said Committee that they have not estates or means sufficient to enable them to provide for themselves.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Rhinebeck Precinct was read and approved of; and is in the words following, to wit:

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 13th instant, directed to the member attending from the County of Dutchess, was this day presented by Mr. Everson, and immediately taken into consideration.

The Committee, confiding in the prudence of the Rhinebeck Committee in apprehending and securing those persons whose conduct is inimical, and where their confinement is absolutely necessary for the peace and security of the Precinct, highly approve of your conduct with respect to Doughty, Lester, and Klein.

Enclosed is the copy of an order transmitted to the Committee of Kingston, relative to the support of your prisoners, now in their custody.

As the meeting of a new Congress is near at hand, this Committee does not think it prudent to make the order more general at present, leaving the matter for the consideration of Congress on future application.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

To the Chairman and Members of the Committee of Rhinebeck Precinct, Dutchess County.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Van Brunt.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Paulding.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Bancker.

A Letter from the Committee of Orange County, dated the 18th instant, was read and filed. They thereby recommend Mr. Seth Marvin for a Captain, and Joshua Brown for First Lieutenant of a Company in the four Regiments of Continental Troops raising in this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Seth Marvin, who is attending, be informed that there is not at present any vacancy for a Captain, as the returns of the warrants issued by Congress are not received.

Another Letter from the Committee of Orange County, dated the same day, was also read. They thereby request a copy of the resolution of Congress allowing a certain sum out of the Treasury for the use of their County Committee, and have therein inserted an order for the payment of the said money to Mr. Seth Marvin, the bearer.

Mr. Seth Marvin was informed that, for want of money, the said order cannot be complied with.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Orange, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: The order of the Committee of the 18th instant, for payment of the money allotted to your County, has been received and read. We are sorry to be obliged to inform you that the drafts on our Treasury have been so great that it is become empty. We hope soon to have it replenished.

A copy of the order of Congress, for advancing to your County two hundred pounds, will be forwarded to you by the next opportunity. If you should appoint any other person to receive the money hereafter, you will please to draw an order similar to the one now sent, mentioning the name of the person whom you shall direct to receive it.

We are, respectfully, sir, your humble servants.

To Elihu Marvin, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Orange County.

Captain Wynkoop requested an order to the Contractor to supply him with Rations of Provisions for his Mariners inlisted for the service on the Lakes.

Ordered, That Mr. Abraham Livingston from time to time supply Captain Jacobus Wynkoop with Rations, from Monday last, included, while he continues in this City, for the Seamen raised for the service on the Lakes, and for the said Captain, according to Captain Wynkoop's Returns, taking receipts for the same.

Mr. Chairman informed this Committee that a certain Isaac Nevaro is confined in the Jail; that he has made inquiry, and finds that he has been there committed without any, or on slight grounds.

Ordered, That Alexander Moncrief, the Keeper of the Jail set apart for the confinement of Prisoners committed by order of the Provincial Congress, this Committee, or the General Committee of this City, be, and he is hereby, directed to discharge Isaac Nevaro from his confinement; and that he be permitted to go at large.

Die Mercurii, 10 ho. A. M., April 24, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

FOR NEW-YORK.—Colonel McDougall, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Randall, Mr. Evert Bancker, Major Stoutenburgh.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Oothoudt.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Van Cortlandt, Colonel Joseph Drake.

FOR DUTCHESS.—Mr. Everson.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt was unanimously chosen Chairman.

Captain Jacobus Wynkoop attended the Committee, and informed that he has inlisted the number of Seamen wanted for the Lakes, and is ready to proceed by the first opportunity, which he expects will be to-morrow; and requested a Letter to General Schuyler, informing him on what conditions Mr. Wynkoop has entered into the service.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries prepare a draft of such a Letter.

Mr. Randall, of the Marine Committee, informed that he had at different times waited on the General, and spoken to him about the Armed Vessels fitted out by this Colony, of which the General had requested the loan; that agreeable to the sentiments of the Committee of Safety on a former day, he had offered one or both of the Sloops to the General on Continental account; that the General appeared disinclined to take them, or either of them, on those conditions; that the Marine Committee had agreed to lend him two of the vessels for service in the bay, and to send the third to sea. Mr. Randall further reported, that Captain Smith has only twelve men, and wants eighteen more to man the Sloop Schuyler; and that the General intimates that if he supplies the other men wanting in the said sloop, he would expect to appoint the master and officers on board.

Captain James Smith was called in. He says that he does not expect that he can inlist the men wanting in the said sloop in this City, but imagines that he could get them in the neighbourhood in the East River.

Ordered, That Mr. Randall wait on the General and inform him that the Committee are ready to lend the Sloop Schuyler to the General, agreeable to former promise, as soon as a sufficient number of men can be obtained for her; and that if the General chooses to take the said sloop on Continental account, at the expense of her purchase and outfit, she shall be delivered to his order.

Colonel McDougall returned to the Committee the Warrant formerly issued to Mr. Lightburne, as Second Lieutenant of Captain Wyley's Company, in the First Regiment, Mr. Lightburne having resigned.

Ordered, That a Warrant be issued to Henry Douw Trip, as Second Lieutenant in Captain Wyley's Company, in the stead of Mr. Lightburne, on condition that he inlist and bring to the Company thirty men in three weeks.

Mr. Francis Child attended and was admitted. He informed the Committee that five Prisoners, who were formerly confined below, under the care of Moncrief, are now in the upper Jails among the debtors, where they are very troublesome, and do great mischief; that the Provost-Marshal refuses to let them be below in the prison; and Mr. Child requests that they may be removed out of the Sheriff's prison. Mr. Child further informed that the Provost-Marshal has maltreated the turnkey of the Jail, and some other persons in the Jail, without any provocation.

Ordered, That Mr. Randall inform the General that the Provost-Marshal's conduct is very troublesome to the Jailer and his Prisoners, and inconsistent with peace and good order in the Jail; and that he further inform that the Jail does not contain rooms sufficient to admit the Provost-Marshal to continue there with his Prisoners, consistent with the safety of the Prisoners in the custody of the Sheriff, and of those committed by the Provincial Congress, the Committee of Safety, and the General Committee of this City, for conduct inimical to the liberties of this country.

And Ordered, That Alexander Moncrief, the Jailer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, take the care and charge of William McDermot, William Alder, Joseph Woolcombe, Thomas Remington Harris, and William Metcalf, into his custody, together with all the other Prisoners which were heretofore in his custody, and confine them in the room or Jail below, where they were formerly confined.

And Ordered, That the said Alexander Moncrief have and keep the key of the said room, and the care and custody of all the said Prisoners, without any interruption, until further order of the Provincial Congress, or of this Committee of Safety.

And Ordered further, That if Thomas Vernon* shall hereafter behave refractory, or do any damage to the place of his confinement during the time that he shall be a prisoner, that in such case the said Jailer do confine the said Thomas Vernon in irons, or otherwise, at his discretion.

Captain Nathan Pearce, Jun., from Dutchess County, attending, was admitted. He produced his warrant, dated the 27th of February last, in which Dusenberry and Platt are named as his Lieutenants, and Thornton as his Ensign. Captain Pearce reported that he has sixty-two men who are enlisted and ready for service, and requests directions.

Ordered, That Captain Nathan Pearce, with his Officers and Company, be a part of Colonel Ritzema's Regiment, and that he immediately apply to Colonel Ritzema and take his directions.

And Ordered further, That Captain Pearce apply to the County Committee, or to the Committees of the Precincts in Dutchess County, to supply his men with Blankets, and with as many such good Arms as are fit for use, of those taken from disaffected persons in their County, as will be sufficient to arm his whole Company; and all Committees in that County are requested to exert themselves to supply this Company, and all the other Companies enlisted in that County, with Blankets and good Arms.

Die Mercurii, 4to ho. P. M., April 24, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Mr. Evert Bancker, Mr. Randall, Captain Denning.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Oothoudt.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

* The humble Address of THOMAS VERNON.—To the honourable the Committee of New-York.

GENTLEMEN: I hope these few lines will move you into a consideration to consider on the distressed circumstance of a poor prisoner, who has a sickly wife, and a great family, having nothing to support them with but by my daily labour, and being bereft of it, it will be the reason of my family coming on the Parish. I have been confined for thirty days, in a dark dungeon, without the least assistance of provision, except from my own family, and but very little of that. Lord Stirling has been here last Sunday, and has discharged some of the prisoners, and, at the same time, said he would discharge me; but he left it to the disposal of the Committee, and did imagine they had given me a hearing before this. I should be very much obligated to the gentlemen of the Committee if they would be so kind as to give me a hearing this afternoon, as I may know what is alleged against me; and shall conclude with the assistance of anything that possibly lies in my power, for the glorious and honourable cause of America.

I remain, gentlemen, your most faithful and trusty servant,

THOMAS VERNON.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety of the City of New-York.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Colonel V. Cortlandt.
FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

A Letter from Captain Andrew Billings, of the 22d of April instant, was received and read. He therein requested a determination of this Committee, that Subaltern Officers may continue in his service. The recommendation from the County Committee of Dutchess County, recommending the Subaltern Officers of Captain Billings's Company, was also read. They thereby recommend David Baldwin for First Lieutenant, Elihu Marshall for Second Lieutenant, and Thomas Cole, Ensign.

Ordered, That those gentlemen stand confirmed as the Subaltern Officers of Captain Billings's Company.

The Letter from Captain Andrew Billings, of the 11th instant, was read. He therein mentions two Guns, to wit: a Musket and Fowling-piece found by his men, hid in straw under a barn at Mrs. Stricker's farm, in the Out Ward of the City of New-York, and mentions the particulars relating thereto; that he had left a billet in writing, informing Mr. Staple that he had taken the Arms, and would keep them until he received orders.

Ordered, That a Letter be written to Captain Billings, directing him to get the Arms valued by persons who are competent judges of their price; that he deliver the Musket to such one of his soldiers as may choose to take it at the valuation; and that he retain the Fowling-piece till further order, and inform the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of the valuation of each.

SIR: Both of your letters were delivered by Lieutenant Marshall, and immediately taken into consideration. Enclosed is a certified copy of the determination of this Committee with respect to your subalterns.

As to the arms taken at Mrs. Stricker's on your passage up, you are directed to have them valued by persons who are competent judges of their price. The musket you may put in the hands of such one of your soldiers as may choose to take it at the valuation; the fowling-piece you are to retain until further order, and inform the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of the valuation of each.

We are informed that Mrs. Stricker has made great complaints of the rudeness of your men when at her house, by treating her with indecent language, and carrying off eggs, and bed-clothes, &c. We hope you will exert yourself and prevent such behaviour in future, especially towards a female, and that you will see that compensation is made, if the complaint is well founded.

We are, sir, your very humble servants.

By order.

To Captain Andrew Billings, Fort Montgomery.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Several weeks being elapsed since the extracts of the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, and the recommendations of this Committee for the disarming of disaffected persons, were despatched to the County Committees; no Returns being as yet made, and Arms much wanted for the Troops, the following draft of a Letter, to be sent to the County Committees, was read and approved of, viz:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 24, 1776.

SIR: As it must be evident at first sight, that troops without arms will be only a useless expense to the publick, we hoped that, on the receipt of the former directions for carrying into execution the resolutions of the Continental Congress for disarming disaffected persons, the Committees would have complied with a measure of such evident necessity without delay. But as we have not heard what steps have been taken in consequence thereof in your County, we think it necessary to request that you will exert yourself to cause the said resolution of the Continental Congress to be fully executed, if not already done in your County, according to said directions, as soon as possible, for arms are much wanted.

We are, most respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

Ordered, That several copies of the above Letter be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and that the Secretaries direct and transmit one to the Chairman of each County Committee in this Colony.

Captain Jacobus Rosekrans attending, with sundry other Officers, they were admitted. Captain Rosekrans requested Crocus or Beds for his Company.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to Captain Rosekrans Crocus or Beds for a full Company, and take his receipt for the same.

Captain Abraham Swartwout, of Dutchess County, requested the supply of sundry articles engaged to the Troops raised in this Colony, for fifty men inlisted in his Company.

Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to Captain Swartwout a due proportion of each article, (ordered to be provided for the Troops raising for the defence of this Colony,) for fifty men of his Company, and take his receipt for the same.

And Ordered further, That Colonel Curtenius deliver to Captain John Belknap a due proportion of each article ordered to be provided for the Troops raising for the defence of this Colony, for a full Company, and take a receipt for the same.

Die Jovis, 10 ho. A. M., April 25, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esquire, Chairman.

FOR NEW-YORK.—Major Stoutenburgh, Mr. Van Zandt, Mr. Prince, Mr. Randall, Capt. Denning, Colonel Lott, Mr. Scott, Mr. Evert Bancker.

FOR ALBANY.—Mr. Oothoudt.

FOR KING'S.—Mr. Polhemus.

FOR ORANGE.—Mr. Cuyper.

FOR SUFFOLK.—Mr. Tredwell.

FOR WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Van Cortlandt.

FOR RICHMOND.—Mr. Adrian Bancker.

A Letter from Walter Livingston, Esq., dated at Albany, on the 7th day of April instant, was read. For the reasons therein mentioned, requesting that four hundred barrels of Pork may be sent to him for the use of the Northern Army, to be replaced by the like quantity ordered from Connecticut by Contractors appointed by General Lee,

Ordered, That Mr. Van Zandt and Mr. Randall wait on General Washington, and show him the said Letter.

Messrs. Van Zandt and Randall returned, and reported that the General had informed them that the four hundred barrels of Pork ordered from Connecticut was coming down, and might be soon expected, and that it will go to Albany without unloading; but that the General requested that the said Letter might be shown to Colonel Trumbull, Commissary-General.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries show the said Letter to Colonel Trumbull.

Alexander Moncrief informed the Committee, that the Provost-Marshal of the Army refuses to let him have the use of the Jail-Room which he formerly had, and that he is thereby hitherto prevented from obeying the order of this Committee, given to him yesterday with relation to sundry Prisoners therein named. *

Mr. Randall informed the Committee that his son has an inclination to purchase the Sloop Bishop of Landaff, and

* NEW-YORK, April 24, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I went according to your direction to Colonel Mifflin; I gave your compliments to the Colonel, desiring if he would be pleased to hear my complaint on the Provost-Marshal of the Army, and to give me redress for the abuse he gave me. His Honour was pleased to say he would look into it, and put a stop to the rude proceedings of said Provost-Marshal. Whether Colonel Mifflin has spoken to him on that subject, I cannot tell; but still the said Provost goes on at me with most scandalous abuse, that the like I never got since ever I could remember myself. So much of this abuse proceeds from clashes and lies that Thomas Varnom, hatter, now a prisoner in Jail, told on me to the said Provost: that when I had the prisoners in charge, that I used them ill, and barbarously abused them; likewise drew money from the treasury for prisoners, and never gave said moneys to them, but they were obliged to maintain themselves. This the Provost-Marshal upbraids me with, in a clamorous and satirick manner, by the base report of that infamous liar, Varnom; and when this matter is tried and examined, I will prove said Varnom to be an infamous fellow; and for my part am confident that I am innocent of what is laid to my charge, and will prove myself to be a person faithful to trust, and an honest man; requesting of your Honour to bring this matter to a trial or examination.

The Provost-Marshal is very much concerned about Varnom. He finds a vast many faults with the Committee of Safety for detaining of said Varnom in prison, and promises him he will apply to the Commander-in-Chief for his enlargement, or releasement out of prison.

I am, your most obedient servant,

ALEXANDER MONCRIEF.

To the Honourable Colonel McDougall, New-York.

therefore he would not choose to be concerned in making the sale.

Mr. Van Zandt informed the Committee that Mr. Robert Randall had offered four hundred Pounds for the said Sloop, and he requested their advice in the premises. The Committee were of opinion that the said Sloop is worth more, and desired that Mr. Robert Randall should be informed thereof, and know the utmost that he would offer.

A Letter from Colonel Gilbert Drake,* dated the 24th instant, was read and filed. He thereby informs that Captain Hyat with his Officers have seventy men ready for the service; that on encouragement formerly given him, he has waited to know if there is any vacancy for the Company. Captain Hyat was desired to call in the afternoon.

Two Letters from General Washington, one dated the 20th and the other the 24th, were read.

Ordered, That they be delivered to Mr. Scott to prepare a draft of an Answer.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall be desired to make a Return of the state of his Regiment to this Committee, with all possible despatch.

A draft of a Letter to Major-General Schuyler, to be delivered by Captain Wynkoop, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Committee of Safety, New-York, April 25, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 8th ultimo, requesting seamen for the service on the lakes, came to hand on the 16th. The Provincial Congress on that day sent Captain Wynkoop to Major Douglass on that subject. His answer was not satisfactory. The Committee of Safety wrote to him. His letter in answer was in our opinion indeterminate. Captain Wynkoop was ready for the service, but refused to serve under Major Douglass. The Committee of Safety immediately recommended Captain Wynkoop to Congress for the command, enclosing copies of all the letters on that subject, and requesting they would give immediate directions, which we have not yet received. On the 13th instant, on sight of your letter to the General, we found that Major Douglass was gone to Connecticut. We then prevailed on Captain Wynkoop to undertake that service, on condition to have leave to resign and leave that department if any person should arrive there to take the command of the vessels as his superior. Nothing but the pressing necessity of the case, an attachment to the service, the cause of his country, and to you, sir, as his General, would have prevailed on Captain Wynkoop to inlist the men, and proceed to put the vessels in order, under the present uncertainty of his station. Should the appointment of a superior oblige him to quit that department, we hope, sir, it will not be considered to his disadvantage.

It was not in our power to send you seamen without an officer. We assure you, sir, that we have done everything in our power in this matter; and had it not been for the difficulties which arose from the appointment of Major Douglass, you would have had the seamen in due season, and in the month of March.

We are, with the highest respect and esteem, sir, your very humble servants.

To Major-General Schuyler.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

A Letter from Samuel Tucker, Esquire, President of the Committee of Safety of the Province of New-Jersey, was read and filed, in the words following, viz:

"In Committee of Safety, New-Brunswick, April 20, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: This day were brought before us, three persons belonging to Westchester County, in your Province, * April 24, 1776.—DEAR SIR: I take the freedom to write to you by Captain Hyat, the bearer hereof, to let you know that I have kept Hyat back till this day not to join the Continental Regiments; and, sir, if you remember, that it was agreed in the Committee that if all the warrants were returned in by Wednesday, and Captain Hyat would come down with a list of his men for a company, that he should have a commission with his officers. Sir, he tells me that he, with his lieutenants, have got about seventy men ready, if he can get the commission, to join any regiment in the Continental service. Sir, I hope that you will assist and forward the expedition, and not let it be deferred for want of men, when so good a company offers.

From yours to serve,

GILBERT DRAKE.

To John Morin Scott, Esquire.

who, for some time past, have been on board the ship Lady Gage, and lately deserted from thence, at Sandy-Hook, and put themselves under the protection of our guard at the Highlands of Neversink; their names are Henry Smith, Isaac Horton, and Stephen Daniels; by whose examinations it appears that one Thomas Gibson, living at the Fishkills, hath enlisted a number of persons in your Government for the King's Army; that a boat was lately sent from the ships-of-war to Hempstead, on Long-Island, for provisions, and not returned when they left the ship two days past; that one Robert Hambleton, a schoolmaster, had enlisted a number of men now on board the King's ships, and was gone to Westchester to enlist more, (Smith and Daniels, it appears, were enlisted by said Gibson.) Horton says he was impressed on board the Asia last month. These persons will soon be sent to you.

"By order of the Committee of Safety of New-Jersey.

"I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety, New-York."
